THE INDIAN COMPANIES ACT (VII OF 1913).¹

[27th March, 1913.

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to Trading Companies and other Associations.

Whereas it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Trading Companies and other Associations;

PRELIMINARY.

Short title, commencement and extent.

I. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN COMPANIES ACT, 1913.

LEG. REF.

SEC. 1: APPLICATION OF ACT (see Ss. 250-252).—Act does not create new rights, but only regulates rights under the Common Law. 1928 M.W.N. 442=111 I.C. 225=1928 M. 571. Procedure prescribed in Act should be strictly followed. 6 P. 132=1927 P. 182. As Act is copied from the English Act, it should be given the same meaning as in the parent Act. 97 I.C. 783=1926 L. 624=8 L. 549. It is common knowledge that the company legislation in India has been based on English statutes. The Courts in India, are, therefore, bound to follow the principles the English Courts have laid down on the subject. 49 C.W.N. 502.

CONSTRUCTION.—English precedents and decisions must be given great respect and weight in construction of Act. 7 R. 514=1930 R. 20. Where a Life Insurance Company is registered under this Act it is subject to the provisions of this Act, although it may also be subjected to the Life Insurance Companies Act. 37 C.W.N. 1159=1934 C. 63.

ENGLISH LAW.—The Legislature has adopted the English Act as the model for drafting the Amending Act of 1936, and decisions of the Superior Courts or the provisions of the English Companies Act, though not binding decisions in Indian Courts, are yet decisions that demand great weight and respectful consideration in construing analogous provisions of the Indian Companies Act. 1930 Rang. 20=7 Rang. 514.

DECISIONS ON REPEALED PROVISIONS OF THE ACT, HOW FAR GUIDE IN CONSTRUCTION OF THE ACT.—The Indian Companies (Amendment) Act of 1936 effects large changes in the Law as it stood before the Amendment. A number of new sections are added, several sections have been wholly repealed. Numerous and important alterations have been made in the existing sections. To consider how far the provisions of and decisions under the older law would afford any guidance for the interpretation of the amended or consolidating Act, the rule laid down by Lord Herschell in Bank of England v. Vagliano, (1891) A.C. 107, 144, may well be followed. His Lordship speaking with reference to the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, (which consolidated the law relating to bills of exchange), said: "I think the proper course is, in the first instance, to examine the language of the statute, and to ask, what is its natural meaning uninfluenced by any considerations derived from the previous state of the law, and not to start with inquiring how the law previously stood, and then assuming that it was probably intended to leave it unaltered, to see if the words of the enactment will bear an interpretation in conformity with this view. What, however, I am venturing to insist upon is, that the first step taken should be to interpret the language of the statute, and that an appeal to earlier decisions can only be justified on some special ground." See also per Chitty, L.J. in Thomas Conservators v. Smeed, Dean & Co., (1897) 2 Q.B. 334, 346 (C.A.).

Applying this principle to the amending Act of 1936, which has to a very great extent retained the wording of the earlier Act of 1913, it is obvious that there is and must be ample scope for reference to the deci-

- (2) It shall come into force on the first day of April, 1914; and
 (3) It extends to the whole of British India including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas.

Definitions. ¹[2. (1).] In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) “articles” means the articles of association of a company as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, including, so far as they apply to the company, the regulations contained (as the case may be) in ²Table B in the Schedule annexed to Act No. XIX of 1857 or in ³Table A in the First Schedule annexed to the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or in Table A in the First Schedule annexed to this Act :

(2) “company” means a company formed and registered under this Act or an existing company :

(3) “the court” means the Court having jurisdiction under this Act.

(4) “debenture” includes debenture stock :

(5) “director” includes any person occupying the position of a director by whatever name called :

(6) “District Court” means the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in a district, but does not include a High Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction :

(7) “existing company” means a company formed and registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1866, or under any Act or Acts repealed thereby, or under the Indian Companies Act, 1882 :

(8) “Insurance company” means a company that carries on the business of insurance either solely or in common with any other business or businesses :

⁵[(9) “manager” means a person who subject to the control and direction sions on those Acts, and the right thus to refer is well settled.

Thus in the Mersey Dock case, 11 H.L. C. 443, Blackburn, J., on p. 480, in delivering the opinion of the majority of the Judges, said:—“Where an Act of Parliament has received a judicial construction putting a certain meaning on its words, and the Legislature in a subsequent Act, in pari materia, uses the same words, there is a presumption that the Legislature uses these words intending to express the meaning which it knew has been put upon the same words before; and unless there is something to rebut that presumption, the Act should be so construed, even if the words were such that they might originally have been construed otherwise.”

Hence it may be taken that in retaining the provisions of the earlier Companies Act, the Legislature has not disturbed the decided cases bearing on those provisions, and that those decided cases are still to be treated as relevant and available for the interpretation of the new Act, in so far as any questions as to its meaning may arise in the future. It by no means follows, however, that the new Act is to be taken to adopt and affirm a construction erroneously placed on the former Acts. Colonial Bank v. Whinney, (1885) 30 Ch.D. 261, furnishes a good illustration.

The application of a decision may however be excluded by a change in the language of the new Act. Thomas v. United Butter Cos. of France, (1909) 2 Ch. 484.

PROCEDURE.—Where a special provision is made in a special statute, that special provision would exclude the operation of a general provision in the general law. 1943 Sind 89= I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 504.

SEC. 2, CL. (9): ‘MANAGER’—AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The reason for the amendment was stated as follows:—“The existence of many special provisions applying to managing agents (introduced by the Amending Act of 1936), renders it advisable that the terms ‘manager’ and ‘managing agents’ should be separately defined. We have evolved definitions intended to differentiate ‘managing agents’ from ‘managers,’ instead of merely including the former in the definition of the latter.” (See Report of the Select Committee, Notes on Cl. 2.) of the directors has the management of the whole affairs of a company, and includes a director or any other person occupying the position of a manager by whatever name called and whether under a contract of service or not :

Person who is not in charge of the entire business of company but who is entrusted with the business of a branch is not a manager. 47 P.B. 1917 (Cr.)=43 I.C. 791=19 Cr.L.J. 215.

(9-A) "managing agent" means a person, firm, or company entitled to the management of the whole affairs of a company by virtue of an agreement with the company, and under the control and direction of the directors except to the extent, if any, otherwise provided for in the agreement and includes any person, firm or company occupying such position by whatever name called :

Explanation.—If a person occupying the position of a managing agent calls himself a manager he shall nevertheless be regarded as managing agent and not as manager for the purposes of this Act.]

(10) "memorandum" means the memorandum of association of a company as originally framed or as altered in pursuance of the provisions of this Act :

(11) "officer" includes any director, ¹[managing agent,] manager or secretary but, save in sections 235, 236 and 237, does not include an auditor :

(12) "prescribed" means, as respects the provisions of this Act relating to the winding up of companies, prescribed by rules made by the High Court, and, as respects the other provisions of this Act, prescribed by the [Central Government] :

²[(13) "private company" means a company which by its articles—

(a) restricts the right to transfer the shares, if any ; and

(b) limits the number of its members to fifty not including persons who are in the employment of the company ; and

(c) prohibits any invitation to the public to subscribe for the shares, if any, or debentures of the company :

Provided that where two or more persons hold one or more shares in a company jointly they shall, for the purposes of this definition, be treated as a single member :]

LEG. REF.

² This clause was substituted, ibid.

SEC. 2, CL. (9-A): 'MANAGING AGENTS' AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—As by the Amending Act a series of new sections dealing with managing agents has been added to the Act, it was thought necessary to define the 'term' separately with a view to differentiate the same from the term 'managers'. The idea that managing agents are to be under the control of the directors generally has been brought out specifically in this definition. Now, except to the extent to which the directors might themselves delegate their functions to the agents, the agents would be under their control and direction. (See also Notes under 'manager' supra).

SEC. 2, CL. (11).—As to the position of auditor, see 1929 A. 826=121 I.C. 693. Auditor's liability for deliberately passing over accounts. 1929 A. 826. Qualifications of an auditor. 140 I.C. 128. As to the position of a broker, see (1937) 2 M.L.J. 820=1938 M. 154=I.L.R. (1938) M. 192.

SEC. 2, CL. (13): AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The present definition has been substituted for the old one, following the definition contained in S. 26 of the English Act, with some slight alterations. In respect of the alterations from the English Act effected by this definition the Select Committee states in its Report as follows:—"We consider it unnecessary to provide for the inclusion among the members of a private company of persons who have left the employment of the company, and consider that such a provision might enable the number of members to be undesirably enlarged. The other amendment takes into consideration the fact that some private companies have no share capital."

SEC. 2 (1) (13), (c).—Where it is found that certain prize bonds, issued by a private company and bearing the company's seal, contain an acknowledgment of a debt and a promise to return it, and form a series bearing consecutive numbers, and it is also clear that all the holders get an equal chance to partake in the annual distribution of prizes out of the net interest realised by the company, it must be held that such bonds are debentures within the meaning of S. 2 (1), (13) (c). The fact that the bonds are not styled debentures would not make them anything other than debentures. It is not necessary that the debentures should create a charge. A charge, though usual, is not an essential requisite of a debenture. There may be a mortgage debentures or a simple debenture which does not create any charge on the assets of the company. 47 Bom.L.R. 660.

SEC. 2, CL. (13-A): "PUBLIC COMPANY".—This sub-section has been newly introduced by the Amending Act (1936). All associations which come under the definition of 'company' in this Act, and which are not 'private companies' as defined in this Act, are denoted by the term 'public company'.

SEC. 2, CL. (14): "PROSPECTUS".—The amendment of 1936 excludes from the scope of the term, any trade advertisement which shows on the face of it that a formal prospectus has been prepared and filed. This amendment was necessitated by the decision in 52 C. 440=29 C.W.N. 523=1925 C. 714, where a director was convicted for not filing with the Registrar a copy of an advertisement intimating that a prospectus has been issued and filed, and that shares could be had on the basis thereof. It was never the intention of the legislature to place such an advertisement in the same category as a 'prospectus', and the same has been rendered clear in the amending Act, by specifically excepting such publications from the scope of the definition.

SEC. 2, CL. (16): "SHARE".—The word 'share' denotes a right to receive a certain proportion of the profits of a company and of the capital of the company when it is wound up, and the total amount of the shares constitutes the capital of the company. Unlike debentures, which do not constitute any part of the capital of the company, shares cannot be issued at a discount, except under the circumstances and conditions mentioned in S. 105-A of this Act. Shares may be of different classes, viz., (i) Preference shares, (ii) Ordinary shares, and (iii) Deferred shares. (See Companies Act, M.L.J. Ed., pp. 9-10).

"STOCK".—"Stock" is the aggregate of fully paid-up shares legally consolidated and portions of which aggregate may be transferred and split up into fractions of any amount, without regard to the original amount of the shares. Morris v. Aymer, (1875) L.R. 7 H.L. 717.

(b) shall not, unless the subject matter or context so requires, be included in the expressions 'company,' 'existing company,' 'public company,' and 'private company':

Provided that—

(i) for the purposes of section 277 of this Act such a company shall, for a period of six months from the separation, be deemed to be a company incorporated and registered in British India;

(ii) the separation of Burma and Aden from India shall not render valid any mortgage or charge which, immediately before that date, was void against the liquidator or creditors of such a company.]

3. (1) The Court having jurisdiction under this Act shall be the High Court having jurisdiction in the place at which the registered office of the company, is situate:

Provided that the ²[Central Government] may, by notification in the Official Gazette, and subject to such restrictions and conditions as it thinks fit, empower any District Court to exercise all or any of the jurisdiction by this Act conferred upon the Court, and in that case such District Court shall, as regards the jurisdiction so conferred, be the Court in respect of all companies having their registered offices in the district.

(2) For the purposes of jurisdiction to wind up companies, the expression 'registered office' means the place which has longest been the registered office of the company during the six months immediately preceding the presentation of the petition for winding up.

SEC. 3: INTERFERENCE BY COURT.—Court will not generally interfere with the internal management of the affairs of a company. If majority of the shareholders consider that a particular contract of employment should be terminated, Court would not as a rule consider the matter at the instance of the minority of the shareholders. 36 Bom.L.R. 907=1934 B. 427. Where an action is brought by shareholders, plaintiff should distinctly allege not only the illegality of the act complained of but also the impossibility of getting the company itself to impeach its validity. Mere irregularities committed by the directors cannot give a cause of action to shareholders, and they should appeal to the company. The supremacy of the majority of shareholders is subject, however to certain exceptions, vis., (a) where the act complained of is ultra vires the company, (b) where the act is a fraud on the minority, and (c) where there is absolute necessity to waive the rule in order that there may not be a denial of justice. 36 Bom.L.R. 483=151 I.C. 1082 =1934 B. 243. See also 47 Bom.L.R. 916. Where the main point involved is the interpretation of a certain clause in the memorandum relating to the application of the assets of the company, it is not a matter of mere internal management. A single member can therefore maintain a suit against the company for a declaration as to the true construction of the article in question, and the company cannot be excused from being impleaded in such an action. 160 I.C. 24 =1935 L. 792.

HIGH COURT.—The expression 'High Court' in this Act includes both the Original and the Appellate Sides of that Court. 29 C.W.N. 404=86 I.C. 910=1925 C. 606. CONSTITUTION AND INCORPORATION.

4. (1) No company, association or partnership consisting of more than ten persons shall be formed for the purpose of carrying on the business of banking unless it is registered as a company under this Act, or is formed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or some other ¹[Indian law] or of Royal Charter or Letters Patent.

(2) No company, association or partnership consisting of more than twenty persons shall be formed for the purpose of carrying on any other business that has for its object the acquisition of gain by the company, association or partnership, or by the individual members thereof, unless it is registered as a company under this Act, or is formed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or some other ¹[Indian law] or of Royal Charter or Letters Patent.

DISTRICT JUDGE, JURISDICTION AND POWERS.—The District Judge, empowered under this section, has jurisdiction to order payment of arrears of calls under S. 186, and to adjudicate on disputes under S. 216, in respect of companies situated within his jurisdiction, even if some of the contributories reside outside British India. 15 L. 802=147 I.C. 739=1934 L. 362. The District Court, while exercising jurisdiction under this Act is in the capacity only of a District Court and not of a High Court, and as such, it is subordinate and subject to the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court, under S. 115, C. P. Code. 57 A. 810=1935 A.L.J. 527=1935 A. 310.

The existing jurisdiction of the District Courts over cases which began before the commencement of the new Act of 1913 is preserved by S. 284. 20 P.R. 1915=29 I. C. 272.

JURISDICTION, WHEN OBJECTED TO AT BEGINNING.—S. 3 (3) has not the effect of validating proceedings taken in the District Court to enforce orders passed by the High Court of that Province, if the objection as to jurisdiction of the District Court was taken at the very commencement and at the proper time. 53 M. 147=1930 M. 74=57 M.L.J. 723; 6 P. 132=1927 P. 182.

SEC. 4: COMPANIES AUTHORISED TO REGISTER.—As to companies capable of being registered under this Act, see Part VIII, S. 253 of the Act.

SEC. 4, CL. (2): APPLICABILITY.—For S. 4 (2) of the Act to apply it is necessary that, (1) there should be either a company, association or partnership consisting of more than twenty persons; (2) such company, association or partnership must be formed for the purpose of carrying on business other than the business of banking; (3) that business must have for its object the acquisition of gain either to the company, association or partnership, or to the individual members thereof. 38 Bom. L.R. 408. See also (1942) 1 M.L.J. 280.

ASSOCIATION OF PARTNERSHIP.—An association contemplated by this section can only carry on business either by a trustee or by an agent or officers or directors. Where the business is carried by each of the members of a pool entirely in an independent manner, there is neither an association nor a partnership, notwithstanding that there is a provision for sharing the profits. Such an arrangement cannot be rendered illegal on the ground that it is not registered under the Companies Act. The members of the pool might constitute a trade association formed, no doubt, with the ultimate object of gain to the members; but it cannot be said to be an association formed for the purpose of carrying on business. 38 Bom.L.R. 408. There can be no partnership where there is no common business, common to all the members of an association or a so-called partnership. In the absence of community of business, a mere provision for sharing profits would not constitute a partnership. 38 Bom.L.R. 408.

"PERSON".—The term denotes generally individuals and does not include unregistered body of individuals. 50 M. 175=51 M. L.J. 667=1927 M. 123. See also 10 N.L.R. 98=26 I.C. 613. The word has not been defined in this Act. The question whether a syndicate of ten persons was really composed of more than 20 persons is a question of fact to be decided on the evidence and not on a mere allegation. 32 Bom.L.R. 389=126 I.C. 305=1930 B. 431. Where the total number of persons constituting a partnership of four unregistered firms, carrying on business, consisted of 22 persons, it was held that such a partnership was illegal. 34 C.W. N. 1107=59 M.L.J. 435=1930 P.C. 300 (P.C.); 10 N.L.R. 98=26 I.C. 613. Even in the case of joint Hindu families if the various individual members of one or more of such joint families form an agreement of partnership among themselves, then each individual member must be reckoned 'a person' for the purposes of this section. But, if there has been no agreement of partnership but merely a family partnership created by the operation of law, so that the individual members are governed by the principles of the Hindu Law and not by the Contract Act, then the individual members are merely sub-partners in any agreement made on behalf of the family, and the joint family consisting of these persons should be reckoned as only one person for the purposes of this section. 30 N.L.R. 219=1934 N. 45; 46 A. 509=22 A.L.J. 487=1924 A. 414. See now new subsection (3) added by Act XXII of 1936. A trading association to be within S. 4, must be one formed on the basis of contract between its members. A joint family business concern, however, which by its nature descends from father to son, in which interests are acquired by the succeeding generations not by an act of party but by the law of inheritance, is not an association of persons in this sense, and does not, therefore, come within the scope of that section. 1939 C. 187=I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 368. Share certificates are not negotiable instruments, so as to make the person in whose name they stand the sole owner of the shares; when the shares are held by a joint Hindu family, it cannot be said that the members other than the member in whose name they stand have no right or interest in them. 16 Mys. L.J. 115=43 Mys.H.C.R. 58. Sub-partners are not members of a firm or a company, and the existence of sub-partners would not affect the number of members of a firm for purposes of S. 4 of the Companies Act. 38 Bom.L.R. 486=1936 B. 246.

"BUSINESS", WHAT IS.—The word "business" is wider than the term "trade", and must be construed in a reasonable manner so as to effectuate the intention of the legislature. The words 'any other business' show that what is contemplated by the Act is something which must be business in the same sense in which banking is, although impliedly described as business. The test of business is continuity and repetition of acts. But whether a repetition of acts amounts to business or not must depend upon the nature of the acts; and the act itself, if done singly, must be such as to be called business. If the act when done singly cannot amount to business, then merely because twenty persons or more than twenty persons are repeating the same act, it can hardly be said that they are carrying on business. 38 Bom.L.R. 408.

"CARRYING ON BUSINESS".—The expression "carrying on business" is an elastic one and is not capable of being clearly defined. 18 B. 294=21 I.A. 13 (P.C.). This may be said to exist only where there is a joint relation of persons for the common purpose of performing jointly a succession of acts, and not where the relation exists for the purpose which is to be completed by the performance of one act. (Halsbury, Vol. V, 101). In a case of a partnership agreement between a larger firm consisting of 16 persons and 3 other firms of 8 persons forming an association or syndicate for the purchase and sale of bales of yarn in different lots and for the division of the profits or losses arising out of the proceeds of such sales, it was held that it constituted a contract of partnership business consisting of more than 20 members and not merely a single venture, and that consequently it required registration under this section. 36 Bom.L.R. 786=152 I.C. 580=1934 B. 361.

But a pool arrangement formed between the owners of ginning factories of a particular place under which they agreed that each one of them should contribute his earning to the common pool for the purpose of stifling competition and distribute the same in certain shares among them, each member of the pool being allowed to carry on his business in an unrestricted manner and being responsible to the pool whether his constituent paid or not, is not an association formed for the purpose of carrying any business as contemplated by S. 4 of the Act. Such an arrangement is a mere scheme for collecting the earnings of all the members for the purpose of distribution among them. It is not an agreement of partnership, and even if it were held to be an association, does not fall within the prohibition of S. 4, even when the members of the pool number more than twenty. 38 Bom.L.R. 408. The term 'carrying on business' implies some continuous control of the business by the association. Where an agreement does not provide for any control by the association, as such, and all that it does is to impose certain restrictions on the business to be carried on by each partner in consideration of his getting a share in the profits and the agreement makes no provision for the sharing of losses the parties to it are in the relationship of debtor and creditor and do not come under this section. 16 L. 574=1934 L. 882; 65 I.C. 368=1922 N. 67.

Where an association was formed of 100 persons, and each member was to pay Rs. 10 as subscription, and the amount subscribed was to be paid to one of the members by drawing lots until all the members had their turn, and the association had to remain in existence for 100 months, it was held that it was doubtful whether such association required registration and whether a claim for refund of subscriptions would have been legally maintainable against the secretary and treasurer. 143 I.C. 530=1933 L. 121.

"TRADE ASSOCIATION".—A Trade Association cannot be said to be unlawful, merely because it has not been registered in conformity with the provisions of this Act. 53 A. 316=1931 A.L.J. 84=1931 A. 83.

PARTNERSHIP.—Creditors paid by share of profits having no right in the management and having no agreement inter se are not partners. 65 I.C. 368.

FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.—Foreign Corporations, though they have more than 20 members, do not come under this section, Bateman v. Service, (1881) 6 A.C. 386.

"CHIT FUND".—A chit fund does not create any legal relation involving joint and mutual rights and obligations between the subscribers inter se but only as between the manager and the subscriber. In such a case, although the number of subscribers may be more than twenty in number, no registration is required for the chit fund under this section, and the manager can sue and be sued. 11 Bur.L.T. 255=50 I.C. 513; 20 M. 68=7 M.L.J. 26; 29 M. 477=16 M. L.J. 385. But if there is a joint relation between the subscribers giving rise to rights and obligations inter se among them, then it will fall under this section if there were more than 20 subscribers. 1 M.L.T. 106.

COMPANY FORMED IN NATIVE STATE.—NOT GOVERNED BY ACT.—Where a business is conducted in a Native State, and it is not shown that the company formed for the purpose of carrying on business would be illegal according to the law prevailing in that State, the company or the members forming it do not commit an illegal act. 53 B. 652=31 Bom.L.R. 1187=1930 B. 5.

OBJECT, HOW DETERMINED.—The object of the association is to be determined with reference to the primary and original object of the association, and no regard should be paid to the circumstances that may have developed later on. Hence, if a perfectly legal association has been formed, and if later on, some of the members of the association should commit a breach of trust, this fact would not render the original association an illegal one. 52 A. 325=1930 A. L.J. 337=1930 A. 186.

"GAIN."—The word "gain" does not mean an ultimate pecuniary gain by the company. It refers to all cases where the business started brings in profits. A company may be formed for several objects and if one of the objects be the acquisition of gain, the mere fact that the members of the company either singly or jointly, proposes to dispose of the gain on some charitable object, will not exclude the company from falling within the purview of this section. 52 A. 325=1930 A.L.J. 337=1930 A. 186; 10 R. 490=1932 R. 167. An unregistered society of 124 members was formed with the primary object of aiding the Chinese who may be indigent and under temporary financial embarrassments. Every earning member was required to pay a monthly subscription of one rupee. Subsequently by a resolution of the Society, it was required that its members should pay one or more annas per day and form a fund out of which any Chinese person could get a loan at 2 per cent. per mensem in his difficulty, that such contribution was to continue for three years after which period the amount contributed was to be returned to the members, and the interest accrued thereon by lending was to be spent in charity. The object of this Society was held to amount to acquisition of gain by individual members thereof, and that it therefore fell under this section. 10 R. 490=140 I.C. 467=1932 R. 167. It is not necessary that the gain should be for the company. It is sufficient if the gain is intended for the individual members thereof. Mutual insurance companies, mutual loan societies and building societies fall under this section since the object of such societies is the acquisition of gain by the individual members thereof. Re Padstow Total Loss and Collision Assurance Association, (1882) 20 Ch.D. 137 C.A.; Greenberg v. Cooperstein, (1926) Ch. 657; Re Ilfracombe Permanent Mutual Benefit Building Society, (1901) 1 Ch. 102.

"UNLESS IT IS REGISTERED AS A COMPANY UNDER THIS ACT".—EFFECT OF NON-REGISTRATION.—Where an association which is required to be registered under this section is not registered, it can have no legal recognition as a jural unit and it cannot sue or be sued as a corporate body nor can it enter into a contract as such. 53 A. 316=1931 A.L.J. 84=1931 A. 83; I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 368. S. 4 on its true construction governs not only the first formation of the company, association or partnership, but also its continuance. An association formed for trading may be perfectly legal at its formation, if the original members be not more than ten in number, in the case of a banking business and twenty in other businesses, but if the number increases later on and exceeds the maximum allowable, the association becomes an illegal one, if no registration is effected. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 368. The members of a partnership or company or association hit by S. 4, can have beneficial interest in property. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 368. In order to constitute an association within the meaning of S. 4, the existence of the legal relation between more than twenty persons giving rise to joint rights or obligations or mutual rights and duties is absolutely necessary. (29 Mad. 477, Rel. on.). But where the object is to form a company it does not and there is no need to show the existence of a legal relation between the persons forming the company. Where a person starting an unregistered company for carrying on business having acquisition of gain as its object collects money from its subscribers who number more than twenty, then the moment money is collected the bargain is clinched and turned into an actual contract by acceptance and the subscribers become shareholders as such because they must be deemed to have paid the money for the very object of the company and the mere fact that share certificates are not issued does not make them any less shareholders and hence the case comes under sub-S. (2) of S. 4. 40 Cr.L. J. 799=1939 Rang. 273.

(4) Every member of a company, association or partnership carrying on business in contravention of this section shall be personally liable for all liabilities incurred in such business.

SUBSEQUENT REGISTRATION AND SUBSEQUENT REDUCTION OF MEMBERS.—Where an association is illegal by reason of the fact that, though it consists of more than 20 members, it is not registered, its character of illegality cannot be cured by subsequent reduction in number. It retains that character until registration or dissolution. But subsequent registration may cure the previous omission to register. 7 R. 540=120 I.C. 902=1930 R. 21.

SUIT BY OR AGAINST ILLEGAL COMPANY BY THIRD PARTIES.—A suit by an association which is an illegal one by reason of the fact of non-registration, is not maintainable. See also 1931 All. 83; I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 368. The illegality of a company affords no reason why it should not be sued. No doubt, it cannot be sued by a person who, being aware of all the facts, seeks to enforce a demand arising out of a transaction tainted with the illegality which affects the Company. But the illegality of a company does not per se afford any answer to a demand against it arising out of a transaction to which it is a party, and which transaction is legal in itself. Unless the person dealing with the company is particeps criminis, there can be no turpis causa to bring him within the operation of the rule ex turpi causa non oritur actio; and he not being implicated in any illegal act himself, cannot be prejudiced by the fact that the persons with whom he was dealing or illegally associated in company. 53 B. 652=31 Bom.L.R. 1187=1930 B. 5; 16 L. 574=1934 L. 882. Where a firm consisting of less than twenty partners is subsequently converted into a joint-stock company with additional partners so as to consist of more than twenty partners, it must be registered under the Companies Act; if it is not so registered, no suit can be maintained in respect of that partnership. But when a person who was a partner in the firm and was, as such, entitled to a share of the profits when the membership of the firm was below twenty, is not allotted any share in the newly formed company, he being totally unaware of the increase in the members and of the conversion, he cannot be made to lose his right to a share of the profits because the number of partners had increased beyond twenty without his knowledge. A suit by him for a declaration that there has been a dissolution of the partnership, and for accounts cannot be dismissed on the ground of non-registration under S. 4 (2) of the Companies Act. 1937 M. W. N. 1189=1938 Mad. 151.

RIGHTS OF SUBSCRIBERS TO AN ILLEGAL COMPANY.—The subscribers to an illegal company, i.e., a company which should have been registered under S. 4 (2) of the Act and which has not been so registered, and formed for a lawful purpose are not entitled to claim an account of the dealings and transactions of the company and of the profits made thereby. But still, they have a right to have their subscriptions returned and can maintain a suit for enforcing the same. This right is not lost even though the monies subscribed have been laid out in the purchase of lands and other things for the purpose of the company. In such a case, the subscribers are entitled to have those lands and things reconverted into money and to have it applied as far as it would go in payment of the debts and liabilities of the company, and then in repayment of the subscriptions. In such cases no illegal contract is sought to be enforced, but on the contrary, the continuance of what is illegal is sought to be prevented. But where the purpose of the company itself is illegal or where any claim is made for sharing the profits of, or for partition of the existing assets of a company which is illegal for want of registration, no Court of law or equity will lend it its assistance. 1930 R. 21=7 R. 540=120 I.C. 902. In the case of an unregistered association of more than 20 members, where a member sues for dissolution, for taking accounts and for partition, none of the reliefs could be granted, but he may be granted a declaration that the association is illegal. 48 A. 785=24 A.L.J. 777=1926 A. 591; 49 A. 318=25 A.L.J. 146=1927 A. 487; 92 I.C. 640=1926 N. 241.

5. Any seven or more persons (or, where the company, to be formed will be a private company, any two or more persons) associated for any lawful purpose may, by subscribing their names to a memorandum of association and otherwise complying with the requirements of this Act in respect of registration, form an incorporated company, with or without limited liability (that is to say), either—

UNREGISTERED COMPANY—CLAIM OF INCOME-TAX AGAINST.—A company carrying on business without complying with the provisions of the law as to the mode of its constitution cannot plead its illegal constitution against a claim for income-tax made on it. The fact that in S. 3 of the Income-tax Act, the legislature drew a distinction between a company and a firm and other associations of individuals clearly shows that the provisions of the Companies Act do not prevent an association formed for the purpose of doing business from being made liable to income-tax on its profits even if it has not been registered in accordance with the law relating to the incorporation of companies. 32 P.L.R. 335=1931 L. 376.

LIMITATION.—Where an association consists of more than 20 persons but it is not registered, and the members bring a suit for the return of subscription money paid to the promoter after conversion of the property of the association into cash into which the said money was changed, such suit is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act, and not by Art. 62. 7 R. 540=1930 R. 21. In a suit for declaration by the heirs of one of the members that the partnership was illegal under this section, and for the recovery of capital contributed by their ancestor, it was held that the cause of action accrued as soon as the money was paid and that there was no continuing cause of action in plaintiff's favour. 19 A.L.J. 836=64 I.C. 447.

SEC. 4 (5).—Where a company consisting of more than 20 persons formed in 1922-1923 is unregistered, the members thereof can be punished for continuing to be members of such company, under S. 4 (5) which was introduced by the Amending Act XXII of 1936, although they cannot be punished for originally forming themselves into such a company. 1942 Comp. SEC. 5: CONSTRUCTION OF MEMORANDUM.—A memorandum of association, like any other document, must be read fairly and its import derived from a reasonable interpretation of the language which it employs. There is no specially rigid canon of construction to be applied to it. The purpose of the memorandum is to enable shareholders, creditors and those who dealt with the company to know what its permitted range of enterprise is, and for this information they are entitled to rely on the constituent documents of the company. But the intention of the framers of the memorandum must be gathered from the language in which they have chosen to express it, and not from the antecedent transactions of the company to which the shareholders, creditors and others have no access and which they have no means of knowing. 1931 A.L.J. 565=62 M. L. J. 163=1931 P.O. 182 (P.O.). Except in respect of matters as must, by statute, be provided for by the memorandum, it should be read in conjunction with the articles of the association; and, at all events, so far as may be necessary to explain any ambiguity appearing in the terms of memorandum or to supplement it upon any matter as to which it is silent. 38 L.W. 957=65 M. L. J. 785=1935 P.O. 89 (P.O.). The memorandum of association does not constitute a contract between the company and a third party who may be named therein. 36 Bom. L.R. 907=1934 B. 427.

LAWFUL PURPOSE.—If, as expressed on the face of the instrument of incorporation, the purpose for which the corporation is formed is not necessarily unlawful, it will be presumed that it was for a purpose for which companies might lawfully be formed. The formation of companies is not permitted where the real purpose of the incorporation is to cloak an illegal object or an unlawful business; but in such a case the fiction of the existence of a corporation or company will be disregarded by a Court of justice when the question arises in a proper proceeding, and the acts of the real parties will be dealt with as though no such corporation had been formed; and the same is true for stronger reasons where an illegal purpose is expressed in the articles. Where the proprietors of a zamindari who were numerous and whose interests were minute formed themselves into a company for the management of the property, and where the means adopted therefor were beneficial, it, was held that the purpose was not unlawful. 16 C.W.N. 297=13 I.C. 673.

“OTHERWISE”.—This word denotes that the signing by two persons in the case of private companies and of 7 persons in the case of other companies is as much a preliminary condition of registration as any other requirements of the Act. 16 C. W. N. 947=23 M. L. J. 215=39 I. A. 237 (P.O.).

“UNDERTAKE TO CONTRIBUTE TO THE ASSETS OF THE COMPANY.”—The undertaking in the memorandum limits the liability. Re Bangor and North Wales, etc., Association, (1899) 2 Ch. 593; Pedlar v. Eoad Block Gold Mines, (1905), 2 Ch. 427; Re Kingsbury Collieries, (1907) 2 Ch. 259.

“SEVEN OR MORE PERSONS”.—“ONE MAN COMPANY.”—The Act enacts nothing as to the extent or degree of interest, which may be held by each of the seven, or as to the proportion of interest or influence, possessed by one or the majority of the shareholders over others. It is not necessary that the subscribers to the memorandum should be independent or unconnected, or that they or any of them should take a substantial interest in the undertaking, or that they should have a mind and will of their own, or that there should be anything like a balance of power in the constitution of the company. All the signatories may be the nominees of one person. A frequent practice is for an individual desiring to turn his business into a company having a limited liability to get a sufficient number of dummies—persons who are under his control and who have no individual responsibility—to unite with him, and thus to furnish the requisite number of signatures to the instrument of association. It seems that such a concern is to be regarded as a company, and that a man may thus turn himself into a company, by committing a plain fraud on the law, so as to defeat his unsecured creditors. Saloman v. Saloman and Co., (1897) A.C. 22=66 L.J. Ch. 25; Commissioners of Inland Revenue v. Sanson, (1921) 2 K.B. 429=90 L.J.K.B. 627; 51 B. 372=102 I.C. 49=1927 B. 371.

“PERSONS”.—“Persons” includes ‘company’. So one limited company may take shares in another. Re. Barneld’s Banking Co., (1867) L.R. 3 Ch. 105=37 O.L. Ch. 81; Royal Bank of India’s case, L.R. 4 Ch. 252. The term includes infant, Re Nassau Phosphate Co., (1876) 2 Ch.D. 610=45 L. J. Ch. 584; Re Lawton & Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 555=61 L.J. 667. As to incorporation of foreigners, see Reuses (Princess of) v. Bos, (1871) 5 H.L. 176=40 O.L.J. Ch. 655.

EFFECT OF ORDER TERMINATING EXISTENCE OF COMPANY.—Where a company has ceased to exist by an act of the country by whose acts and under whose laws it was made a juristic entity, it must be treated as non-existent by all Courts administering English law. 54 L.W. 610=196 I.C. 414=1941 P.C. 88 (P.O.).

SEC. 6.—Detailed powers are not required to be and ought not to be specified in the memorandum. In the case of a trading company, the memorandum should only define the trade and not the various acts which it should be within the power of the company to do in carrying on the trade. Cotman v. Brougham, (1918) A.O. 514. So, where the memorandum of a company stated it to be one of its objects that it should carry on the business of manufacturers of and dealers in salt, soda, iodine, etc., and that it may do

- (1) the memorandum shall state—
 - (i) the name of the company with “ Limited ” as the last word in its name ;

 - (v) that each member undertakes to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up while he is a member, or within one year afterwards, for payment of the debts and liabilities of the company contracted before he ceases to be a member, and of the costs, charges and expenses of winding up, and for adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves, such amount as may be required, not exceeding a specified amount :
- (2) if the company has a share capital—
 - (i) the memorandum shall also state the amount of share capital with which the company proposes to be registered and the division thereof into shares of a fixed amount ;
 - (ii) no subscriber of the memorandum shall take less than one share ;

Memorandum of unlimited company.

8. In the case of an unlimited company—

- (1) the memorandum shall state—
 - (i) the name of the company ;
 - (ii) the province in which the registered office of the company is to be situate ;
 - (iii) the objects of the company, ¹[and, except in the case of trading corporations, the territories to which they extend] :

Where among the objects for which a company was established, it was provided that it could “raise money, by the issue of shares, debentures, bonds and other securities and to invest monies so raised, or any part thereof, upon the investments specified in this memorandum,” a restrictive meaning, cannot be put upon the clause so as to make it read as if the company was restricted to be raising of debentures only to invest and not otherwise. The clause should be read as an enabling and not a limiting clause; and the real meaning is that the company was empowered to raise money by issue of debentures, and that, if it so desired, to invest the money so raised or any part of it, i.e., the company has an option to invest the money so raised by debentures either wholly or in part or not at all. 57 C. 328=1930 C. 536. See also 160 I.C. 24=1935 L. 792. The alteration of the memorandum is not so easy as the alteration of the articles. Therefore the convenient statement in the memorandum with reference to the capital will be in the following terms: “The shares forming the capital (original or increased) of the company shall be divided into such classes, with such preferential and other rights, privilege and conditions; and shall be held in such terms as may be prescribed by the articles of association of the company for the time being.” 64 M.L.J. 277=1933 A.L.J. 405=(1933) P.O. 39 (P.O.).

Restriction on alteration of memorandum.

10. A company shall not alter the conditions contained in its memorandum except in the cases and in the mode and to the extent for which express provision is made in this Act :

²[Provided that any provision in the memorandum relating to the appointment of a manager or managing agent and other matters of a like nature incidental or subsidiary to the main objects of the company, shall not be deemed to be such condition.]

by which a company in existence is already registered, or so nearly resembling that name as to be calculated to deceive, except where the company in existence is in the Course of being dissolved and signifies its consent in such manner as the registrar requires.

(2) If a company, through inadvertence or otherwise, is, without such consent as aforesaid, registered by a name identical with that by which a company in existence is previously registered, or so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive, the first-mentioned company may, with the sanction of the registrar, change its name.

SEC. 10: "CONDITIONS".—The conditions referred to in this section are not confined to those which are essential to be stated in the memorandum under this Act. Even such conditions which are not required by this Act to be inserted in the memorandum, cannot be altered except in the cases and in the mode and to the extent for which express provision is made in the Act. Ashbury v. Watson, (1885) 30 Ch.D. 376 C.A. Where, however, when a clause in the memorandum only empowered the company to enter into a contract of agency with a particular firm, and did not form a vital part or condition of the constitution of the company, it was held that it did not come under the word "condition" within the meaning of this section. 59 B. 218=36 Bom.L.R. 907=156 I.C. 80=1934 B. 427. As to "conditions", see also 18 L.W. 804=1923 M.W.N. 568=74 I.C. 966. To vary the conditional rights and privileges given to various classes of shares by following strictly the procedure laid down in the articles and the memorandum, does not amount to an alteration of the conditions contained in the memorandum; where one of the conditions in the memorandum itself is that the rights and privileges are subject to variation. To hold otherwise would be to ignore the condition in the memorandum providing for such terms. To determine the rights attaching to such particular class of shares, the memorandum must be read and given effect to as a whole, unless any particular provision of the same violates an express provision of the Act, in which case that particular provision will be treated as invalid. 57 A. 810=1935 A.L.J. 527=1935 A. 310. With reference to the circumstances under and the extent to which variation of shareholder's rights could be effected, provision has been made now in S. 66-A inserted by the Amending Act XXII of 1936.

SECS. 10 AND 12.—The appointment of a managing agent is merely a detail of management for the purpose of carrying on the business of the company, and a company is entitled to regulate that detail in such manner as it likes without going to a Court for its sanction. 45 Bom.L.R. 1075=A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 76.

SEC. 11.—The present sub-section (3) has been substituted in place of the previous one. The alterations made have been suggested by the wording of S. 17 of the English Act,

(a) contains any of the following words, namely, 'Crown,' 'Emperor,' 'Empire,' 'Empress,' 'Federal,' 'Imperial,' 'King,' 'Queen,' 'Royal,' 'State,' 'Reserve Bank,' 'Bank of Bengal,' 'Bank of Madras,' 'Bank of Bombay,' or any word which suggests or is calculated to suggest the patronage of His Majesty or of any member of the Royal Family or any connection with His Majesty's Government or any department thereof; or

(b) contains the word 'Municipal' or 'Chartered' or any word which suggests or is calculated to suggest connection with any municipality or other local authority or with any society or body incorporated by Royal Charter:

(4) Any company may, by special resolution and subject to the approval of the [Central Government] signified in writing, * * * *, change its name.

(5) Where a company changes its name, the registrar shall enter the new name on the register in place of the former name, and shall issue a certificate of incorporation altered to meet the circumstances of the case. On the issue of such a certificate the change of name shall be complete.

(6) The change of name shall not affect any rights or obligations of the company, or render defective any legal proceedings by or against the company; and any legal proceedings that might have been continued or commenced against it by its former name may be continued or commenced against it by its new name.

12. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, a company may, by special resolution, alter the provisions of its memorandum so as to change the place of the registered office from one province to another, or with respect to the objects of the company, so far as may be required to enable it—

This amendment prohibits the use of some name, vis., "Federal", "State" or any other word suggesting patronage of His Majesty or of any member of the Royal Family or any connection with His Majesty's Government or any department thereof; and "Municipal" or "Chartered" or any other word which suggests or is calculated to suggest connection with any Municipality or local authority or with any society or body incorporated by Royal Charter.

SEC. 12: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—Two new clauses (f) and (g) have been added to sub-S. (1) of this section. In certain decisions it was doubted whether in the absence of express provision in the memorandum a company was competent to alter its objects so as to enable it to sell or dispose of the whole or any part of the undertaking of the company, or to amalgamate with any other company. Express provision for these purposes is contained in S. 5 of the English Act, and the same has been adopted by the present amendment.

SEC. 12, CL. 1: "OBJECTS OF THE COMPANY".—Revoking the appointment of an agent is not one relating to the objects of the company. 18 L.W. 304=1923 M.W.N. 562=74 I.C. 966. As to alteration of memorandum by addition of new clauses, see 52 C. 586; by changing place of registered office, see 96 I.C. 753=1926 A. 649; by modification of preferential rights, see 110 I.C. 649=30 Bom.L.R. 598. A general meeting is not a condition precedent to make a proposal to alter the memorandum or articles of a company. See 30 Bom.L.R. 197=108 I.C. 465=1928 B. 80. It is not necessary for the company to take proceedings to alter the memorandum or articles, before the Court can sanction a scheme involving the alteration thereof. See 30 Bom.L.R. 197=108 I.C. 465=1928 B. 80. A memorandum of association can be altered only by a special resolution of the company. 33 M. 36=1 I.C. 803. There is a very clear distinction between the relation of a shareholder to a company in regard to his shares and his rights against the company in regard to other contracts. Although the regulations contained in a company's Articles of Association are revocable by special resolution, a special contract may be made with the company in the terms of or embodying one or more of the Articles, and a company cannot break its contracts by altering its Articles. When dealing with contracts referring to revocable articles, and especially with contracts between a member of the company and the company respecting his share, care must be taken not to assume that the contract involves as one of its terms an Article which is not to be altered. If the Court sees that a contract involves as one of its terms that an article is not to be altered, then the company is not at liberty

- (a) to carry on its business more economically or more efficiently ; or
- (b) to attain its main purpose by new or improved means ; or
- (c) enlarge or change the local area of its operations ; or
- (d) to carry on some business which under existing circumstances may conveniently or advantageously be combined with the business of the company ; or
- (e) to restrict or abandon any of the objects specified in the memorandum ;

(f) to sell or dispose of the whole or any part of the undertaking of the company ; or

(g) to amalgamate with any other company or body of persons.]

(2) The alterations shall not take effect until and except in so far as it is confirmed by the Court on petition.

(3) Before confirming the alteration, the Court must be satisfied—

(a) that sufficient notice has been given to every holder of debentures of the company, and to any persons or class of persons whose interests will, in the opinion of the Court, be affected by the alteration ; and

(b) that, with respect to every creditor who in the opinion of the Court is entitled to object, and who signifies his objection in manner directed by the Court, either his consent to the alteration has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined, or has been secured to the satisfaction of the Court :

Provided that the Court may, in the case of any person or class, for special reasons, dispense with the notice required by this section.

13. The Court may make an order confirming the alteration either wholly or in part, and on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit, and may make such order as to costs as it thinks proper.

14. The Court shall, in exercising its discretion under sections 12 and 13, have regard to the rights and interests of the members of the company or of any class of them, as well as to the rights and interests of the creditors, and may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the proceedings in order that an arrangement may be made to the satisfaction of the Court for the purchase of the interests of dissentient members ; and may give such directions and make such orders as it may think expedient for facilitating or carrying into effect any such arrangement :

Provided that no part of the capital of the company may be expended in any such purchase.

15. (1) A certified copy of the order confirming the alteration, together with a printed copy of the memorandum as altered, shall,

Court, and not on the appellate side. 41 C.L.J. 191=29 O.W.N. 403.

SEC. 13: "COURT'S POWERS".—The Court has power to confirm the resolution regarding the alteration of the memorandum of association, only where such alterations relate to matters referred to in sub-section (1) of this section. 18 L.W. 304=74 I.O. 966=1924 M. 126.

SEC. 14.—Court is not always bound to confirm alteration. 18 L.W. 304=74 I.O. 966.

Provided that the Court may, on sufficient cause shown, revive the order on application made within a further period of one month.

Articles of Association.

17. (1) There may, in the case of a company limited by shares, and there shall, in the case of a company limited by guarantee or unlimited, be registered with the memorandum, articles of association signed by the subscribers to the memorandum and prescribing regulations for the company.

(2) Articles of association may adopt all or any of the regulations contained in Table A in the First Schedule, ¹[and shall in any event be deemed to contain regulations identical with or to the same effect as regulation 56, regulation 66, regulation 71, regulations 78, 79, 80, 81 and 82, regulation 95, regulation 97, regulation 105, regulation 107 and regulations 112, 113, 114, 115 and 116 contained in that Table :

Provided that ²[regulations 78, 79, 80, 81 and 82] shall not be deemed to be included in the articles of any private company except a private company which is the subsidiary company of a public company :

Provided further that regulation 107 shall be deemed to require that a statement of the reasons why of the whole amount of any item of expenditure which may in fairness be distributed over several years, only a portion thereof is charged against the income of the year, shall be shown in the profit and loss account, unless the company in general meeting shall determine otherwise.]

SEC. 17: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This amendment has substituted the present sub-section for the old one. Previously it was left to the option of the companies to adopt or not all or any of the provisions of the regulations contained in Table A of I Schedule of the Act. It was thought desirable to make generally applicable certain provisions usually made by the articles of properly managed companies as to polls, absence of restrictions on form of proxies, retirement of directors by rotation, inspection of accounts, details shown in profit and loss accounts restriction as to the amount of dividend that may be declared by the company, and the giving of notice to members. This amendment makes the adoption of the model regulations on these subjects contained in Table A compulsory. See however, 49 C.W.N. 502.

SEC. 17, CL. (2): "DIRECTOR'S LIABILITY".—It was held in 154 I.C. 33=1934 A. 855 that there was nothing in the Act to prevent such a clause being inserted in the articles of association as would seriously limit the liability of a director or officer of the company. But it may no longer be possible in view of S. 86-C which has been introduced by the amending Act of 1936.

(3) In the case of an unlimited company or a company limited by guarantee, the articles, if the company has a share capital, shall state the amount of share capital with which the company proposes to be registered.

(4) In the case of an unlimited company or a company limited by guarantee, if the company has not a share capital, the articles shall state the number of members with which the company proposes to be registered, for the purpose of enabling the registrar to determine the fees payable on registration.

18. In the case of a company limited by shares and registered after the commencement of this Act, if articles are not registered, or, if articles are registered, in so far as the articles do not exclude or modify the regulations in Table A, in the First Schedule, those regulations shall, so far as applicable, be the regulations of the company in the same manner and to the same extent as if they were contained in duly registered articles.

Form and signature of articles.

19. Articles shall—

(a) be printed ;
 (b) be divided into paragraphs numbered consecutively ; and
 (c) be signed by each subscriber of the memorandum ¹ [(who shall add his address and description)] of association in the presence of at least one witness who must attest the signature.

20. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act and to the conditions contained in its memorandum, a company may by special resolution alter or add to its articles, and any alteration or addition so made shall be as valid as if originally contained in the articles, and be subject in like manner to alteration by special resolution.

(2) The power of altering articles under this section shall, in the case of any company formed and registered under Act No. XIX of 1857 and ²Act No. VII of 1860 or either of them extend to altering any provisions in Table B³ annexed to Act XIX of 1857, and shall also, in the case of an unlimited company formed and registered under the said Acts or either of them, extend to altering any regulations relating to the amount of capital or its distribution into shares, notwithstanding that those regulations are contained in the memorandum.

SEC. 19: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—In cl. (c) after the word 'memorandum' the words "who shall add his address and description", have been added by the amendment. This amendment merely provides for what is generally done in practice. A similar addition has been made in S. 9 by the Amending Act (1936).

Sec. 20.—It is not for the Court to decide whether the alteration or addition is for the benefit of the company as a whole but it is to be determined by the shareholders acting bona fide. Shuttleworth v. Cox Brothers, (1927) 2 K.B. 9. As to what amounts to alteration of articles, see 1930 A. 661. Necessity for special Resolution for alteration. 13 M. 36. See also 52 C. 239. sets of circumstances. 190 I.C. 551=1940 Sind 87. Where the passing of the Insurance Act of 1938 necessitated the amendment of the Articles of such an Association, and the Association at the meetings of their members passed resolutions making the necessary amendments, such amendments are binding upon their members who had notice of the meetings and who have nothing to say against the regularity of the resolution passed. SECS. 20 AND 20-A: ALTERATION OF ARTICLES—LIABILITY OF MEMBER—LIMITS.—S. 20 of the Companies Act empowers a company to alter or add to its articles, and when altered the new article is as valid as if it had found place in the original article. S. 20-A of the Act, in so far as it provides that a member is not bound by an alteration made in the articles after the date on which he became a member unless he has agreed in writing to be bound thereby, is limited to two things, (1) where the alteration requires him to take or subscribe for more shares than the number held by him at the date of the alteration, and (2) where it increases his liability to contribute to the share capital of, or otherwise to pay money to, the company. 1946 N.L.J. 128.

SECS. 20 AND 21: Art. 109 of the articles of association of a company provided that the number of directors shall be not less than three nor more than four. There was no qualifying words like "until otherwise determined by a general meeting." Art. 126 provided that the company in a general meeting may, from time to time, increase or reduce the number of directors. A question arose as to the power of the company to increase the number beyond the permitted maximum by an ordinary resolution. Held, Per Derbyshire, C.J.—The two articles in question must be read together, and they must be read and operated in such a way as not to contravene the provisions of S. 20 of the Companies Act. Reading the two articles together the company may in general meeting from time to time increase the number of its directors from three to four or reduce the number of its directors from four to three by an ordinary resolution. But if it is desired to increase the number of directors beyond four then that is an alteration of the articles and must be done by a special resolution. An ordinary resolution increasing the number of directors beyond four is contrary to the provisions of Ss. 20 and 21 of the Companies Act and therefore is invalid.

Per Gentle, J.:—Art. 126 does not relate to an increase in the maximum number of directors but to an increase in the actual number within the permitted maximum and that article has not to be read with Art. 109. Assuming the words in Art. 126 are read with those in Art. 109, they do not empower the company to alter the maximum number of directors by an ordinary resolution, but a special resolution, pursuant to S. 20 (1) of the Companies Act, is required for that purpose. 50 O.W.N. 310.

SEC. 20-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section has been newly inserted by the amending Act. This section limits, on the lines of S. 22 of the English Act, the liability of a member of a company under alterations made in the memorandum after he has become a member of the company. This is a salutary provision meant for the protection of the minority against the oppression by the majority. Alteration in the Articles effected after the resolution of expulsion of a member could not in any way be binding upon him if notice of the meeting at which the alteration was made was withheld from him. 52 L. W. 741=1941 Mad. 354=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 721. Unless a construction of the articles of a company leads to the conclusion that there was an intention to supersede the ordinary rule, it must be held that, where no quorum has in fact been fixed, the acts of a major part of the Directors for the time being are valid. 1942 Comp. C. 10=44 P.L.R. 15=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 68=I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 123.

SEC. 21, CL. (1): ARTICLES ARE CONTRACTS.—Although the articles of association can neither constitute a contract between the company and an outsider, nor give any individual member special contractual rights

Effect of memorandum and articles. pany and the members thereof to the same extent as if they respectively had been signed by each member and contained a covenant on the part of each member, his heirs, and legal representatives, to observe all the provisions of the memorandum, and of the articles, subject to the provisions of this Act.

beyond those of the members generally, yet they do in fact constitute a contract between the company and its members in respect of their ordinary rights as members. 52 B. 477=30 Bom.L.R. 549=1928 B. 252. See I. L.R. (1943) Lah. 28. According to S. 21, the articles of association are binding on the company as well as on the members thereof. The articles constitute a contract inter se amongst the shareholders and where the articles have been acted upon by the company and the members, the articles constitute an implied contract between the members and the company. Therefore, where in pursuance of certain articles acted upon by the company, a member was appointed Managing Director of the Bank and acted for eleven years in that capacity, the articles constitute an implied contract between the member and the company; a suit for performance of which lies in a Civil Court. 190 I.C. 819=1940 Lah. 243. See also 1942 Cal. 47=199 I.C. 667.

Per Gentile, J.—The articles of association of a company constitute a contract between each member with the other members to observe the provisions in the articles. It follows that when some members of a company, it may be the majority of members, do not carry out the terms of that agreement, which each has made with all other members, to observe and carry out of the provisions in the articles but they act contrary to the articles, one or more of the other members has or have the right to come to the Court and ask for the agreement to be enforced against those members who have violated their obligations. In a suit by the minority shareholders concerning the affairs of the company, the company properly can, and indeed should, be a plaintiff. 50 C. W. N. 310. Though the memorandum and articles of association of a company do not constitute a contract, an implied contract may be proved by the acts of the parties on the terms set out in the articles of association. 43 P.L.R. 619=1941 Com.C. 301. Where the articles of association required that the Board of managing directors should consist of a certain number, but as a matter of fact a lesser number only is appointed, they are not entitled to exercise the functions of the Board of managing directors and any resolutions passed by them are not valid. 1939 A.L.J. 950=1939 All. 739. A contractual right of inspection does not of itself imply a right to take copies any more than a statutory right would do. In the case of a statutory right of inspection the Court will not imply a right to take copies unless the statutory right would otherwise be of no avail, or practically useless. The Court is bound by a stricter rule when a question of implying a term in a contract arises than in the case of a statute. S. 21 of the Companies Act merely converts the Articles of Association into a contract between the company and its members. If the Articles give to its members a right to inspect the minutes and there is nothing to show that the intention was to give a right to take copies of the minutes, the Articles must be construed to mean that the members, though given a right to inspect the minutes, could only take copies of them if that were permissible under their common law rights. If the interests of members are sufficiently protected by the common law, there is no necessity for implying any greater rights in their contract. The members are not entitled under their common law right to take copies of the minutes if their interest is not different from that of their fellow members, and if they have no special object of their own. 42 C.W.N. 161=1938 Cal. 89. Where one of the Articles of Association of a banking company provides that the office of a director shall be vacated. "If he resigns or for any other reason becomes incapable of acting as a director," it cannot be held that, under that clause, default by him in repaying a loan to the bank and indebtedness to the bank incapacitates him from acting as a director. Loans to directors of a bank are contemplated as part of its business and therefore default in repayment of a loan cannot be a disqualification. There must be some incapacity such as illness, long absence, imprisonment or insanity, etc. Albuquerque v. Catholic Bank, Ltd., Mangalore, 1942 Com.C. 213=A.I. R. 1942 Mad. 737 (1)=55 L.W. 532 (1)=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 307=I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 291. The respondent which was a shipping company incorporated under the Indian Companies Act had as its objects, "to acquire and deal with the following property, the business property and liabilities of any company, firm, etc., lands, buildings, etc., plant, machinery, personal estates and effects, . . . and to perform or do all or any of the following operations, acts or things The company out of its funds laid out 25 lacs of rupees in the purchase of bullion and deposited it at a bank for safe custody. In a suit for a declaration that the transaction was ultra vires and illegal and void in law.

Held, that the transaction was not ultra vires, but within the powers of the company and covered by the memorandum of association, as it amounted to acquisition of "personal estate and effects," which were comprehensive words.

of association was wide enough to cover the transaction in question. I.L.R. (1944) Bom. 247=46 Bom.L.R. 145=A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 131. One of the articles of association of a company provided that "the shares shall be under the control of the directors who may allot or otherwise dispose of the same only among existing members but shall not, without the consent of the company in general meeting, allot or otherwise dispose of them to outsiders." Two persons applied for shares in the company which then consisted of only six members all of whom were directors. Each of them was allotted two shares at a meeting of five out of the six directors of the company. Their names were duly entered in the register of members. About 8 months later, the directors resolved to cancel the allotments on the ground that the allotments were invalid for want of consent of the company in general meeting as required by the Articles of Association, and removed the names of the two newly added members from the register of members. In an application by those members to rectify the register by re-inserting their names Held, that the allotments must, under the circumstances, be regarded as valid and binding on the company. The applicants for shares, though deemed to have contracted on the footing of the Articles of Association, could not be held bound to inquire into the regularity of the internal management or the "indoor management", and they were entitled to assume that the sanction of the company in general meeting as required by the Articles of Association had, in fact, been obtained. As they were persons who had agreed to become members of the company under S. 30 of the Act, the addition of their names to the register of members constituted them members and their names could not be removed except by rectification of the register as required by law. I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 728=58 L.W. 578=1945 Comp.C. 148=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 432. Where a shareholder of an Insurance Company is also a policy-holder, his rights and liabilities as a shareholder are quite separate and distinct from those which accrue to him in his capacity as a policy-holder. The first are governed by the Company's articles of association, the application for allotment, the share certificate and so forth, and the second, by the insurance policy. So far as the insurance aspect of the shareholder's rights are concerned, one cannot travel beyond the terms of the policy. Similarly the policy is irrelevant when considering his position as a shareholder in the company except in so far as it may be permissible to look to it for the purpose of resolving ambiguities, if any, in the prospectus, articles or share certificate. 1946 N.L.J. 128.

SEC. 21, CL. (2): "DEBT DUE".—A person owing money to a registered company, when he becomes a shareholder and bound by the articles of association, becomes also bound by the provision (if it exists) in the articles by which any debt due by the shareholder to the company is made a first charge on the share. 7 L.W. 114=43 I.C. 508. The liability of the shareholders in respect of the balance due on their shares is undoubtedly a debt due from them to the company; and this liability commences from the time when they first take up their shares. But this liability is not enforceable against the shareholders until a valid call has been made in accordance with the provisions of the articles of association and of the Act. 59 C. 1186=36 C.W.N. 589=1932 C. 716. The mere passing of a resolution by the directors cannot be regarded as a valid call, and service of notice is necessary for its validity unless dispensed with by the articles. So, in the absence of a valid call, the mortgagee purchaser of the rights of a company cannot enforce by suit the liability of the shareholders for the unpaid portion of their shares and a mere demand by him after his auction-purchase cannot take the place of a valid call. 59 C. 1186. Though money becomes a debt when it is due under the articles of association and memorandum, it does not become due simply because the signatories to the articles and memorandum of association have undertaken to purchase certain number of shares and pay for them. It is only money which is presently due that can be described as a debt. 1939 A.L.J. 950=1939 All. 739.

SEC. 22.—The discretion of Registrar can be exercised even in the matter of the registration of special and extraordinary resolutions under S. 82 of the Act, altering articles of association. 36 L.W. 942=63 M. L.J. 917=1933 M. 129. All persons dealing with the company must take the articles of association to be such as appear at the office of the Registrar of Companies, to be in force. 45 C.L.J. 96=100 I.C. 575=1927 C. 299. So, if the directors propose to do something in excess of their powers thereunder, he is not entitled to assume that their powers have been extended by a special resolution, for such a resolution, if passed, would be registered. 1927 C. 299.

23. (1) On the registration of the memorandum of a company, the registrar shall certify under his hand that the company is incorporated, and in the case of a limited company that the company is limited.

(2) From the date of incorporation mentioned in the certificate of incorporation, the subscribers of the memorandum, together with such other persons as may from time to time become members of the company, shall be a body corporate by the name contained in the memorandum, capable forthwith of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company, and having perpetual succession and a common seal, but with such liability on the part of the members to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up as is mentioned in this Act.

24. (1) A certificate of incorporation given by the registrar in respect of any association shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act in respect of registration and of matters precedent and incidental thereto have been complied with, and that the association is a company authorised to be registered and duly registered under this Act.

(2) A declaration by an advocate, attorney or pleader entitled to appear before a High Court who is engaged in the formation of a company, or by a person named in the articles as a director, manager or secretary of the company, of compliance with all or any of the said requirements shall be filed with the registrar, and the registrar may accept such a declaration as sufficient evidence of compliance.

25. (1) Every company shall send to every member, ¹[at his request and within fourteen days thereof] on payment of one rupee or such less sum as the company may prescribe, a copy of the memorandum and of the articles (if any).

SEC. 23: REGISTRATION.—As to discretion of registrar, see 68 M.L.J. 917 (Illegal articles).

EFFECT OF REGISTRATION.—A registered corporate body is a legal entity distinct from its members. A 'firm' though it can sue and be sued is not such a legal entity. 33 Bom.L.R. 111=130 I.C. 598=1931 B. 178. Where a duty is imposed upon a company in such a way that a breach thereof amounts to a disobedience of the law, then, where there is nothing in the statute expressly or impliedly to the contrary, a breach of the statute is an offence which can be visited upon the company. 11 B. 162=145 I.C. 710=1933 R. 70. Where a company is convicted under the Companies Act, an appeal against the conviction should be preferred by the company through a properly authorized agent. An individual such as a managing director of the company cannot as such file the appeal. 37 C.W.N. 1159=147 I.C. 848=1934 C. 63. Effect of registration on persons dealing with the company. See 45 C.L.J. 96=100 I.C. 875.

LIABILITY OF MEMBERS FOR COMPANY'S DEBTS.—The effect of incorporation of an association is to make that body corporate a separate legal entity or "persona" and if a man trusts a corporation, he trusts that legal persona and must look to its assets for payment. He can call on individual members to contribute only in cases where the Charter or Act has so provided. Neither under this Act nor under the Co-operative Societies Act is there any statutory provision which in any way entitles the creditor of a company to proceed direct against a member for the debts of the society, whether the society is of limited or unlimited liability. The question of the liability of the company being limited or unlimited can only affect the members when they come to contribute to the liabilities of the society in the winding up. Not until there is a winding up can the creditor come face to face with the individual member. 11 P. 174=12 Pat.L.T. 619=1931 P. 321 (F.B.).

Under S. 30, a person shall be deemed to have agreed to become a member of the company on his subscribing to the memorandum, and on its registration is properly entered as a member. He cannot plead that he subscribed to the memorandum subject to any reservation. (Ibid.).

SEC. 25-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section has been newly added; and it makes it obligatory for all companies to keep the memorandum and articles up to date by inserting therein all alterations which may be made from time to time. This follows S. 24 of the English Act. Similar provision was contained in sub-sections (3) and (4) of S. 50, and sub-sections (2) and (3) of S. 71 of this Act, and consequent on the insertion of this S. 25-A, here, those sub-sections have been repealed by this Amending Act. SEC. 28: ALLOTMENT OF SHARES.—If a Secretary of a company makes fraudulent misrepresentations to induce persons to take shares in the company, the company would not be bound by them. The Secretary could not validly agree to any terms which were not contemplated by the Articles of Association or ran counter to them. 39 P.L.R. 293. A person who subscribes for shares in the memorandum of association of a company must, by S. 30 (1), be deemed to have agreed to become a member of the company, and on registration his name must be entered as a member in the register of members. But an express allotment of shares is necessary in order to give rise to a liability to pay up the value of the shares. The fact that the prospectus published and issued contains a statement that a certain number of shares of certain value have been subscribed for by the signatories to the memorandum is not sufficient to show that there was any "allotment" of shares, where there is no record in the Minutes Book of the Board of Directors of any resolution allotting shares. 49 L.W. 537=1939 Mad. 498=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 534. TRANSFER OF SHARE HOW MADE.—[See S. 34 infra.] Where the law prescribes a mode of transfer for shares in a limited company, compliance with that mode is necessary before property can pass so as to confer title on the transferee as against third persons. A transfer of shares in a company otherwise than as is provided by the Act and the Articles of Association may confer a right in equity on the transferee to compel the vendor to execute a proper conveyance, and the transaction evidenced by the transfer can be regarded as an agreement to convey, capable of being perfected into an absolute conveyance by compliance with the prescribed formalities. Until then the transfer is inchoate and the transferee cannot claim priority over a Court auction-purchaser of the shares. 45 M. 537=42 M.L.J. 449=1923 M. 241. But see contra 31 B. 76. A share cannot be transferred without the sanction of the company. 101 I.C. 568=1927 L. 797. Until the name of the transferee is entered in the company's register, the transfer is incomplete, and such a transfer does not operate as a declaration of trust. 48 C. 986=66 I.C. 586. The provision in the Articles of Association that no transfer would be valid and recognised unless registered in the books, and that the company could refuse to register a transfer without assigning reasons is one intended for the protection of the company, and it does not prevent the passing of title as between the transferor, and the transferee. 1924 L. 173=

71 I.C. 814. So far as the parties to the transfer are concerned, the transfer is complete on the day the deed is signed by both the parties. 1924 L. 173.

'RESTRICTION ON TRANSFER'.—Shares are prima facie transferable. While there is no bar which precludes the shareholders from contracting for value that they shall each submit to any reasonable restriction which they choose to agree to, a restriction which precludes a shareholder altogether from transferring may be invalid, but a restriction which does no more than give a right of pre-emption is valid. 30 Bom.L.R. 1329 = 111 I.C. 337 = 1928 P.C. 291 (P.C.).

COURT SALE OF SHARES.—Directors of a company in a bona fide discretion vested in them under the Act and the Articles of Association can refuse to recognise the purchaser of the shares of the company in a Court auction, as a shareholder of the company. 45 M. 537 = 42 M.L.J. 449 = 1923 M. 241.

TRANSFER WHEN COMPLETE.—See 71 I.C. 814; 48 O. 986; 45 M. 537; 115 I.C. 616; 28 L.W. 932 = 1928 M. 571 (Execution sale). In the absence of anything in the Articles of Association forbidding the same, a sale by Court of shares held by a member has the effect of transferring the shares to the purchaser. If it is contended that on a sale by the Court the shares do not pass to the purchaser, the burden is on those who put forward such contention to establish the same by reference to some provision in the Memorandum of Articles of Association. 28 L.W. 932 = 1928 M. 571.

NECESSITY FOR REGISTRATION.—To say that the registration of the transferee's name is not a part of the contract between the transferor and the transferee, is not the same thing as saying that the sale can take place even without registration. 50 A. 695 = 26 A.L.J. 627 = 1928 A. 481.

SANCTION OF THE COMPANY.—1927 L. 797 = 101 I.C. 568. Agreement not to pay cash for shares. 201 P.L.R. 1914 = 25 I.C. 672. See also 36 B. 577; agreement to purchase shares on condition that shareholder need not pay unless the company made a profit. See 39 B. 557.

SEC. 30: MEMBERSHIP, WHEN ARISES.—A distinction is made by the section between the subscribers to the memorandum of the company, and persons who afterwards agree to become members. In the case of the former, by the mere fact of subscription to the memorandum, he becomes a member and as soon as the company is incorporated by the Registrar an irrevocable agreement is created for him to take from the company the number of shares placed against his signature. 55 A. 417 = 1933 A.L.J. 238 = 1933 A. 344. See also 35 A. 538 = 21 I.C. 915. His name is to be automatically entered in the Register of members. His membership does not depend on his name being entered in the Register nor upon the allotment of any shares to him. 48 A. 580 = 95 I.C. 927 = 1926 A. 550. See also 1939 Mad. 498 = 49 L.W. 537 = (1939) 1 M.L.J. 534. Cited under S. 28 swara. Nor does the fact that he was not allotted any shares or that he has ceased to be treated as a member for a long time relieve him from his liability as member. 149 I.C. 869 = 1934 S. 39. See also (1945) 2 M.L.J. 432 = 58 L.W. 578.

AGREEMENT IMPLIED BY CONDUCT.—Where a person has been given shares, or shares have been transferred to him as qualification for a directorship, such a transfer makes the transferee a member of the company. And if such person holds out that he is a shareholder and member of the company, he is estopped from denying that he is a member or a shareholder, where the company goes into liquidation, on the ground that the transfer was a mere colourable transaction. 1936 L. 480.

SUITS BY MEMBERS.—The Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit by shareholders in respect of an infringement of their individual rights as shareholders when the interests of justice so require. A single shareholder can maintain a suit regarding enforcement of his right to vote. 61 M.L.J. 724 = 34 L.W. 746 = 1932 M. 100. But where a shareholder brought a suit for a declaration that certain shares issued and allotted to others were void and hence they were not competent to act as shareholders, it was held that the suit was not maintainable under S. 42 of the Specific Relief Act. 36 O.W.N. 638 = 1932 O. 714.

'MINOR MEMBERS'.—There is nothing in this Act to prevent a minor from taking shares in a limited company. An agreement by him to take shares, is no doubt voidable at his choice when he attains majority. But a shareholder who was a minor at the time of allotment and who on attaining majority received dividends and raised no objection to his name being included in the Register of members is estopped from denying as between himself and the company's representative that he is a shareholder. 39 B. 331 = 27 I.C. 335 = 16 Bom.L.R. 730. Ss. 30

Register of members.

31. (1) Every company shall keep in one or more books a register of its members, and enter therein the following particulars :—

(i) the names and addresses, and the occupations, if any, of the members and, in the case of a company having a share capital, a statement of the shares held by each member, distinguishing each share by its number, and of the amount paid or agreed to be considered as paid on the shares of each member ;

(ii) the date at which each person was entered in the register as a member ;

(iii) the date at which any person ceased to be a member.

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues ; and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

(2) The index, which may be in the form of a card index, shall in respect of each member contain a sufficient indication to enable the account of that member in the register to be readily found.

SEC. 30 (2): SCOPE—NON-COMPLIANCE—EFFECT OF.—Per Trial Judge, *Rupchand, A. J. A director is bound to see if the allotment of shares is made. He cannot avoid his liability to pay for the shares by pleading his own default or negligence in making the allotment of shares to himself. 32 S.L.R. 167=1938 Sind 187.

SEC. 31: REGISTER OF MEMBERS—LOCALITY OF SHARES.—When transfer of shares in a company must be effected by a change in the register, the place where the register is to be kept according to law determines the locality of the shares. 59 M.L.J. 214=1930

P.C. 10 (P.C.).

ALLOTMENT OF SHARES—WHEN CONTRACT IS CONCLUDED.—It is not correct to state that there can be no concluded contract until after allotment in fact. There may be a valid executory contract for the allotment of shares constituted by offer and communicated acceptance before allotment is made. If, however, the only facts are that there is application for shares to a company and nothing further is done by the company but allotment, there is no concluded contract until the allotment is communicated to the applicant. 34 C.W. (2) The list shall state the names, addresses, and occupations of all the past and present members therein mentioned, and the number of shares held by each of the existing members at the date of the return, specifying shares transferred since the date of the last return or (in the case of the first return) of the incorporation of the company by persons who are still members and persons who have ceased to be members respectively and the dates of registration of the transfers, and shall contain a summary distinguishing between shares issued for cash and shares issued as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and specifying the following particulars:—

(a) the amount of the share capital of the company, and the number of the shares into which it is divided;

(b) the number of shares taken from the commencement of the company to the date of the return;

(c) the amount called up on each share;

(d) the total amount of calls received;

(e) the total amount of calls unpaid;

(f) the total amount of the sums (if any) paid by way of commission in respect of any shares or debentures, or allowed by way of discount ¹[in respect of any shares or debentures], since the date of the last return ²[or so much thereof as has not been written off at the date of the return];

(4) The words "within 18 months from its incorporation and thereafter" have been inserted after the word "shall" in sub-S. (1). The section, as it previously stood, was not clear as to when the first statement was to be filed. Thus, if a company was incorporated towards the end of a year (e.g., in Nov. 1934), it could be said under that section that the statement has got to be filed in 1934 itself. This amendment removes that uncertainty, and lays down a definite time limit for the submission of the first annual list, without making the same depend upon the date of the annual general meeting, the holding of which may for various reasons be delayed.

(4i) Cl. (f) of sub-section (2) has been amended so as to cause disclosure of the amount of discount allowed in respect of shares also; and particulars as to the amount of sums paid or allowed by way of commission or discount, on debentures or shares, and which has not been written off at the date of the return. This amendment was introduced, having regard to the provision made in this amending Act for the issue of shares also at a discount. (Vide S. 105-A.)

(iii) In Cl. (1) of sub-section (2), for the words "managers of the company" in the old Act the words "Managers or Managing Agents of the Company" have been substituted by this amendment.

(iv) In sub-section (3), the words "seven days" have been altered to "twenty-one days".

(v) Sub-section (4) of the old Act was renumbered by this amending Act, as sub-section (5); and a new sub-section (4) has been introduced. This amendment provides for the inclusion of some additional items in the summary, and incorporates the provisions of S. 111 of the English Act relating to private companies.

SEC. 32 (2) (g).—The Companies Act sanctions forfeiture of shares generally, that is to say, forfeiture as a means to get rid of a member who is in default either in payment of calls or in observing or performing other rules and regulations of the company. S. 32 (2) (g) and Form E of Schedule III recognise forfeiture generally and not for non-payment of calls only. Regulations in table "A" in Sch. I to the Act are model regulations which may or may not be adopted by a company at its option, and they do not control the section or the form. 49 C. W.N. 502.

(k) the number of shares or amount of stock comprised in each share-warrant;

(l) the names and addresses of the persons who at the date of the return are the directors of the company and of the persons (if any) who at the said date are ¹[the managers or managing agents of the company and the changes in the personnel of the directors, managers and managing agents since the last return together with the dates on which they took place]; and

(m) the total amount of debt due from the company in respect of all mortgages and charges which are required to be registered with the registrar under this Act.

(3) The above list and summary shall be contained in a separate part of the register of members, and shall be completed within ²[twenty-one days] after the day of the first or only ordinary general meeting in the year, and the company shall forthwith file with the registrar a copy signed by a director or by the manager or the secretary of the company, together with a certificate from such director, manager or secretary that the list and summary state the facts as they stood on the day aforesaid.

³[(4) A private company shall send with the annual return required by sub-section (1) a certificate signed by a director or other officer of the company that the company has not, since the date of the last return or, in the case of a first return, since the date of the incorporation of the company, issued any invitation to the public to subscribe for any shares or debentures of the company, and where the annual return discloses the fact that the number of members of the company exceeds fifty, also a certificate so signed that the excess consists wholly of persons who under sub-clause (b) of clause 13 of sub-section (1) of section 2 are not to be included in reckoning the number of fifty.]

SEC. 32 (5): LIABILITY OF COMPANY AND OFFICER.—Any company which makes default in compliance with the provisions of this section ipso facto, renders itself liable to the penalties mentioned therein. The position is different as regards officers of the company, who are liable only in cases of knowing and wilful authorization or permission of the default. 37 C.W.N. 1159=147 I.C. 848=1934 O. 63. See also 54 L.W. 726=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 487=1942 Mad. 75.

"DEFAULT".—The fact that no meeting has been held during the year is no defence where the accused has been a party to the default, Park v. Lawton, (1911) 1 K.B. 588. Mere arithmetical mistake, if punishable. See 138 I.C. 317=35 L.W. 661.

"KNOWINGLY AND WILFULLY".—These words connote intentional default. Where the evidence disclosed that the default was due to mere inadvertence, the accused should not be convicted under this section. 10 L. 521=1929 L. 836; 35 L.W. 661=1932 M. 497. Where in a case in which a general meeting of the company was not held during the year, the Managing Director is prosecuted under S. 32 for wilful default in submitting the information required by that section, it is necessary for the Magistrate to come to a finding that he was responsible for the default in connection with the failure to hold the meeting, assuming that he cannot put forward as a defence the impossibility of complying with the section if the failure to hold the meeting was due to his own default. It is doubtful if the accused could be convicted without the Magistrate coming to an independent finding that he was responsible for such default even if he had been previously convicted under S. 76 of the Act for such default. 45 O.W.N. 1130=74 O. L.J. 367. See also (1941) 2 M.L.J. 487.

"PERMITS THE DEFAULT".—To constitute the offence under this section, specific authorization by the officer is not necessary. If he is aware of non-compliance with the requirements of the section, and takes no steps to have them complied with, he can be safely held to have "permitted the default". The offence is complete if the officer concerned knew of the defaults and permitted them. In such a case, the fact that the officer was away from the office and that the company was in charge of others at the time the defaults occurred would not absolve him from liability. 39 C.W.N. 1152=162 I.C. 282=1936 C. 237.

SEC. 33: SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—Though the company may be precluded from recognizing a trust, that would not prevent the Court from considering the rights as between the parties and the propriety of the dealing by the company after notice given by the plaintiff of his interest in the shares. 33 Bom.L.R. 250=133 I.C. 241=1931 B. 269. Where the articles of association of a company provided that the company shall have a first charge on every share for all debts due from the holder thereof, the company cannot in respect of monies becoming due from the shareholders to the company after notice of the deposit of the shares by the shareholders with the mortgagee, claim priority over advances by the mortgagee made after such notice. The company is not protected by the provisions of S. 33, or other provisions in the articles of association to the same effect. 33 Bom. L.R. 184. Shares in a private limited company are capable of equitable assignment and can therefore be the subject of a trust. The right to vote which a shareholder has is a right of property annexed to the shares and transferable or assignable with the shares. Where a person purchases shares in a company and after receiving his vendor's share certificates and transfer forms applies for transfer of the shares in the share register of the company to the names of his nominees, but the directors of the company refuse to accept the transfer, the transferee is in the position of a trustee of the shares for the purchaser. The legal title to the shares is in the vendor but the beneficial interest is transferred to the purchaser; the transferor whose name remains on the register is a trustee for the transferee and the transferor, under S. 94 of the Trusts Act, must comply with all reasonable directions that the transferee may give. Equity treats the purchaser as if he was the real owner and compels the registered holder to act as the agent of the beneficiary and the latter has a right to control the exercise by the trustee of the right to vote. As trustee of the shares the holder is also trustee of all property rights annexed to the shares, he is trustee not only of the corpus but also of the income; he is trustee of the dividends that he may receive and he must pay them to the beneficiary. As such trustee of the dividends he is also a trustee of the right to vote which is a right of property annexed to the shares and not a right personal to the shareholder. The purchaser is entitled to control the exercise of the right of vote by the vendor in such a way and to take such steps as to secure an alteration of the articles of association with a view to limit the discretion of the directors with the object of eventually becoming a registered shareholder. The purchaser is therefore entitled as against the vendor to a restrictive injunction restraining him from attending meetings of the company and to a mandatory injunction enjoining him to sign a proxy with regard to the shares to the transferee. 45 Bom.L.R. 46. Under the Companies Act, it is only the registered holder of a share who can be made liable in respect of anything unpaid on the share and it makes no difference whether he is the real owner of the share or a mere benamidar of another person. The whole scheme of the Act is that the company has got to proceed on the basis of its own register of members and it is neither obliged nor competent to enquire into the rights of other persons whose names are not entered in it. 47 C.W.N. 486 =A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 440.

SEC. 34: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The Act as it stood previously did not lay down the procedure for the transfer of shares, and the same was generally left to be provided for in the articles of the company. Undue restrictions upon transfers and undue delay in registering transfers were not uncommon. This section, now introduced, while leaving a discretion with the directors to refuse to transfer, requires for transfer an application either by the transferor or the transferee, notice to the transferee in the case of an application by the transferor in respect of partly paid up shares, the use of the proper instrument of transfer, and the communication of the refusal to transfer to the parties. It also prescribes the time limit within which an objection by a transferee of partly paid up shares should be made, and the refusal by the company to register a transfer should be communicated to the transferor and the transferee. It also contains the procedure and presumption regarding the notice to be served on the transferee. [Vide sub-section (2).] It further makes it clear by sub-section (6) that there is no intention in anything contained in the section to affect the right of a company to refuse to register a transfer of shares, where that right exists by virtue of the articles. An applicant for transfer of shares in a company registered under the Companies Act must deliver to the company a proper instrument of transfer duly stamped as required by S. 34 (3). The presentation of a duly stamped transfer form is a condition precedent under S. 34 (3). I.L.R. (1945) Bom. 334=46 Bom.L.R. 782=A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 149.

(2) For the purposes of sub-section (1) notice to the transferee shall be deemed to have been duly given if despatched by prepaid post to the transferee at the address given in the instrument of transfer and shall be deemed to have been delivered in the ordinary course of post.

(3) It shall not be lawful for the company to register a transfer of shares in or debentures of the company unless the proper instrument of transfer duly stamped and executed by the transferor and the transferee has been delivered to the company along with the scrip :

Provided that, where it is proved to the satisfaction of the directors of the company that an instrument of transfer signed by the transferor and transferee has been lost, the company may, if the directors think fit, on an application in writing made by the transferee and bearing the stamp required by an instrument of transfer, register the transfer on such terms as to indemnity as the directors may think fit.

“REFUSAL TO TRANSFER”.—Where the directors refuse to consent to the assignment by a shareholder of his shares to a transferee, they are not bound to state their reasons, and no presumption of bad faith can be drawn from that. 33 Bom.L.R. 184. See also 16 B. 80; 36 B. 334. In order to vitiate the exercise of their powers and in order to justify interference by the Court, it must be clearly made out that the directors have been acting from some improper motive, or arbitrarily and capriciously. 33 B. L.R. 184. Where there is provision in the articles of association of a company enabling the directors to refuse to recognise any transfer without assigning any reasons for the same, and the directors in exercise of that power refuse to recognize a transfer and assign no reasons for their refusal, the Courts would be powerless to grant any relief against the company, as there would be no materials for them to decide upon. It is only in cases where the articles lay down certain conditions under which a transfer may be refused to be recognized by the company, or where the directors, although empowered to refuse without assigning reasons, nevertheless assign their reasons in support of their refusal, it will be possible for the Court to scrutinise the conditions and the reasons alleged to exist, and if they appear to be non-existent or wrong, to direct registration of the transfer. In a suit for compelling registration of a transfer, the company pleaded justification for the refusal and relied on the articles of association which reserved to the company the right of refusing any transfer if it appeared to be against the interests of the company. It was held that the burden of proof in such matters was on the plaintiff and not on the defendant company. 69 M.L.J. 239=1935 M. 784. The articles of association of a company provided that the company was to have a first and paramount lien upon all the shares other than fully paid up shares, and that the Board could refuse to register any transfer of shares while the shareholder executing the transfer was indebted to the company. This was interpreted to mean that the Board was not empowered to refuse to register a transfer of fully paid up shares although the transferor was indebted to the company, and that their right to refuse could be exercised only where the shares were not fully paid up, and the transferor was indebted to the company. 57 M. 955=67 M.L.J. 599=1934 M. 476. As to effect of transfer, see 71 I.C. 814=1924 L. 173. As to competition between prior private purchaser not conforming to the Act and the Articles of Association and subsequent auction-purchaser, see 45 M. 537=15 L. W. 470=42 M. L. J. 449. (4) If a company refuses to register the transfer of any shares or debentures, the company shall, within two months from the date on which the instrument of transfer was lodged with the company, send to the transferee and the transferor notice of the refusal.

(5) If default is made in complying with sub-section (4) of this section, the company and every director, manager, secretary or other officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

(6) Nothing in sub-section (3) shall prejudice any power of the company to register as share-holder or debenture holder any person to whom the right to any shares in or debentures of the company has been transmitted by operation of law.

necessary documents properly executed were presented to the company, the Board could not refuse registration of the transfer on a mere subsequent instruction from the transferor that he had been made to part with the shares by misrepresentation. The proper course for the Board would be to have the transfer registered and to ask the transferor to have a suit instituted for getting the transfer set aside. 152 I.C. 1005=1935 L. 123. Where a discretion is given to the Directors of a company by its Articles of Association, to refuse to register the transfer of shares to any person whom they think it undesirable to be admitted to membership of the company, it is certainly open to the directors to refuse to register a transfer on that ground without giving any further reasons. But if a shareholder challenges this undoubted right of the Directors to use their discretion in such a matter, the burden lies heavily on him to allege with particularity and to prove such mala fides on the part of the Directors as amounts to arbitrary and wanton conduct. The Directors are not to be exposed to suspicion of mala fides by reason merely of the fact that they have chosen to withhold their reasons which they are not bound to give. In such a matter the opinion of the shareholders is quite irrelevant so long as a Board of Directors exists and particular powers are vested in them by the articles, then they are entitled to exercise those powers without interference by other shareholders. If they are dissatisfied they can always remove the Directors. 1941 A.L.J. 483=1941 All 360. The transferee, in cases of transfers in blank of shares in a company, has the right to fill in the necessary particulars, including his own name as transferee and the date of the transfer, after the death of the original transferor. 45 C.W.N. 1109. Under S. 34 (3) it is not lawful to register a transfer of shares in the absence of a proper instrument of transfer duly stamped and executed by the transferor and the transferee, and an addition of an Article purporting to confer power on the directors to transfer shares in the absence of an instrument of transfer is ultra vires of S. 34 of the Companies Act. 52 L.W. 741=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 721. who had some shares in the defendant Bank (a limited Company) died leaving a registered will by which it was provided that his son the plaintiff should get the bank shares transferred in his own name. Plaintiff applied to the defendant Bank for transfer of the shares in his name relying on the will enclosing with his application a registration copy of the will. The transfer was not effected and the plaintiff who had gone to Burma and the Federated Malay States wrote to the Bank asking for the transfer and return of the share certificates. Subsequently the plaintiff paid up to the Bank certain amounts demanded by the Bank as further call of Rs. 30 per share and also obtained a succession certificate. The defendant bank raised contentions and stated, (1) that the plaintiff, who was then in the Federated Malay States which had been overrun by Japan should send a letter expressly recognising the Bank's lien for amounts due by the deceased L and (2) consenting to be treated as a member of the Bank and to be entered in the register of its members as such that (3) the plaintiff was an alien enemy and that the succession certificate was not sufficient. Held, that (1) under S. 381 of the Succession Act the grantee of the certificate got a good title which afforded full indemnity to all persons dealing with the grantee; (2) that the Bank was not justified in insisting on the letter from the plaintiff who was then in enemy occupied territory expressly recognising a lien; (3) that the conduct of the Bank throughout was evasive and dilatory and raised suspicions about its bona fides; (4) that the plaintiff could not be treated as an alien enemy, and S. 83, C. P. Code, did not apply so as to render a suit by him incompetent; (5) that the Defence of India Act and Rules did not also apply; part 15 of the Rules made it clear that what was prohibited and rendered penal was any commercial, financial or other intercourse or dealings with, or for the benefit of, the enemy and the suit therefore was not barred; (6) that the plaintiff was entitled to have the shares transferred in his name and also to damages against the bank for the breach by it of its legal obligation. 1943 Comp. G.

35. A transfer of the share or other interest of a deceased member of a company made by his legal representative shall, although the legal representative is not himself a member, be as valid as if he had been a member at the time of the execution of the instrument of transfer.

36. (1) The register of members, commencing from the date of the registration of the company ¹[and the index of members] shall be kept at the registered office of the company, and except when closed under the provisions of this Act, shall during business hours (subject to such reasonable restrictions, as the company in general meeting may impose, so that not less than two hours in each day be allowed for inspection) be open to the inspection of any member gratis, and to the inspection of any other person on payment of one rupee, or such less sum as the company may prescribe, for each inspection. ²[Any such member or other person may make extracts therefrom.]

(2) Any member or other person may require a copy of the register, or of any part thereof, or of the list and summary required by this Act, or any part thereof, on payment of six annas for every hundred words or fractional part thereof required to be copied ³and the company shall cause any copy so required by any person to be sent to that person within a period of ten days, exclusive of non-working days and days on which the transfer books of the company are closed, commencing on the day next after the day on which the requirement is received by the company.]

NOMINAL TRANSFER.—The company, and the liquidator of the company in liquidation, are not concerned with the person paying the consideration for a transfer of shares, but with the person who has signed the transfer form as purchaser of the shares and whose name is entered in the share register as owner of the shares. 37 Bom.L.R. 904=1936 B. 24. Even though a person entered as transferee happens to be a nominee of the transferor, if the company is not informed of it, and if the shares have been entered in his name with his knowledge and consent, prima facie the transferee is the contributory who is liable in respect of those shares unless the transferee proves that his name was entered in the register fraudulently or without sufficient cause. 37 Bom.L.R. 904.

IRREGULARITY AND DELAY IN REGISTERING TRANSFER.—Where the transferor and the transferee of shares had complied with all the requirements of the law to effect a valid transfer, and had applied to the company for the transfer being effected, any delay or irregularity in the registration of the same would not vitiate the transfer, when it was once acquiesced in by the parties. If the company should go into liquidation thereafter, the transferee would be legally liable to the company as contributory in respect of the shares standing in his name in the Register. 37 Bom.L.R. 904=1936 B. 24. A slight delay in according sanction to a transfer of shares would not justify a payment of dividends to a person not yet entered as a member on the books of the company. Such a delay would not make the company liable to an action for damages on account of payment of the dividend to the transferor whose name appeared on the books of the company at the time. 159 I.C. 766=1936 L. 207.

SEC. 36: AMENDMENTS BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—(i) In sub-section (1) provision has been made for the keeping of 'the index of members' also at the registered office. This amendment was consequential on S. 81-A having been newly added to the Act.

(ii) Sub-section (2) has been amended, whereby a time-limit has been laid down, within which the requirement by a member must be complied with. This is in accordance with S. 98 (2) of the English Act.

(iii) Sub-section (3) provides a penalty for non-observance of the provisions of the section.

INHERENT POWER OF COURT.—The Court has inherent jurisdiction to direct a company to deliver a copy of the register of the members of the company to a shareholder of the company. 1936 A. 568=1936 A.L.J. 748. As to right of inspection, see also 42 O.W.N. 161=1938 Cal. 89.

SEC. 37: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The amendment extends the time during which the register of members may be closed from 30 to 45 days, to make more generous allowance for those cases in which it is closed at two separate times during the year.

SEC. 38: SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—This section does not confer upon the Court jurisdiction to make a roving inquiry as to whether what has happened is desirable or even reasonable. Where under the articles of a company it had a right and a duty to recognize only the executors or administrators of the deceased member and a member died leaving behind him his heir who under Hindu Law claimed to represent the deceased by right of survivorship, it was held, that the company could rightly ask such claimant to produce a probate or a succession certificate and that the Court would not interfere under this section in such a matter. 1936 R. 52. This section does not exclude the jurisdiction of Civil Courts to decide questions falling under this section. 108 I.C. 192=1928 L. 234. A transferee of a share can apply under this section or institute a suit for rectification of the company's register and inclusion of his name therein. 28 L.W. 932=111 I.C. 225=1928 M. 571. In complicated cases involving serious question of title, the Court is not bound to decide the same on an application under this section. 1928 M. 571; 44 A. 151=19 A.L.J. 937=65 I.C. 291. See also 17 A.L.J. 783; 18 I.C. 481; 17 I.C. 640=14 Bom.L.R. 919. The striking out of the name of a shareholder from the register containing the names of the members amounts to an omission of his name from the register within the meaning of S. 38 (1) (a), and the shareholders whose name is so struck out can apply to the Court under S. 38 (1). 51 L.W. 741=(1941) 2 M. L. J. 721.

The Act does not contemplate the registration of the name of a firm as the holder of its shares, but only individuals or other legal entities. An application for such a purpose is not maintainable. 1944 O.W.N. 486=A.I. R. 1944 Oudh 318.

DISCRETIONARY JURISDICTION.—Power of Court to take summary action is discretionary. 110 P.L.R. 1915=29 I.C. 770; 18 I.C. 481; 12 Bur.L.T. 194=55 I.C. 751. The discretion of the Court under this section is unlimited and should be used according to the circumstances of each case. 47 C. 901=60 I.C. 946; 12 Bur.L.T. 194=55 I.C. 751. The proviso to this section must be read with reference to all the clauses of the section. 41 B. 76=18 Bom. L.R. 982=37 I.C. 666. See also 23 Bom. L.R. 1104. (Resolution by directors to allot unissued shares to some directors—Interested directors also voting—Effect). The register of the members of a company is a public document, and there is no provision in the Companies Act which permits the directors or officers of a company to make any alteration in the register except in accordance with law. If members' names have been improperly added to the register the remedy of the company is to apply to the Court under S. 38 of the Act for the rectification of the register and the company cannot take upon itself to alter the register. I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 728=58 L.W. 578=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 432. The jurisdiction of the Court under S. 38 of the Companies Act is a limited one. The only relief that can be granted under this section is the one concerning rectification of the register and in some cases payment by the company of damages sustained by any party aggrieved. The Court cannot grant any relief under this section regarding the management of the property of the company or for conducting the business of the company. It has, therefore, no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver to take over the management and business of the company and also take over possession of its property pending the decision of the application under the section. The provisions of O. 40, R. 1 read with S. 141, C.P. Code, cannot be applied to an application made under S. 38 of the Com-

(a) the name of any person is fraudulently or without sufficient cause entered in or omitted from the register of members of a company ; or

(b) default is made or unnecessary delay takes place in entering on the register the fact of any person having ceased to be a member, the person aggrieved, or any member of the company, or the company may apply, to the Court for rectification of the register.

(2) The Court may either refuse the application, or may order rectification of the register and payment by the company of any damages sustained by any party aggrieved, and may make such order as to costs as it in its discretion thinks fit.

(3) On any application under this section the Court may decide any question relating to the title of any person who is a party to the application to have his name entered in or omitted from the register, whether the question arises between members or alleged members, or between members or alleged members on the one hand and the company on the other hand ; and generally may decide any question necessary or expedient to be decided for rectification of the register :

Provided that the Court may direct an issue to be tried in which any question of law may be raised ; and an appeal from the decision on such an issue shall lie in the manner directed by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, on the grounds mentioned in section 100 of that Code.

panies Act. It is, however, not possible to endorse the view that in no case under the Companies Act, except a debenture-holder's action, can a receiver be appointed to take up the business of the company and the management of its property and its affairs pending the decision of the Court in that litigation. Several cases can be visualised when a company judge may exercise such a power under the provisions of O. 41, R. 1, read with S. 141, C.P. Code, or ex debito justitiæ. 48 P.L.R. 1.

RECTIFICATION OF REGISTER.—The power to order the rectification of the register of a company, on an application under this section, is entirely a matter of discretion for the Court. The Court will refuse to exercise such power when the only object of the application is to save the expenses of taking out Letters of Administration and of legal transfer of the shares to the applicant's name 12 Bur.L.T. 194=55 I.C. 751. See also 11 Bur.L.T. 156=49 I.C. 281. An order for rectification of the company's register by putting the transferee's name therein cannot be passed in a proceeding under this section, when the transferor is not a party. 30 Bom.L.R. 1329=111 I.C. 337=1928 P.C. 291 (P.C.). Where a shareholder applies to have his name removed from the register the mortgagee of the uncalled share capital can oppose the application. 47 C. 901=60 I.C. 946. A mere delay in making an application for rectification of the register under S. 38 is no ground in itself why the Court should not exercise its jurisdiction under the section. 20 Pat.L.T. 703=1939 Pat. 603. S. 38 gives a wide discretion to the Court in the awarding of costs. 20 Pat.L.T. 703=1939 Pat. 603.

PARTIES TO APPLICATION.—As a matter of law the directors of a Company who are in charge of the management and business of the Company are not necessary or proper parties to an application made under S. 38

BURDEN OF PROOF.—According to S. 40, the register of members is prima facie evidence of any matters directed or authorised by the Act to be inserted therein. Where the names of certain persons are entered in the register as shareholders it can be taken for granted that such persons are qualified shareholders. Where an application by a company for reduction of its capital is opposed by a shareholder on the ground that certain persons who have voted for the resolution for the reduction of the capital of the company were not duly qualified as shareholders so to vote, or vote at all, by reason of their names not having been properly entered in the register or by reason of their names not having been on the register for a length of time sufficient to entitle them to vote, but no steps have been taken by the shareholder to have the register altered or rectified under S. 38, the burden is on the shareholder opposing the petition to substantiate his allegations, and where he fails to do so the application should be allowed. 1936 C. 327=63 C. 703=40 C. W.N. 661.

APPEAL.—A direction by the lower Court of an issue for trial involving a question of law, and a decision actually arrived at on such issue are necessary for a right of appeal from such decision under this section. The appeal can be based on the grounds mentioned in S. 100, C. P. Code. 41 B. 76=18 Bom.L.R. 982=37 I.C. 646. Order involving point of law is appealable. 44 A. 151=65 I.C. 291=1922 A. 258.

(2) The company shall, within one month from the date of the opening of any British register, file with the registrar notice of the situation of the office where such register is kept and, in the event of any change in the situation of such office or of its discontinuance, shall within one month from the date of such change or discontinuance, as the case may be, file notice of such change or discontinuance.

(3) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

Regulations as to British register.

42. (1) A British register shall be deemed to be part of the company's register of members (in this section called the principal register).

(2) It shall be kept in the same manner in which the principal register is by this Act required to be kept, except that the advertisement before closing the register shall be inserted in some newspaper circulating in the locality wherein the British register is kept.

(3) The company shall transmit to its registered office in India a copy of every entry in its British register as soon as may be after the entry is made; and shall cause to be kept at such office, duly entered up from time to time, a duplicate of its British register, and the duplicate shall, for all the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be part of the principal register.

(4) Subject to the provisions of this section with respect to the duplicate register, the shares registered in a British register shall be distinguished, from the shares registered in the principal register, and no transaction with respect to any shares registered in a British register shall, during the continuance of that registration, be registered in any other register.

(5) The company may discontinue to keep any British register, and thereupon all entries in that register shall be transferred to the principal register.

(6) Subject to the provisions of this Act, any company may, by its articles make such regulations as it may think fit respecting the keeping of a British register intermediate period which according to the practice in certain Courts elapse before the order made is really available to the company.

SEC. 40: EVIDENCE OF REGISTER AND BURDEN OF PROOF.—The register of shares of a company is not absolutely conclusive, but it is necessary not only from the point of view of the law, but as a matter of policy, to see that it is as conclusive as it can be made consistently with a proper interpretation of the Act. 37 Bom.L.R. 904=160 I.C. 638=1936 B. 24. See also 63 O. 703.

A person whose name is entered in the register of members is presumed to be a member and the onus of proving that he is not a member is shifted on him by such entry. 147 I.C. 575=1933 L. 1016. See also 33 P.L.R. 973. The burden of proving conditions and failure to send notice of allotment is on the propounder. 27 P.L.R. 842=1926 L. 414. The mere entry of shareholder's name in the company's register is insufficient to establish that an allotment of shares was in fact made. An application for shares like any other offer must not only be accepted but must be communicated to the person making the offer. 56 M. 391=64 M. L.J. 130=1933 M. 320.

43. ²[(1)] A company limited by shares, if so authorised by its articles, may, with respect to any fully paid-up shares, or to stock, issue under its common seal a warrant stating that the bearer of the warrant is entitled to the shares or stock therein specified, and may provide by coupons or otherwise, for the payment of the future dividends on the shares or stock included in the warrant, in this Act termed a share-warrant.

44. A share-warrant shall entitle the bearer thereof to the shares or stock therein specified, and the shares or stock may be transferred by delivery of the warrant.

45. The bearer of a share-warrant shall, subject to the articles of the company, be entitled, on surrendering it for cancellation, to have his name entered as a member in the register of members; and the company shall be responsible for any loss incurred by any person by reason of the company entering in its register the name of a bearer of a share-warrant in respect of the shares or stock therein specified without the warrant being surrendered and cancelled.

46. The bearer of a share-warrant may, if the articles of the company so provide, be deemed to be a member of the company within the meaning of this Act, either to the full extent or for any purposes defined in the articles, except that he shall not be qualified in respect of the shares or stock specified in the warrant for being a director or manager of the company, in cases where such a qualification is required by the articles.

47. (1) On the issue of a share-warrant, the company shall strike out of its register of members the name of the member then entered therein as holding the shares or stock specified in the warrant as if he had ceased to be a member, and shall enter in the register the following particulars, namely :—

- (i) the fact of the issue of the warrant ;
- (ii) a statement of the shares or stock included in the warrant, distinguishing each share by its number ; and
- (iii) the date of the issue of the warrant.

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section it shall be liable to fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully continues or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

² S. 43 was re-numbered as sub-S. (1) of that section and sub-S. (2) was added by S. 20 of Act XXII of 1936.

SEC. 43: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—Sub-section (2) has been newly inserted. The amendment has been consequential on the substitution of S. 2 (1) (13) for the old section and the introduction of the new S. 2 (1) (13-A) by this amending Act. This issue of a bearer share-warrants is not compatible with the provision contained therein, relating to restriction of shares in the case of private companies. Hence the application of this section has been limited expressly by the amendment to companies other than private companies.

SEC. 48: "SURRENDER".—Surrender is good if it amounts to a forfeiture: It is not open to a shareholder to surrender his shares at will. Nor is it open to the company to accept surrender of shares unless the act of the company can be brought within the rules relating to forfeiture of shares. 1928 L. 240=107 I.C. 594; 1924 M. 703. There can be no valid surrender of shares that are not

Power of company to arrange for different amounts being paid on shares.

49. A company, if so authorised by its articles, may do any one or more of the following things, namely :

(1) make arrangements on the issue of shares for a difference between the shareholders in the amounts and times of payment of calls on their shares ;

(2) accept from any member who assents thereto the whole or a part of the amount remaining unpaid on any shares held by him although no part of that amount has been called up ;

(3) pay dividend in proportion to the amount paid up on each share where a larger amount is paid up on some shares than on others.

Power of company limited by shares to alter its share capital.

50. (1) A company limited by shares, if so authorised by its articles, may alter the conditions of its memorandum as follows (that is to say), it may—fully paid up, except where the shares are forfeited as it involves a reduction of capital. Before this can be done the sanction of the Court must be obtained. 149 I.C. 869=1934 S. 39. A shareholder who surrenders his share does not cease to be a member, while a shareholder whose shares are forfeited ceases to be so. 107 I.C. 594=1938 L. 240.

SURRENDER OF SHARES—VALIDITY—CONDITIONS.—Per Rupchand, A. J. C.—There can be no valid surrender of shares in a limited company which are not fully paid up, so as to exonerate a subscriber from his liability to pay for the shares agreed to be purchased by him in accordance with the memorandum, except where shares are forfeited, as it involves a reduction of capital; before this can be done the sanction of the Court must be obtained. A surrender which has the effect of releasing a shareholder from further liability in respect of his shares is equivalent to a purchase of the shares of the company and is illegal, and null and void. Such a surrender can only be supported under circumstances which would justify a forfeiture of the share. 32 S.L.R. 167=1938 Sind 187.

SHARES—FORFEITURE OF—STRICT FULFILMENT OF CONDITIONS—NECESSITY FOR.—In the matter of the forfeiture of shares technicalities must be strictly observed. And it is not merely the person whose shares are being forfeited who is entitled to insist upon the strict fulfilment of the conditions prescribed for forfeiture. For, the forfeiture of shares may result in a permanent reduction of the capital of a company. The creditors are therefore entitled to see that the power of forfeiting shares is exercised strictly. Where the power of a company to forfeit shares has arisen, the Articles of Association usually contain provisions as to the sending of notice and the like that may be regarded as being inserted merely for the protection of the shareholder affected. Such provisions may properly be regarded as being directory only and capable of being waived by the individual shareholder. But no waiver by him can confer upon the company or its directors a power of forfeiture that they do not possess, as for example, a power to forfeit shares for non-payment of calls that are not yet due. 1938 P.C. 284=43 C.W.N. 205=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 98 (P.C.). See also 1940 M.W.N. 553=1940 Mad. 873. No forfeiture of shares could be made unless every condition precedent had been strictly and literally complied with. 45 C.W.N. 1075.

SEC. 50: AMENDMENTS BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—(i) Under the Act as it stood before the amendment, alteration of capital could be effected by the directors, and it was only an alteration involving sub-division of shares that had to be made in general meeting one consequence was that in the former case of any alteration of capital by directors, the Registrar's Office had no record of the same. According to S. 50 of the English Act, all these powers could be exercised only by the company in a general meeting. The amendments in this sub-section (2) have followed the English law, in the matter.

(ii) Sub-sections (3) and (4) of the old Act have been omitted in view of the new S. 25-A introduced by this amending Act.

(iii) New sub-section (4) has been inserted with a view that notice shall be given at an early date to the Registrar of any change in the memorandum relating to the sub-division or cancellation of shares.

(a) increase its share capital by the issue of new shares of such amount as it thinks expedient ;

(b) consolidate and divide all or any of its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares ;

(c) convert all or any of its paid-up shares into stock and re-convert that stock into paid-up shares of any denomination ;

(d) sub-divide its shares, or any of them, into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by the memorandum, so however, that in the sub-division the proportion between the amount paid and the amount, if any, unpaid on each reduced share shall be the same as it was in the case of the share from which the reduced share is derived ;

(e) cancel shares which, at the date of the passing of the resolution in that behalf, have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person, and diminish the amount of its share capital by the amount of the shares so cancelled.

(2) The powers conferred by this section ¹[* * * * *] must be exercised ²[by the company in general meeting.]

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

SEC. 54.—This section is omitted by the Amending Act XVII of 1942. The following extract from the Statement of Objects and Reasons shows the reason for the amendment:

"Sec. 54 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, provides that if the conditions contained in the memorandum of a company are to be modified so as to reorganise its share capital, whether by consolidation of shares of different classes or by division of its shares into shares of different classes, no preference or special privilege attached to any class of shares shall be interfered with except by resolution passed by a majority of shareholders of that class holding three-fourth of the share capital of that class. The well-nigh prohibitive majority required by the section has made it extremely difficult, in practice, to put through any scheme for consolidation or sub-division of share capital in the case of companies in which the rights and privileges attached to the different classes of shares are set out in the memorandum. With the passing of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act XXII of 1936, an anomaly has resulted—that while under the new sec. 153-A, added by that Act, it is now possible for a company to carry out a scheme for the transfer of the whole of its assets and undertaking and for dissolution by proceedings under sec. 153, which requires a far less stringent majority than is required by sec. 54, the relatively less important matter of consolidation or sub-division of the capital of a company can only be effected through the machinery of the latter section. This amendment is intended to remedy what was left undone by the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act XXII of 1936, by deletion of sec. 54 and amendment of sec. 153.

SEC. 54-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section introduces the provision contained in sub-sec. (1) of sec. 55 of the Act, in a considerably modified form. The utilization of the funds of a company in the purchase of its own shares has the result of reducing its capital and was prohibited by sub-sec. (1) of sec. 55 in the old Act. This prohibition was circumvented in some cases by advancing money out of the company's funds to their nominees who acquired the shares; and there was no provision in the old Act to effectively prevent abuse. Hence, this section has been inserted, and it follows sec. 45 of the English Act. The subterfuge mentioned above is no longer possible.

INCREASE OF SHARE CAPITAL—FRAUD UPON THE MINORITY—ACTS ultra vires—RIGHT OF SUIT, PRINCIPLES GOVERNING.—There can of course be suits by shareholders against the company for individual wrong done to them. Apart from individual wrong there may be suits to restrain acts ultra vires. Suits to restrain acts ultra vires and suits to restrain acts notwithstanding that they have the support of the majority of shareholders, are both exceptions to the rule that the Court will not interfere in the affairs of the company or with the decision of the majority. The Court interferes in cases of ultra vires acts, because it is not an act within the constitution. In the other class of cases the Court interferes upon a different basis. They have been referred to generally as cases of "fraud upon the minority". These cases, however, are only special examples of an action by the company for what is in theory regarded as a wrong done to the company; a special form of the suit being adopted as a matter of machinery to obtain relief under special and peculiar circumstances. If the wrongdoer has the balance of power, and therefore the company does not take action, there are two courses open. The minority may take the risk and boldly use the company's name. The other course, and the better course, where the wrongful act is supported by the majority, is for the minority shareholders to sue in their own name or, as a matter of convenience, for a shareholder to sue on behalf of himself and all the other shareholders. If, however, the wrongdoers are also shareholders, these shareholders as a matter of course must be excluded from the category of the plaintiffs. In a suit so brought, it is not sufficient to plead simply the dominance of the majority of the shareholders or what may be called the secondary fraud. The primary fraud must be clearly indicated. It is the gist of the action, although no doubt the pleading or the particulars may be so framed as to stress the dominance of the majority and the effectuation of the fraud through that dominance. It is not sufficient to allege fraud against the company generally. The wrongdoers must be specified and made party defendants to the action. It may be sufficient to make them parties qua shareholders, although if the primary wrong is that of the directors, it is right and proper they should be sued qua directors. Where a decision of the directors is attacked on the ground that it is injurious to the company, the directors should be parties. Where that act of the directors so impeached has been confirmed and is still impeached on the basis that the directors have got that confirmation by controlling the majority, still those directors should be parties. The directors may be assailed if it is established first that the increase of capital is for the purpose of power and secondly that the passing of the company resolution confirming the increase was procured by their own power, by the power of their dependents or by any kind of device. I.L.R. (1941) 1 Cal. 30=72 O.L.J. 458=1941 Cal. 174.

SECS. 54-A AND 55.—Forfeiture of shares otherwise than for non-payment of calls—Legality. The exercise of the power of forfeiture of shares otherwise than for non-payment of calls, does not bring about any illegal reduction of capital in contravention of sec. 55 especially when all the shares are fully paid up. Nor does it amount to a buying by the company of its own share so as to offend against sec. 54-A. 49 C.W.N. 502. The shares of a company are subject to its Articles of Association and all the incidents thereof. If under the Articles they are liable to forfeiture, it is an inherent vice or defect to which the right of a member is subject. Creditors of the member can have no higher right. The company can, therefore, exercise its power of forfeiture of the shares for its own benefit and to the prejudice of the rights which a creditor has, prior to the exercise of the power, acquired by obtaining a charge on such shares or by attaching them. 49 C.W.N. 502. It is an established rule of law and equity that no forfeiture of property can be made unless every condition precedent has been strictly and literally complied with. Even a small inaccuracy will be fatal. 57 L.W. 69=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 107. A limited com-

A clause in the Articles of Association stated that the notice to a shareholder shall name a day (not being less than 14 days from the date of the notice) and a place or places on and at which the call or instalment and interest and expenses were to be paid. SEC. 55: PROPOSAL RELATING TO REDUCTION OF SHARE CAPITAL—SANCTION TO PRINCIPLES APPLICABLE.—Where an application under sec. 55 is presented to the Court by a company for its sanction to a proposal relating to a reduction of the share capital of the company, the following principles are the principles applicable: (1) That a company has the power to reduce its capital much more so if the power is conferred by the Articles of Association. (2) Subject to confirmation by the Court which is the safeguard of the minority, the question of reducing capital is a domestic one for the decision of the majority. (3) The company is to determine the extent, the mode and incidence of the reduction. (4) The company may reduce the share capital of all its shareholders pro rata or may reduce the shares of any individual shareholder or any class of shareholders wholly or in part. (5) That the Court has to see that interests of the minority have been protected and no unfairness has been shown to it. (6) That in doing so the Court should keep in view the consideration that the decision has been arrived at by businessmen who are fully cognizant of their necessities and are the best custodians of their interests and should therefore be slow to interfere. 177 I.C. 368=1938 Pesh. 41. See also 1939 Bang. 417.

REDUCTION OF CAPITAL, WHEN INVALID.—No action resulting in the reduction of the capital of a company with limited liability should be permitted unless the reduction is effected under statutory authority or by forfeiture in strict accordance with the procedure, if any, laid down in that behalf in the Articles of Association. Any reduction of capital contrary to this principle is illegal and ultra vires. 54 B. 178=32 Bom.L.R. 87=1930 B. 267. The mere fact that the articles of association authorized the Board of Directors to accept surrender of shares cannot validate the surrender if it did not take place in circumstances which would have justified a forfeiture. 110 I.C. 421; 1928 L. 240; 1924 M. 703=20 L.W. 74=83 I.C. 94. Where by the articles of association, a limited company enabled persons who had subscribed for shares of Rs. 100 to sever all connections with the company on payment of Rs. 84, it was held that the article was ultra vires, and as it involved the reduction of share capital the assent of the Court was required for it. 52 M. 915=57 M.L.J. 814=1929 M. 773. A limited company, not in liquidation, cannot make any payment by way of return of capital to its shareholders except as a step in an authorized reduction of capital. 60 M.L.J. 320=1930 P.C. 302 (P.C.).

POWER OF COURT.—It is not always essential or necessary for the Court on a petition for reducing capital to satisfy itself that there has been a loss of the capital. The only serious question with which the Court is concerned is whether or not the company had duly passed its special resolution to the effect that the capital be reduced. Where, however, the reduction of the capital is based on the ground that capital has been lost and unrepresented by available assets, it is always prudent to proceed on some evidence. That is a sound procedure and one which ordinarily should be acted upon. Where the person opposing the petition accepts the statement of the company that there has

56. Where a company has passed ²[* *] a resolution for reducing share capital, it may apply by petition to the Court for an order confirming the reduction.

57. On and from the ³[passing] by a company of a resolution for reducing share capital, or where the reduction does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital then on and from ⁴[the making of the order confirming the reduction], the company shall add to its name, until such date as the Court may fix, the words "and reduced" as the last words in its name, and those words shall, until that date, be deemed to be part of the name of the company :

Provided that, where the reduction does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, the Court may, if it thinks expedient, dispense altogether with the addition of the words "and reduced."

58. (1) Where the proposed reduction of share capital involves either diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital, or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, and in any other case if the Court so directs, every creditor of the company who at the date fixed by the Court is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding up of the company, would be admissible in proof against the company, shall be entitled to object to the reduction.

(2) The Court shall settle a list of creditors so entitled to object, and for that purpose shall ascertain, as far as possible without requiring an application from any creditor, the names of those creditors and the nature and amount of their

SEC. 56: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The words "and confirmed" in the old section have been omitted herein, since confirmation of special resolution has been abolished by the Amending Act. [Vide S. 81 (2).] This is a mere consequential amendment.

REDUCTION OF SHARE CAPITAL—CONFIRMATION—CONSIDERATIONS FOR COURT.—It is an elementary principle of law relating to joint stock company that the Court will not interfere with the internal management of a company acting within its own rights and in fact as no jurisdiction to do so. In an application under S. 56 the Court is only concerned to confirm the proposed reduction and not the resolution passed by the company. The validity of the resolution cannot therefore be questioned in such application. The only questions to be considered by the Court are: (1) Ought the Court to refuse its sanction to the reduction out of regard to the interests of those members of the public who may be induced to take shares in the company? (2) Is the reduction fair and equitable as between different classes of shareholders? Where the reduction is shared by all and is designed to work justly and equitably and where it does not involve diminution of any liability in respect of the unpaid capital or payment to any shareholder of any paid up capital and there is evidence regarding the loss of capital and non-representation of available assets, there is nothing to prevent the Court from confirming such reduction. 1939 Rang. 417. See also 177 I.C. 368=1938 Pesh. 41.

debts, or claims, and may publish notices fixing a day or days within which creditors not entered on the list are to claim to be so entered or are to be excluded from the right of objecting to the reduction.

59. Where a creditor entered on the list of creditors whose debt or claim is not discharged or determined does not consent to the reduction, the Court may, if it thinks fit, dispense with the consent of that creditor, on the company securing payment of his debt or claim by appropriating, as the Court may direct, the following amount (that is to say),—

(i) if the company admits the full amount of his debt or claim, or, though not admitting it, is willing to provide for it, then the full amount of the debt or claim ;

(ii) if the company does not admit or is not willing to provide for the full amount of the debt or claim, or if the amount is contingent or not ascertained, than an amount fixed by the Court after the like inquiry and adjudication as if the company were being wound up by the Court.

60. The Court, if satisfied, with respect to every creditor of the company who under this Act is entitled to object to the reduction, that either his consent to the reduction has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has been determined or has been secured, may make an order confirming the reduction on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit.

61. (1) The registrar on production to him of an order of the Court confirming the reduction of the share capital of a company, and on the filing with him of a certified copy of the order and of a minute (approved by the Court) showing with respect to the share capital of the company as altered by the order, the amount of the share capital, the number of shares into which it is to be divided and the amount of each share, and the amount (if any) at the date of the registration deemed to be paid up on each share, shall register the order and minute.

(2) On the registration, and not before, the resolution for reducing share capital as confirmed by the order so registered shall take effect.

(3) Notice of the registration shall be published in such manner as the Court may direct.

(4) The registrar shall certify under his hand the registration of the order and minute, and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act with respect to reduction of share capital have been complied with, and that the share capital of the company is such as is stated in the minute.

62. (1) The minute when registered shall be deemed to be substituted for the corresponding part of the memorandum of the company, and shall be valid and alterable as if it had been originally contained therein, and shall be embodied in every copy of the memorandum issued after its registration.

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees for each copy in respect of which default is made, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

63. (1) A member of the company, past or present, shall not be liable in respect of any share to any call or contribution exceeding in amount the difference (if any) between the amount paid, or (as the case may be) the reduced amount, if any, which is to be deemed to have been paid, on the share and the amount of the share as fixed by the minute :

Provided that, if any creditor, entitled in respect of any debt or claim to object to the reduction of share capital, is, by reason of his ignorance of the proceedings for reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim not entered on the list of creditors, and, after the reduction, the company is unable, within the meaning of the provisions of this Act with respect to winding up by the Court, to pay the amount of his debt or claim, then—

(i) every person who was a member of the company at the date of the registration of the order for reduction and minute, shall be liable to contribute for the payment of that debt, or claim an amount not exceeding the amount which he would have been liable to contribute if the company had commenced to be wound up on the day before that registration ; and

(ii) if the company is wound up, the Court, on the application of any such creditor and proof of his ignorance as aforesaid, may, if it thinks fit, settle accordingly a list of persons so liable to contribute, and make and enforce calls and orders on the contributories settled on the list as if they were ordinary contributories in a winding up.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the rights of the contributories among themselves.

SEC. 66-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section is new and adopts S. 61 of the English Act, with modification as to the period fixed for the application, and as to the commencement of the period within which copy has to be forwarded to the registrar. Also the words "knowingly and wilfully" have been inserted in this amendment with a view to ensure that an unintentional default is not to be penalised.

(2) An application under this section must be made within fourteen days after the date on which the consent was given or the resolution was passed, as the case may be, and may be made on behalf of the shareholders entitled to make the application by such one or more of their number as they may appoint in writing for the purpose.

(3) On any such application the Court, after hearing the applicant and any other persons who apply to the Court to be heard and appear to the Court to be interested in the application, may, if it is satisfied having regard to all the circumstances of the case that the variation would unfairly prejudice the shareholders of the class represented by the applicant, disallow the variation and shall, if not so satisfied, confirm the variation.

(4) The decision of the Court on any such application shall be final.

(5) The company shall within fifteen days after the service on the company of any order made on any such application forward a copy of the order to the registrar, and, if default is made in complying with this provision, the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees.

Registration of Unlimited Company as Limited.

67. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section, any company registered as unlimited may register under this Act as limited or any company already registered as a limited company may re-register under this Act, but the registration of an unlimited company as a limited company shall not affect any debts, liabilities, obligations or contracts incurred or entered into by, to, with or on behalf of, the company before the registration, and those debts, liabilities, obligations and contracts may be enforced in manner provided by Part VIII of this Act in the case of a company registered in pursuance of that Part.

(2) On registration in pursuance of this section, the registrar shall close the former registration of the company, and may dispense with the delivery to him of copies of any documents with copies of which he was furnished on the occasion of the original registration of the company; but, save as aforesaid, the registration shall take place in the same manner and shall have effect as if it were the first registration of the company under this Act.

68. An unlimited company having a share capital may, by its resolution for registration as a limited company in pursuance of this Act, do either or both of the following things, namely :—

(a) increase the nominal amount of its share capital by increasing the nominal amount of each of its shares, but subject to the condition that no part of the amount by which its capital is so increased shall be capable of being called up except in the event and for the purposes of the company being wound up ;

(b) provide that a specified portion of its uncalled share capital shall not be capable of being called up except in the event and for the purposes of the company being wound up.

Reserve Liability of Limited Company.

69. A limited company may by special resolution determine that any portion of its share capital which has not been already called up shall not be capable of being called up, except in the event and for the purposes of the company being wound up and thereupon that portion of its share capital shall not be capable of being called up except in the event and for the purposes aforesaid.

Unlimited Liability of Directors.

70. (1) In a limited company the liability of the directors or of any director may, if so provided by the memorandum, be unlimited.

(2) In a limited company in which the liability of any director is unlimited, the directors of the company (if any) and the member who proposes a person for election or appointment to the office of director shall add to that proposal a statement that the liability of the person holding that office will be unlimited and the promoters and officers of the company, or one of them, shall, before the person accepts the office or acts therein, give him notice in writing that his liability will be unlimited.

(3) If any director or proposer makes default in adding such a statement, or if any promoter or officer of the company makes default in giving such a notice, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees and shall also be liable for any damage which the person so elected or appointed may sustain from the default, but the liability of the person elected or appointed shall not be affected by the default.

Special resolution of limited company making liability of directors unlimited.

71. (1) A limited company, if so authorised by its articles, may, by special resolution, alter its memorandum so as to render unlimited the liability of its directors or of any director.

This was consequential on the amendment of S. 81 (2), by which confirmation of any special resolution is rendered unnecessary. The words in the old Act, after "memorandum", viz., that "a copy thereof shall be embodied in or annexed to every copy of the memorandum issued after the confirmation of the resolution", and also the old sub-ec (8) which provided a penalty for default have been

SEC. 72: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section has been substituted for the old one, as it was defective in that it did not lay down any time within which the registered office was to be set up or notice of its situation or any change of its situation was to be given. This newly substituted section makes provision for the same, and adopts S. 92 of the English Act. S. 72 is merely permissive and not imperative; it only provides one of several methods whereby a communication or notice may be served on a company. 1941 Bang. 339 (S. B.)=198 I.C. 180.

REGISTERED OFFICE.—The object of requiring a company to have a registered office is to provide some definite place at which notices and other communications may be served on it. See S. 148, infra, which lays limited company.

73. Every limited company—

(a) shall paint or affix, and keep painted or affixed, its name on the outside of every office or place in which its business is carried on, in a conspicuous position, in letters easily legible and in English characters, and also, if the registered office be situate in a place beyond the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of a High Court, in the characters of one of the vernacular languages used in that place ;

(b) shall have its name engraven in legible characters on its seal ;

(c) shall have its name mentioned in legible English characters in all bill-heads and letter paper and in all notices, advertisements and other official publications of the company, and in all bills of exchange, hundis, promissory notes, endorsements, cheques and orders for money or goods purporting to be signed by or on behalf of the company, and in all bills of parcels, invoices, receipts and letters of credit of the company.

74. (1) If a limited company does not paint or affix, and keep painted or affixed, its name in manner directed by this Act, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for not so painting or affixing its name, and for every day during which its name is not so kept painted or affixed, and every officer of the company, who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default, shall be liable to the like penalty.

(2) If any officer of a limited company, or any person on its behalf, uses or authorises the use of any seal purporting to be a seal of the company whereon its name is not so engraven as aforesaid, or issues or authorises the issue of any bill-head, letter paper, notice, advertisement or other official publication of the company, or signs or authorises to be signed on behalf of the company any bill of exchange, hundi, promissory note, endorsement, cheque or order for money or goods, or issues or authorises to be issued any bill of parcels, invoice, receipt or letter of credit of the company, wherein its name is not mentioned in manner aforesaid, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, and shall further be personally liable to the holder of any such bill of exchange, hundi, promissory note, cheque or order for money or goods, for the amount thereof, unless the same is duly paid by the company.

down that a document may be served on a company by leaving it at, or sending it by post to the registered office of the company. There are also other various provisions in the act in relation to the registered office of the company, such as provisions relating to the keeping of the registers of members, of directors, and of mortgages, accounts, minutes of proceedings, copies of registered documents, etc. as also provisions relating to the exercise of the right of inspection by members of certain books and documents kept at the registered office. Further, the situation of the registered office also fixes the domicile and also the prima facie, nationality of the company. It is further useful with reference to the income-tax matters. For the change to take effect it is necessary that the notification should be given to the Registrar. It is not sufficient that there is a resolution to change the registered office of the company. 58 C. 716 = 133 I.C. 321 = 1931 C. 622.

Sec. 73.—S. 73 (a) is a penal provision and has to be construed strictly. The section has nothing to do with advertising the whereabouts of a company or affording facilities to members of the public in finding its place of business. The words "outside the office" cannot be construed as outside the premises or outside the compound, where the office is in a building with a compound. The requirements of the section would be satisfied by a board of the necessary conspicuousness and legibility outside the office room inside the building. The fact that the company owns the whole premises makes no difference. Where an office is situated within a compound the law does not require the name of the company to be painted or affixed outside the compound as well as outside the office. I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 186 = 43 Bom.L.R. 105 = 1941 Bom. 97. As to the liability of company on a promissory note executed by a secretary signing it in his own name on a paper printed with the name of the company and bearing a stamp impression of the company, see 1923 B. 29 = 24 Bom.L.R. 355 = 67 I.C. 941.

75. (1) Where any notice, advertisement or other official publication of a company contains a statement of the amount of the authorised capital of the company, such notice, advertisement or other official publication shall also contain a statement in an equally prominent position and in equally conspicuous characters of the amount of the capital which has been subscribed and the amount paid up.

(2) Any company which makes default in complying with the requirements of this section and every officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees.

Meetings and Proceedings.

¹[76. (1) A general meeting of every company shall be held within eighteen months from the date of its incorporation and thereafter once at least in every calendar year and not more than fifteen months after the holding of the last preceding general meeting.

Annual general meeting.

(2) If default is made in holding a meeting in accordance with the pro-

SEC. 76: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section has been substituted for the old one, so as to adopt the language of S. 112 of the English Act. Further, with a view to make provision in respect of companies which may be incorporated towards the end of a year, a definite time limit has been fixed for the first annual meeting, as in the case of the annual list and summary. [Vide S. 32 (1), supra.] S. 76 (1) demands that there shall be a general meeting held once at least in every year, i.e., one separate and distinct meeting every year. It does not mean that the same meeting can go on for several years being held once in each year. Where a meeting called and held on a day in one year is adjourned to a date in the next year and held on that date, the meeting held on the latter date is not a different meeting from that which began on the former date; it is the same meeting and does not satisfy the requirements of S. 76. 47 L.W. 635=1938 Mad. 640=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 856.

OBJECT OF GENERAL MEETING.—A general meeting should be held once at least in every year. Rules relating to the proceedings of general meeting and as regards voting are contained in Rr. 49 to 67 of Table A of Sch. I of the Act. The members of a company or corporation, public or private, can do no corporate act of a constituent character, such as must be done at a general meeting of all the members or of a quorum of them, unless the meeting is duly assembled, in conformity with the law of its organization. It has been well-said that the act of a majority of the corporation does not bind the minority if it has not been expressed in the form pointed out by law, and accordingly that the act of a majority, expressed elsewhere than at a meeting of the shareholders, is not binding on the company, as where the assent of each one is given separately and at different times. The reason is that each member has the right of consultation with the others, and that the minority have the right to be heard. In the line of authority establishing the foregoing principles, no break has been discovered, although it should be added that an election or other proceeding had at a meeting irregularly assembled may be valid if all attend and act or assent. Sub-section (3) enables the member of a company where there has been default in summoning a general meeting, to apply to the Court to direct the calling of the meeting. The order made by the Court, has, however, not the effect of excusing the persons liable for default in summoning a general meeting. 61 C. 408=151 I.C. 693=1934 C. 624. See also S. 79 (3) introduced by the Amending Act XXII of 1936.

(2) The directors shall, at least twenty-one days before the day on which the meeting is held, forward a report (in this Act referred to as the statutory report) certified as required by this section to every member of the company.

(3) The statutory report shall be certified by not less than two directors of the company or by the chairman of the directors if authorised in this behalf by the directors and shall state—

(a) the total number of shares allotted, distinguishing shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash and stating in the case of shares partly paid up the extent to which they are so paid up, and in either case the consideration for which they have been allotted ;

(b) the total amount of cash received by the company in respect of all the shares allotted, distinguished as aforesaid ;

(c) an abstract of the receipts of the company and of the payments made thereout up to a date within seven days of the date of the report, exhibiting under distinctive headings the receipts of the company from shares and debentures and other sources, the payments made thereout, and particulars concerning the balance remaining in hand, and an account or estimate of the preliminary expenses of the company showing separately any commission or discount paid on the issue or sale of shares ;

(d) the names, addresses and descriptions of the directors, auditors, managing agents and managers, if any, and secretary of the company and the changes, if any, which have occurred since the date of the incorporation ;

HOLDING GENERAL BODY MEETING AND LAYING BALANCE SHEET—CONDONATION BY REGISTRAR.—Where the Registrar of joint stock companies condones the delay on the part of the directors of a company in holding a general body meeting, and thereby condones the delay in filing a balance sheet before the general body at its meeting, the directors cannot be convicted under Ss. 76 (2) and 131. Quere, whether the Registrar can condone the delay in holding a general meeting. 53 L.W. 660=1941 Mad. 504= (1941) 1 M.L.J. 419. Quere.—It is very doubtful if a meeting valid under the substantive law could be invalidated by an article of association. 190 I.C. 551=1940 Sind 87. SEC. 77: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The present section has been substituted in the place of the old one. Under the old section, the obligation to hold a statutory general meeting was only upon the company limited by shares, and the present section imposes the obligation also upon "companies limited by guarantee and having a share capital". In sub-S. (6) of the old section no provisions was made for penalty in respect of a company not holding the statutory general meeting in time. This was possibly due to an inadvertent omission. All these defects have been remedied by the present section. Further, additional requirements to what were contained in the old Act have been provided for in clauses (c), (d), (f) and (g), to sub-S. (3) of the present section. Provision has also been introduced in this section, authorising certification of the report by the Chairman of the Directors. This section has adopted the law in S. 113 of the English Act, with some modifications as to the times and periods fixed therein.

"KNOWINGLY AND WILFULLY"—"PERMITS THE DEFAULT".—(See notes under S. 32, supra). An offence punishable under the

(g) the particulars of any commission or brokerage paid or to be paid in connection with the issue or sale of shares to any director, managing agent or manager or a partner of the managing agent if the managing agent is a firm or if the managing agent is a private company a director thereof.

(4) The statutory report shall, so far as it relates to the shares allotted by the company, and to the cash received in respect of such shares and to the receipts and payments of the company, be certified as correct by the auditors of the company.

(5) The directors shall cause a copy of the statutory report certified as required by this section to be delivered to the registrar for registration forthwith after the sending thereof to the members of the company.

(6) The directors shall cause a list showing the names, descriptions and addresses of the members of the company, and the number of shares held by them respectively, to be produced at the commencement of the meeting, and to remain open and accessible to any member of the company during the continuance of the meeting.

(7) The members of the company present at the meeting shall be at liberty to discuss any matter relating to the formation of the company or arising out of the statutory report, whether previous notice has been given or not, but no resolution of which notice has not been given in accordance with the articles may be passed.

(8) The meeting may adjourn from time to time, and at any adjourned meeting any resolution of which notice has been given in accordance with the articles, either before or subsequently to the former meeting, may be passed, and the adjourned meeting shall have the same powers as an original meeting.

(9) If a petition is presented to the Court in manner provided by Part V for winding up the company on the ground of default in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting, the Court may, instead of directing that the company be wound up, give directions for the statutory report to be filed or a meeting to be held, or make such other order as may be just.

(10) In the event of any default in complying with the provisions of this section every director of the company who is guilty of or who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

old Act but omitted to be so punished cannot be dealt with after the repeal of the Act. See 41 I.C. 1008=18 Cr.L.J. 396=31 P.R. 1917 (Cr.).

SEC. 78: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—(i) Sub-S. (4) of the old Act has been omitted, consequential on the amendment of S. 81 (2), which has rendered the subsequent confirmation of any resolution unnecessary, and the old sub-section (5) has been re-numbered as sub-S. (4) in the present section. (ii) Sub-S. (5) has been newly inserted, on the lines of S. 114 (1) of the English Act. There was no provision in the old Act, corresponding to this sub-section. It was considered unreasonable to make the requisitionists incur expenditure and for the directors to go free where they fail to convene the meeting. Suitable provision has been made in this sub-section both for recompensing the requisitionists and penalising the defaulting directors, without any loss to the company itself.

(2) The requisition must state the objects of the meeting, and must be signed by the requisitionists and deposited at the registered office of the company, and may consist of several documents in like form, each signed by one or more requisitionists.

(3) If the directors do not proceed within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition being so deposited to cause a meeting to be called, the requisitionists, or a majority of them in value, may themselves call the meeting, but in either case any meeting so called shall be held within three months from the date of the deposit of the requisition.

²[79. (1) The following provisions shall have effect with respect to meetings of a company other than a private company not being a subsidiary of a public company and the procedure thereat, notwithstanding any provision made in the articles of the company in this behalf :—

Provisions as to meetings and votes.

It is true that a shareholder is entitled to be given adequate information as to the business to be transacted, as S. 78 in fact requires; but, it cannot be held that unless the notice of the meeting recites all facts necessary to meet every technical objection which may be raised to its validity, the meeting held in pursuance of such notice must be invalid. 190 I.C. 551=1940 Sind 87. Notice of an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of a company must disclose all facts necessary to enable the shareholders to determine in his own interest whether or not he ought to attend the meeting. The pecuniary interest of a director in the matter of a special resolution to be proposed at the meeting is a material fact for this purpose. 43 Mys. H.C.R. 396=16 Mys.L.J. 448. See also 52 L.W. 751=1941 Mad. 354=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 721. Order of Court for winding up based on opinion of majority of shareholders in the absence of any resolution is bad. 49 C. 399=69 I.C. 241.

Sco. 79: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section has been substituted for the old S. 79; and this is based on S. 115 of the English Act, with several substantial modifications. The procedure to be adopted at meetings of the shareholders of a company is generally laid down in the Articles of Association of the company, and the provisions of old S. 79 were applicable only in cases where there were no provisions in the Articles regarding the same. This is also the English law, and S. 115 of the English Act allows of its provisions being overridden by the provisions made in the articles of the company. But in the present section, certain provisions such as those governing the notice to be given for special resolution, the manner of service of notices, the number of members entitled to demand a poll, and the form of proxy instruments have been made incapable of being varied by the articles of the company. Further, this section contains a specific provision that agenda must accompany the notice of a general meeting. There has been a practice not uncommon in the case of several companies to deny to shareholders duly brought on the register the full exercise of their rights as shareholders until after a specified period; and Cl. (e) of sub-S. (1) of this section puts an end to that practice.

SUIT TO EXERCISE VOTE.—Any shareholder is entitled to institute a suit to enforce his right to exercise his vote. 61 M.L.J. 724=1932 M. 100. No matter where the meeting is held or how defectively the members are notified, the proceedings will bind all who appear at the meeting and participate in it without dissent. But if a single member having the right to be present and vote, is not notified in the prescribed manner, and is absent or refuses to consent to the proceedings held at the meeting, its proceedings will be illegal and void. But a shareholder actually knowing about the business to be transacted at a meeting cannot complain of insufficiency of notice. 52 B. 571=55 M.L.J. 697=1928 P.O. 180=55 I.A. 274 (P.O.). The omission to mention any secret arrangement is a serious defect in the notice. But if any omission was due

(a) a meeting of a company other than a meeting for the passing of a special resolution may be called by not less than fourteen days' notice in writing; but with the consent of all the members entitled to receive notice of some particular meeting that meeting may be convened by such shorter notice and in such manner as those members may think fit;

(b) notice of the meeting of a company with a statement of the business to be transacted at the meeting shall be served on every member in the manner in which notices are required to be served by Table A and for the purpose of this clause the expression 'Table A' means that table as for the time being in force; but the accidental omission to give notice to, or the non-receipt of notice by, any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any meeting;

(c) five members present in person or by proxy, or the chairman of the meeting, or any member or members holding not less than one-tenth of the issued capital which carries voting rights shall be entitled to demand a poll: Provided that in the case of a private company if not more than seven members are personally present, one member, and if more than seven members are personally present, two members shall be entitled to demand a poll;

(d) an instrument appointing a proxy, if in the form set out in regulation 67 of Table A, shall not be questioned on the ground that it fails to comply with any special requirements specified for such instruments by the articles; and

(e) any shareholder whose name is entered in the register of shareholders of the company shall enjoy the same rights and be subject to the same liabilities as all other shareholders of the same class.

(2) The following provisions shall have effect in so far as the articles of the company do not make other provision in that behalf:—

(a) two or more members holding not less than one-tenth of the total share capital paid up, or, if the company has not a share capital, not less than five per cent. in number of the members of the company may call a meeting;

(b) in the case of a private company two members and in the case of any other company five members personally present shall be a quorum; to a bona fide, mistake, Courts will take a liberal view of the matter and will not upset all the proceedings on that ground only. 26 Bom.L.R. 987=1925 B. 49.

(c) any member elected by the members present at a meeting may be chairman thereof;

Proxy.—The Court can under S. 153 settle a form of proxy, and any substantial failure to comply with the Courts' directions in that respect would invalidate the proxy. 30 Bom.L.R. 197=1928 B. 80. Unstamped proxies, proxies given by the company in favour of its director, and proxies given by persons who were debtors to the company are invalid. 1928 B. 80. But undated proxies, proxy signed by the shareholder within time, although he has signed another proxy out of time, and voting made by proxy in the presence of the member entitled to vote are void. 1928 B. 80. Where votes on the amendments proposed were given in person, while the votes on the substantive proposition were given by proxies in a meeting of the company held for changing its memorandum, it was held that such votes were valid. 1928 B. 80.

Where an amendment to a resolution, moved at an ordinary meeting of the company, is wrongly ruled out of order by the Chairman of the meeting, and the original resolution without amendment is lost, the proper course is to treat all the proceedings subsequent to the moving of the resolution as invalid and to direct a general meeting to be convened for the purpose of considering the resolution afresh. The refusal by the chairman to put the amendment to the meeting invalidates the proceedings. 47 Bom.L.R. 428=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 475. Amendments to a resolution moved at a meeting must, as a general rule, be germane to the subject-matter of the proposition, and secondly, they must not, in substance, be a direct negative of the proposition moved. Where, at an ordinary meeting of a company, a motion is submitted that the report of the committee and the accounts be received and adopted, an amendment to the effect that the report and accounts be received but not adopted and that a committee be appointed to look into them and report cannot be said to be a direct negative of the resolution moved, and must be held to be in order. 47 Bom.L.R. 28=1945 Bom. 475.

(d) in the case of a company originally having a share capital, every member shall have one vote in respect of each share or each hundred rupees of stock held by him, and in any other case every member shall have one vote ;

(e) on a poll votes may be given either personally or by proxy ;

(f) the instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing under the hand of the appointer or of his attorney duly authorised in writing, or if the appointer is a corporation, either under seal or under the hand of an officer or an attorney, duly authorised ; and

(g) a proxy must be a member of the company.

(3) If for any reason it is impracticable to call a meeting of a company in any manner in which meetings of that company may be called or to conduct the meeting of the company in manner prescribed by the articles or this Act, the Court may, either of its own motion or on the application of any director of the company or of any member of the company who would be entitled to vote at the meeting, order a meeting of the company to be called, held and conducted in such manner as the Court thinks fit, and where any such order is given may give such ancillary or consequential directions as it thinks expedient and any meeting called, held and conducted in accordance with any such order shall for all purposes be deemed to be a meeting of the company duly called, held and conducted.] such members entitled to vote as are present in person or by proxy (where proxies are allowed) at a general meeting of which notice specifying the intention to propose the resolution as an extraordinary resolution has been duly given.

SEC. 81: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—Old sub-S. (2) has been replaced by the present sub-S. (2); and some consequential amendments in sub-Ss. (3. and (4) have been introduced. By virtue of this change, it is no longer necessary that any special resolution should be confirmed by a second general meeting, while it requires 21 days' notice to be given of the meeting at which the special resolution is passed. The provision as to demand of a poll in sub-S. (4) previously has been omitted in the present Act, as the same has been provided for by the amended S. 79 of the Act. The amendment of this section has been made on the lines of S. 117 of the English Act.

CHAIRMAN'S DECLARATION AS TO VOTES.—At any meeting either for extraordinary or for special resolution, the declaration by the chairman on a show of hands that the resolution has been carried is conclusive evidence as to the passing of the resolution. The minutes of the meeting are inadmissible in evidence to show that the declaration of the chairman was not warranted. 30 Bom.L.R. 598=1929 B. 38. But see

SEC. 82: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—For the words "the confirmation of the special resolution or the passing of the extraordinary resolution as the case may be", the words "the passing thereof" have been substituted in sub-S. (1). This is a consequential change necessitated by the abolition of confirmation of extraordinary resolutions. After the words "type written" the words "and duly certified under the signature of an officer of the company" have been added with the object of securing the correctness of the records preserved in the Registrar's office. Discretion of Registrar in refusing to record special resolution of company altering articles of association, see 63 M.L.J. 917. There is nothing in the Act which prohibits the Registrar from refusing to file amendments made in the articles of a company with a view to changing its nature (converting it from a private to a public company or from a public to a private company). On the contrary by reason of S. 82 the Registrar is bound to file them. 23 Pat. 204—24 P.L.T. 226—A.I. R. 1943 Pat. 278.

(4) If a company makes default in so filling with the registrar a copy of a special or extraordinary resolution, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

(5) If a company makes default in embodying in or annexing to a copy of its articles or in forwarding in print to a member when required by this section a copy of a special resolution, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees for each copy in respect of which default is made.

(6) Every officer of a company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits any default by the company in complying with the requirements of this section shall be liable to the like penalty as is imposed by this section on the company for that default.

Minutes of proceedings of general meetings and of its directors.

(2) Any such minute, if purporting to be signed by the chairman of the meeting at which the proceedings were had, or by the chairman of the next succeeding meeting, shall be evidence of the proceedings.

(3) Until the contrary is proved, every general meeting of the company or meeting of directors in respect of the proceedings whereof minutes have been so made shall be deemed to have been duly called and held, and all proceedings had thereat to have been duly had, and all appointments of directors or liquidators shall be deemed to be valid.

(11) The amendment of sub-S. (3) deprives the benefit of the exception in the case of private companies which are subsidiary companies of a public company. The amending Act of 1936 introduces a distinction between 'private companies' and 'private companies which are subsidiaries of public companies'; and the exemption accorded to the former by certain provisions of the Act, e.g., Ss. 83-A, 86-D, 87-C, 87-D, 91-B (3), 91-D and sub-Ss. 141 (1) and 144 (5), is made not applicable to the case of the latter class of companies. SEC. 83-B: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—Sub-S. (2) has been newly inserted by the amending Act, with a view to secure greater independence to the directors. It lays down that not less than two-thirds of the whole number of directors shall be persons whose period of office is liable to determination at any time by retirement of directors in rotation. There is a proviso with reference to companies incorporated before the commencement of this amending Act. This section is to be read in conjunction with the amended S. 17 (2) which by making the provisions of Art. 78 of Table A applicable to all companies secures that all first directors of a company must retire at the first ordinary meeting of the company.

The Board of management of a Company granted a gratuity to an ex-secretary, although the Gratuity Rules of the Company did not permit such a grant. The Board of Management, on exception being taken to the grant by the Deputy Registrar of Co-operative Societies, amended the by-laws so as to permit the grant, and they placed the matter before the General Body. The latter passed a resolution at a meeting sanctioning the payment of gratuity. Held, that the matter only related to the administration and internal management of the affairs of the company and so long as the General Body acted within the ambit of the Articles of Association, any act done by them in regard to the management of the Company would be intra vires and not ultra vires; (2) that though the Board of management was delegated the power to frame by-laws, that did not take away the power of the General Body to sanction any payment of gratuity in exceptional cases not provided for by the by-laws as framed by the Board of management. This power always vested in the General Body and could not be taken away by the mere fact of delegation. 52 L.W. 417=1940 Mad. 928=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 488. The assets of the company are entrusted to the directors to be applied to certain defined objects and they are responsible as for a breach of trust if they apply them to other objects. 168 I.C. 786=1937 Pat. 293. The assets of a company cannot be disposed of by a resolution of the Directors only. They can only be disposed of after the resolution of the shareholders passed at a special meeting called for the purpose of winding up the company and disposing of its assets. A resolution passed by the Board of Directors of a company, authorizing one of their members to sell the assets of the company for satisfaction of its debts is ultra vires and a transfer of property effected in pursuance of such resolution is ineffectual to pass any title to the transferee, more so when the formalities in respect of the deed of transfer provided by the Articles of Association of the company have not been observed and the transfer has been effected not by the Director so authorized but by his agent whose authority to act for the company is not proved. 1938 Rang. 447; (1941) 1 M.L.J. 98 (P.C.). There is a contravention of S. 86 (d) when the Board of Directors of a company sanction a loan to a director; and if the attention of the directors is drawn to this it is their duty to see that the illegality is terminated. Failure to rectify the same is an offence. 55 L.W. 232=1942 M.W.N. 296=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 452 (1)=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 520.

ACT OF DIRECTORS ultra vires—RATIFICATION BY SHAREHOLDERS—VALIDITY.—To render valid an act of the directors of a company which is ultra vires the acquiescence of the shareholders must be of the same extent as the consent which would have given validity from the first, vis., the acquiescence of each and every member of the company. Of course, this acquiescence cannot be presumed unless knowledge of the transaction can be brought home to every one of the remaining shareholders. By knowledge of the transaction is clearly meant knowledge of the invalidity of the transaction. There can be no ratification without an intention to ratify, and there can be no intention to ratify an illegal act without knowledge of the illegality. FORFEITURE OF SHARES.—Where the directors had acted intra vires and bona fide, the official liquidator cannot take advantage of any irregularity in the procedure of the directors in forfeiting the shares. 109 I.C. 662=1929 L. 70. SUIT FILED BY DE FACTO DIRECTOR.—Although the appointment of a person as director was irregular from the outset, if he has continued to act as such in good faith, he is to be deemed a de facto director, and the signing by him of any plaint will be validated under S. 86 of the Act. In a suit instituted by him, the mere raising of a doubt as to the validity of his appointment is not enough to “show” in the words of the proviso to the section that his appointment was invalid. Where the question as to the validity of the appointment has been raised in proceedings before a Court, the appointment cannot be considered to be shown to be invalid until the Court has come to a definite decision on the subject. Where this question was remitted by the appellate Court for a finding, and the lower Court recorded a finding against the validity of the appointment, even then it cannot be said that it is “shown” to be invalid within the meaning of the proviso to S. 86; unless and until the appellate Court passes a definite decision on the point. Hence any act that may have been done by such a director since the raising of the question in any proceeding as to the invalidity of his appointment, and till the definite decision of the same by the Court, cannot be deemed to be invalid. 9 B. 56=134 I.C. 737=1931 R. 139. When the question of the competency of the director to sign and verify a plaint is raised in defence, the Court cannot shut out evidence of facts or questions in cross-examination which may throw light on the point as to whether the signing of the plaint in the suit was or was not made after the directors’ appointment had been shown to be invalid. 130 I.C. 843=1931 R. 54.

LAW OF CLUBS AND ASSOCIATIONS—EXPULSION OF MEMBER BY STEWARDS—OBSERVANCE OF RULES OF NATURAL JUSTICE.—In considering whether natural justice has been observed by a domestic tribunal in arriving at a decision one of the factors to be considered is whether the body which decided the question were actuated by malice or some improper motives. In considering such a question the subsequent conduct of those concerned may be most material when there is a question of malice, everything relative to the matters in question even down to the very conduct of the defendant (the domestic tribunal) at the trial, may be material. Evidence of events subsequent to the decision of the domestic tribunal may be considered. 47 Bom.L.R. 916. Where the rules of racing framed by a Club do not prescribe any particular length of notice in regard to the investigation into a charge of misconduct on the part of a trainer, mere shortness of notice is not by itself fatal and would not vitiate the proceedings or make them contrary to natural justice. Nor would the mere absence of notice of the charge before the hearing, in itself, be incompatible with natural justice in a domestic tribunal. Where there is no rule expressly requiring any particular notice to be given to the party affected or to the tribunal, the party cannot be allowed to conduct his case, before a tribunal properly constituted, to its conclusion, and then, when he has been unsuccessful, to say that he ought to have had notice of the charge before the hearing began and particulars of the charge. 47 Bom.L.R. 916. To constitute “bias” in an arbitrator or a domestic tribunal, such as a committee of Stewards of a Race Club, there must be something tending to make the mind to go one way rather than another, and improperly tending to do so. In every Club, and even in every profession, the tribunal which decides the question of expulsion of a member is to a certain extent interested in the result of the proceedings. That is not however bias in itself for the purpose of invalidating their decision. 47 Bom.L.R. 916.

SEC. 86-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—Ss. 86-A to 86-I have been newly inserted by Amending Act XXII of 1936, with a view to provide for the control of directors. S. 86-A has been enacted on the lines of the English Act, S. 142. The word ‘bankrupt’ used in the English Act has been replaced in this section by the more familiar term ‘insolvent’; and while under the English Act ‘any person who acts as director or either directly or indirectly takes part in or is concerned in the management of a company’s is penalised, his section applies only to ‘directors or managing agent or manager’. Sub-sections (2) and (4) of the English Act have been omitted as being of no application to this country.

In the case of any company provision is made by the articles or by any agreement entered into between any person and the company for empowering a director or manager of the company to assign his office as such to another person, any assignment of office made in pursuance of the said provision shall, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the said provision, be of no effect unless and until it is approved by a special resolution of the company :

Provided that the exercise by a director of a power to appoint an alternate or substitute director to act for him during an absence of not less than three months from the district in which meetings of the director are ordinarily held, if done with the approval of the board of directors, shall not be deemed to be an assignment of office within the meaning of this section :

Provided always that any such alternate or substitute director shall ipso facto vacate office if and when the appointer returns to the district in which meetings of the directors are ordinarily held.

Explanation.—For the purposes of the provisions to this section, the presidency-towns of Calcutta and Madras shall be deemed to be part of the 24 Parganas and Chingleput Districts respectively, and the presidency-town of Bombay shall be deemed to be part of the Bombay Suburban and the Thana districts.]

Provided that—

(a) in relation to any such provision which is in force at the date of the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, this section shall have effect only on the expiration of a period of six months from that date, and

(b) nothing in this section shall operate to deprive any person of any exemption or right to be indemnified in respect of anything done or omitted to be done by him while any such provision was in force, and

(c) notwithstanding anything in this section, a company may, in pursuance of any such provision as aforesaid, indemnify any such director, manager, officer or auditor against any liability incurred by him in defending any proceedings, whether civil or criminal, in which judgment is given in his favour or in which he is acquitted, or in connection with any application under section 281 of this Act in which relief is granted to him by the Court.]

SEC. 86-D: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section is new, and it prohibits the making of loans of any kind to directors or guaranteeing any loans made by a director, and provides a punishment for breach of the same. It must however be noted that prohibition is not applicable to certain classes of private companies and to banking companies.

SEC. 86-E: AMENDMENT, 1936.—This section has been newly inserted by Act XXII of 1936 with a view to prevent directors or firms or private companies in which these are directors, from holding offices of profit under the company, except those referred to in the section. Offices of profit held by directors elected or appointed before this amendment are expressly saved from the operation of this section. The explanation makes it clear that 'managing agents' shall not be deemed to hold any office of profit under the company.

SEC. 86-F.—This section has been added by Act XXII of 1936. By virtue of this section no director or firm in which also he is a director can enter into any contract with the company except with the sanction of the Board of Directors.

SEC. 86-G.—This section is newly added by Act XXII of 1936, and it makes provision for the removal of directors (excepting those who have been elected or appointed before the coming into force of this amendment), instead of leaving the matter to be provided for in the articles of association.

SEC. 86-H.—This has been inserted by Act XXII of 1936. It restricts the powers of the directors, and requires the consent of the general meeting for the sale or other disposition of the undertaking of the company, and also for remitting any debt due by a director.

SEC. 86-I.—This section has been newly inserted with a view to make provision in the Act itself for the vacation of office of director instead of leaving the matter to be provided for in the articles of association. Cl. (1) (a) reproduces here the provision which was previously contained in sub-Cl. (2) of S. 85.

SEC. 87: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section has been substituted in the place of the old one by Act XXII of 1936, and it follows S. 144 of the English Act. This makes provision for the register of directors, managers and managing agents, containing the prescribed particulars, kept corrected and open to inspection. Under the old section there was no time limit prescribed for filing with the Registrar a copy showing the changes, and such changes were rarely reported to the Registrar and if at all after inordinate delay. Nor was there any provision therein for the inspection of the register by the members. These defects have been rectified by the present amendment. 58 O. 882 and 35 L.W. 661, which were decided under the section as it stood before the amendment are no longer good

(2) The company shall within the periods respectively mentioned in this sub-section send to the registrar a return in the prescribed form containing the particulars specified in the said register and a notification in the prescribed form of any change among its directors, managers or managing agents or in any of the particulars contained in the register.

The period within which the said return is to be sent shall be a period of fourteen days from the appointment of the first directors of the company and the period within which the said notification of a change is to be sent shall be fourteen days from the happening thereof.

(3) The register to be kept under this section shall during business hours (subject to such reasonable restrictions as the company may by its articles or in general meeting impose, so that not less than two hours in each day be allowed for inspection) be open to the inspection of any member of the company without charge and of any other person on payment of one rupee or such less sum as the company may impose for each inspection.

(4) If any inspection required under this section is refused or if default is made in complying with sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) of this section, the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully in default shall be liable to a fine of fifty rupees.

law, as now a 'time-limit' has been fixed by the amending section. Hence the penalty provided for default in compliance with the section can no longer be evaded.

CONSTRUCTIVE NOTICE.—It was held in 27 Bom.L.R. 978=161 I.C. 126=1936 B. 62, that it cannot be said that persons dealing with a company have notice of the contents of all the documents on the file of the particular company; and that merely because a list of directors has to be filed with the Registrar under S. 87 of the Act, it cannot be said that persons dealing with the company have notice of who the directors of the company are. But it is doubtful if this decision will be good law now in view of the provision introduced in the amended section, as to the inspection of the register of director, etc., by the members and the public at the company's office on every business day for a period of not less than 2 hours. Where a company makes default in complying with S. 87 (2) by failing to report to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies a change in the directorships held by a director, it becomes liable under S. 87 (4). It is unnecessary for the prosecution to prove that anybody connected with the company had knowledge of the change, etc. The words knowingly and wilfully in S. 87 (4) can only refer to a person and not to a company. 1942 M.W.N. 761=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 119=56 L.W. 80=1943 Mad. 214.

SEC. 87-A: AMENDMENTS—MANAGING AGENTS.—Ss. 87-A to 87-I have been inserted by the Amending Act XXII of 1936, and they deal with the subject of managing agents. They deal with their appointments, the conditions applicable to them, their remuneration, and the restrictions imposed on them as to the obtaining of loans, the purchase of shares of other companies under their management, the issue of debentures, the engaging of themselves in any other

(2) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the articles of a company or in any agreement with the company a managing agent of a company appointed before the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, shall not continue to hold office after the expiry of twenty years from the commencement of the said Act unless then reappointed thereto or unless he has been reappointed thereto before the expiry of the said twenty years.

(3) A managing agent whose office is terminated by virtue of the provisions of sub-section (2) shall upon such termination be entitled to a charge upon the assets of the company by way of indemnity for all liabilities or obligations properly incurred by the managing agent on behalf of the company subject to existing charges and encumbrances, if any.

competitive business, and the appointment of directors. These subjects will be dealt with in greater detail under each of the sections following. It will be useful to give here a general idea as to the system of managing agency, which has been for the first time brought now within the purview of the legislature. This institution of managing agency is one which is peculiar to this country, and it is not to be found in this form in any other part of the world. This system owes its origin to the fact that in this country there have been no facilities for obtaining financial assistance in the case of corporations. Banks and money lenders have been unwilling generally to advance monies to companies without having the guarantee of some third party of undoubted financial stability. The people also, having been unaccustomed to companies which have been only of recent growth in this country, have been unwilling to invest their monies in such concerns unless they were assured of their proper management and conduct by persons of approved commercial ability and experience. Owing to these circumstances, there came into existence two classes of persons, viz., (i) those of well-known financial standing who were in a position to advance their own monies or to obtain on their credits from their friends or banks, monies needed for the carrying on of the business of the companies; and (ii) those men of commercial experience who undertook the responsibility of incorporating and managing the companies. Taking advantage of their importance in connection with the formation and conduct of the companies, they often stipulated to keep the practical management of the companies in their own hands for very long periods, and sometimes hereditarily also in their families. They also managed to have their remunerations and commissions fixed at extraordinarily high rates, irrespective of the profits earned by the company. They generally had the liberty to engage in other competitive trades on their own account, using the funds of the companies under their management for the purpose, and thereby causing great loss to these companies. Thus, being in a position to dictate terms, these agents generally procured for themselves terms which when critically examined were sometimes in the nature of unconscionable bargains. The terms contained usually in their contract of management providing for their conduct being supervised by the directors of the company, and for their removal for dishonesty or fraud by the shareholders often proved illusory, since the managing agents almost in all instances contrived to have the directorate packed with men subservient to them and to have the shares issued and rules framed in such a way as to have effective control over the votes of the shareholders. Thus it was very often found impossible to have them under control in any manner or to have them removed. This is but the dark side of the picture, and the abuse of the powers by some of the managing agencies. On the other hand in several instances, it has been also found that the managing agents in this country have been mainly responsible for the prosperity of many of the industrial concerns in this country. But for the aid and assistance of the managing agents, and the driving force and skill in the organization and management brought to bear by them, many an industrial concern in this country would not have come into existence at all, or would have languished in their infancy. Under the circumstances narrated above, the system of managing agency came for criticism and consideration from time to time. One set of persons contended that the system had outlived its utility and was now exhibiting only its dark features that it should be abolished altogether by statute. Another set of persons emphasised on the advantages of the system, and contended that it should not be interfered with by legislation, and that parties should be left free in the matter of such contracts. There was still a third party which steered a middle course, and wanted that the system should not be abolished altogether, but that the Act should provide suitable provisions for regulating their tenure of office, appointment, powers, etc. The agitation regarding these matters became very wide and insistent especially as a consequence of the deplorable failure of several industrial concerns under the control of managing agents in recent years. The Government felt that it could no longer keep quiet without interfering in the matter. The points, therefore, for the Government to consider were, whether there was any necessity for its interference at all, and if so, to what extent, i.e., whether to abolish the system altogether or to have the same regulated by legislation. To decide as to this matter, the Government appointed committees to investigate into the matter and also invited the opinions of several responsible bodies. As a result of these inquiries and after considering the several opinions regarding this matter from responsible bodies, the Government was convinced that there were certainly very serious abuses in the system, but that no case was made out for the abolition of the system altogether, and that a good case had been made out for the remedying of those abuses by legislative enactment. In this state of things, the Government decided to allow the system of managing agency to function, and at the same time to prescribe by legislation the necessary and adequate limits as to its function, powers and privileges. The following matters were found to be some of the serious abuses, and the Government determined as follows:—(i) That the Act should contain some provisions regarding their appointment, tenure of office, remuneration, etc., beyond which the managing agents would not be able to go without the specific sanction and approval of the shareholders. (ii) That legislative provision should be made for the shareholders having a fair and real chance of having their say in matters connected with the conduct and management of the business. (iii) That the period of managing agents should be fixed and limited to a certain number of years. (iv) That provision should be made for the election of an independent directorate, who should have an effective supervision over the managing agents. (v) That the managing agents should be prohibited by legislation from obtaining loans from the companies, under their management either for themselves or for some other companies under their management. (vi) That their powers regarding entering into any contract with the company under their management for the purchase, sale or supply of goods to the company, should be restricted in some respects. (vii) That restrictions should be imposed regarding the transfer of their office, and the charging or assigning of their remuneration or any part thereof. (viii) That their power to appoint directors should be restricted to certain proportion.

(ix) That the managing agents shall be removable even before the expiry of the period of their appointment, in certain contingencies, e.g., insolvency or conviction for certain criminal offences. (x) That there should be legislative prohibition against their engaging themselves in any business which is competitive of the business under their management as managing agents. There was still further difficulty as to what should be done with reference to the existing managing agencies. The cry was raised that if the legislature touched the existing agencies it would mean a violation of the principle of sanctity of contracts and that any provision which would be made would be treated as exproprietary legislation. It was, on the other hand, pointed out by the Government that although it was the duty of every Government to see that the sanctity of contracts should be preserved, still it would be failing in its duty if, being convinced that reforms were needed, it held up its hands merely because legislation was likely to affect contracts. It was also pointed out that it was on this principle that several Acts were recently enacted for granting relief to debtors; and that these enactments affected not only contracts but even adjudications of Courts of competent jurisdiction in cases in which unhappy debtors were concerned. In view of all the abovesaid conclusions reached by the Government it brought forward a bill embodying certain provisions for the purpose of remedying the defects and abuses found in the working of the system of managing agency. The matter was thoroughly examined by the select committee of the legislature, and the bill as it emerged from the committee was with a few modifications passed into law. This section has been introduced by Act XXII of 1936. By this section, all new appointments of managing agents are to be for a period not exceeding 20 years at a time. In the case of existing agencies, notwithstanding the terms of their agreement or any provision in the articles of association, the period of office is to come to an end after 20 years. With a view to safeguard the rights of existing agents, the terms of office of many of whom will come to an end within 20 years, the section provides that no such termination will be effective unless the moneys due to the outgoing agents are paid off, and that in respect of all liabilities and obligations properly incurred by them, they would have by way of indemnity a charge on the assets of the company, subject to the existing charges, if any. Note that no compensation has been provided for in the case of existing agents whose term of office would come to a premature end as a result of the enactment of this section, for the obvious reason that it will not be just to penalise the company for the termination of tenure of office of such agent by operation

(5) Nothing in this section shall apply to a private company which is not the subsidiary company of a public company.]

Conditions applicable to managing agents. ¹[87-B. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the articles of the company or in any agreement with the company—

(a) a company may, by resolution passed at a general meeting of which notice has been given to the managing agent in the same manner as to members of the company, remove a managing agent if he is convicted of an offence in relation to the affairs of the company punishable under the Indian Penal Code, and being under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, non-bailable; and for the purposes of this clause, where the managing agent is a firm or company an offence committed by a member of such firm or a director of or an officer holding a general power of attorney from such company shall be deemed to be an offence committed by such firm or company:

Provided that a managing agent shall not be liable to be removed under the provisions hereof if the offending member, director or officer as aforesaid is expelled or dismissed by the managing agent within thirty days from the date of his conviction or if his conviction is set aside on appeal;

(b) the office of a managing agent shall be vacated if he is adjudged insolvent;

(c) a transfer of his office by a managing agent shall be void unless approved by the company in general meeting:

Provided that in the case of a managing agent's firm a change in the partners thereof shall not be deemed to operate as a transfer of the office of managing agent, so long as one of the original partners shall continue to be a partner of the managing agent's firm. For the purpose of this proviso 'original partners' shall mean, in the case of managing agents appointed before the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, partners who were partners at the date of the commencement of the said Act, and in the case of managing agents appointed after the commencement of the said Act, partners who were partners at the date of the appointment; of law. The fair time-limit of 20 years has been fixed for the managing agents to show by the results of their management that they are indispensable, while from the point of view of the shareholders, it will give them an opportunity of considering every twenty years how the managing agents have carried on, and if they are dissatisfied or find they can do without the managing agents, they may have an opportunity of doing away with them. See also 46 Bom.L.R. 265. With respect to agency agreement Companies Amendment Act, 1936, is not retrospective, except that by S. 87-A, managing agencies existing when the Act came into force can only survive for 20 years after that date. 1944 Bom. 205=46 Bom.L.R. 265.

SEC. 87-B: AMENDMENT, 1936.—This section is new and has been inserted by Act XXII of 1936. It lays down the conditions applicable to managing agents. This section also provides for the removal of the managing agent by a resolution passed at a general meeting of the company in cases of certain specified offences committed by him; for avoiding payments of certain dues and compensation to the managing agent in the case of a winding up caused by the negligence or default of the managing agent; and for the necessity of approval of the company in general meeting for the validity of the appointment and removal of a managing agent and of any variation of a managing agent's contract of management, made after the commencement of this amending Act. Preliminary appointments announced in a prospectus, which would be impracticable to hold in abeyance until the first general meeting have been expressly excepted from the conditions laid down.

SEC. 87-B (d).—The restriction by S. 87, Cl. (d) is against a managing agent making a voluntary charge or assignment of his remuneration and the object is undoubtedly to prevent him from doing so to the detriment of the company. It is an entirely different matter when a creditor of a firm of managing agents seeks to recover his debt by attaching the remuneration to which the managing agent is entitled. A restraint on voluntary alienation does not bar a compulsory sale at the instance of a creditor. 1941 Cal. 240.

(e) if a company is wound up either by the Court or voluntarily, any contract of management made with a managing agent shall be thereupon determined without prejudice however, to the right of the managing agent to recover any money recoverable by the managing agent from the company: Provided that where the Court finds that the winding up is due to the negligence or default of the managing agent himself the managing agent shall not be entitled to receive any compensation for the premature termination of his contract of management; and

Provided that nothing herein contained shall apply to the appointment of a company's first managing agent made prior to the issue of the prospectus or statement in lue of prospectus where the terms of the appointment of such managing agent are there set forth.]

SEC. 87-B (f).—S. 87-B (f) does not authorise the removal of the Managing Agent by passing a simple resolution where the articles appoint the Managing Agent. The purpose of S. 87-B is to prevent the appointment or dismissal of a managing Agent to a company without the shareholders in general meeting, giving their assent. But when the articles of association bind the members of the company and the company itself to follow a certain procedure in dismissing its Managing Agents, and that procedure does not contravene the provisions of S. 87-B, but goes beyond those provisions in the way of providing protection for the members of the company, there is nothing in S. 87-B (f) which authorises the abrogation of a contract contained in the articles of association prescribing that the services of the Managing Agents shall be dispensed with in a particular manner. Where therefore the articles of association provide that the Managing Agents are removable by an extraordinary resolution of the company passed at an extraordinary general meeting at which persons holding not less than three-fourths of the issued ordinary capital of the company are present, an ordinary resolution at a general meeting passed by a majority of sixty-eight per cent. of the shareholders entitled to vote dismissing the managing agents is inoperative and invalid. 50 C.W.N. 310.

SEC. 87-B, CL. (f), PROVISIO.—This proviso does not mean that the restrictions in the Act relating to the period of office and the remuneration, etc., will not be applicable to such an appointment. The exception merely amounts to this, viz., that provided the other limitations prescribed in the different sections of the Act are observed, an appointment made prior to the issue of a prospectus is not dependent for its validity on a resolution of the shareholders. Clause (c) debars a managing agent from transferring his office without the concurrence of his shareholders, while the assignment of his remuneration by a managing agent is declared void as against the company. Changes in the constitution of a firm (where a firm is a managing agent) are, however, protected so long as one of the original partners continues in the firm.

The principle which applies to a case of master and servant applies also to a case of a company and its managing agents in considering the question of misconduct sufficient to justify the termination of their employment. In each case the question must be whether the misconduct proved, or reasonably apprehended, has such a direct bearing on the employer's business, or on the discharge by the employee of that part of the employer's business in which he is employed, as to seriously affect or to threaten to seriously affect the employer's business or the employee's efficient discharge of his duty to his employer. The nature of the particular business and the nature of the duties of the employee, will require to be considered in each case in order to arrive at a just conclusion on the question. If the quarrels between the partners of the firm of managing agents are such as to be detrimental to the interests of the company, the termination of their employment is justified. 46 Bom.L.R. 324=78 C.L.J. 113=I.L.R. The respondent agreed to serve the appellant, an Insurance company, as the secretary of its business in Madras for 5 years from 17-11-1939. He had to devote his whole time as such secretary and to do all in his power as such secretary to extend and increase the business of the company. He was subject to the control of the directors and of the managing agents and was to obey all directions or orders from time to time given to him. The managing agents were in charge of the management of the company and under the Articles of Association, they had power to appoint in their discretion, remove or suspend managers, secretaries, etc.

On 23—7—1941, the company appointed a general manager. The respondent resented this and on 29—7—1941 he absented himself from office and subsequently applied for leave which was refused. He did not return to his duties, but on 20—11—1941 he filed a suit for damages for wrongful dismissal. Held, (1) that the respondent was appointed merely as secretary and was a mere servant, his position being that he had to do what he was told, having no authority to represent anything at all; (2) that the agreement between him and the company did not preclude the company from appointing a general manager; (3) that the respondent having left his employment without reason had no right to bring the suit. Sec. 87-C.—This section is newly introduced by Act XXII of 1936. It provides that no managing agent can stipulate for his remuneration anything other than a percentage of the nett profits with provisions for a minimum remuneration in case of inadequacy or absence of profits; and any other form of remuneration has to be sanctioned by the shareholders. This was meant to put a stop to the very bad practice which was prevailing before, of providing in their agreements for remuneration whether any profits were made by the company or not. Further, sub-section (3) prescribes the mode for fixing the nett profits, and the formidable list of deductions therein included enforces a reasonable basis for the calculation of profits.

Sec. 87-D.—This section has been inserted by Act XXII of 1936. Under this section, the giving of loans to or the guaranteeing of loans of managing agents is absolutely prohibited now. The privilege hitherto enjoyed by managing agents of entering into contracts with the company without any limitation is partly restricted by sub-section (5), which provides that except with the consent of three-fourths of the directors present and entitled to vote, no such contract can be entered into. A penalty also has been provided in this section for a breach of the provisions of this section. this section. Where the articles of association specifically excluded from the managing agent's powers, that of borrowing, but nevertheless such a managing agent borrows money and spends it, the company is not liable for the debts when the borrowings were neither bona fide nor necessary for the business of the company. 15 Luck. 515=1940 Oudh 202.

A company formed for the purpose of carrying on business as an investment trust authorised B, one of its managing directors to invest the firm's moneys in shares and securities and sell them when deemed necessary and for that purpose to borrow moneys from another firm of which V, a co-managing director, was the head and B, its Madras agent. B borrowed large sums from that firm and utilised them for gambling in differences on behalf of the company and also embezzled large sums of the company. The company having been compulsorily ordered to be wound up, the lending firm claimed to rank as a creditor for the amounts lent and interest. The official liquidator opposed the claim in respect of the major portion of the debt. Held, that B having been duly authorised to borrow though B had misappropriated the moneys the lending company not being put upon inquiry as to the application of the moneys lent and as B's knowledge of the fraud he was committing was not the knowledge of the firm or of the company, the company was liable and the fact that V was a managing director of the debtor company made no difference, as he knew nothing of the defalcations of B until all the moneys had been lent. 1944 M.W.N. 548=1944 Comp.C. 231=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 532=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 77=I.L.R. SEC. 87-E.—This section has been added by Act XXII of 1936. This prohibits the evil practice of inter-investment of funds, which was prevailing formerly. Now, no managing agent can make a company under his management lend any portion of its funds by way of loan to any other company under his management. The guaranteeing of any loans of any such other company is also prohibited. As to existing arrangements, only renewals are permissible. A very heavy penalty besides the liability to make good the loss occasioned by any loan given or guarantee offered in breach of the prohibition created under the Act is put upon directors and other officers (which includes a managing agent), who act in contravention of the provisions of the Act.

LEG. REF.

SEC. 87-F.—This section is new and was added by Act XXII of 1936. It lays down the rules regarding the purchase by a company of the shares or debentures of another company under the management of the same managing agent.

SEC. 87-G.—This section has been inserted by Act XXII of 1936, and it absolutely prohibits the creation of encumbrances over the assets of the company by the managing agent; and his rights to invest the funds of the company under his control is also limited to the limits fixed by the directors and is made dependent upon the authority to be given to him by the directors. The section also prohibits the delegation to the managing agent of any such power by the company.

SEC. 87-H.—This section has been inserted by Act XXII of 1936, and it prohibits the carrying on of any competitive business on his own account, by a managing agent.

SEC. 87-I.—This section has been inserted by Act XXII of 1936. The packing of the Board of Directors by the nominees of the managing agent is now rendered impossible by this section; as he cannot have more than one-third of the total number of seats in the Board filled up by his nominees.

SEC. 88: "CONTRACT BEFORE FORMATION OF COMPANY".—A limited company is a distinct personal from the individuals composing it. 42 C. 1029=42 I.A. 97=25 M.L.J. 80 (P. C.). A company cannot be bound by a contract entered into on its behalf before the company was formed; nor is it competent to bring a company into existence bound to enter into a contract with a third party the terms of which have been arranged before the company was formed. It is for the company after its formation to determine whether it will enter into the contract or not. A clause in the memorandum of a company provided "that the firm of M.G. & Co. . . . shall be the agents of the company, so long as the said firm shall carry on business in Bombay. . . ." and it was held that this clause merely conferred a power upon the company but did not impose any obligation. 59 B. 218=36 Bom.L.R. 907=1934 B. 427. Further, a company cannot ratify or adopt a contract entered into by a person on its behalf before incorporation, though it may enter into a new contract embodying the terms of the old one. 36 B. 564=14 Bom.L.R. 45=14 I.O. 353; 48 I.C. 787=1923 L. 100. An agreement made by the promoters of a company prior to its incorporation, cannot be enforced by the company even though it has adopted and ratified it after its incorporation. I.L.R. (1944) 2 Cal. 101. Under the Articles of Association a company was empowered to appoint and in their discretion to remove or suspend managers, secretaries, officers, clerks, agents and servants of the company. The company appointed the appellant as secretary on 17-11-39 for a period of 5 years whose duties were set out in the agreement between him and the company and who was in the discharge of his duties to be subject to the control of the directors and of the managing agents and obey all directions or orders from time to time given to him. On 29-7-41 a general manager was appointed by the directors of the company and on the secretary objecting to the right of the directors to make such an appointment and failing to get redress absented himself and filed the suit for damages. On a question as to whether he was entitled to the relief claimed.

(i) any contract which, if made between private persons, would be by law required to be in writing, signed by the parties to be charged therewith, may be made on behalf of the company in writing signed by any person acting under its authority, express or implied, and may in the same manner be varied or discharged ;

(ii) any contract which, if made between private persons, would by law be valid although made by parol only, and not reduced into writing, may be made by parol on behalf of the company by any person acting under its authority, express or implied, and may in the same manner be varied or discharged.

(2) All contracts made according to this section shall be effectual in law and shall bind the company and its successors and all other parties thereto, their heirs, or legal representatives, as the case may be.

Held, that the secretary was a servant of the company and was bound to carry out the duties assigned to him and that the agreement between him and the company could not be read as precluding the latter from appointing a general manager and as the secretary left his employment without reason, he was not entitled to bring the suit for damages. (1946) 1 M.L.J. 79.

CONTRACT BY AGENT.—Persons contracting with a company and dealing in good faith may assume that acts within the powers of the company have been properly and duly performed, and they are not bound to inquire whether the acts of internal management have been regular. Where an agent unauthorizedly borrowed on behalf of the company but the same was ratified by the directors at a later meeting, it was held that the defect in the convening of the meeting did not render the contract and its ratification invalid. 53 A. 1009=1931 A.L.J. 1033=1932 A. 141. The chairman of a Corporation as principal officer while carrying on business of the corporation executed a declaration creating a lien on property of the corporation in respect of a loan sanctioned by the Board of Directors, but the Articles of Association were silent as to the authority of the person entering into agreement on behalf of the corporation. Held, that the chairman had implied authority to execute the declaration. 181 I.C. 681=1939 Sind 100. Where the matter of appointment of the staff of the company is in the hands of the chairman, and the directors have no reason to suspect the integrity of the chairman or advisory director, there being an entire absence of anything, which would point the finger of suspicion to either the chairman or the advisory director in the matter of the appointments, the directors cannot be made liable for the amounts misappropriated by the chairman or advisory director amounts paid by the staff as security for their employment; since the directors are justified in trusting the chairman and advisory director to deal properly with the employees it cannot be said that they are guilty of wilful negligence, and they cannot be called upon to pay the amount of the security utilised by the chairman or advisory director for their own purposes. 46 L.W. 869=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 848.

IRREGULARITY IN RESPECT OF SEAL.—One of the articles of association of a company provided that a document to which the common seal was affixed should also be signed by at least one director and counter-signed by an agent or other officer appointed by the Board for that purpose. The executant of a mortgage deed signed in his capacity as managing agent of the company and it bore the common seal of the company. It was held that the defect in respect of the seal did not render the document invalid as there was no provision of law requiring the deed to be under the common seal of the company. 53 A. 1009=1931 A.L.J. 1033=1932 A. 141.

90. A company may, by writing, under its common seal, empower any person, either generally or in respect of any specified matters, as its attorney, to execute deeds on its behalf in any place ¹[either in or outside British India]; and every deed signed by such attorney, on behalf of the company, and under his seal, where sealing is required, shall bind the company, and have the same effect as if it were under its common seal.

91. (1) A company whose objects require or comprise the transaction of business beyond the limits of British India may, if authorised by its articles, have for use in any territory district or place not situate in British India, an official seal which shall be a facsimile of the common seal of the company, with the addition on its face of the name of every territory, district or place where it is to be used.

of the manager of the Bank of the terms of the articles of association does not affect his power to make a transfer of negotiable instruments. He is the agent of the Bank for performing all ordinary banking transactions, and the transfer of such an instrument is a very ordinary transaction. 80 I. C. 741=1924 L. 462. Where the memorandum of association merely stated that one of the objects of the company was to make promissory notes, and it was not stated that the managing agent is to make them; and where under the articles of association power was given to the managing agent to make contracts and sign receipts on behalf of the company, and no specific power was given to the managing agent to make promissory notes on behalf of the company, it was held that these provisions were insufficient to constitute the managing agents "a duly authorized agent" of the company for the purpose of executing a promissory note under S. 27 of the Negotiable Instruments Act. 52 A. 883=1930 A.L.J. 1052=128 I.C. 758=1930 A. 778.

LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS ON BILLS, ETC.—The question as to the liability of a company on any particular endorsement is in every case one of construction. Where the endorsement on a negotiable instrument was "M. & Sons, Managing Agents of L.A. company", it was held that it would not be clear to any one that the responsibility of L.A. company was involved and that therefore L.A. company was not liable. 52 C. 802=29 C.W.N. 828=1925 C. 1062. A company purchased certain machinery and in lieu thereof one of its Secretaries and Treasurers executed a promissory note signing it in his own name. The promissory note was on a sheet of paper printed with the name of the company and bearing a stamp impression of the company. It was held that the promissory note was signed on behalf of the company and that, therefore, the company was liable on it. 24 Bom.L.R. 355=67 I.C. 941=1923 B. 29. Where a managing agent executes a promissory note and obtains a loan personally, the company cannot be made liable on it by the mere proof of the fact that the money so borrowed went to benefit the company. Before the company can be held liable it must be shown and found that not only that the money came into their hands but that it was in effect put into their hands by the creditor through the managing agents, it being understood by both parties when the note was executed that the company would be liable for repayment. 1946 A.L.W. 70=1946 O.W.N. (H.O.) 70. Where the managing agent of a company who is authorised to borrow money for the company, borrows money by executing a promissory note in his name alone and not on behalf of the company, the company cannot be held liable having regard to the provisions of S. 89 of the Companies Act. The facts that the money was borrowed for the company, that the company benefited by it, and the creditor knew for what purpose the money was being borrowed, are not by themselves sufficient to bind the company. If B borrows money from A in order for his own purposes to lend it to C, C cannot be held liable to A, even if A knew with what object the money was being borrowed. Before he can be held so liable, it must be found that the loan was actually a loan to C. 223 I.C. 311.

SEC. 90: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—For the words "not situate in British India", the words "either in or outside British India" have been substituted by the amendment. The old section empowered a person to execute deeds on behalf of a company in any place outside British India.

(2) A company having such an official seal may, by writing under its common seal, authorise any person appointed for the purpose in any territory, district or place not situate in British India to affix the same to any deed or other document to which the company is party in that territory, district or place.

(3) The authority of any such agent shall, as between the company and any person dealing with the agent, continue during the period (if any) mentioned in the instrument conferring the authority, or if no period is there mentioned, then until notice of the revocation or determination of the agent's authority has been given to the person dealing with him.

(4) The person affixing any such official seal shall, by writing under his hand, on the deed or other document to which the seal is affixed, certify the date and place of affixing the same.

(5) A deed or other document to which an official seal is duly affixed shall bind the company as if it had been sealed with the common seal of the company.

³ These sub-sections were added by ibid.

Now the section has been made to apply also to British India itself.

SEC. 91-A: AMENDMENTS BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—(i) In the proviso to sub-section (1), for the words "member of any specified firm or company" the words "director or a member of any specified company or is a member of any specified firm" have been substituted by the amendment. This is merely a verbal correction.

(ii) Sub-section (3) has been newly added. It was thought necessary that some provision should exist to ensure that shareholders may obtain information about contracts in which directors of the company are interested. Hence it is provided that a register should be maintained to supply this information.

(iii) Sub-section (4) also has been added by Act XXII of 1936, and it provides penalty for acting in contravention of provisions of sub-section (3).

SCOPE OF SECTION.—The breach of Ss. 91-A, 91-B, and 91-C, though made punishable, does not ipso facto render the contract void or voidable. 1928 M.W.N. 481=115 I.C. 486=1929 M. 353. S. 91-A (1) is not limited to contracts entered into at a meeting of the directors but applies also to cases in which contracts were not made at such a meeting. 42 O.W.N. 583=1939 Cal. 440.

"INTEREST".—In India the interest of a director in a contract need not necessarily be a pecuniary interest. Even mere relationship, as that of husband and wife or father and son, is interest, if the circumstances are such that it may reasonably be regarded as affecting the director's mind. 1929 M. 353. Sub-partnership with the other party to the contract is an interest in the contract. 1929 M. 353.

ment in which he is either directly or indirectly concerned purpose of forming a quorum at the time of any such vote]; and if he does so vote, his vote shall not be counted :

LEG. REF.

² These words were inserted by S. 47 of Act XXII of 1936.

DISCLOSURE OF INTEREST.—Where the interest of the director is such that it is likely to produce a conflict between his duty to the company and his duty or interest in the other party, he is bound to disclose it. But if the whole body of the directors was already aware of such interest, formal disclosure is not necessary. 1928 M.W.N. 481=115 I.O. 486=1929 M. 353. Where the company sues the director on the ground that he had interest in the contract entered into by him on behalf of the company, the fact of non-disclosure under this section must be set forth in the plaint; and the plaint will not be allowed to be amended after issues framed and evidence closed. 1929 M. 353. A letter written by the purchasing director to the chairman of the Board of Directors who merely signed it as noted, does not prove that the disclosure of the directors's interest was made at any meeting of the directors as required by S. 91-A (1), when it is not referred to in the minutes of any of the meetings. 42 C.W.N. 533=1938 Cal. 440. Petty purchases by a director of a company from a firm in which he has an interest are covered by the proviso to S. 91-A (1); and the director's interest should be disclosed in the manner provided for therein. 42 C.W.N. 533=1938 Cal. 440.

SEC. 91-B: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The amendment has introduced a salutary provision, the equity of which has been recognised by the Courts.

OBJECT OF SECTION—HOW FAR THIRD PARTIES ARE AFFECTED.—The object of S. 91-B of the Act is clearly to ensure that a company shall have the benefit of the judgment of an entirely independent Board. It is very well settled law in the case of English joint-stock companies that people dealing with such a company are fixed with notice of any limitations on the power of the company contained in the statute under which it is incorporated or in the memorandum or articles of association; but that if it is shown that a particular act was ostensibly authorised by the statute and the memorandum or articles of association persons dealing with the company are not concerned to see that the company has put itself into a position to exercise its power properly. That is to say, outside parties are not concerned with the internal management of the company; and if the disability of a director to vote upon a contract in which he is personally interested were imposed by the articles of association, the question whether he is personally interested in, and entitled to vote upon, a particular contract would be regarded as a matter of internal management, with which outside persons dealing with the company would not be concerned. The principle of English Law ought to be applied to a case of disability of directors arising under S. 91-B of the Companies Act. But when a person has notice of the terms of the contract to which he is a party, he necessarily has notice of the circumstances under which the contract was passed or resolved upon by the directors. 37 Bom.L.R. 978=1936 B. 62. Where a director of a company has an interest as shareholder in another company or is in a fiduciary position towards and owes a duty to another company, which is proposing to enter into a transaction with the company of which he is the director, he comes within the rule laid down in S. 91-B and the transaction is voidable at the instance of the company with whom it is entered into. He has a personal interest in the matter and owes a duty which conflicts with his duty to the company of which he is the director. It is immaterial whether the conflicting interest belongs to him beneficially or as a trustee for others. S. 91-B would not however deprive of the benefit of his contract with the company a third party who had no notice of the defect in the director's authority. Such a person would be entitled to assume that the internal management of the company is properly conducted. But if the third party is shown to have knowledge of the real state of affairs, the transaction is voidable as against him. I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 421=42 C.W.N. 733=40 Bom.L.R. 1109=1938 P.C. 159 (P.C.).

SEC. 91-B (1) (BEFORE AMENDMENT): SHAREHOLDER CREDITOR—RIGHT TO VOTE FOR RESOLUTION AUTHORISING SET-OFF OF FUTURE CALLS AGAINST DEBT DUE.—It is open to a company to agree with a shareholder to whom it owes money that the debt shall be set-off against future calls. But where such shareholder creditor is himself a director and the managing agent, he cannot validly vote for a resolution authorising such set-off. The resolution would be invalid when the necessary quorum is lacking without such director's vote. Such a shareholder can, therefore on liquidation, be placed in the list of contributories in respect of the unpaid share money. 54 L.W. 440=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 595=1942 Mad. 95.

of a company required a quorum of three at the directors' meeting, and five directors at a meeting by their resolution allotted the unallotted shares of the company to three of them in certain proportions, it was held that the allotment of shares was a contract, that the three directors to whom the shares were allotted were not entitled to vote and that, therefore, there was no quorum and the resolution and allotment were invalid. 23 Bom. L.R. 1104=64 I.O. 933=1921 B. 372. That the interested director should not be counted in determining the quorum, is based on the principle that where a bare quorum is assembled, no contract can be made with a member of that quorum, because such a contract requires his concurrence, and he cannot be on both sides of these same contract. As to that contract he is not a director, but is a stranger; and when he steps out of the bare quorum and assumes the attitude of a stranger the quorum is broken.

Sec. 91-C: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—After the word "manager" the words "or managing agent" and after the words "the company shall" the words "within 21 days from the date of entering into the contract or the varying of the contract" have been inserted by the amendment. The first change has been made in view of the fact that the term "manager" does not include now after this amending Act a "managing agent". The second provides a time limit within which the information is to be given to the members, so that there may be no long delay or evasion.

Sec. 91-D: AMENDMENTS BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—In sub-section (1) after the words "private company" the words "not being the subsidiary company of a public company"; and in sub-section (2) after the words "to the company" the words "and send copies to the directors" have been added by the amendment. The object of the amendment is to have copies of contracts by agents of the company in which the company is an undisclosed principal sent to the directors in advance.

(2) Every such manager or other agent shall forthwith deliver the memorandum aforesaid to the company ¹[and send copies to the directors], and such memorandum shall be filed in the office of the company and laid before the directors at the next directors' meeting.

(3) If any such manager or other agent makes default in complying with the requirements of this section—

(3) The registrar shall not register any prospectus unless it is dated, and the copy thereof signed, in manner required by this section.

(4) Every prospectus shall state on the face of it that a copy has been filed for registration as required by this section.

SEC. 92: APPLICATION OF SECTION.—It cannot be said that a prospectus is such only when it conforms to the terms of S. 93, and a person who incurs a penalty for failure to file a prospectus under this section cannot avoid the penalty by allowing the prospectus to lack some of the requisites laid down under S. 93, for that would be taking advantage of one's own wrong. 67 M.L.J. 437=40 L.W. 519=1934 M. 641.

OFFENCE UNDER SECTION NOT TECHNICAL.—R filed a prospectus fulfilling all requirements of law in the office of the Registrar, Joint-Stock Companies and subsequently issued a prospectus in Bengali. It was found that the prospectus in Bengali did not contain certain particulars required by S. 93, Companies Act, and was not a verbatim translation of the English prospectus. The Registrar filed a complaint under S. 92 (5) on the ground that the Bengali prospectus had been issued without having been filed before him. The Magistrate holding the offence to be purely technical and omission not culpable acquitted R. Held, that R was liable to be convicted under S. 92 (5), Companies Act. That the proceedings were initiated by the Registrar and not by a private person and as the question involved was one of great importance in view of the scope of the Act and of the necessity in the interest of the community of the strictest observance of its provision; the High Court could not refuse to interfere with the order of acquittal. 160 I.C. 829=40 C.W.N. 320=1936 C. 33.

SEC. 93: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section has been considerably amended by the amending Act (1936). The amendment provides for the disclosure in the prospectus of a company of certain details, which have not hitherto been required to be so disclosed. Chief among them are the following:

(i) In sub-section (1), clause (c), words have been added, to provide for the disclosure of the names of managing agents or proposed managing agents; and of the provision in the articles or in any contract as to the appointment of managers and managing agents, and the remuneration payable to them.

(a) the contents of the memorandum, with the names, descriptions and addresses of the signatories and the number of shares subscribed for by them respectively; and the number of founders or management or deferred shares (if any) and the nature and extent of the interest of the holders in the property and profits of the company ¹[and the number of redeemable preference shares intended to be issued with the date or, where no date is fixed, the period of notice required and the proposed method of redemption]; and

(b) the number of shares (if any) fixed by the articles as the qualification of a director, and any provision in the articles as to the remuneration of the directors; and

(c) the names, descriptions and addresses of the directors or proposed directors and of the managers or proposed managers ¹[and managing agents or proposed managing agents] (if any) ¹[and any provision in the articles or in any contract as to the appointment of managers or managing agents and the remuneration payable to them]; and

(d) the minimum subscription on which the directors may proceed to allotment and the amount payable on application and allotment on each share; and in the case of a second or subsequent offer of shares the amount offered for subscription on each previous allotment made within the two preceding years, and the amount actually allotted, and the amount (if any) paid on the shares so allotted; and

(e) the number and amount of shares and debentures which within the two preceding years have been issued, or agreed to be issued, as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and in the latter case the extent to which they are so paid up, and in either case the consideration for which those shares or debentures have been issued or agreed to be issued; and

²[ee] where any issue of shares or debentures is underwritten, the names of the underwriters, and the opinion of the directors that the resources of the underwriters are sufficient to discharge the underwriting obligations; and]

(ii) After sub-section (1), clause (e), a new clause (ee) has been inserted requiring the prospectus to contain information about the underwriting of shares.

(iii) After sub-section (1), clause (f), a new clause (ff) has been inserted. By virtue of this amendment, where any property, purchased or acquired by the company, had been the subject of transfer by sale within the previous 2 years, the amounts of each of such transfers; and where the property is a business, then particulars relating to the profits of such business during the previous 3 years, and the balance-sheet of the business made up to at least 90 days prior to the issue of the prospectus, should be appended to the prospectus.

(iv) In sub-section (1), clause (h), words have been inserted, so as to make the provision as to disclosure amplified and applicable to discount also. Under the Amending Act power to issue shares at a discount under certain circumstances have been provided for in the new S. 105-A, and hence this amendment in this clause has become necessary.

(v) The amendment of clause (l) of sub-section (1) has been made with a view to secure fuller information in respect of property purchased or to be purchased, e.g., as to the existence of charges on such property.

(vi) After sub-section (1), clause (o), a new clause (p) has been inserted for the disclosure of the nature and extent of the restrictions contained in the articles upon the members' right to attend, speak or vote at meetings of the company; or upon their right to transfer shares, or upon the directors' powers of management.

(vii) Sub-section (1-A) has been newly inserted, with a view to render necessary further disclosure to be made in the prospectuses issued by a company which has been carrying on business prior to the issue thereof.

(viii) Sub-section (1-B) has been inserted newly for the purpose of avoiding by an explanation any difficulties in interpreting the word "profits".

(ix) A proviso has been added to clause (o) in sub-section (4), so as to be supplementary to the provision contained in S. 154 (1) of this Act. On this section, see 160 I. C. 829=40 C.W.N. 320=1936 C. 33, cited under S. 92 supra. Rights of shareholders—Prospectus, if relevant. It would be relevant in an action for rescission based on misrepresentation or fraud,

(f) the names and addresses of the vendors of any property purchased or acquired by the company, or proposed so to be purchased or acquired, which is to be paid for wholly or partly out of the proceeds of the issue offered for subscription by the prospectus, or the purchase or acquisition of which has not been completed at the date of issue of the prospectus, and the amount payable in cash, shares or debentures to the vendor, and where there is more than one separate vendor or the company is a sub-purchaser, the amount so payable to each vendor : Provided that where the vendors or any of them are a firm, the members of the firm shall not be treated as separate vendors ; and

¹[(ff) where any property referred to in clause (f) has within the two years preceding the issue of the prospectus been transferred by sale, the amount paid by the purchaser at each such transfer so far as the information is available and, where any such property is a business, the profits accruing from such business during each of the three years immediately preceding the issue of the prospectus or during each year of the existence of the business if less than three years so far as the information is available. A balance sheet of the business concerned made up to a date not more than ninety days before the date of the issue of the prospectus shall be appended to the prospectus ; and]

(g) the amount (if any) paid or payable as purchase-money in cash, shares or debentures, for any such property as aforesaid, specifying the amount (if any) payable for good will ; and

(h) the amount (if any) paid within the two preceding years or payable, as commission for subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, for any shares in or debentures of, the company, ²[or as discount in respect of shares issued, showing separately the amount if any, so paid to the managing agents] : Provided that it shall not be necessary to state the commission payable to sub-underwriters ; and

(i) the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses ; and

(k) the amount paid within the two preceding years or intended to be paid to any promoter, and the consideration for any such payment ; and

(l) the dates of, and parties to, every material contract ³[including contracts relating to the acquisition of property to which clause (j) applies], and a reasonable time and place at which any material contract or a copy thereof may be inspected : Provided that this requirement shall not apply to a contract entered into in the ordinary course of the business carried on intended to be carried on by the company, or to any contract ³[(except a contract appointing or fixing the remuneration of a managing director or managing agent)] entered into more than two years before the date of issue of the prospectus ; and

(m) the names and addresses of the auditors (if any) of the company ; and

(n) full particulars of the nature and extent of the interest (if any) of every director in the promotion of, or in the property proposed to be acquired by, the company, or, where the interest of such a director consists in being a partner in a firm, the nature and extent of the interest of the firm with a statement of all sums paid or agreed to be paid to him or to the firm in cash or shares or otherwise by

SEC. 97: AMENDMENTS BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The original section has been altered as sub-section (2) of this section, with some amendment and addition of clause (c). Sub-section (1) of this section has been newly inserted. The words "or contravention" found in the present sub-section (2) have been newly added and so also clause (c). The present sub-section (1) has been inserted with a view to provide a penalty for the issue of prospectus which fails to comply with the provisions of S. 93.

SEC. 98: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—In sub-section (1) for the former words "in the second schedule" the words "in the form marked I in the second schedule" have been substituted by the Amending Act. This amendment is consequential on the alteration now made in the second Schedule of this Act.

SEC. 98-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section has been newly introduced, with a view to escape the stringent rules regarding the issue and the content of a prospectus. [What certain companies to the contents of prospectuses and to liability in respect of statements in and omissions from prospectuses or otherwise relating to prospectuses shall apply and have effect accordingly as if the shares or debentures have been offered to the public for subscription and as if persons accepting the offer in respect of any shares or debentures were subscribers for those shares or debentures but without prejudice to the liability, if any, of the persons by whom the offer is made in respect of mis-statements contained in the document or otherwise in respect thereof.

(2) For the purposes of this Act it shall, unless the contrary is proved, be evidence that an allotment of or an agreement to allot shares or debentures was made with a view to the shares or debentures being offered for sale to the public, if it is shown—

(a) that an offer of the shares or debentures or of any of them for sale to the public was made within six months after the allotment or agreement to allot; or

(b) that at the date when the offer was made the whole of the consideration to be received by the company in respect of the shares or debentures had not been so received.

(3) Section 97 shall apply to the person or persons making the offer as though they were persons named in a prospectus as directors of a company, and the provisions of section 93 shall have effect as if it required a prospectus to state, in addition to the matters required by that section to be stated in a prospectus,—

(a) the net amount of the consideration received or to be received by the company in respect of the shares or debentures to which the offer relates, and

(b) the place and time at which the contract under which the said shares or debentures have been or are to be allotted may be inspected.

(4) Where a person making an offer to which this section relates is a company or a firm, it shall be sufficient if the document aforesaid is signed on behalf of the company or firm by all directors of the company or not less than half of the partners, as the case may be, and any such director or partner may sign by his agent authorised in writing.]

Restriction on alteration of terms mentioned in prospectus or statement in lieu of prospectus.

99. A company shall not, at any time, vary the terms of contract referred to in the prospectus or statement in lieu of prospectus, except subject to the approval of the company in general meeting.

100. (1) Where a prospectus invites persons to subscribe for shares in or debentures of a company, every person who is a director of the company at the time of the issue of the prospectus and every person who has authorised the naming of himself and is named in the prospectus as a director or as having agreed to become were previously doing was to sell their shares or debentures to a purchaser, and to cause the purchaser to offer the same for sale to the public. Such a purchaser not being a person who was or had been engaged or interested in the formation of the company, the offer for sale to the public made by him did not strictly come under the term "prospectus". By this means, unscrupulous companies successfully managed to evade the provisions of the Act relating to the prospectus. With a view to avert this mischief and fraud, this section has been enacted. This section introduces S. 38 of the English Act, and renders every document containing an offer of shares subject to the provisions of the Act regarding "prospectus" and thereby renders the evasion of the rules impossible.

a director either immediately or after an interval of time, and every promoter of the company, and every person who has authorised the issue of the prospectus, shall be liable to pay compensation to all persons who subscribe for any shares or debentures on the faith of the prospectus for all loss or damage they may have sustained by reason of any misleading or untrue statement therein, or in any report or memorandum appearing on the face thereof, or by reference incorporated therein or issued therewith, unless it is proved—

(a) with respect to every misleading or untrue statement not purporting to be made on the authority of an expert or of a public official document or statement, that he had reasonable ground to believe and did up to the time of the allotment of the shares or debentures, as the case may be, believe that the statement fairly represented the facts or was true ;

(b) with respect to every misleading or untrue statement purporting to be a statement by or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a report or valuation of an expert, that it fairly represented the statement, or was a correct and fair copy of or extract from the report or valuation : Provided that the director, person named as director, promoter or person who authorised the issue of the prospectus shall be liable to pay compensation as aforesaid if it is proved that he had no reasonable ground to believe that the person making the statement, report or valuation was competent to make it ; and

(c) with respect to every misleading or untrue statement purporting to be a statement made by an official person or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a public official document, that it was a correct and fair representation of the statement or copy of or extract from the document : or unless it is proved—

(i) that having consented to become a director of the company he withdrew his consent before the issue of the prospectus, and that it was issued without his authority or consent ; or

(ii) that the prospectus was issued without his knowledge or consent, and that on becoming aware of its issue, he forthwith gave a reasonable public notice that it was issued without his knowledge or consent ; or

(iii) that, after the issue of the prospectus and before allotment thereunder, he, on becoming aware of any misleading or untrue statement therein, withdrew his consent thereto, and gave reasonable public notice of the withdrawal, and of the reason therefor.

(2) Where a company existing at the commencement of this Act has issued shares or debentures, and for the purpose of obtaining further capital by subscriptions for shares or debentures issues a prospectus, a director shall not be liable in respect of any statement therein unless he has authorised the issue of the prospectus, or has adopted or ratified it.

(3) Where the prospectus contains the name of a person as director of the company, or as having agreed to become a director thereof, and he has not consented to become a director or has withdrawn his consent before the issue of the prospectus, and has not authorised or consented to the issue thereof, the directors of the company, except any without whose knowledge or consent the prospectus was issued, and any other person who authorised the issue thereof, shall be liable to indemnify the person named as aforesaid against all damages, costs and expenses to which he may be made liable by reason of his name having been inserted in the prospectus or in defending himself against any suit or legal proceedings brought against him in respect thereof.

(4) Every person who, by reason of his being a director or named as a director, or as having agreed to become a director, of his having authorised the issue of the prospectus, becomes liable to make any payment under this section, may recover contribution, as in cases of contract, from any other person who, if sued separately, would have been liable to make the same payment, unless the person who has become so liable was, and that other person was not, guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation.

(5) For the purposes of this section—

(a) the expression “promoter” means a promoter who was a party to the preparation of the prospectus, or the portion thereof containing the misleading or untrue statement, but does not include any person by reason of his acting in a professional capacity for persons engaged in procuring the formation of the company ;

(b) the expression “expert” includes engineer, valuer, accountant, and any other person whose profession gives authority to a statement made by him.

Allotment.

101. ¹[(1) No allotment shall be made of any share capital of a company

¹[(2) The matters for which provision for the raising of a minimum amount of share capital must be made by the directors are the following, namely :—

(a) the purchase price of any property purchased or to be purchased which is to be defrayed in whole or in part out of the proceeds of the issue ;

(b) any preliminary expenses payable by the company and any commission so payable to any person in consideration of his agreeing to subscribe for or of his procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions for any shares in the company ;

(c) the repayment of any moneys borrowed by the company in respect of any of the foregoing matters, and

(d) working capital.]

¹[(2-B) All moneys received from applicants for shares shall be deposited and kept in a scheduled bank as denfied in the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934, until returned in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (4) or until the certificate to commence business is obtained under section 103.]

LEG. REF.

¹ This sub-section was substituted by S. 55 of Act XXII of 1936.

SEC. 101: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The present sub-Ss. (1), (2) and (2-A) have been substituted in the place of the old sub-Ss. (1) and (2). The amendment introduces the provisions of S. 39 of the English Act, and is aimed at discouraging floatation of companies with insufficient capital. Under sub-Ss. (1) and (2), as they stood previously, it was possible for mushroom companies to be formed with large authorized capital of which very little used to be subscribed. By providing for a nominal amount as “the minimum subscription” they were enabled to commence business almost immediately after incorporation and to exercise their borrowing powers. Their activities were frequently of a questionable character and they invariably came to grief within a very short time. When the crash came the creditors usually found themselves in a hopeless position. The existence of such companies was a source of considerable danger to the commercial world, and caused immense damage to the growth of genuine companies. There has been an unanimous demand from all quarters for adequate legislation to prevent the formation of such companies. Several remedies were suggested, and the legislature has finally adopted the provisions contained in the amended sub-Ss. (1), (2) and (2-A) of this section.

(ii) Sub-Ss. (2-B) and (2-C) have also been inserted by the Amending Act XXII of 1936. (2-B) provides for the monies received in respect of shares to be kept deposited in Bank until the certificate to commence business has been granted, or until returned under the provisions of sub-S. (4).

APPLICATION MONEY NOT PAID—ALLOTMENT OF SHARES—POWER OF DIRECTORS.—S. 101 does not forbid the directors to allot shares to applicants who neglect to pay the application money in terms of the prospectus once the first allotment has been regularly made, although it may be that a provision in a prospectus empowering them to do this

(3) The amount payable on application on each share shall not be less than five per cent. of the nominal amount of the share.

(4) If the conditions aforesaid have not been complied with on the expiration of one hundred and ²[eighty] days after the first issue of the prospectus, all money received from applicants for shares shall be forthwith repaid to them without interest, and, if any such money is not so repaid within one hundred and ³[ninety] days after the issue of the prospectus, the directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to repay that money with interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum from the expiration of the one hundred and ⁴[ninetieth] day : Provided that a director shall not be liable if he proves that the loss of the money was not due to any misconduct or negligence on his part.

(5) Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares to waive compliance with any requirement of this section shall be void.

(6) This section, except sub-section (3) thereof, shall not apply to any allotment of shares subsequent to the first allotment of shares offered to the public for subscription.

(7) In the case of the first allotment of share capital payable in cash of a company which does not issue any invitation to the public to subscribe for its shares no allotment shall be made unless the minimum subscription (that is to say)—

(a) the amount (if any) fixed by the memorandum or articles and named in the statement in lieu of prospectus as the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment ; or

(b) if no amount is so fixed and named, the whole amount of the share capital other than that issued or agreed to be issued as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash ;
has been subscribed and an amount not less than five per cent. of the nominal amount of each share payable in cash has been paid to and received by the company.

(8) Sub-section (7) shall not apply to a private company or to a company which has allotted any shares or debentures before the commencement of this Act.

SEC. 101, SUB-SEC. (3): APPLICATION OF.—Sub-S. (3) is applicable to all allotments of shares whether at the time of the floating of the company or any subsequent period. Any allotment which is made without payment of at least 15 per cent. of the nominal value of the shares by the applicant is, therefore, invalid. 161 I.C. 952; 154 I.C. 33=1934 A. 855. The directors who make such allotment would be guilty of misfeasance. (Ibid.) Sub-S. (3) to S. 101 lays down a mandatory requirement. The applicant for a share is under a statutory obligation to pay 5 per cent. of the nominal amount of the share along with his application, and the company is also under the obligation to see that he does so, and it is against public policy that any allotment should be made without compliance with this requirement. That being so a company should not be allowed to take advantage of its own wrongdoing and neglect of the provisions of the Act by demanding the share money subsequently. 1939 Nag. 225 =I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 567. As to the liability of directors in respect of misfeasance, see S. 235, infra.

ALLOTMENT, WHEN VALID.—An allotment of shares must be made within a reasonable time, and a shareholder is not bound to accept an allotment made after inordinate delay. 36 Bom.L.R. 32=1934 B. 97. E., applied for shares on 10th August, 1930, and a sum of Rs. 250 was paid along with the application. The allotment was said to have been made on 17th October, 1931. A letter was also issued to E. on 2nd March, 1932, asking him to pay allotment money as well as the call money and the company resolved to go into liquidation on 3rd March, 1932, held, that E. was not the purchaser of the shares of the company since shares were not allotted to him till 17th October, 1931, and also because no notice of allotment was sent to E. 161 I.C. 294=1936 L. 16.

102. (1) An allotment made by a company to an applicant in contravention of the provisions of ¹[section 98 or section 101] shall be

Effect of irregular allotment. voidable at the instance of the applicant within one month after the holding of the statutory meeting of the company and not later ²[or in any case where the company is not required to hold a statutory meeting or where the allotment is made after the holding of the statutory meeting within one month after the date of the allotment and not later), and shall be so voidable notwithstanding that the company is in course of being wound up.

(2) If any director of a company knowingly contravenes or permits or authorises the contravention of any of the provisions of ¹[section 98 or section 101] with respect to allotment, he shall be liable to compensate the company and the allottee respectively for any loss, damages or costs which the company or the allottee may have sustained or incurred thereby: Provided that proceedings to recover any such loss, damages or costs shall not be commenced after the expiration of two years from the date of the allotment.

Restrictions on commencement of business. 103. (1) A company shall not commence any business or exercise any borrowing powers unless—

(a) shares held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash have been allotted to an amount not less in the whole than the minimum subscription; and

(b) every director of the company has paid to the company on each of the shares taken or contracted to be taken by him, and for which he is liable to pay in cash, a proportion equal to the proportion payable on application and allotment on the shares offered for public subscription or, in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, on the shares payable in cash; and

(c) there has been filed with the registrar a duly verified declaration by the secretary or one of the directors in the prescribed form, that the aforesaid conditions have been complied with; and

(d) in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, there has been filed with the registrar a statement in lieu of prospectus.

(2) The registrar shall, on the filing of a duly verified declaration, in accordance with the provisions of this section certify that the company is entitled to commence business, and that certificate shall be conclusive evidence that the company is so entitled:

Provided that, in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, the registrar shall not give such a certificate unless a statement in lieu of prospectus has been filed with him.

(3) Any contract made by a company before the date at which it is entitled to commence business shall be provisional only, and shall not be binding on the company until that date, and on that date it shall become binding.

SEC. 102: AMENDMENTS BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The words "or in any case . . . and not later" have been inserted by Act XXII of 1936. The reason for this amendment is that it supplies an obvious omission.

ALLOTMENT OF SHARES.—An allotment of shares by the Secretary and Treasurer would be valid if the articles, without specially providing for allotment by directors, provide that the general management should be by the Secretary and Treasurer, subject to the directors' supervision. 26 I.C. 349. Where one or more directors make an allotment of shares, without being duly empowered for the purpose, the allotment would be invalid, and the allottee could revoke his application for allotment of shares before any valid allotment or proper ratification is made. 51 I.C. 812; 1 L.L.J. 1.

SEC. 103: FAILURE TO PAY FOR SHARES BY DIRECTORS.—IF VENDERS SHARES LIABLE TO FORFEITURE.—Where the directors who have signed the articles of association and memorandum undertaking to take a certain number of shares and pay for them fail to pay for them, it does not necessarily follow that they are liable to forfeiture of their shares. 1939 A.L.J. 950=1939 All. 739.

(4) Nothing in this section shall prevent the simultaneous offer for subscription or allotment of any shares and debentures or the receipt of any money payable on application for debentures.

(5) If any company commences business or exercises borrowing powers in contravention of this section, every person who is responsible for the contravention shall, without prejudice to any other liability, be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for every day during which the contravention continues.

(6) Nothing in this section shall apply to a private company, or to a company registered before the commencement of this Act which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares or, in so far as its provisions relate to shares, to a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital.

104. (1) Whenever a company having a share capital makes any allotment of its shares, the company, shall within one month thereafter,— Return as to allotments.

(a) file with the registrar a return of the allotments, stating the number and nominal amount of the shares comprised in the allotment, the names, addresses and descriptions of the allottees, and the amount (if any) paid or due and payable on each share; and

(b) in the case of shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, produce for the inspection and examination of the registrar a contract in writing constituting the title of the allottee to the allotment together with any contract of sale, or for services or other consideration in respect of which that allotment was made, such contracts being duly stamped, and file with the registrar copies verified in the prescribed manner of all such contracts and a return stating the number and nominal amount of shares so allotted, the extent to which they are to be treated as paid up, and the consideration for which they have been allotted.

(2) Where such a contract as above mentioned is not reduced to writing, the company shall, within one month after the allotment, file with the registrar the prescribed particulars of the contract stamped with the same stamp-duty as would have been payable if the contract had been reduced to writing, and these particulars shall be deemed to be an instrument within the meaning of the Indian Stamp Act

AMENDMENT BY AOT XXII OF 1936.—Sub-section (4) has been newly added so as to exclude forfeited shares subsequently re-issued from the purview of the section.

SHARE ALLOTTED AS FULLY PAID UP, OTHERWISE THAN IN CASH.—As to a case where on a construction of a debenture deed, it was held that the share allotted was allotted as fully paid up otherwise than in cash. See 41 M. 307=33 M.L.J. 474=42 I.O. 674.

“CONSTITUTING THE TITLE OF THE ALLOTTEE.”—Ratification of a previous contract with vendors of business by the Board of Directors cannot be described as a contract in writing constituting the title of the allottee within the meaning of S. 104 (1) (b). 23 L.W. 571=1926 M.W.N. 6=94 I.C. 892=1926 M. 380.

“ONE MONTH.”—The Registrar should file the document, even when it is presented beyond time; and should inform the officer of the company that unless, within a time to be specified by the Registrar, he obtains an order from the Court extending the time up to the date of filing, he will take steps to prosecute him for the default. 56 C. 976=122 I.C. 214=1930 C. 146.

FAILURE TO FILE AGREEMENT, EFFECT OF.—The only consequence of a failure to file the agreement under this section is the penalty, provided in sub-section (3). 48 A. 503=24 A.L.J. 576=1926 A. 524. Ignorance of law will not excuse default. 52 I.C. 885.

STAMP DUTY.—An agreement for the allotment of shares by a company in future, need not be stamped as a “conveyance”. 1932 A.L.J. 394=137 I.C. 337=1932 A. 291. Nor need the prescribed particulars furnished to the Registrar in respect of such an agreement require to be stamped as a ‘conveyance’. 15 L. 501=1934 L. 530. Where 200 shares had been allotted in consideration of a written agreement as regards the transfer of a business and the company submitted a return as to allotment in Form No. 6, accompanied by the agreement which formed the consideration for the allotment of the 200 shares, it was held that the agreement did not constitute a conveyance, and that it was liable to a stamp duty of Re. 1 only, and that the fact that the agreement was in writing was immaterial. 15 L. 509=1933 L. 533.

(3) If default is made in complying with the requirements of this section, every officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for every day during which the default continues :

Provided that, in case of default in filing with the registrar ²[within the time specified in sub-section (1) and (2) any document required to be filed by this section, the company, or any person liable for the default, may apply to the Court for relief, and the Court, if satisfied that the omission to file the document was accidental or due to inadvertence or that on other grounds it is just and equitable to grant relief, may make an order extending the time for the filing of the document for such a period as the Court may think proper.

(b) in the case of shares not offered to the public for subscription, disclosed in the statement in lieu of prospectus, or in a statement in the prescribed form signed in like manner as a statement in lieu of prospectus and filed with the registrar and where a circular or notice, not being a prospectus inviting subscription for the shares is issued, also disclosed in that circular or notice.

(2) Save as aforesaid ⁴[and save as provided in section 105-A,] no company shall apply any of its shares or capital money either directly or indirectly in payment of any commission, discount or allowance, to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally for any shares of the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any shares in the company, whether the shares or money be so applied by being added to the purchase-money of any property acquired by the company or to the contract price of any work to be executed for the company, or the money be paid out of the nominal purchase-money or contract price, or otherwise.

SEC. 105-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section is new. Before this amendment, the issue of shares at a discount was not allowed. It was thought desirable to legalise the issue of shares at a discount with a view to helping companies which have failed to attract subscribers. S. 47 of the English Act has been adopted in this respect, with necessary modifications suitable to the circumstances of this country.

SEC. 105-B: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section has been newly added by Act XXII of 1936. Under the Act as it previously stood, there was no provision for issuing any redeemable preference shares. The needs of modern times, however, require that companies should have the power to issue such shares. It was found to be very useful in England and it was thought desirable to introduce the provisions of S. 46 of the English Act, in this respect, with proper modifications and necessary safeguards in this country also.

PREFERENCE SHARE-HOLDERS—RIGHTS OF—ARREARS OF PREFERENTIAL DIVIDENDS—PAYMENT OF.—It was provided by the Memorandum of Association of a company that the preference shares should rank both as regards dividend and capital in priority to

If a company fails to comply with the provisions of this sub-section, the company and every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees.

(3) Subject to the provisions of this section, the redemption of preference shares thereunder may be effected on such terms and in such manner as may be provided by the articles of the company.

(4) Where in pursuance of this section a company has redeemed or about to redeem any preference shares, it shall have power to issue shares up to the nominal amount of the shares redeemed or to be redeemed as if those shares had never been issued, and accordingly the share capital of the company shall not for the purpose of calculating the fees payable under section 249 be deemed to be increased by the issues of shares in pursuance of this sub-section :

Provided that, where new shares are issued before the redemption of the old shares, the new shares shall not, so far as relates to stamp duty, be deemed to have been issued in pursuance of this sub-section unless the old shares are redeemed within one month after the issue of the new shares.

(5) Where new shares have been issued in pursuance of the last foregoing sub-section, the capital redemption reserve fund may, notwithstanding anything in this section, be applied by the company, up to an amount equal to the nominal amount of the shares so issued, in paying up unissued shares of the company to be issued to members of the company as fully paid bonus shares] the ordinary shares. The articles of association provided that preference shareholders should receive out of the profits of the company, if any, as a first charge thereon, a cumulative preferential dividend of 7 per cent. per annum on the paid up amount of the preference shares held by them, and subject to the rights of the preference shareholders, the surplus profits should be divided among the holders of the ordinary shares. There was also a further provision that if the company should be wound up, the surplus assets should be applied in the first place, in repaying to the holders of preference shares the amount paid up thereon, and the residue should belong to the holders of ordinary shares. The company was wound up voluntarily, and no dividend on preference shares had been declared or paid for several years prior to the winding up. It was held, (i) that the surplus assets must be applied in the first place in repaying to the holders of preference shares the amount paid up thereon and the residue belonged to the holders of the ordinary shares; (ii) that the arrears of preferential dividends could not be treated as "debts" and therefore be paid out of the assets of the company before the "surplus assets" were ascertained. (1) means merely that a mortgage or a charge granted by a company is not to be deemed to be an interest in immovable property simply because it comprises or takes effect over debentures held by the company and such debentures constitute a charge on the immovable property of the company issuing the same. 57 O. 328 = 34 C.W.N. 605 = 1930 O. 536. As to whether and when such debentures require registration under the Indian Registration Act, S. 17, see 58 O. 136 = 1931 O. 223; 59 C. 377 = 58 I.A. 323 = 35 C.W.N. 1034 = 61 M.L.J. 589 (P.C.). The purpose effected by registration under this section is only the prevention of a party from setting up forged and false instruments, and this registration does not affect the provisions of the Registration Act regarding the necessity for registration of any document under S. 17 of that Act, or regarding the priority given to registered documents under S. 48 of that Act. 58 C. 136 = 34 C.W.N. 405 = 1931 O.

EFFECT OF DELAYED REGISTRATION.—A mortgage registered within 21 days under this section has priority over a prior mortgage registered subsequently under an order of extension by the High Court. (1915) 1 Ch. 643; 102 I.C. 592 = 1927 O. 300. The company itself while it is a going concern cannot repudiate its mortgage on the ground of want of registration under this section. 5 R. 585 = 104 I.C. 326 = 1927 R. 288.

MORTGAGE NOT REGISTERED NOT INVALID ALTOGETHER.—The section does not avoid absolutely the mortgage which is not registered under the section, but it does only so far as any security is given thereby on the company's property or undertaking. The effect therefore is that if a mortgage is not registered, it is valid as an admission of debt, but as against a creditor or a liquidator it could not be said that a valid charge on the company's property had been created. 57 I.A. 76 = 5 Luck. 128 = 1930 P.C. 66 = 59 M.L.J. 540 (P.C.). An instrument creating charge on the property of a corporation, if not registered with the Registrar as provided by S. 109, is void as against the Official Receiver. 181 I.C. 681 = 1939 Sind 100.

S. 109 (e) of the Companies Act clearly contemplates that there can be a mortgage which is also a pledge; the words "not being a pledge" must be held to have been inserted in S. 109 (e) with the object of providing that registration should not be necessary where the person entitled to the security has obtained possession of the goods. Though a transaction may amount to a mortgage, when there are all the requirements of a valid pledge, it is a pledge as well and hence does not require registration under S. 109 (e). The difference between a mortgage and a pledge is that in the case of a mortgage the ownership of goods passes, whereas in the case of a pledge the pledgee gets possession, but no right to the goods beyond what is necessary to secure the debt. (Case

EQUITABLE MORTGAGE.—It is necessary to file with the Registrar the particulars of a mortgage by deposit of title deeds, whether or not it is accompanied by a memorandum of deposit. 29 Bom.L.R. 253=101 I.C. 144=1927 B. 167. An assignment of a book-debt as security for an existing debt constitutes a mortgage thereof and requires registration under this section, although the transfer may be in the form of an absolute assignment. 62 C. 1=38 C.W.N. 1190=1935 C. 218.

FLOATING CHARGE, WHAT IS.—It is the essence of a floating charge that it remains dormant until the undertaking charged ceases to be a going concern or until the person in whose favour the charge is created intervenes. 1936 A.L.J. 195=148 I.C. 498=1934 A. 161. A floating security is not a future security; it is a present security which presently affects all the assets of the company expressed to be included in it. On the other hand it is not a specific security. The holder cannot affirm that the assets are specially mortgaged to him. The assets are mortgaged in such a way that the mortgagor can deal with them without the concurrence of the mortgagee. A floating charge is a present charge though it does not finally attach or crystallize upon any specific property until the happening of some event which puts an end to the right of the company to deal with the property in the course of its business. Where a debenture charged the company's properties and assets, present as well as future, and there was no stipulation to qualify the elasticity of the floating charge, it leaves the company at liberty to create specific mortgages or charges in priority to itself. In re Florence Land Co., (1878) 10 Ch.D. 503; In re Colonial Trust, (1880) 15 Ch.D. 465. But it is not uncommon to insert in debentures words to the effect that the floating charge is not to authorize the company to create any mortgage or charge ranking in priority to the debenture. 58 C. 136=34 C.W.N. 405=1931 C. 223. The principal tests as to whether a charge is a floating one are (1) Is it a charge upon all or a certain class of assets, present or future? (2) Would the assets charged in the ordinary course of business be changed from time to time? (3) Has the company power until such step is taken by the charges to carry on the business of the company in the ordinary way? Where a clause in an agreement was 'that the amount of security money will be the second charge on the machinery and other goods of the company', on a construction with reference to the tests laid down it was held that it amounted to a floating charge and that if not registered was void. I.L.R. (1938) All. 896=1938 A. L.J. 820=1938 All. 574. Where the assets of a corporation are of a fluctuating nature and must change from time to time in the ordinary course of business, and while taking loan creating charge on their assets, no restraint of any kind whatever is placed on the conduct of the business of the corporation, and the charge does not crystallize into a fixed security, the charge so created is a floating charge. 181 I.C. 681=1939 Sind 100. Where a deed created a charge on all assets of a company and provided that the property should be in possession and control of the lender, that the company should not alienate such property, and that in case of necessity the property may be alienated on an undertaking to replace the same by another property of equal value, it was held that the element of possession contemplated by the deed and which was actually given at the time prevented the charge from being a purely equitable charge coming within the description of a floating charge. 54 C. 513=103 I.C. 748=1927 C. 682. Only a floating charge is created when the director of a company pledges the movable assets of the company, but remains himself in possession as agent of the pledges, and the same would be void against the liquidator if it was not registered in accordance with S. 109. 27 Bom.L.R. 1218=91 I.C. 334=1926 B. 28.

SEC. 109-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section is new and follows S. 81 of the English Act. It was thought anomalous that, while particulars of every charge or mortgage over its property created by the company should be registered, there should be no provision for the registration of the particulars of any previous charge or mortgage over the property which may be acquired by the company subject to such charge. This has been rectified by the enactment of this section.

if there is no such deed, after the execution of any debentures of the series, the following particulars :—

- (a) the total amount secured by the whole series ; and
 - (b) the dates of the resolutions authorising the issue of the series and the date of the covering deed (if any) by which the security is created or defined ; and
 - (c) a general description of the property charged ; and
 - (d) the names of the trustees (if any) for the debenture-holders ;
- together with the deed or a copy thereof verified in the prescribed manner containing the charge, or if there is no such deed, one of the debentures of the series, and the registrar shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, enter those particulars in the register :

Provided that, where more than one issue is made of debentures in the series, there shall be filed with the registrar for entry in the register particulars of the date and amount of each issue, but an omission to do this shall not affect the validity of the debentures issued.

III. Where any commission, allowance or discount has been paid or made Provided that the deposit of any debentures as security for any debt of the company shall not for the purposes of this provision be treated as the issue of the debentures at a discount.

112. (1) The registrar shall keep, with respect to each company, a register

Register of mortgages and charges. in the prescribed form of all mortgages and charges created by the company after the commencement of this Act and requiring registration under section 109, and shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, enter in the register, with respect to every such mortgage or charge, the date of creation, the amount secured by it, short particulars of the property mortgaged or charged, and the names of the mortgagees or persons entitled to the charge.

(2) After making the entry required by sub-section (1), the registrar shall return the instrument (if any) or the verified copy thereof, as the case may be, filed in accordance with the provisions of section 109 or section 110 to the person filing the same.

(3) The register kept in pursuance of this section shall be open to inspection by any person on payment of the prescribed fee, not exceeding one rupee for each inspection.

Provided that nothing in this section shall be construed as requiring a company to cause a certificate of registration of any mortgage or charge so given to be endorsed on any debenture or certificate of debenture stock which has been issued by the company before the mortgage or charge was created.

116. (1) It shall be the duty of the company to file with the registrar for registration the prescribed particulars of every mortgage or charge created by the company and of the issues of debentures of a series, requiring registration under section 109, but registration of any such mortgage or charge may be effected on the application of any person interested therein.

SEC. 120: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The insertion of certain words makes sub-S. (1) now applicable also to the omissions to give intimation to Registrar of payment or satisfaction of a debt for which a charge or mortgage was created. S. 121 as it stood previously empowered Registrar on proof of satisfaction of a mortgage or charge to record satisfaction in the registrar. But it was not, however, obligatory on the company or the mortgagee to have such satisfaction recorded, and the records of the Registrar may accordingly remain incomplete. The insertion of sub-S. (2) and the amendments made in Ss. 121 and 122 remedy this defect.

REGISTRATION AFTER TIME, EFFECT OF.—Sub-S. (2) protects the rights of any secured creditor whose security is registered between the expiration of the 21 days and the extended time allowed by the order, even though he has notice of the prior unregistered charge. Re Monolithic Co., (1915) 1 Ch. 643. Subject to the above, the mortgage which is registered within the extended time constitutes a valid charge ab initio and not merely from the time of its registration. So, where a person obtains a mortgage in the intervening period specifically stating it to be a second charge, his charge will not rank in priority over the mortgage subsequently registered within the extended period. 5 Luck. 128=59 M.L.J. 540=57 I.A. 76 (P.C.).

SEC. 121: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The old section empowered Registrar to register satisfaction of a debt secured by mortgage or charge, on proof of the same being given to his satisfaction. It laid down no obligation either on the company or on the mortgagee to record such satisfaction. The absence of any compulsory provision, and consequent failure to have satisfaction registered, rendered the records in the office of Registrar incomplete. No correct information could be obtained from the records at the Registrar's Office as to whether the debts registered therein have been satisfied and, if so, when. It was thought also inappropriate that Registrar should have authority to determine whether the cause shown was satisfactory or not or to decide any matter in dispute under the section. Now this section makes it obligatory on the company to intimate all satisfactions to Registrar. Also the Registrar is obliged to register the satisfaction and has to make no inquiry as to correctness or otherwise of the satisfaction intimated to him by the company, but has only to send a notice to the mortgagee, and to note his protest, if any.

(2) The registrar shall on receipt of such intimation cause a notice to be sent to the mortgagee calling upon him to show cause, within a time (not exceeding fourteen days) to be fixed by such notice, why the payment or satisfaction of the charge or mortgage should not be recorded.

(3) The registrar shall, if no cause is shown, order that a memorandum of satisfaction be entered on the register and shall if required furnish the company with a copy thereof.

(4) Where cause is shown, the registrar shall record a note to that effect in the register, and shall inform the company that he has done so.]

Sec. 126.—The debenture-holders can have no greater rights than the company from which their rights are derived. They have a charge on the assets of the company, but what those assets are depends on the rights of the company. 1940 A.L.J. 626 —1940 All. 490. A company formed in 1920, issued 200 first mortgage debentures of Rs. 25,000 each, bearing interest at 8 per cent. per annum; the debentures which were in common form were secured by a trust deed dated 8—8—1923, which contained (1) a specific charge on certain immovable and other assets of the company and (2) a floating charge on the rest of the property and undertaking. Later, in and after 1929, the company obtained financial assistance from the appellant's father, under an agreement dated 9—11—1925, which provided, inter alia, for a lien in favour of the lender for moneys advanced by him on raw materials in the company's godowns and other materials products and property of the company. In 1927, in the course of a suit by the trustees of the debenture trust, a receiver was appointed of the property and undertaking of the company, and as the receiver was urgently in need of funds to pay off the wages of the staff and mill-hands of the company, who had not been paid for over three months, he was authorised by the Court to raise money and he raised money from the appellant by a charge of the company's property. The agreement recited, "as regards these goods it has been agreed upon that as there is no opportunity for sufficient inquiry at this time, hence in future if these goods will be proved to be the property and to have been purchased or under lien of X (appellant) then within 10 days of the said decision, I shall hypothecate to you (appellant) sufficient property worth at least. . . ." (2) Where with the object of keeping debentures alive for the purpose of re-issue they have, either before or after the commencement of this Act, been transferred to a nominee of the company, a transfer from that nominee shall be deemed to be a re-issue for the purposes of this section.

(3) Where a company has, either before or after the commencement of this Act, deposited any of its debentures to secure advances from time to time on current account or otherwise, the debentures shall not be deemed to have been redeemed by reason only of the account of the company having ceased to be in debit whilst the debentures remained so deposited.

(4) The re-issue of a debenture or the issue of another debenture in its place under the power by this section given to or deemed to have been possessed by, a company, whether the re-issue or issue was made before or after the commencement of this Act shall be treated as the issue of a new debenture for the purposes of stamp-duty, but it shall not be so treated for the purposes of any provision limiting the amount or number of debentures to be issued :

BALANCE-SHEET, NATURE AND CONTENTS OF.—A balance-sheet is supposed to be a pictorial representation of the company easily appreciated not by ignorant people but by persons who are responsibly able to understand commercial expressions and commercial conditions. 40 O.W.N. 1841=1936 C. 680. If a balance-sheet shows as profits a sum of money representing the interest on bad or doubtful debts due to the bank which was never paid and was never likely to be paid, it contains a materially false statement and the directors signing it are liable to be prosecuted under S. 282. 25 S.L.R. 297=184 I.C. 998. It was held in 29 Bom.L.R. 722=102 I.C. 504=1927 B. 414 that all genuine book debts must be covered by the entry against this item in the balance-sheet, whether they are considered good, doubtful or bad debts; and that if any part of a secret reserve (if permissible at all) is availed of to meet bad and doubtful book-debts, it must be revealed in the balance-sheet and not concealed. The present amended form of the balance-sheet makes suitable provision for the above matters. (As to balance-sheet of banks, see Sch. III, Form F, infra.)

SEC. 132-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section is enacted on the lines of S. 126 of the English Act with some additions. It requires that the balance-sheet and the profits and loss account of subsidiary companies and the Auditor's report should be circulated along with the accounts of the holding company. It further requires that members of the holding company should be empowered to inspect the accounts of the subsidiary companies, and should have rights in respect of them to demand investigation. Where the holding company is a public company, it has been thought necessary to deprive its subsidiary companies also, even if the subsidiary companies should be private companies, of certain exemptions contained in the Act regarding purely private companies. With this view other provisions also have been introduced by the amending Act in Ss. 82-A, 86-D, 87-C, 87-D, 91-B, 91-D, 144 (1), and 144 (5) (ibid) of the Act.

(b) losses of a subsidiary company have been taken into account by the directors of the holding company in arriving at the profits and losses of the company as disclosed in its accounts :

Provided that it shall not be necessary to specify in any such statement the actual amount of the profits or losses of any subsidiary company or the actual amount of any part of any such profits or losses which has been dealt with in any particular manner :

Provided further that for the purposes of this section an investment company, that is to say, a company whose principal business is the acquisition and holding of shares, stocks, debentures or other securities, shall not be deemed to be a holding company by reason only that part of its assets consists in 51 per cent. or more of the shares of another company.

(2) If, in the case of a subsidiary company, the auditors' report on the balance-sheet of the company does not state without qualification that the auditors have obtained all the information and explanations they have required and that the balance-sheet is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the estate of the company's affairs according to the best of their information and the explanations given to them and as shown by the books of the company, the statement, which is to be annexed to the balance-sheet of the holding company, shall contain particulars of the manner in which the report is qualified.

(3) For the purposes of this section the profits or losses of a subsidiary company mean the profits or losses shown in any accounts of the subsidiary company made up to a date within the period to which the accounts of the holding company relate, or, if there are no such accounts of the subsidiary company available at the time when the accounts of the holding company are made up, the profits or losses shown in the last previous accounts of the subsidiary company which became available within that period.

(4) If for any reason the directors of the holding company are unable to obtain such information as is necessary for the preparation of the statement aforesaid, the directors who sign the balance-sheet shall so report in writing and their report shall be annexed to the balance-sheet in lieu of the statement.

(5) The holding company may by a resolution authorise representatives named in the resolution to inspect the books of account kept in accordance with section 130 by any subsidiary company, and on such resolution being passed those books of account shall be open to inspection by those representatives at any time during business hours.

(6) The rights conferred by section 138 upon members of a company may be exercised in respect of any subsidiary company by members of the holding company as if they were members of that subsidiary company.]

SEC. 134: GENERAL.—The provisions of this section are mandatory and any company which makes default in compliance with them ipso facto renders itself liable to the penalties mentioned therein. The position is different as regards officers of the company. 37 C. W. N. 1159=1934 C. 63. Though the section speaks also of authorization of defaults, to sustain a conviction under this section, it is not necessary to prove such authorization. The offence is also complete if the officers of the company concerned knew of the defaults and permitted them. 39 C.W.N. 1152=162 I.C. 282=1936 C. 237. Nor would the fact that the officer was away from the office and that the company was in charge of others at the time the defaults occurred absolve him from liability. If he knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default, he is guilty and liable to be convicted. If he being aware of non-compliance with the requirements of the section takes no steps to have them complied with, he can be safely held to have "permitted the default". Inspection and Audit.

138. The ¹[Central Government] may appoint one or more competent inspectors to investigate the affairs of any company and to report thereon in such manner as the ¹[Central Government] may direct—

(i) in the case of a banking company having a share capital, on the application of members holding not less than one-fifth of the shares issued ;

(ii) in the case of any other company having a share capital, on the application of members holding not less than one-tenth of the shares issued ;

(iv) in the case of any company on a report by the registrar under section 137, sub-section (5).

139. An application by members of a company under section 138 shall be supported by such evidence as the ¹[Central Government] may require for the purpose of showing that the applicants have good reason for, and are not actuated by malicious motives in, requiring the investigation ; and the ¹[Central Government] may, before appointing an inspector, require the applicants to give security for payment of the costs of the inquiry.

Inspection of books and examination of officers.

140. (1) It shall be the duty of all persons who are or have been officers of the company to produce to the Inspectors all books and documents in their custody or power relating to the company.

in the office of the Registrar. The proviso to sub-S. (3) had to be introduced under the following circumstances. There was no provision formerly for the realization of costs in cases where inspectors were appointed by Local Government. The only remedy of Government was to take such proceedings as were available to the ordinary creditors of the company. The difficulty became greater if the company happened to go into liquidation. In respect of this claim, in the view of the Punjab High Court, Government was not entitled under the law as it stood previous to the present amendment, even to preferential payment although the investigation was directed by Government for the good of the company. (See 12 L. 678=134 I. C. 200). In view of proviso now inserted, there will not be any difficulty for the Government to recover the costs.

stood previously. It also gives auditors power to attend the meetings of the Company and to explain the accounts. It was not obligatory on the part of the auditors previously to report as to whether proper accounts within the meaning of the Act have been kept. This is an information which the shareholders are entitled to have. So Cl. (d) and sub-S. (2-A) have been inserted to remedy this defect. Further, in meetings of the Company where the audited accounts of the Company are discussed, shareholders frequently required informations and explanations which the auditors alone could render; and in the absence of any provision for the auditors to attend as of right, the shareholders were often denied the rights of asking for such informations as may be necessary for them to protect their interests. Hence sub-S. (4) has been inserted. Auditors as officers of the Company used to be often protected by provisions in the articles of association, and in order to obviate the same and render them liable to penalty for knowing and wilful default, sub-S. (5) has been inserted. Unless auditors are to be held strictly to their legal liability, however honest these may be, the object of the legislature in requiring a certificate from them would be absolutely defeated. It is nothing to an auditor whether the business of a company is being conducted prudently or unprofitably. It is nothing to him whether dividends are properly or improperly declared, provided he discharges his duty to the shareholders. His business is to ascertain and state the true financial position of the company at the time of the audit, and his duty is confined to that. He is to ascertain that position by examining the books of the company. But his first duty is to examine the books not merely for the purpose of ascertaining what they do show, but also for the purpose of satisfying himself that they show the true financial position of the company. If he fails in his duty, he will be jointly and severally liable with those who are responsible for the management of the company although he is not guilty of any dishonesty. 47 A. 669=23 A.L.J. 473=88 I.C. 785. SEC. 152: SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—S. 152 is an enabling one and it merely confers power on companies to refer disputes to arbitration under the Arbitration Act by an agreement in writing, when this course is preferred. It is not obligatory on a company governed by the Arbitration Act, to make a reference to arbitration out of Court in the Province of Punjab, only in pursuance of the provisions of the Arbitration Act and to file an award made on such reference in the Court of the District Judge as required by the Arbitration Act. It is permissible for the company, although governed by the Arbitration Act, to make a reference outside the Arbitration Act, and although the award on such reference is filed in the Court of the Senior Subordinate Judge, the decree passed on the basis of it is perfectly legal. 17 L. 722=1936 L. 721 (F.B.). [1929 L. 246=118 I.C. 533, not approved.] S. 152 (1) enables a Company to refer to arbitration disputes between it and another person in accordance with the provisions of Indian Arbitration Act; and if it does not wish to avail itself of the provisions of the Arbitration Act, reference to arbitration in accordance with Sch. II, G. P. Code, is open to the Company. S. 162 (1) does not exclude arbitration under the G.P. Code. An award passed in arbitration under the G.P. Code, is consequently valid and can be enforced by a Court though such Court has not been conferred jurisdiction under the Arbitration Act. The words "may by written agreement refer to arbitration in accordance with the Arbitration Act, 1940" in S. 152 (1) mean that if a Company wishes to refer to arbitration under the Arbitration Act, it can do so by written agreement; this carries with it the implication that reference to arbitration

It is not obligatory that any reference to arbitration to which a limited company is a party should be made under the Arbitration Act. 190 I.C. 146=1940 Lah. 97. After the enactment of the Indian Companies Act (1913) and before the Indian Arbitration Act (1940) came into force, a company could only enter into an arbitration under the provisions of the Arbitration Act (1889) and consequently companies were outside the scope of Schedule II to the Code of Civil Procedure. 1. L.R. (1944) Mad. 385=1944 Comp. C. 95=57 L.W. 221=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 308=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 290 (F.B.). S. 152 only empowers a company to refer to arbitration an existing difference between itself and any other company or persons. But a shareholder of a company has no such right against the company. Apart from the Articles of Association of the company, a shareholder has no power to compel a submission to arbitration of a dispute arising out of the affairs of the company. 45 L.W. 405=1937 M. 405. The section applies to those cases only in which a Joint Stock Company by written agreement refers to arbitration in accordance with the provisions of the Arbitration Act, any dispute between itself and any other company or person. In a case where the reference to arbitration is not by written agreement of the parties, but is made by the Court in a pending suit, the arbitrator has to submit his report to the Court which has to pass judgment in the suit in accordance with the terms of the award or pass such other order in accordance with law as it thought fit. A decree on such award is open to appeal in the ordinary course. Such a case does not come under S. 152. 1936 L. 257=163 I.C. 339. The scope of S. 152 is that the provisions of Ss. 3 to 22 of the Old Arbitration Act would apply, where one or both the parties to arbitration are companies registered under the Companies Act, by force and effect of the Companies Act itself, irrespective of the provisions of S. 2 of the Arbitration Act; that is to say, the said Act would apply in a case falling within the scope of the Act even when the locus of the subject-matter was outside a Presidency town, provided one of the parties or both of them were companies registered under the Companies Act. As the old Arbitration Act has no application to arbitration with the intervention of Court. S. 152 does not require the procedure laid down in the said Act to be followed in the case of such arbitration even if a company is a party to it. 1941 Cal. 127=I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 237=44 C.W.N. 828. (See now the present Arbitration Act X of 1940). See also the following cases under the old Act. 14 L. 249=1933 L. 44 [overruling 32 P.L.R. 444=132 I.C. 379=1931 L. 555]; 13 Pat.L.T. 169=136 I.C. 445=1933 P. 49; 14 L.W. 249. A company under the Companies Act stands in the Punjab on no different footing than a private individual governed by Punjab Act I of 1911. Therefore if an agreement between the parties of which one is a company makes no specific reference to the Arbitration Act, the Arbitration Act will not apply to the arbitration agreement between the parties. 1938 Lah. 827. (Case under the old Act.) The word 'may' after the words 'a company' in the beginning of S. 152 does not go with the sentence 'in accordance with the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899,' but with the words 'refer to arbitration.' Again the existence of the words 'in accordance with the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899,' in Cl. (1) of S. 152 is an indication that the Legislature considered it to be de rigueur that every reference by a limited liability company to arbitration should be in accordance with the Arbitration Act, Cl. (3) is conclusive on the point that the provisions of the Arbitration Act only apply to arbitrations to which a limited liability company is a party. Limited liability companies cannot refer to arbitration independently of this provision of the law and Sch. II, C. P. Code, has no application. The Arbitration Act alone applies to all references to arbitration made by limited liability companies and hence the award is executable by the District Judge only and not by the Sub-Judge. the company and its members or any class of them, the Court may, on the application in a summary way of the company or of any creditor or member of the company or, in the case of a company being wound up, of the liquidator order a meeting of the creditors or class of creditors, or of the members of the company or class of members, as the case may be, to be called, held and conducted in such manner as the Court directs.

ance of this Act" mean that the provisions of the Arbitration Act, except S. 2 thereof, would apply to all arbitrations in which one or both the parties are companies irrespective of the locus of the subject-matter by the force and effect of the Companies Act, and the procedure provided for in the Arbitration Act for extending its field of operation would not have to be followed in such cases. On this interpretation of S. 153 (3), Ss. 3 and 4 (a) of the Arbitration Act would apply to all arbitrations in which a company is a party. The Court in which the award will have to be filed must be either the High Court or the Court of the District Judge, as the case may be. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 358=44 C.W.N. 585=1940 Cal. 220. The power to refer cannot be exercised by the liquidator. Thus although a living company is allowed to refer matters in difference to arbitration, in a particular way, an official liquidator may not be allowed to do so. 50 A. 867=26 A.L.J. 810. An agreement as to submission to arbitration, though not under seal, is valid. 37 A. 273=13 A.L.J. 312.

SEC. 153: AMENDMENTS BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The amendment in sub-sec. (6) simplifies the determination of the meaning of 'creditors of the same class' in view of the judicial uncertainty that has manifested itself on this point. The present sub-Ss. (3), (4), (5) and (7) introduce sub-Ss. (3) and (4) of S. 153 of the English Act and also specifically provide for appeals from orders made under this section. In cases where schemes of arrangements were proposed because of financial difficulties, it was very often found that on the initiation of the proceedings under this section obstructive creditors and contributories immediately began to file suits or apply for attachment before judgment or apply for the compulsory winding up of the company, and thereby render the application for the arrangement practically infructuous. Under the law as it stood previously, the Court was powerless to grant any interim protection against such proceedings, and the natural consequence was that the company was frequently obliged to submit to most extortionate terms in order to obtain the withdrawal of such proceedings. It was to obviate this difficulty that sub-S. (5) has been inserted.

SCOPE OF THE SECTION.—This section makes provision not merely for a scheme for the resuscitation or re-organising of companies, but it also provides for a scheme of arrangement, which provides an alternative mode of liquidation which the law allows the statutory majority of creditors to substitute for winding-up, whether voluntary or under the Court. So, the failure of a scheme for resuscitation of a company is not by itself sufficient to justify a winding-up order being made, as it cannot be said that because the scheme has failed in this important particular it has failed in its entirety, leaving open to the Court only the simple course of ordering a compulsory liquidation. 16 Lah. 1029=158 I.C. 816=1935 L. 779. A scheme of merger of several companies under which a company should transfer its business and undertaking to the new combined or merger company, which involves a re-organization of capital altering rights conferred by the memorandum of association and re-organizing the rights of different classes of shareholders and which provides for a distribution of the assets of the company among the different classes of shareholders should the company be wound up after the merger, is one which may be sanctioned by the Court under S. 153 of the Act. An application for sanction of such a scheme is maintainable and the Court has jurisdiction to consider it, and see if it is fair and reasonable, even though the scheme may involve winding-up. But the Court may, in the exercise of its discretion, impose certain conditions upon the company before sanctioning it, i.e., it may ask the company to make some provision for the dissentients. Such a provision is not, however, a sine qua non to sanctioning a scheme if it is reasonable and fair. 39 Bom. L. R. 675=1937 Bom. 423. Even after an order for winding-up a company has been made, a creditor or a member of the company can move the Court under S. 153. The liquidator has also the right to make an application under S. 153 but he has not got the exclusive right to do so. It was not the intention of the Legislature to deprive the creditors or members of the right once an order for winding-up is made and place them at the mercy of the liquidator who may or may not choose to move in the matter. 1938 M.W.N. 1313=1939 Mad. 318. S. 153 does not make it obligatory either upon the Court or the company to serve a notice of the creditors' meeting on each and every creditor of the company, and a decision arrived at by the creditors and the company in the absence of any individual creditor is not, therefore, invalid. 39 P.L.R. 230=1937 L. 442. The unsecured creditors of a company who have obtained decrees and the unsecured creditors who have not obtained decrees do not constitute different classes of creditors, and a scheme of composition passed and sanctioned under the provisions of the Companies Act binds all the creditors of the company including judgment-creditors. 39 P. L. R. 230=1937 L. 442. A scheme of arrangement sanctioned by the Court binds not only the creditors favouring the scheme but also the dissentient minority. 41 A. 566; 153 I.C. 119=1934 L. 515; 40 C.W.N. 551. Where after a scheme of composition has been passed by the creditors at a meeting the holder of a decree against the company applies to the High Court contending that the scheme is not binding on him, but the High Court decides that he is bound by the scheme, the decree-holder cannot be permitted to nullify that decision by getting his decree transferred to a mofussil Court and attempting to execute it against the assets of the company. If the decree-holder attempts to start execution the High Court has power to stop the execution proceedings and will issue an injunction to restrain him from further proceeding with the execution of the decree, so long as the scheme is in operation. 40 C. W. N. 551. Powers of the Court under S. 153 are strictly limited. The Court may either sanction or refuse to sanction a scheme approved by the company and its creditors or members. The Court has no power upon an application to alter the scheme which has been sanctioned by the Court and agreed to at a meeting under S. 153 without giving parties to the agreement an opportunity of considering the scheme in the way the Court proposes. I.L.R. (1937) 1 C. 368=1937 C. 124. It is not right to summon a joint meeting of the creditors and all policy-holders of an insurance company as they have different interests. I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 85=46 C. W.N. 441=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 578.

CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—The plain language of S. 153 is applicable both to a going company and to the case of company in liquidation; a compromise or arrangement can therefore be availed of both in the case of a company which is a going concern and also in the case of a company which is in the course of being wound up. It cannot therefore be contended that an application under the section cannot be made before an order for winding up is made. 1939 M. 53; 1939 Mad. 318. See also 1937 Bom. 423. This section enables the majority of a class of creditors to bind the minority and it exercises a most formidable compulsion upon dissentient or would be dissentient creditors; and it, therefore, requires to be construed with great care, so as not to place in the hands of some of the creditors the means and opportunity of forcing dissentients to do that which it is unreasonable to require them to do or of making a mere jest of the interests of the minority. 28 S.L.R. 213=149 I.C. 15=1934 S. 54. A petition was presented by the Directors of a Bank under S. 153 asking the Court to refer a scheme, which they had prepared, to the shareholders and creditors for their consideration, but a winding up petition was filed subsequently by some of the creditors. Held, there was no bar to the hearing of the winding up petition, though the scheme was not placed before the shareholders and the creditors by the Court as prayed for. 48 L.W. 648=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 812.

SANCTION OF COURT.—The fact that the shareholders and creditors of a company have approved of a scheme of compromise or arrangement as contemplated by S. 153 of the Indian Companies Act does not mean that the Court is bound to accept the scheme. It is the duty of the Court to examine the proposals and decide whether they are fair and reasonable. That the shareholders and creditors have approved of a scheme will of course carry weight, but there may be more important considerations. Where the resolution approving of a scheme is shown to have been passed as a result of misleading statements contained in a letter written by one of the creditors of the company who was also a director thereof, and circulated to all the shareholders and creditors before the meeting, where the company is hopelessly insolvent and the scheme confers no apparent benefit on any one and in fact ignores creditors who are not depositors, and the scheme is itself not a feasible one, and where besides there are also allegations of unlawful and unauthorised acts on the part of the company's officials, justice demands that the resolutions approving of the scheme passed at the meeting of the shareholders and creditors should be disregarded. 51 L. W. 639=1940 Mad. 621. See also 1937 Bom. 423. A mere agreement on the part of the members or shareholders is not enough for the acceptance of the scheme. It is ultimately for the Court either to sanction it or not to sanction it. 1930 A. L.J. 305=1930 A. 330. It will be without effect if the sanction of the Court is refused; although when given, the agreement takes effect not from the date of the sanction but from the date when it is made. 46 I.A. 135=36 M.L.J. 562=50 I.C. 429 (P.C.); 106 P.W.R. 1916=40 I.C. 904; 41 A. 566; 32 I.C. 451=18 O.C. 272. See also 41 C. W.N. 1272=65 C.L.J. 503. What the Court has to do on an application for sanctioning a scheme is to see first of all that the provisions of the Act have been complied with; and, secondly that the majority have been acting bona fide. It must also see whether the scheme is a reasonable one or whether there is any reasonable objection to it. 39 Bom.L.R. 675=1937 Bom. 423. See also 1940 Mad. 621. The function of the Court is not to simply register the resolution come to by the creditors or the shareholders as the case may be. It is the duty of the Court to satisfy itself that the meeting was duly held and conducted, that the compromise was a real compromise, that it was accepted by a competent majority, that the majority was acting in good faith and for the common advantage of the whole class, and that what they did was reasonably prudent and proper. 28 S.L.R. 213=149 I.C. 51=1934 S. 54; 30 Bom.L.R. 197=108 I.C. 465=1928 B. 80; 1933 L. 51=140 I.C. 128. If the Court finds it otherwise, it will refuse its sanction. It is not the function of the Court to substitute its own scheme suo motu for the scheme presented to it for sanction. If the Court finds that some radical amendment ought to be effected in the scheme as presented, it is the duty of the Court to reject the scheme. 61 C. 913=38 C.W.N. 920=1934 C. 816; 10 B. 438=149 I.C. 133=1932 R. 154; 57 M.L.J. 633=1929 P.C. 256 (P.C.). A Court will not give sanction to a scheme which will have the effect of enabling a bank or other company, which is, to all intents and purposes, insolvent, to continue carrying on business and attract deposits which in all probability will go the way of the former deposits. These principles are to be adhered to in dealing with applications to sanction schemes of composition and arrangement intended to keep sinking banking companies afloat, whose assets consist principally of monies lent out on mortgages, simple bonds, promissory notes, decrees of Court and immovable property, but no cash. 63 C. 99.

SCHEME SANCTIONED BY COURT—SUBSEQUENT MODIFICATION—POWER OF COURT.—Under S. 153 of the Companies Act, the Court may order a meeting to be held to consider a scheme of arrangement, and may grant or withhold sanction of such scheme. If a scheme has been sanctioned by the Court, it has no power to subsequently modify or alter or expunge any part of it without the consent of those who have agreed to it. 41 C.W.N. 599=1937 Cal. 667. Where one Judge has sanctioned a scheme it is not within the power of another Judge exercising equal jurisdiction to declare in effect that the order sanctioning the scheme is to the extent that it affects a particular person, a nullity. 1937 Cal. 401. Where a scheme is passed by a meeting properly called and competent to approve it, the Court cannot either at the time of sanction or at any time thereafter, alter the terms of the scheme without consulting those who agreed to it and without their sanction. Therefore the Court has no power, either at the time of sanction or at any time thereafter, to expunge any part of the scheme or to modify it in any way without consulting those who passed it originally and without obtaining their consent. All that the Court can do is to refuse to sanction the scheme or possibly to withdraw the sanction which has already been given. 1937 Cal. 401. Upon confirmation by the Court of a scheme of arrangement, that scheme becomes by virtue of S. 153 binding upon the creditors, the shareholders and the company. Its terms can thereafter only be varied by order of the Court after the variation had been approved at meetings of the creditors and shareholders and it is not possible for the company or its directors or shareholder whether by resolution or ratification or otherwise to alter the scheme. Nor is it possible for the company or its directors to vary the scheme under the guise of a compromise with a shareholder, as no variation or departure from that scheme can be validated by mere acquiescence of the shareholders or the creditors. 1938 P.C. 284=I.L.R. (1939) Loh. 1=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 98 (P.C.).

MEANING OF TERMS.—(i) 'Compromise or arrangement'.—The mere fact that year after year the company, by appropriate means, as laid down in the memorandum, varies the rights of different classes of shares cannot tantamount to a compromise or arrangement between the company and its members. 57 A. 810=1935 A.L.J. 527=156 I.C. 1088=1935 A. 310. The word 'arrangement' used in this section is in the sense of something analogous to a compromise; and in any arrangement which can fairly be called a compromise or be considered as analogous to a compromise, there must be both 'give' and 'take' on both sides. 28 S.L.R. 213=149 I.C. 51=1934 S. 54.

(ii) 'Creditors'.—This word includes all persons having any pecuniary claim against the company whether actual or contingent, present or future. Re Midland Coal Co., (1905) 1 Ch. 267. It includes also debenture-holders and other secured creditors. Re Empire Mining Co., (1890) 44 Ch.D. 402. As between a decree-holder and an unsecured creditor, their interests are not so dissimilar as to make it necessary to place them in different classes. Where a notice of a meeting to approve a scheme of arrangement between the company and its unsecured creditors is issued to its unsecured creditors the decree-holder who is also an unsecured creditor of the company is prima facie bound by such notice. 172 I.C. 717=1937 Cal. 401.

(iii) 'Company'.—Where the directors of a company are authorised to manage the business and exercise all powers, a proposal by the Board of Directors made under this section in the name of the company, is valid and proper. 28 S.L.R. 213=149 I.C. 51=1934 S. 54.

(iv) 'Class'.—This word must be confined to those persons whose rights are not so dissimilar as to make it impossible for them to consult together with a view to their common interest. Matured and unmatured policy holders of an insurance company belong to different classes, and a member holding a matured policy is entitled to dissent and cannot be bound by a resolution passed at a meeting of all the policy holders including both the matured and unmatured class. 28 S.L.R. 213=149 I.C. 51=1934 S. 54. So also, holders of shares partly paid and holders of shares with the uncalled balance paid in advance of calls and carrying interest, constitute different classes from holders of fully paid-up shares. Re United Provident Assurance Co. v. Dadd, (1910) 2 Ch. 477. But an unsecured creditor of a company who is also a decree-holder is not entitled to be regarded as belonging to a defined and distinct class of persons as opposed to an unsecured creditor who has not got a decree. Consequently they are not entitled to execute their decrees after the scheme has been sanctioned and passed. 39 C.W.N. 1198=160 I.C. 407=1936 C. 12; 39 C.W.N. 1199=62 C.L.J. 310=1935 C. 977; 39 C.W.N. 875. But it was held in 38 C.W.N. 1171=155 I.C. 811=1935 C. 117; and in 156 I.C. 590=1935 C. 398=40 C.W.N. 1104; 40 C.W.N. 580=1930 C. 162, that a depositor in a company who had obtained a decree against the company before the scheme was embarked upon, belonged to a different class from the depositors who had not obtained decrees. But note that the Act has since been amended and there will no longer be any distinction between unsecured creditors who have obtained decrees and those who have not obtained decrees and those who have not section. See also I.L.R. (1937) 1 C. 368=1937 C. 124.

SEC. 153 BEFORE 1936 AMENDMENT.—Under the law as it was prior to the Companies Amendment Act, 1936, a depositor who has obtained a decree and one who has not obtained a decree cannot be regarded as belonging to the same class of creditors for the purpose of S. 153 and accordingly a notice sent to such a decree-holder directing him to attend a meeting of the depositors for the purpose of considering a scheme is not binding on him, as equally as he is not bound by anything which is decided at such meeting. But a depositor who has merely filed a suit, and has not obtained a decree on the date of the meeting of the creditors at which a scheme is agreed to by them, is in the same class of creditors as all the rest of the depositor, who have not filed suits, although he obtains a decree before the date on which the Court sanctions the scheme. Such a depositor is entitled to receive notice of the meeting of the creditors and to attend it, and if he does not choose to attend, he is bound by the scheme passed by the majority of his fellow depositors. The sanction of the scheme by Court has a retrospective effect, and the scheme, therefore, operates not from the date on which the sanction is given but from the date on which it is agreed to by the creditors, namely, the date of the meetings. The fact that in the suit filed up the depositor, the company filed a written statement subsequent to the passing of the scheme by the creditors admitting their liability and asking for time within which to pay does not preclude them from resisting execution of the decree. 41 C.W.N. 1272=65 C.L.J. 503. See also 42 C.W.N. 610; 40 C.W.N. 1104; 1937 Cal. 169; 1938 Cal. 337=I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 30. In view of the fact that it is impracticable to try and ascertain the true or real value of the policies of an Insurance Company, the nominal value of the policies must be accepted for the purpose of ascertaining majorities at meetings held to approve or disapprove of a scheme of compromise under S. 153. 45 C.W.N. 979.

MEETINGS ORDERED BY COURT.—The meetings ordered by the Court are subject to the direction of the Court. But when the Court has given no express direction, the meetings have to be conducted in accordance with the directions contained in the Articles of Association, as far as may be possible. 39 Bom.L.R. 197=108 I.C. 465=1928 B. 80. Before ordering a meeting of the class of creditors with whom it is proposed to make an arrangement it is not necessary that the Court should first have issued notices. A certificate from the Chairman of the meeting that notice of application and of meeting ordered, had been issued and acknowledged by the depositors, may be relied on for the fact that the provisions of the law have been duly complied with. 28 S.L.R. 213=149 I.C. 51=1934 S. 54. The Court has to exercise its discretion in making an order under S. 153 of the Companies Act. There is a distinction between making an order under S. 153 (1) and an order under S. 153 (2) when the scheme comes before the Court for sanction after the approval of the majority of the Court. It is very essential that any scheme put forward before the general body of creditors must as far as possible be based upon correct information; and any scheme which is approved must prima facie appear to be based on correct information and date. But that does not mean that an application under S. 153 to call a meeting of the creditors to consider a proposed scheme should be rejected merely because the same is not based on correct information as to the affairs of the company. The Court can call for a report giving a fair idea of the affairs of the company and on that information the scheme as adumbrated or with the necessary amendments can be circulated along with the report. A Court ought not to decline to order a meeting of the creditors unless the proposals are illegal as being in contravention of the Companies Act or incapable of modification in view of ascertained facts. 1939 Comp.C. 14=1938 M.W.N. 1313=1939 Mad. 318. It is not enough to hold a single meeting of all different classes of creditors in general, and any scheme of arrangement approved at such a meeting ought not to be sanctioned by the Court. 39 C.W.N. 690. The expression "a meeting of creditors or class of creditor" in S. 153 (1) of the Companies Act should be interpreted as comprising all creditors of the company whether in British India or outside. There is nothing to preclude the Courts from directing a meeting of all such creditors. The question of principal liquidation or ancillary liquidation does not matter. 1938 M.W.N. 1313=1939 Mad. 318. Where after the issue of a notice of a meeting to frame a scheme under S. 153 on the general body of creditors of a company, one of them assigns his interest to a debtor of the company after the receipt of the notice and before the date of the meeting, the assignee is bound by the scheme adopted at the meeting and sanctioned by the Court. He cannot contend that he belongs to a class of "debtor creditor" and is therefore different from the class of creditors who formed the meeting and agreed to the scheme. 43 C.W.N. 1181=1939 Comp. C. 247.

SCHEME SANCTIONED BY COURT—IF CAN BE CHALLENGED IN EXECUTION PROCEEDING.—The executing Court cannot modify, alter or amend the scheme which definitely includes the depositors who had obtained decrees, and which has been sanctioned under S. 153. If there are circumstances to justify any modification or alteration or amendment of the scheme by excluding the depositors who had obtained decrees, the remedy is to go to the Court which sanctioned the scheme. An order sanctioning the scheme cannot be challenged collaterally in the executing Court as without jurisdiction either on the ground that no notice of the meeting was served upon the depositor who had obtained a decree in the proceedings under S. 153 of the Act, or on the ground that in the said proceeding the Court did not order that the meetings of the different classes of depositors should be held separately. Such objections to the order do not touch the question of the existence of the jurisdiction but relate only to the illegal or irregular exercise of the jurisdiction. So long as the order stands, it continues to be binding upon the party whom it purports to bind. 41 C.W.N. 406=1937 C. 211. A scheme of arrangement which is sanctioned by the Court under S. 153 has the force of a judicial pronouncement. Where in execution of a decree obtained against a loan company by one of its depositors, the sanctioned scheme is set up as a bar by the company, the executing Court cannot go behind the sanction unless it is shown that the order giving the sanction was without jurisdiction. When the matter comes before the executing Court, it is not open to the decree-holder to urge against the sanctioned scheme that there was any defect in the procedure or that there was no meeting of the particular class of creditors to which he belongs. Such defects, if any, do not take away the foundation of the authority of the Court in granting sanction under S. 153 and they are at the most irregularities and do not render the sanctioned scheme a nullity in the eye of the law. The order of the High Court unless set aside or modified is binding on the decree-holder and on person who seeks to execute his decree and is one which the executing Court has to obey. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 30=1938 Cal. 337. See also I.L.R. (1937) 1 C. 781=41 C.W.N. 952=1937 C. 517.

VOTE BY PROXY.—The Court has jurisdiction under this section to settle the terms and form of the instrument of proxy to be used at the meeting. Any rule framed by the High Court under S. 246 of the Act, purported to fetter or restrict the jurisdiction of the Court in respect of this matter is ultra vires and not operative. 10 R. 438=140 I.C. 133=1932 R. 154. Where the Court has specifically directed that the decision of the chairman as to the admissibility of any proxy shall be final for the purpose of the meeting, the scrutineers appointed by the Court to assist the chairman, have no right to decide whether any proxy was good or bad, or to file any petition into Court for directions as to the validity of certain proxies used. 10 R. 189=137 I.C. 444=1932 R. 96. A vote given by an executor of a deceased member must be disallowed and it is not possible to distinguish the case of liquidator or receiver. 30 Bom.L.R. 197=108 I.C. 465=1928 R. 80.

JURISDICTION—Ss. 153, 270 and 271.—S. 153 confers jurisdiction on the High Court to deal with a scheme, but how the scheme when sanctioned can be rendered effective and operative on the company in question as a whole does not affect the jurisdiction of the Court to deal with it. 1938 M.W.N. 1313=1939 Mad. 318. The High Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application under S. 153, at the instance of a creditor or a member of a foreign company. A Bank incorporated outside British India and having its registered office outside British India is a foreign company, but it would be an unregistered company within the meaning of Ss. 270 and 271 of the Act and therefore liable to be wound up under the Act. The expression "Court" in the case of an unregistered company including a foreign company would mean "the Court in which the said company is liable to be wound up," and under S. 271, the High Court is the Court in which a foreign company is liable to be wound up. A Bank which has its central office in British India, which is the centre of administrative control, is subject to the jurisdiction of the High Court in that part of British India though its registered office and place of incorporation may be outside British India. 183 I.C. 353=1938 M.W.N. 1313=1939 Mad. 318. There is no warrant for holding that because an order for winding up a foreign company has been made by the Court of the place which is the registered office of the company a British Indian Court has no jurisdiction to entertain an application under S. 153. S. 271 of the Act, on the other hand, negatives such a theory. Under S. 271, it is left to the discretion of the Court whether it would wind up the company in spite of a similar order having been passed in some other Courts. There is nothing to oblige the Court to pass an order of winding up. The desire to assist in the main liquidation—the desire to act as ancillary to the Court where the main liquidation is going on—will not ever make the Court give up the forensic rules which govern the conduct of its own liquidation. The underlying principle is one of co-operation based on the essential principles of justice and equity. 183 I.C. 353=1938 M. W.N. 1313=1939 Mad. 318.

S. 153 (6): RETROSPECTIVE OPERATION.—The Legislature cannot be said to have altered the existing law by the addition of sub-S. (6) to S. 153 by amending Act XXII of 1936. The object of the added clause is merely to explain the meaning of the expression "creditors of the same class" which occurred also in the Act as it stood before amendment. Consequently even depositors who obtained decrees against a Bank before the addition of the sub-section do not constitute a separate class from ordinary depositors and it is not necessary that there should be a separate meeting of such creditors before a scheme settled by the ordinary depositors can be sanctioned by the Court. 75 C.L.J. 203=1942 Comp.C. 110=46 C. Consequently an order sanctioning a scheme of reconstruction of an Insurance Company is an order under S. 153 read with S. 153-A and is appealable under S. 153 (7). The Governor-General in Coun-

(a) the transfer to the transferee company of the whole or any part of the undertaking and of the property or liabilities of any transferor company;

(b) the allotting or appropriation by the transferee company of any shares, debentures, policies, or other like interests in that company which under the compromise or arrangement are to be allotted or appropriated by that company to or for any person;

(c) the continuation by or against the transferee company of any legal proceedings pending by or against any transferor company;

SEC. 153-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section and S. 153-B have been newly added and thereby Ss. 154 and 155 of the English Act dealing with arrangements and reconstructions have been incorporated in this Act also. Schemes under this Act very often involved a transfer of shares or a class of shares in the company to another company; and in such cases the consent of the shareholders for the transfer had to be obtained. There will always be found a dissenting minority in every company, and although a scheme may have been approved by a substantial majority of their co-shareholders, the carrying out of the scheme used to be often rendered infructuous. To meet this contingency and to put through the scheme approved by a substantial majority, it was thought necessary to make some provisions for acquiring the shares of the dissenting minority on reasonable terms, and the present amendment contains suitable provisions in this respect.

SEC. 153-B: (AS AMENDED IN 1936)—SCOPE AND EFFECT—ENQUIRY UNDER.—All that S. 153-B of the Companies Act (as amended in 1936) does is to provide that where there is a contract or scheme for the acquisition by one company or shares in another company which has been accepted by the statutory majority of shareholders in the latter company the transferee company can acquire compulsorily the shares of the minority, unless the Court otherwise orders. The section does not confer any right on the Court to consider the merits of the contract so far as concerns the majority of shareholders who have accepted it. In their case the matter is complete; the matter has gone through. The only question is whether the minority shareholders are to be left in possession of their shares or whether they can be compelled to sell their shares on the same terms as those which the other shareholders have accepted. The Court must consider whether the attitude of the minority was reasonable. The section is based on the view that prima facie the minority are acting unreasonably in refusing to come into line with the majority, and ought to be forced into line, unless the Court orders otherwise. The burden is on the dissentients to adduce reasons for thinking that the majority of shareholders were wrong. 1943 Comp.C. 249=45 Bom.L.R. 633=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 325.

month from the date on which the notice has been given, or, if an application to the Court by the dissenting shareholder is then pending, after that application has been disposed of, transmit a copy of the notice to the transferor company and pay or transfer to the transferor company the amount or other consideration representing the price payable by the transferee company for the shares which by virtue of this section that company is entitled to acquire, and the transferor company shall thereupon register the transferee company as the holder of those shares.

(3) Any sums received by the transferor company under this section shall be paid into a separate bank account, and any such sums and any other consideration so received shall be held by that company on trust for the several persons entitled to the shares in respect of which the said sums or other consideration were respectively received.

(4) In this section the expression "dissenting shareholder" includes a shareholder who has not assented to the scheme or contract and any shareholder who has failed or refused to transfer his shares to the transferee company in accordance with the scheme or contract.]

SEC. 154: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The present section adopts the provisions of S. 27 of the English Act. Also a separate form has been introduced in the second schedule for use, when a private company is converted into a public company. In the section, even as it formerly stood, a private company could by making adequate alteration in its articles convert itself into a public company. But, there was no limitation provided as to the time within which the requirements of the section had to be complied with, and very often there used to be unreasonable delay in complying with all the requirements of the section. In such cases, it was difficult to state the exact position of the company before the provisions of the section had been fully complied with, viz., whether it was to be treated as a private or public company. To put an end to this delay and doubt, this present amendment provides a time limit for complying with the provisions of the section, and prescribes a penalty for default; and it also enacts that such companies would cease to be private companies and forfeit all the privileges of a private company as from the date of the alteration of the articles.

Amendments to the articles of association of a company do not require the confirmation of the High Court. 22 Pat. 204=24 P.L.T. 226=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 278.

SEC. 154: OBJECT AND SCOPE—PUBLIC COMPANY—CONVERSION TO PRIVATE COMPANY—PROCEDURE.—The conversion of a private company into a public company can be made by proper alterations in the articles of the company. The purpose of S. 154 is to ensure that when a company has been converted from a private company to a public company certain information must be sent to the Registrar and if such is not done certain penalties are provided. 22 Pat. 204=1943 Pat. 278. There is nothing in S. 154 from which it can be inferred that a public company cannot be converted into a private company by alteration of the articles. There was no need for a specific section to deal with such a conversion, because the information which S. 154 requires to be sent to the Registrar need not be sent where the conversion is from a public company into a private one. A public company can be converted into a private company by suitable alterations in the articles of the company. It is not necessary to wind up the company and reconstitute it. 24 P.L.T. 226=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 278.

(3) Where the articles of a company include the provisions aforesaid but default is made in complying with any of those provisions, the company shall cease to be entitled to the privileges and exemptions conferred on private companies under the provisions contained in this Act, and thereupon the provisions of this Act shall apply to the company as if it were not a private company :

Provided that the Court, on being satisfied that the failure to comply with the conditions was accidental or due to inadvertence or to some other sufficient cause, or that on other grounds it is just and equitable to grant relief, may, on the application of the company or any other person interested and on such terms and conditions as seem to the Court just and expedient, order that the company be relieved from such consequences as aforesaid.]

PART V.

WINDING UP.

Preliminary.

Mode of winding up.

155. (1) The winding up of a company may be either—

- (i) by the Court ; or
- (ii) voluntary ; or
- (iii) subject to the supervision of the Court.

(2) The provisions of this Act with respect to winding up apply, unless the contrary appears, to the winding up of a company in any of these modes.

Contributories..

156. (1) In the event of a company being wound up, every present and past member shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be liable to contribute to the assets of the company to an amount sufficient for payment of its debts and liabilities and the costs, charges and expenses of the winding up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves, with the qualifications following (that is to say) :

SEC. 155: GENERAL.—Companies incorporated under this Act could be put an end to only in one of two ways, viz., either through the machinery of a winding up or by the Registrar striking off the register defunct companies in certain cases.

APPLICABILITY OF THIS PART V.—The provisions relating to the winding-up are made applicable also to the following companies (Ss. 250 and 251) of the Act:

(i) Existing companies, i.e., companies formed and registered under the Companies Act 1866, or under any Act or Acts repealed thereby, or under the Companies Act, 1882.

(ii) Companies registered but not formed under Act XIX of 1857 and Act VII of 1860 or either of them, or under the Companies Act of 1866 or 1882.

(iii) Unregistered companies, i.e., any partnership, association or company consisting of more than seven persons and other than a railway company incorporated by Act of Parliament or by Act of the Governor-General in Council, and a company registered under this Act or any of the previous Companies Acts. In the case of the winding-up of these unregistered companies, certain exceptions and additions to the general provisions contained in this Part V are enacted in Part IX, Ss. 270-276 of this Act.

SEC. 156: SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF

SECTION.—This section proceeds on the assumption that the contributories are all innocent parties and that they must contribute equally towards the loss sustained by the company for no fault of theirs, subject however to certain equities which are contained in the exceptions contained in the section. Hence, whatever may be the effect of plea of fraud or misrepresentation as against managing agents, it does not affect the liability of the contributories, as such, in the winding-up of the company. 149 I.C. 869=1934 Sind 39. S. 156 creates a new liability as regards shareholders to contribute to the assets of the company, and this new liability arises for the first time upon the winding-up and is unaffected by the fact that previous calls have been made by the company and have become barred by limitation. 45 O.W.N. 879=1941 Cal. 143=I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 175. After the commencement of the proceedings for the winding up of a company, the fact that the shareholder whose name stands and has been for over a year in the register of the company became a member under an instrument of transfer which, being improperly stamped cannot be admitted into evidence or acted upon, cannot be taken into account, and the shareholder must be treated as a contributory. 23 Pat. 18=1944 Pat 226.

(i) a past member shall not be liable to contribute if he has ceased to be a member for one year or upwards before the commencement of the winding up ;

(ii) a past member shall not be liable to contribute in respect of any debt, or liability of the company contracted after he ceased to be a member ;

(iii) a past member shall not be liable to contribute unless it appears to the Court that the existing members are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of this Act ;

(iv) in the case of a company limited by shares, no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount (if any) unpaid on the shares in respect to which he is liable as a present or past member ;

(v) in the case of a company limited by guarantee, no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount undertaken to be contributed by him to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up ;

(vi) nothing in this Act shall invalidate any provision contained in any policy of insurance or other contract whereby the liability of individual members on the policy or contract is restricted, or whereby the funds of the company are alone made liable in respect of the policy or contract ;

It is too late in such a case to fall back upon the illegality of the transfer and to urge that the shareholder is not to be treated as a contributory. 23 Pat. 18=1944 Comp. C. 163=A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 226 (54 All. 827 =30 I.A. 1 P.O. Ref.).

“MEMBER”.—Where at the commencement of the winding-up a person had been in fact for over three years entered on the register of shareholders, with his full knowledge and consent, his liability flows from the fact of his being on the register in respect of those shares. Even if he took the shares under a contract with the company which is found to be illegal and void as offending against the provisions of S. 105 of the Act, that does not affect his liability to contribute on the winding up. The original contract may supply the reason for his name having been placed on the register in respect of the shares, but after the winding-up his liability in respect of the shares arises ex lege and not ex contractu. 60 I.A. 1=54 A. 827 =37 C.W.N. 373=63 M.L.J. 859 (P.C.). By mere death a member of a company does not become a ‘past member’ within the meaning of this section. Having died, though he cannot continue to be a member, his estate continues to be liable. 55 A. 417=1933 A.L.J. 233=1933 A. 334. A director of a company who ceases to be a director does not thereby cease to be a member of the company. He cannot be held to be a ‘past member’ of the company within the meaning of S. 156 (1) (i). 32 S.L.R. 167=1938 Sind 187.

LIABILITY OF CONTRIBUTORY.—This liability of the contributory, on the winding-up, to pay the money remaining unpaid in respect of his shares, is a new statutory liability and is enforceable at the instance of the liquidators. That there had been some transactions with the company before the winding-up or that there had been an arrangement with the directors by which the contributory's liability was excluded, cannot be pleaded in defence to the liquidator's claim. 59 C. 1099=36 C.W.N. 409=1932 C. 691. A person who is a signatory to the memorandum of association is responsible for the shares which in the memorandum of association are shown opposite his own name, and such a person is bound as far as the creditors of the company are concerned to pay up the amount due on such shares. 20 L.W. 74=33 I.C. 94=1924 M. 703. Where a person applied for obtaining certain shares in a company in the expectation of obtaining some commission or special gain, and an arrangement was made in accordance thereto by the promoters of the company and the application was granted, it was held that the allottee became a shareholder in presenti absolutely; and the breach or the unenforceability of the collateral agreement could not in any way interfere with the liability of the person as contributory on the liquidation of the company. 52 A. 476=1930 A.L.J. 139=1930 A. 357. There is a material distinction between an application with a condition precedent and an application with a collateral agreement or condition subsequent. 52 A. 406. So where a person signed a memorandum of association of a company purely on the understanding that he would be given certain number of shares as fully paid up in consideration of assets transferred to the company, and the memorandum itself showed the same, it was held that he was not liable as contributory even though the contract to transfer such paid-up shares was subsequently cancelled. 48 A. 503=24 A.L.J. 576=1926 A. 524.

WHEN LIABILITY ARISES.—When a company goes into liquidation and an official liquidator is appointed, the liability of the contributories to pay up the balance of their share amounts arise only when the Court is satisfied that the financial circumstances of the company are such that a call is necessary for discharging the liabilities of the company. Until the Court makes such an order, the shareholder need not pay the uncalled share-money. 1930 A.L.J. 1203=124 I.C. 726=1930 A. 617. The call in respect of the unpaid shares has to be made only after the list of contributories has been settled. But where, however, a liquidator who was appointed and given all the powers conferred by S. 179 of the Act made a call on the contributory in respect of his unpaid share before the settlement of the list of contributories and the same was paid, it was held that the contributory need not pay once over when the list was subsequently settled and a formal order of call was made. 59 I.C. 1099; 36 C.W.N. 409=139 I.C. 882=1932 C. 691.

(vii) a sum due to any member of a company in his character of a member, by way of dividends, profits, or otherwise, shall not be deemed to be a debt of the company payable to that member in a case of competition between himself and any other creditor not a member of the company; but any such sum may be taken into account for the purpose of the final adjustments of the rights of the contributories among themselves.

(2) In the winding up of a company limited by guarantee which has a share capital, every member of the company shall be liable, in addition to the amount undertaken to be contributed by him to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up to contribute to the extent of any sums unpaid on any shares held by him.

TRANSFER, FORFEITURE OF SURRENDER.—Under this Act which is almost a reproduction of the English Act, the liability of the shareholder is not taken away so far as the company is concerned by any transfer, surrender or forfeiture of the shares. Even after a transfer, forfeiture or surrender of the shares, if the liquidation takes place within one year of such transfer, etc., and he is placed on the list of contributories, the shareholder is liable. 20 L.W. 74=83 I.C. 94=1924 M. 703. It is not necessary that the list should have been placed before a meeting of creditors, to make the shareholder liable in such a case. 1924 M. 703. An intention to forfeit, not carried into effect, is no forfeiture at all. Where there was only a notice that the shares will be forfeited if the payment of call was not made within a certain fixed time, and there was no resolution of the directors, in fact, forfeiting the shares, it was held that there was no forfeiture at all and that the shareholder was liable as contributory even though the company went into liquidation more than one year from the date mentioned in the notice. 10 P. 249=12 Pat. L.T. 215=1931 P. 44; 36 P.L.R. 382.

CALLS IN RESPECT OF FORFEITED SHARES.—INTEREST.—Where calls made by a company are not paid and their recovery by the company is time-barred, the liquidator can have no higher rights than the company and as such he also cannot recover them. But if the claim of the liquidator is not on foot of the debt but is for contribution under S. 156 of the Companies Act, which creates a new liability, the shareholder is liable for unpaid calls and his liability is limited to the amount unpaid on the shares but not to interest. The fact that he has ceased to be a member by reason of the forfeiture of his shares by non-payment of call, would not help him. 1936 L. 226; 1936 L. 739.

CLAIM OF SET-OFF AGAINST CALLS.—Members with limited liability of a joint stock company under liquidation cannot set-off paid-up calls or calls to be paid up against a debt due to the company and thus give a preference over the creditors. The principle is applicable to a set-off claimed in Court as well as to one claimed one of Court. 40 M. 1004=32 M.L.J. 528.

JURISDICTION OF COURT.—After a winding up order the question as to the liability of a contributory should be decided only by the Court conducting the liquidation, and no suit is maintainable by a contributory in respect of it. 13 P.R. 1917=29 P.L.R. 1917=37 I.C. 791. When the liquidators of a company attached certain shares belonging to a contributory it was found that the son of the contributory was registered as the holder of those shares and in actual possession of them. The liquidators sought to prove that the transfer by the contributory to his son was a fraudulent one. Held, in such proceedings the executing Court is concerned only with the question of the possession of the property and cannot embark upon enquiries involving a decision as to the real as opposed to the apparent title to the property. The proper course for the liquidators to follow is to proceed by way of a regular suit under R. 63 of O. 21 of the Code of Civil Procedure if they have reason to believe that the transfer by the contributory was for any reason ineffective, inoperative and void as against the creditors in the winding up. (39 M.L.J. 350; I.L.R. 43 Mad. 700, Dist.) (1945) 2 M.L.J. 573. Winding-up.—Contributory.—Order for payment.—Execution against legal representative after death of contributory.—Property transferred to legal representative before death of deceased.—Rejection of application for attachment.—Appeal.—Contention that transfer to legal representative was fraudulent preference.—Sustainability.—Proper remedy of liquidators. See 1946 Comp.O. 18.

LIMITATION.—As soon as a company goes

157. In the winding up of a limited company any director whether past or present, whose liability is in pursuance of this Act, unlimited, shall, in addition to his liability (if any) to contribute as an ordinary member, be liable to make a further contribution as if he were at the commencement of the winding up a member of an unlimited company :

Provided that—

(i) a past director shall not be liable to make such further contribution if he has ceased to hold office for a year or upwards before the commencement of the winding up ;

(ii) a past director shall not be liable to make such further contribution in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after he ceased to hold office ;

(iii) subject to the articles a director shall not be liable to make such further contribution unless the Court deems it necessary to require that contribution in order to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding up.

158. The term “ contributory ” means every person liable to contribute to the assets of a company in the event of its being wound up, and, in all proceedings for determining and in all proceedings prior to the final determination of the persons who are to be deemed contributories, includes any person alleged to be a contributory.

Nature of liability of contributory.

159. ¹[(1) The liability of a contributory shall create a debt payable at the time specified in the calls made on him by the liquidator.]

into liquidation, the shareholders are saddled with a new statutory liability in respect of unpaid calls, and such calls are recoverable at the instance of the liquidators, though barred by time and irrecoverable by the company. The right of the liquidator is distinct from, and independent of, the right of the company, before the winding up, to make calls. The period of limitation for a suit by the liquidator for recovery of unpaid calls from the shareholders is six years under Art. 120, Limitation Act, and time begins to run from the date of default. 16 L. 1055=1935 L. 335; 155 I.C. 16=1934 L. 1015.

SECS. 156, 212 AND 216.—Where a shareholder has failed to pay for shares allotted to him as a signatory to the memorandum of association or on application, he can, in the event of the company going into liquidation, be placed upon the list of contributories and the liquidator can make a call upon him for what is due, in which case a Court can enforce the call without requiring the liquidator to institute a suit, and the amount of the call becomes payable irrespective of any question of limitation. There is no real difference between a company which is being compulsorily wound up and a company which is in voluntary liquidation. Where the contesting respondent raises several defences, the Court may direct the liquidator to file a suit. I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 538=1941 Mad. 565=(1941) 1 M. L.J. 369.

SEC. 158: CONTRIBUTORY.—The term ‘contributory’ as defined in S. 158 includes a shareholder who holds fully paid up shares only. 1938 A.L.J. 925=1938 All. 613. The holder of fully paid up shares is a contributory. Re Driffield Gas Light Co., (1898) 1 Ch. 451, although his name will not be entered in the list of contributories except at his own desire, since he has no further liability to contribute to the assets. Re Marlborough Club Co., (1868) L.R. 5 Eq. 365. See also 57 M. 955=67 M.L.J. 599=1934 M. 476. But a mere debtor to the company is not a contributory. Re European Society Arbitration Act, (1878) 8 Ch. D. 679; 25 A.L.J. 934=89 I.C. 994=1926 A. 101. Where a person who agreed to become a member on some condition precedent and the condition was not fulfilled, he does not become a member, and hence is not a contributory. 108 I.C. 192=1928 L. 234; 107 I.C. 492=1928 L. 236.

SEC. 159: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—Under the law as it stood previously there was some difficulty felt with reference to calls which may have been made more than three years before the winding up commenced. The language of the section was not clear as to the time when the cause of action with reference to such calls commenced. Hence it was thought necessary to render the matter clear and to provide by this amendment that in the case of such calls made before the date of winding up, the cause of action against the defaulter should be regarded as arising from the commencement of the winding up. Of course, on calls made after the commencement of the winding up the cause of action may properly be considered to rise from the date of the call.

DEBT.—Where a mutual benefit society carried on banking business by accepting deposits and granting loans to strangers, it was held that the transactions were ultra vires of the memorandum and articles of association of the company. Where the carrying on of a business by a company is ultra vires, the ultra vires transactions cannot create any debt either legal or equitable. The relationships between the depositor and the company in such cases, is not that of debtor and creditor, and the only possible remedy for the depositor is on in rem and not in personam. Hence, the contributories of the company during the liquidation proceedings are not liable to pay such debts. 1931 of fraud. 75 I.C. 745=1924 Lah. 649.

FRAUD.—A person whose agreement to be come a member of the company has been obtained by fraud may have the same rescinded before the commencement of the winding up. But when once an application for the compulsory winding up of the company has been made it is no longer open to the shareholder to get himself relieved of his liability as contributory on the ground of fraud. 75 I.C. 745.

SEC. 159, SUB-SEC. (2).—A suit by a company for recovery of arrears of allotment money and call money due on the shares allotted is cognizable by a Court of Small Causes. 34 P.L.R. 592=1933 L. 657. But see 59 C. 1186=36 C.W.N. 589=1932 C. 716. There it was held that a suit to enforce the liability of a shareholder for the balance due on his share was not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, and that a second appeal was competent, even though the amount demanded was less than Rs. 500.

SEC. 160: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1913.—Sub-section (3) has been added by the amending Act, and the provision contained therein has been aimed at securing that a surviving coparcener of a Hindu joint family under the Mitakshara law cannot escape liability under this section by asserting that he is neither an heir nor a legal representative.

LIABILITY OF REPRESENTATIVES.—Where a deceased person has been placed on the list of contributories and a payment order has been made against him, the remedy of the liquidator lies against the estate of the deceased in due course of administration as enacted in S. 160. 43 P.L.R. 650=1941 Lah. 480=199 I.C. 773. Until the company is duly informed of the death of a contributory, the deceased person continues to be liable as a member, and the company is not bound to take notice of the death otherwise. So all proceedings including the settlement of the list of contributories, adopted to the company in the name of the deceased, are good and are not a nullity as would otherwise be the case under the ordinary law. 59 B. 553=36 C.W.N. 1002=154 I.C. 178; 1934 B. 460. But see 52 A. 430=1930 A.L.J. 373=1930 A. 503, where it was held that an order against a deceased contributory was a nullity, and that, therefore, in order to fix the liability those persons who represent the estate of the contributory should be brought on record before an effective order may be made. But where the death of a contributory has taken place after an order of payment has been passed against him, the personal representatives of the contributory automatically become liable instead of the deceased contributory and no application is necessary to bring such representatives on record, and consequently, no question of limitation will arise in respect of such an application. The application is to be deemed to amount only to an intimation to the Court that the contributory was dead and that his representatives have to be treated by the Court as contributories. 141 I.C. 168=1932 L. 648. No question of limitation can arise in such a case. (Ibid.) See also 19 Pat.L.T. 214=1938 Pat. 287.

EXTENT OF LIABILITY.—The liability of the legal representatives of a deceased shareholder to contribute is limited to the extent of the assets, if any, which have come into their hands from the deceased shareholder. 10 P. 249=12 P.L.T. 215=1931 P. 44.

JOINT HINDU FAMILY.—Under this section a son in a joint Hindu family is liable as the legal representative of his father, as a contributory in due course of administration, only to the extent of the separate property of his father in which no other person had any interest in the lifetime of the father, when the joint family is constituted by members other than father and sons. The son's share in the joint family property is not liable under the doctrine of 'pious obligation' as the doctrine applies only in cases where

(2) If the legal representatives or heirs make default in paying any money ordered to be paid by them, proceedings may be taken for administering the property of the deceased contributory, whether moveable or immoveable, or both, and of compelling payment thereout of the money due.

Contributories in case of insolvency of member.

161. If a contributory is adjudged insolvent either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories, then—

(1) his assignees shall represent him for all the purposes of the winding up, and shall be contributories accordingly, and may be called on to admit to proof against the estate of the insolvent, or otherwise to allow to be paid out of his assets in due course of law, any money due from the insolvent in respect of his liability to contribute to the assets of the company; and

(2) there may be proved against the estate of the insolvent the estimated value of his liability to future calls as well as calls already made.

the family consists of father and sons alone. 55 A. 417=1933 A. 334. But this decision was disapproved in 57 A. 176, and the new sub-section (3) has been added to the section by the amending Act.

PROCEDURE.—This section lays down the procedure to be adopted in the matter of enforcing the liability of a deceased contributory. The proper course, in such a case, is to take proceedings to recover the amount in due course of administration of the estate of the deceased contributory and not by application for an order for payment against the heir personally. 59 B. 558.

SEC. 162: APPLICATION OF SECTION.—The power to wind up a company should not be used unless there is very strong ground for it because the Indian companies are governed by a majority of its own members, and where there is a domestic tribunal with powers to decide upon a question, it should, if possible, be left to the domestic tribunal. Unless a clear case is made out to the contrary it is for the shareholders of the company to decide whether the company's business shall be or shall not be carried on. 39 A. 334=15 A.L.J. 193=39 I.C. 570; 47 C. 654=59 I.C. 542. But this rule should not be as strictly applied in India as in England. In this country limited liability companies are in their infancy and shareholders and creditors are easily misled by fraudulent directors. Hence, while the opinion of shareholders and creditors undoubtedly ought to be taken into consideration, these classes of persons in India require to be protected against themselves. 16 L. 1029=38 P.L.

POWERS OF COURT.—Rules of companies curtailing the power of Court to wind up in circumstances under which the Court has power to do so under the Acts are ultra vires. 29 C. 688. A very wide discretion is given to the Court under this section, and the same has to be exercised with reference to the facts and circumstances of each case. Even where some of the requisites mentioned in the section exists, the Court is not bound to order the winding up. In a case where the business of the company was suspended for more than a whole year, the Court refused to order a winding up on an application by a shareholder, as it appeared to the Court that the suspension was due to temporary causes and was satisfactorily accounted for, and that there was every prospect of the business being resumed. 47 C. 654=59 I.C. 542. So also in a case where there was a failure to meet the statutory demand for payment of a creditor's debt, the Court refused to order the winding up at the instance of the creditor as it found that there was a bona fide dispute as to the company's liability to that debt. 106 I.C. 423=1939 M. 265. Similarly in the case of a company which had lost 5 lacs out of 7 lacs of its capital, in a misadventure, the Court refused to order the winding up of the company, as the majority of the shareholders was opposed to the winding up and as the loss was due to mismanagement of the former directors, and as the company was showing progress under the new management. 5 R. 685=107 I.C. 860=1928 R. 36. On the other hand, where owing to the fraudulent and undue influence exercised by the directors, a majority of shareholders and creditors happened to prefer a voluntary winding up conducted by

- (i) if the company has by special resolution resolved that the company be wound up by the Court ;
- (ii) if default is made in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting ;
- (iii) if the company does not commence its business within a year from its incorporation, or suspends its business for a whole year ;
- (iv) if the number of members is reduced, in the case of a private company, below two or, in the case of any other company, below seven ;
- (v) if the company is unable to pay its debts ;

some of the directors themselves, the Court ordered compulsory liquidation at the instance of a minority. 16 L. 1029=38 P.L.R. 166=1935 L. 779. In an application for winding up a company, the Court will not investigate into conduct of the directors or consider whether they have exceeded their borrowing powers given to them under the articles of association. The question of exceeding the borrowing powers, is essentially a question of internal management of the company, and when the company has taken the view that the directors acted in the best interests of the company the Court will not go behind that. 1942 Comp.C. 215=44 Bom. L.R. 387=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 231. Where in consequence of an onerous contract with a creditor the company loses its identity and the creditor becomes de facto the company with a power to bring it to an end whenever it suited him and in accordance with the stipulations of the contract he seizes the machinery and plant of the company with the result that the company is unable to carry on its business and to pay its debts it is just and equitable to wind up the company. 1941 P.O. 106 (P.O.). As to right of policy-holder of life Assurance company to apply for winding up. See 40 Bom.L.R. 52=1938 Bom. 182. In an application for winding up of a company, the mere fact that the petitioner or applicant holds only a small number of shares, e.g., five shares out of 2500 shares issued, should not by itself prevent the Court from making the order asked for. The main consideration which the Court has to keep before it is the interest of both the shareholders and the creditors, and the fact that the overwhelming majority of the shareholders are opposing the application and a large number of creditors are also doing the same and the rest are taking no part is a fact which must bear the Court in coming to its decision. 44 Bom.L.R. 387=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 231. In judging the financial position of an insurance company at a given moment, while it is not possible to regard the entire unpaid capital as available to the creditors at its face value, it is equally wrong to leave it out of consideration altogether, regardless of the position and solvency of the shareholders. On the one hand, allowance must be made for the fact that some of the shareholders may not be able to meet the call when made, and those who have the means may not be willing to pay too readily; on the other hand, it cannot be assumed that not a single pie out of this large sum can be taken to be available for meeting the contingent liability of the policy-holders. 45 P.L.R. 49=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 109.

SEC. 162, CL. (1): JURISDICTION.—An order for voluntary liquidation under supervision passed by the Court, consequent upon the resolution passed at the extraordinary meeting of the company, is not without jurisdiction merely by reason of the fact that the meeting was convened within 14 days of the issue of notice, or that the resolution was conditional. It may be a bad order, but it is not without jurisdiction. 126 I.C. 74=1930 L. 721.

PROPER APPLICATION NECESSARY FOR COURT TO ACT.—An application for the appointment of an Official Liquidator cannot be treated as one for compulsorily winding up the company when on the face of it the rules to be strictly observed have not been observed. The Court is not concerned merely with the litigants or the parties before it in the jurisdiction conferred upon it under the Companies Act, but is concerned with the creditors, or contributories and the public generally, and indeed it has no power to waive any irregularity as regards the strict compliance with the law laid down in the Act and the rules made thereunder. 162 I.C. 213=1936 P. 468.

SEC. 162, CL. (iii).—Where the firm of managing agents of a company was dissolved, and steps were being taken at extraordinary general meetings to appoint new managing agents, it was held that there was sufficient indication that it was possible to carry on the business of the company and that there was no complete deadlock necessitating the compulsory winding up of the company. 47 C. 654=59 I.C. 542.

SEC. 162, CL. (v).—The Court has to see under this clause whether the company is commercially insolvent, i.e., whether it is unable to meet its current demands, although the assets when realised may exceed its liabilities. If the company is commercially insolvent, it may be wound up. 143 I.C. 185=1933 L. 301. When the Court is called upon to wind up a company under S. 162 (v) on the ground that it is unable to pay its debts, what has to be ascertained is not whether the company if it converted all its assets into cash, would be able to discharge its debts, but whether, in a commercial sense, the Company is solvent. In deciding whether a company is able to pay its debts, the subscribed capital of the company which is due and which has not yet been called up can be taken into account as money available for the discharge of the debts. A company is entitled to regard money which it is entitled to call up on account of shares from the contributories as money available for the discharge of its debts. 20 Pat. 538 = 1941 Pat. 603. See also 1941 P.C. 106 (P.C.); 23 Pat.L.T. 23. There is obviously a great difference between a question of positive fact, such as the pecuniary position of a trading company, at a particular date, and a question of the prospectus of such a company in the future, a matter which must depend on all sorts of views as to the state of world trade, the confidence of the public, the price at which articles can be sold, a matter which depends very largely upon the number of such sales and an infinity of other considerations very difficult either to summarise or to define. It is not the function of a Court to determine such a matter on its own views as to probable success or failure, but to form the best opinion it can upon the evidence given by persons with a practical knowledge of the trade in question and the local conditions where these affect the matter. 161 I.C. 539 = 1936 P.C. 114 (P.C.). The debt referred to in this sub-clause is one which is presently payable, and in respect of which the title of the petitioner must be complete. It is not sufficient to show that some other debt is due or even that there is something over Rs. 500, due in respect of the claim made if that is not the sum in respect of which the statutory demand (vide S. 163, infra) was made. The law requires that a demand must be made for a debt that is due, and it is not permissible to support a petition by alleging that something else is due. 62 C. 294. And where there is a bona fide dispute as to the company's liability to pay the debt of any creditor, the creditor's application for its winding up will not be granted. The Court will not allow in such a case the provisions of this section being used for getting the payment of his debts, but he will be referred to a suit to recover his claim. 106 I.C. 423 = 1929 M. 265; 2 R. 575 = 1925 R. 128. But where there is no trace of any mala fides, and the object of the creditor is simply to recover his debts out of the assets as may be available and the company is not in a position to pay the debt, the creditor is prima facie entitled to an order of winding up. A shareholder who was also the principal creditor of a company applied for winding up of the company. Before filing his application, he had served on the company a notice of demand requiring payment of his debt, but the company failed to pay the same. The company was in a moribund condition, its main assets had fallen much in value, and it had suffered heavy losses. It was held that there were proper reasons for granting a winding up order. 11 L. 80 = 1929 L. 651.

(vi) if the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up.

S. 162 (v) AND (vi).—Winding up—Grounds—Misconduct or mismanagement of directors—Company working at a loss.—The mere fact that the Court is of opinion that the business of a company cannot be carried on, or probably will not be carried on in a successful manner is not a sufficient ground for winding up. So, again, mere misconduct or mismanagement on the part of the directors, even though it might be such as to justify a suit against them in respect of such misconduct or mismanagement, is not of itself sufficient to justify a winding up order. The substratum of the company is deemed to be gone when (a) the subject-matter of the company is gone, or (b) the object for which it was incorporated has substantially failed, or (c) it is impossible to carry on the business of the company except at a loss, in other words there is no reasonable hope that the object of trading at a profit can be attained or (d) the existing and probable assets are insufficient to meet the existing liabilities. It is impossible to say that the assets are insufficient to meet the existing liabilities when no creditor is pressing for payment of his debt. It would not be just and equitable for the Court to make a winding up order on the grounds merely that the directors were guilty of misconduct and that the business has been carried on at a heavy loss. There are per se not grounds on which a winding up could be ordered. 44 Bom. L.R. 387 = A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 231.

SEC. 162, CL. (vi): JUST AND EQUITABLE GROUNDS, GENERAL PRINCIPLES.—No general rule can be laid down as to the nature of the circumstances which have to be borne in mind in considering whether the case comes within the phrase 'just and equitable' for purposes of winding up. The decisive question must be whether at the date of the presentation of the winding up petition there is any reasonable hope that the object of trading at a profit, with a view to which the company is formed, can be attained. In considering that question, the guarantee of the preference shares should be left out of sight, except in so far as it may have biased the evidence on either side. Where there was no question of a deadlock, nor was there any question of shareholders who have the voting power using that power for their own commercial interests outside the company in disregard of the interests of a minority, nor again was there any question involved of an improper management of the company by the directors who were in control and the problem involved was of the nature of a business problem: Held, that if there was at the relevant time a reasonable hope of tiding over the period of deep depression and of emerging into a region in which the company might reasonably expect to carry on at a profit, there would seem to be no sufficient reason why the Court should wind up the company under the just and equitable clause. 161 I.C. 539=1936 P.C. 114 (P.C.). The position of the Court in determining whether it is just and equitable to wind up the company requires a fair consideration of all the circumstances connected with the information and the carrying on of the company; and the common misfortune which had befallen some shareholders in the company does not involve the consequence that the ultimate desires and hopes of the ordinary shareholders should be disregarded merely because there is a strong interest in favour of liquidation naturally felt by the holders of the preference shares. 161 I.C. 539=1936 P.C. 114 (P.C.). See also 1936 A. 840. In deciding whether it is just and equitable to wind up a company under S. 162 (vi) the decisive question is whether at the date of the presentation of the petition there is any reasonable hope that the object of trading at a profit is attainable. The onus of proof is on the petitioning creditor or contributory. It is not the function of the Court to determine the question of the prospects of the company in future on its own views as to probable success or failure, but to form the best opinion it can upon the evidence of persons given with a practical knowledge of the trade in question and the legal conditions where these affect the matter. If at the relevant time, there is a reasonable hope of tiding over a period of difficulty and emerging into a region in which the company might reasonably expect to carry on at a profit, there is no sufficient reason why the Court should wind up the company under class (vi) of S. 162. Where there is no evidence of persons with practical knowledge of the business in question, the fact that a public officer, whose duty it is to intervene in cases where a company's affairs are not conducted in a sound manner, has not taken action to wind up the company is, of course, not a deciding factor in determining whether a petition for winding up by a contributory should be granted or not, but it is a fact which is deserving of consideration under the just and equitable clause. 20 Pat. 538=1941 Pat. 603. A company is said to be commercially insolvent when its assets are such, and its existing liabilities are such, as to make it reasonably certain—as to make the Court feel satisfied—that the existing and probable assets would be insufficient to meet the existing liabilities. The decisive test is whether at the date of the presentation of the winding up petition there was any reasonable hope that the object of trading at a profit, with a view to which the company was formed, could be attained. It is for the applicant to prove and to satisfy the Court that there is no such reasonable hope. 44 Bom.L.R. 387=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 231.

"JUST AND EQUITABLE", CONSTRUCTION OF.—This term is not to be construed eiusdem generis with the preceding clauses of the section. 48 M. 448=48 M.L.J. 118=1925 M. 489; 30 Bom.L.R. 1509=114 I.C. 349=1929 B. 8. But the Courts will yet require grounds of a like magnitude before acting under this clause, and it is only in extreme cases that the Court will at the suggestion of the minority disregard the wishes of the domestic forum and condemn the company to extinction. 13 Bur.L.T. 51=59 I.C. 524. In the case of a non-trading private company the object of which was to pay off family debts and the shareholders of which were mainly the members of that family, to bring the company within 'the just and equitable' clause of this section, it must be shown that the substratum of the company, (i.e., the family property) has gone, or that a deadlock has arisen in the sense that it is now impossible for the company to carry on the objects for which it was formed. 58 C. 716=132 I.C. 321=1931 C. 692. Where the company is in a moribund condition and has sustained heavy losses, and is unable to pay its creditors, and its assets have considerably fallen in value: 11 L. 80=1929 L. 651. Where the company's business was at a standstill and it was unable to pay its debts or the salaries of its employees for several months, and had no cash nor credit to raise money, and where there was no prospect of work being resumed for an appreciable time: 126 I.C. 185=1930 L. 777. Where a person who had been adjudicated insolvent transferred large estate to a private limited company in which he had 90 per cent. of shares and over which he had complete control: 5 R. 685=107 I.C. 860=1928 R. 36. Where there was a lack of confidence in the conduct and management of the company owing to the management being held in one family which was in a position to dominate the other shareholders and monopolise the company's affairs for its own benefit. 48 M.L.J. 232=21 L.W. 36=86 I.C. 914. A press which was a limited concern was leased to a certain person who subsequently subleased it to another at large profits. Numerous shareholders had also to file suits against the company for recovering the dividends due to them. The Chairman of the press was found not authorised by the persons whose names appeared in the dividend warrants to give an acquittance or receipt on their behalf. Held, that under the circumstances it was just and equitable that the company should be wound up. 53 M. 38=1930 M. 240=57 M.L.J. 426. Where there was no properly constituted directorate, nor had a single balance sheet been issued during five years of the company's existence, and the cash balance was alleged to have dwindled to nothing. 13 L. 603=1932 L. 571. Where the substantial part of the business of the company was illegal and constituted an offence under S. 294-A, I.P.C. although the object of the company was to benefit some charities. 56 M. 26=63 M.L.J. 554=1933 M. 16. See also 66 M. L.J. 76; 57 M. 844. In the following cases it was held that there were no just and equitable grounds for ordering a winding up.—

(i) Where the ground of the application was only an ultra vires transaction on the part of the directors; and where there were other remedies open to the aggrieved shareholder in respect of it. 55 M. 180=61 M.L.J. 783=1932 P.C. 1=58 I.A. 416 (P.C.).

(ii) Mere misconduct of directors. Re Gold Company, (1879) 11 Ch. D. 701, C. A. No doubt the mere misconduct of directors or of managing agents or the fact that the business of the company has not resulted in profit is not per se a ground for winding up. But where the cumulative effect of these facts does demonstrate that the company is insolvent, that its affairs have been mismanaged from the very outset, that debts have been recklessly incurred and never paid; that the provisions of the Companies Act as regards the maintenance and publication of the true balance sheets have been deliberately contravened, and the information necessary to keep the shareholders cognizant of the true state of affairs has been studiously concealed from them all through, the company ought to be compulsorily wound up. 166 I.C. 238=1936 A. 840=I.L.R. (1937) All. 210.

(iii) The mere fact that the business is carried on at a heavy loss (where the company is not insolvent) especially when the loss was due to previous mismanagement and it was shown that it would be in a sound position under the new management. 30 Bom.L.R. 1549=114 I.C. 840=1929 B. 8.

(iv) That the company has acted dishonestly in its dealings with outsiders especially when such dealings are not connected with the promotion or formation of the company and are not dealings with the shareholders as regards their membership in the company. Re Medical Battery Co. (1894) 1 Ch. 444.

(v) The mere fact that there has been a fraud in the promotion of the company or fraudulent representation in the prospectus, would be insufficient to found a winding up order on, as the majority of the shareholders may waive the fraud. 49 C. 399=69 I.C. 241=1922 C. 365.

(vi) A mere apprehension on the part of C. C. M.—192

the applicants that loss may occur from a further working of the company, where there has been no fraud in the conception of the company and where its substratum had not gone. 39 A. 334=15 A.L.J. 193=39 I.C. 570.

(vii) The mere fact that a majority of shareholders in meeting directed to be held by Court voted in favour of the winding up of the company either under the supervision of the Court or by the Court compulsorily, where there was no valid resolution for voluntary winding up. 49 C. 399=69 I.C. 241=1922 C. 365.

(viii) The mere fact that the managing director had a preponderating voice in the company by reason of his owning or controlling a large number of shares or that dividends had not been paid regularly, in the absence of other circumstances to prove a lack of confidence in the conduct and management of the company's affairs. 55 M. 180=61 M.L.J. 783=1932 P.C. 1=58 I.A. 416 (P.C.).

(ix) Where a minority of creditors seek a compulsory winding up order, while the majority of the creditors are opposed to the winding up by the Court and prefer voluntary liquidation with a view to reconstruction. 10 R. 143=1932 R. 75. Where the report of the auditors shows that there had been defalcation of certain funds of the company and that attempts were made to cover up the defalcation by various devices, and the contributories level charges of dishonesty and mismanagement against each other, the case is one in which the conduct of some officers of the company would require investigation which can only be obtained in winding up by the Court. In such circumstances considerations of justice and equity are more in favour of a compulsory winding-up than voluntary liquidation. 168 I.C. 185=1937 O.W.N. 627=1937 Oudh 377.

PETITION BY CREDITOR FOR WINDING UP—OPPOSITION BY DEBENTURE-HOLDERS.—WHEN SUSTAINABLE.—The debenture-holders who oppose a petition by a creditor for the winding up of the company must show that there is no possibility of any benefit accruing to the unsecured creditors from an order for the winding up. Otherwise their opposition to the petition is without substance. The unsecured creditors are entitled to ask the Court to pass a winding up order so that the question whether the debentures were bona fide issued for value may be enquired into and they may, before it is too late, be able to realize, if not the whole, at least a portion of their unsecured debts. 166 I.C. 238=1936 A. 840=I.L.R. SEC. 163: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—(i) In cl. (i) for the words 'by leaving the same' the words 'by causing the same to be delivered by registered post or otherwise' have been substituted; (ii) The present sub-section (2) has been newly added 'transmission by post'. The present sub-the manner of serving on a company a demand for payment of debts, has been made with a view to avoid disputes as to whether there was due service or not. In fact in a case in Calcutta it was doubted whether the words 'by leaving the same' included transmission by post'. The present sub-section (2) has been inserted on account of the trouble created by the use of the words 'under his hand' in the section. In 54 C. 345 the phrase was construed to mean 'under the signature of the creditor himself'; and it was held in fact that a notice signed by an agent was not a valid notice within the meaning of this section. The necessary consequence of this decision was that where the creditor was a partnership firm the notice had to be signed by all the partners individually. Similarly, in the case of foreign creditors, the signature by the constituted attorney would not have been sufficient. The practical inconveniences and difficulty of such requirements are obvious, and they were never intended by the legislature. Hence, the explanation of the phrase: 'under the signature' has been added by the amendment.

APPLICATION OF SECTION.—The statutory notice under this section is a highly formal and important document and to give rise to the presumption afforded by the section, the provisions of the Act as to its service upon the company must be strictly observed. 58 C. 716=1931 C. 692. The company to be served with notice must be in default at the time of service, and it is to be served with the demand under special precautions so that if it makes a further default for a period of 3 weeks the question of its inability to pay its debts may be set at rest. 54 C. 345=103 I.C. 629=1927 C. 625. But once a notice is properly given and default is made it is not open to the company to show that, in spite of the non-payment of the debt, the company is in a position to pay the debts as, e.g., where on account of temporary embarrassment it was unable to meet the particular liability, though it has had ample assets in its hands. The default will be treated as conclusive evidence of the company's inability to pay its debts. 5 R. 483=105 I.C. 534=1927 R. 306. See also 1936 A. 840. It does not follow from the fact that all the three clauses of S. 163 are mutually exclusive of each other, that cl. (i) of the section does not apply to a judgment-debt. Cl. (i) is general in its terms and has application to all sorts of debt, be it a simple money debt, a mortgage debt, or a judgment debt. In the case of a judgment-debt, if execution for the recovery of that debt has been taken and has remained unsatisfied, the Court is, in accordance with cl. (ii) of S. 163, bound to presume that the company is unable to pay its debts. Nevertheless, the decree-holder is not barred from making a demand for the payment of the judgment-debt by a notice in accordance with cl. (i) without having recourse to execution proceedings. In such a case, if the demand remains unsatisfied for three weeks, the presumption enjoined by S. 163 necessarily follows. 166 I.C. 238=1936 A. 840=I.L.R. (1937) All. 210.

Where it is by no means clear that there are debts due by a Company to persons applying for winding up, and the question as to whether there are debts or not depends upon many factors which are not admitted or undisputed, such matters cannot be gone into on a winding up petition based on the neglect of the Company to pay its debts under S. 163 (1) of the Companies Act. When there is a bona fide dispute as to liability and a bona fide dispute as to the nature of liability, if such liability be ever found to exist, the refusal on the part of the Company to pay in such circumstances cannot be regarded as a mere neglect to pay its debts, and it cannot be held that the Company is insolvent by reason of its neglect to pay under S. 163. A petition for winding up in such a case will not lie and must be dismissed. 1944 Comp. Cas. 224.

'UNABLE TO PAY ITS DEBTS'.—This term includes commercial insolvency, i.e., inability to pay debts as they become due, although when all the assets of the company should be realised they may be found to be in excess of the liabilities of the company. 143 I.C. 135=1933 L. 301.

'DEMAND'.—The demand must be for a debt that is due, i.e., the debt must be presently payable and the title of the petitioner must be complete. It is not open to the applicant to show that some other debts besides the one for which the statutory demand was made was due. 62 C. 294. In the case of a petition by a creditor of the company for winding up, on the ground that his statutory demand for payment was not complied with by the company, and the company contested that the claim made by

(i) if a creditor, by assignment or otherwise, to whom the company is indebted in a sum exceeding five hundred rupees then due, has served on the company, [by causing the same to be delivered by registered post or otherwise] at its registered office, a demand under his hand requiring the company to pay the sum so due and the company has for three weeks thereafter neglected to pay the sum, or to secure or compound for it to the reasonable satisfaction of the creditor; or

(ii) if execution or other process issued on a decree or order of any Court in favour of a creditor of the company is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part; or

(iii) if it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the company is unable to pay its debts, and, in determining whether a company is unable to pay its debts, the Court shall take into account the contingent and prospective liabilities of the company.

²[(2) The demand referred to in clause (i) of sub-section (1) shall be deemed to have been duly given under the hand of the creditor if it is signed by an agent or legal adviser duly authorised on his behalf, or in the case of a firm if it is signed by such agent or by a legal adviser or any one member of the firm on behalf of the firm.]

164. Where the High Court makes an order for winding up a company under this Act, it may, if it thinks fit, direct all subsequent proceedings to be had in a District Court; and thereupon such District Court shall, for the purpose of winding up the company, be deemed to be "the Court" within the meaning of this Act, and shall have, for the purposes of such winding up, all the jurisdiction and powers of the High Court.

Winding up may be referred to District Court.

the creditor was fraudulent and unsustainable in law, the Court has to see whether the plea of the company is bona fide or merely a cloak to screen its real inability to pay its debts. The Court should also see whether the creditor was acting bona fide, and has not filed his petition with a view to bring the pressure of insolvency proceedings to bear upon the company in order to make it pay cheaply and expeditiously a heavy debt which the company desires to dispute in civil Courts. 39 B. 47 = 16 Bom. L.R. 692 = 27 I.C. 44. A notice of demand by the solicitors, advocates, or agents of the creditors was held in some cases, as not being sufficient compliance with the provisions of this section. But now the sub-section (2) has been added by the Amending Act, explaining the term 'demand'. The provisions in cl. (i) of S. 163 that the notice by the creditor must be a "demand under his hand" asking for the payment of the debt must be strictly complied with, otherwise, the demand, though followed by neglect of the company to pay the debt demanded cannot be made the basis of presumption that the company is unable to pay its debts. Clause (i) of S. 163 imposes a penal obligation upon the company; and has therefore, to be strictly construed. A demand by a limited liability company under the hand of its manager must be deemed to be a demand by the company under its hand. 166 I. C. 238 = 1936 A.W.R. 1113 = 1936 A. 840. No doubt the mere service of a notice by a creditor on a solvent company does not entitle the creditor to a winding up order if the company bona fide disputes the existence of the debt. But this principle has no application where the denial by the company of its liability is mala fide and dishonest. 166 I.C. 238 = 1936 A. 840 = I.L.R. (1937) All. 210.

'NEGLECTED'.—If omission to pay the debt is on account of a bona fide dispute, it would not amount to 'neglect' within the meaning of this section. 2 R. 575 = 84 I.C. 1021; 1929 M. 265 = 106 I.C. 423; 58 C. 716 = 1931 C. 692.

SEC. 164: JURISDICTION OF DISTRICT JUDGE.—Under this section, the District Judge has, for the purpose of winding up a company, all the jurisdiction and powers of the High Court, and he can therefore order attachment before judgment of property situated beyond his jurisdiction. 106 I. C. 809 = 1928 L. 376. The Additional District Judge also has jurisdiction to make all the orders which the District Judge can make in the winding up of a company. 47 M.L.J. 322 = 27 C.W.N. 509 = 69 I.C. 356 (P.C.).

PROCEDURE.—Where applications are made by the official liquidator to the High Court for an order directing the District Court within whose jurisdiction the property of the contributory may be situated, to enforce the payment orders made by another High Court in the matter of the winding up of a company, it is not competent for the High Court to authorise the official liquidator to apply

According to the Madras High Court the proper procedure in such a case would be as indicated by the conjoint effect of Ss. 199 and 200 of the Act, vis., that the order of another High Court filed in this High Court should be treated in the same manner as a decree passed by this High Court in which it is filed, and transferred for execution to the respective District Courts concerned. 25 L.W. 113=1927 M. 271.

SEC. 166: AMENDMENTS BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—(i) After the words 'together or separately' the words 'or by the Registrar' have been inserted. (ii) Cl. (aa) has been newly added. The first amendment makes provision for enabling the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies also to present a petition for the winding up of any company. The second amendment defines the circumstances and conditions in which the power may be exercised by the Registrar.

'CREDITOR'.—In cases decided under the corresponding S. 170 (1) of the English Act, the following persons have been included under the term 'creditors': (i) The assignee of a debt, provided the assignment has not been made while the creditor's petition is pending; (ii) The equitable assignee of part of a debt; (iii) The executor of a creditor, even before probate; (iv) a creditor; in respect of a debt incurred by voluntary liquidators; (v) A secured creditor; (vi) A judgment-creditor; (vii) The holder of a debenture including a bearer debenture; and (viii) The holder of an investment bond (of an insolvent company which has not yet matured for payment). (See Halsbury, Vol. V, 549.).

THE FOLLOWING PERSONS WILL NOT BE CREDITORS UNDER THIS SECTION, ENTITLED TO PETITION:—(i) A person claiming unliquidated damages; (ii) A judgment-creditor who has attached a debt due from the company to his judgment-debtor; (iii) A surety in respect of a mortgage-debt of another company which has assigned the equity of redemption to the company petitioned against, on the terms that the latter indemnifies the former; (iv) A creditor who has so charged or dealt with his debt as to pass the real interest therein to another person; and (v) A person whose debt is bona fide disputed by the company. (Halsbury, Vol. V, p. 550.).

'CONTRIBUTORIES'.—A person who has fully paid up his shares is included in the term 'contributory' and he is entitled to present a petition for winding up. 53 M. 38=57 M. L.J. 426=1930 M. 240; 91 P.R. 1917=36 I. C. 980. Also person holding power of attorney from executors under a will of deceased contributory. 1937 O.W.N. 627=1937 Oudh 377. Persons who do not cease to be members of the company for one year or more before the commencement of the winding up proceedings are also contributories within the meaning of this section and they are entitled to apply for winding up if the shares were held by them and registered in their names for more than six months before the commencement of the winding up proceedings. 13 L. 603=1932 L. 571. The provision contained in the proviso to cl. (a) (ii) is for the purpose of preventing shares being transferred to any body; e.g., the nominee of a rival in trade, to qualify him to present a petition. The circumstances in which a contributory can file a petition for winding up are set forth in cl. (a).

SEC. 167.—When once a winding up order is made, the company becomes as from the date of the petition incapable of entering into contracts without the sanction of the Court. 59 M.L.J. 826.

SECURED CREDITOR.—A secured creditor will not be affected by an order for winding up so far as his security is concerned. He may proceed in any manner that may be open to him to realise his amount from the security. If that should not be sufficient to satisfy his debt in full, he may also like the other creditors of the company prove in the liquidation proceedings in respect of the outstanding balance. The remaining assets will be liable for such principal and interest as was due on the day of the winding up order. 3 L. 59=74 I.C. 187.

LIMITATION.—As regards the application of the statute of limitation there is no analogy between the position of a debtor to, and creditor of, a company in liquidation. The winding up does not prevent the statute from running in favour of persons indebted to the company. 54 A. 1067=64 M.L.J. 403=1933 P.C. 63=60 I.A. 13 (P.C.) ; 55 A. 912. But now see the amended S. 235, which provides a period of three years from the date of the appointment of the first liquidators, in respect of various claims mentioned therein.

169. The Court may, at any time after the presentation of the petition for winding up a company under this Act, and before Court may grant injunction. making an order for winding up the company, upon the application of the company or of any creditor or contributory of the company, restrain further proceedings in any suit or proceeding against the company, upon such terms as the Court thinks fit.

170. The Judge conducting the liquidation has power to recall a wrong order, and rectify a mistake. 13 P.L.R. 1919=51 I.C. 723. SEC. 170: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—Sub-section (3) now provides for notice of a Court's order for winding up being sent to the official receiver. (See also notes under S. 171-A amendment, infra.)

APPEAL.—An appeal lies from an order refusing to wind up a company. 39 B. 47=16 Bom.L.R. 692=27 I.C. 44.

SEC. 171: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—After the words 'has been made' the words 'or a provisional liquidator has been appointed' have been added. Under the law as it stood before this amendment, it was only after the winding up order was made, that all proceedings against the company were stayed and that proceedings could not be commenced or continued without the leave of the Court. In the interregnum between the presentation of a petition for the winding up and the order for winding up, the Court to which the petition has been presented had no power to stay proceedings in a proper case. Provincial liquidators were often appointed to protect the assets, but their appointment did not operate as a stay of proceedings. A stay under such circumstances could not possibly prejudice any party as matters would only be kept in statu quo ante. There are provisions in the English law for stay under such circumstances, and the present amendment follows the English Act and provides that the appointment of a provisional liquidator should operate as a stay.

POWERS OF COURT.—Leave of liquidation Court must be taken before unsuccessful claimants can sue the company which is in liquidation. 70 P. R. 1919=50 I. C. 645. Leave to continue an action should be given only where there arises some question which cannot be determined satisfactorily in the winding up proceedings. 93 P.R. 1919=47 I.C. 1005. Under this section the Court has very wide powers. It may grant leave unconditionally or it may grant it on terms, or it may refuse it absolutely. But in the exercise of its discretion, the Court cannot act arbitrarily or capriciously. Thus leave to sue should ordinarily be granted to a secured creditor, unless there are special grounds to refuse the grant; and the Court will not be justified in forcing him to prove his debt in liquidation. 139 I.C. 504=1932 L. 475. See also 51 A. 695=1929 A.L.J. 811=1929 A. 353 (F.B.). of the Company in as much as they are not the Company itself. 1943 O.W.N. 339=1943 O.A. (C.C.) 214=1944 Oudh 147.

SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—The provisions of this section apply both to liquidation by the Court itself and liquidation under the supervision of the Court. 50 A. 419=26 A. L.J. 131=1928 A. 165. Once a winding up order is made, the provisions of this section would automatically apply. 58 C. 946=133 I.C. 186=1932 C. 76. Where the original proceedings have been begun by a company, as the plaintiff and decree-holder, no permission of the liquidating Court as required by this section is necessary for appeals or revisions which may be presented by the unsuccessful defendants or judgment-debtors against orders passed in the proceedings. 1936 Pesh. 97; 62 P.R. 1918=47 I.C. 392 (F.B.). "Proceeding" in S. 171, Companies Act, is not confined to an original proceeding but covers execution proceedings also. Execution proceedings were started under a mortgage decree by the decree-holders. A Bank, which was a limited company was impleaded as a party to the suit as well as the execution, as it was a puisne mortgagee, and went into liquidation subsequent to the filing of the execution proceedings. Held, that the Bank, though a puisne mortgagee, was not a mere pro forma party, but was a party liable to pay the amount of the mortgage debt, and sanction of the Court which passed the order of winding up was necessary under S. 171, for the purpose of continuing the execution proceedings. 56 L.W. 644=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 84=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 448. Where a company in liquidation itself files execution proceedings, it cannot invoke the aid of this section to prevent the defendants from defending their property in the execution proceedings. Objections under O. 21, R. 58, can be raised during the proceedings and the Court is bound to hear the objections; and if it refuses to hear them on the ground that the objectors have not obtained leave of the liquidation Court, it would fail to exercise the jurisdiction vested in it by law, and its order would be open to revision. 164 I.C. 1012=1936 Pesh. 185. An appeal or an application for revision arising out of an action brought by a company does not come within the purview of S. 171 and such appeal or application can be instituted, or proceeded with, without the leave of the Liquidation Court. 1938 Lah. 754. But see 1941 All. 154; 1941 Lah. 392. Leave under this section means leave by the winding up Court. When once leave is granted it includes all subsidiary legal proceedings, and therefore an application by the transferee of a decree for substitution has to be made to the execution Court and not to the winding up Court. 41 A. 432=17 A. L.J. 464=50 I.C. 115. Where a decree was assigned by a company which has since gone into liquidation, the execution proceedings are maintainable at the instance of the assignee even though leave of Court had not been obtained. The only person who can object to the same is the assignor company. 37 C.W.N. 909=1933 C. 809. When once an action by the company in liquidation has been proceeded with, and is successful, there is no necessity for the defendants in the action to obtain leave for any defensive proceeding on their behalf, as the defendants cannot be said to proceed with or commence any legal proceedings against the company. 1937 Lah. 926. The word "suit" in S. 171, means a proceeding which is instituted with the presentation of a plaint in a Court of original jurisdiction. The expression "legal proceeding" in this section is coupled with "suit" and obviously means proceedings ejusdem generis, that is to say, original proceedings in a Court of first instance, analogous to a suit initiated by means of a petition similar to a plaint. It does not include proceedings taken in the course of the suit, nor proceedings arising from the suit and continued in a higher Court, like an appeal from an interlocutory order or final order passed in the suit. 43 P.L.R. 505=1941 Lah. 392=I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 760 (F.B.) See also 1941 All. 154. Where in execution of a decree obtained by a company in liquidation, certain property has been attached as belonging to the judgment-debtor, and a third person has unsuccessfully objected to the attachment on the ground that the property belonged to him and not to the judgment-debtor, such person cannot bring a suit under O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code, against the company for a declaration of his title without having first obtained under S. 171 leave of the Court which had passed the winding up order. 43 P.L.R. 505=1941 Lah. 392 (F.B.).

SUIT COMMENCED AFTER WINDING UP—IF LEAVE CAN BE GRANTED.—Under S. 171, Companies Act, leave to proceed with a pending legal proceeding can only be granted where that proceeding has been initiated prior to the winding up order. A Court has no jurisdiction to give a plaintiff leave to continue a suit instituted without leave subsequent to the winding up order. 40 C. W.N. 312. But a contrary view has been taken in 1936 L. 401, where it was observed that if a suit by a company in liquidation has been instituted without leave of Court under S. 171, Companies Act, but such leave has been obtained within the period of limitation, it would obviously be useless to dismiss the suit and to compel the plaintiff to bring another suit after obtaining the leave. See also 1930 A.L.J. 373=1930 A. 503; 13 P.R. 1917=37 I.C. 791.

SUITS NEWLY INSTITUTED—LEAVE SHOULD BE OBTAINED BEFORE LIMITATION PERIOD.—But even in such a case the suit can be allowed to be proceeded with only if leave is obtained within the period of limitation fixed for the suit. 1936 L. 401.

LEAVE WHEN GRANTED BY COURT.—An unregistered mortgage or charge is void under S. 109 against all creditors irrespective of the date on which the debts accrued. The fact that the charges have been merged in a decree obtained by the mortgagee or chargeholder prior to the application for winding up proceedings cannot make S. 109, inapplicable; and the decree-holder cannot, on that ground, claim to stand outside the winding up and realise his security. An application by such a decree-holder under this section (S. 171) for leave to execute his mortgage decree should not be allowed. 40 C.W.N. 1171. A suit instituted against a company in liquidation without leave should not be dismissed on that ground alone. If leave is subsequently obtained, limitation should be calculated in the same way as if the suit had originally been instituted with leave. It is immaterial whether the leave is granted before or after the period of limitation prescribed for the institution of the suit has expired. I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 517=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 289 (F.B.)=(1943) Comp. Cas. 1.

SECURED CREDITORS.—Secured creditors are not obliged to prove their debts, and can stand wholly outside the winding up proceedings if they so elect. They may rely upon their security or their decree, if they have obtained one, and proceed to realise the amount due to them. But in this case, they must obtain the leave to proceed from the winding up Judge. 51 A. 695=1929 A. L.J. 811=1929 A. 353 (F.B.). Where leave has once been granted to the secured creditors to prosecute their claim by suit, the suit should not afterwards be stayed pending the adjudication on priority among the creditors by the winding up Court. 29 C.W.N. 715=88 I.C. 754=1925 C. 916. The winding up Court cannot annul or modify a secured creditor's security or decree. Leave should be refused absolutely only in exceptional cases. Ordinarily, leave should be refused only for such time as may be necessary for him to determine whether leave should be granted or not. 51 A. 695 (F.B.) (supra).

UNSECURED CREDITORS.—An unsecured creditor cannot be turned into a secured creditor after winding up by granting him specific performance of an agreement to create a charge. A rigid line is drawn at the winding up, and creditors should not be allowed to change their position after that date. 29 Bom.L.R. 253=101 I.C. 144=1927 B. 167.

RECOVERY OF CROWN DEBTS IF EXEMPTED FROM SECTION.—The provisions of this section apply also to Crown debts; and therefore, Crown has no right to recover its debts in priority which it might possess on account of its prerogative. 59 C. 327=137 I.C. 870=1932 C. 430 (not following, 53 C. 328=96 I.C. 37=1926 C. 781). The leave of the Court is essential to an application for execution, even if it is by the Government. 134 I.C. 429=1932 P. 1.

PROCEEDINGS UNDER S. 145, C. P. CODE.—The provisions of this section are not meant to override S. 145, Cr. P. Code. So, if a Magistrate is satisfied that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists, he is bound to call on the parties to attend his Court and put in their claims as regards actual possession. 37 C.W.N. 932=143 I. C. 795=1933 C. 433.

INSOLVENCY PROCEEDINGS.—The provisions of S. 171 are very wide and though an application for discharge may not start independent proceedings, the section would seem to require leave of the High Court even for the continuation of the insolvency proceedings already taken. 169 I.C. 625=39 P.L.R. 717.

PRACTICE.—Leave to sue under this section is never given on an ex parte application. The grant of leave ex parte is against the usual practice. 39 C. W. N. 1259. An objection as to want of leave under this section, which was not taken in the Court of first instance, should not be allowed to be raised in appeal. 37 C.W.N. 909=146 I. C. 502=1933 C. 809. In the case of a heavy contested claim against the company and its agents, where the allegations were that the large debt in question was really a personal debt of the agents which they fraudulently attempted to foist on the company, and that the company was not liable for that debt, the usual practice is to leave the matter to be decided by a suit in the ordinary way and not in proceedings in the winding up. 29 Bom. L. R. 253=101 I. C. 144=1927 B. 167. In a suit on a promote in favour of a liquidated bank but endorsed in favour of another bank, where the latter Bank wanted to implead the former Bank also as a party to the suit, permission should be granted to do so, irrespective of the fact whether any relief could be granted or not in the suit against the bank in liquidation. 36 P.L.R. 217=150 I.C. 670=1934 L. 328. If after an order for the winding up of a company is passed, a suit is instituted against the company without obtaining leave to sue under S. 171, the Court has inherent jurisdiction to dismiss the suit as incompetent; on an interlocutory application under S. 171, the winding-up Court has no jurisdiction to give the plaintiff leave to continue a suit instituted without leave subsequent to the winding-up order. 1. L. R. (1939) 2 Cal. 425=1940 Cal. 166.

WAIVER.—The liquidators cannot waive the bar created by this section in such a way as to require them to admit a claim under decrees rendered inoperative by that bar. 50 A. 410=26 A.L.J. 131=1928 A. 168.

LIMITATION.—The liquidator of a company being a trustee for the creditors, time to recover a debt due from the company does not run after an order or resolution for winding up. The date for testing the liability is the commencement of the winding up. 49 A. 520=25 A.L.J. 277=1927 A. 161 (F.B.).

APPEAL.—An objection as to the propriety or otherwise of the grant of any leave under this section, by the company Judge, can be made only on appeal against the grant, preferred in the appellate Court. 1930 A.L.J. 373=124 I.C. 28=1930 A. 503. The Court in which proceedings are taken in pursuance of that leave, cannot question the propriety of the same. 1930 A. 503. Leave to commence an appeal cannot be granted under S. 171, when such leave is applied for at a time beyond that at which the commencement of the appeal would become time-barred. 1941 All. 335=1941 O. W.N. 838=1941 A.L.J. 385.

SECS. 171 AND 229.—The official liquidator represents all the unsecured creditors and it is their right to challenge through him a transfer of property belonging to the Bank, if the transfer is believed to be fraudulent, and either voidable under S. 53 or void under S. 54, Provincial Insolvency Act. Where an assignee of a mortgage decree from a bank who was an unsecured creditor applied for leave to continue proceedings under S. 171 of the Companies Act on the bank going into liquidation, it was held that in such an application it was open to the liquidator to challenge the transfer. 1942 O.A. 227=A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 417=18 Luck. 110.

SECS. 171 AND 230-A.—Where the Managing Director of a limited company which is being wound up by Court under a compulsory winding up order presents a claim against the company and asks that his application should be treated as an application to file a suit against the Official Liquidator or under S. 171 to prove his claim, and he is allowed time for the purpose of filing a suit, if he fails to file the suit within the time granted to him for the purpose, and the Court refuses to grant him a further extension of time, such refusal amounts to a dismissal of his claim, and he cannot turn round and ask the Court to change the procedure which he himself considered proper and to inquire into his claim and adjudicate on it in the liquidation proceedings. 54 L. W. 275=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 417.

without leave under S. 171 of the Companies Act—Crown debts—Preference in the winding up—"Other legal proceeding" in S. 171—Meaning of. Held, in S. 230 of the Act a modified priority is expressly provided for a certain limited class of Crown debts. The priority expressly so given to Crown debts is not confined solely to Crown debts. The Crown is bound by the provisions of the Indian Companies Act, and is bound, in regard to the provisions relating to the liquidation of companies, "to a statutory scheme or administration wherein the prerogative right of the Crown to priority no longer exists." The Crown is accordingly not entitled to any prerogative priority, or preferential rights or treatment, save those expressly conferred and limited by the Act itself, in particular by S. 230 and sub-S. (2) of S. 232. The particular arrears of income-tax which the Income-tax authorities had endeavoured to collect through the machinery of S. 46 of the Income-tax Act do not come within the prescribed class of taxes for which the Crown can claim even the limited priority given by S. 230 of the Companies Act. In respect of them, the Crown ranks as an ordinary unsecured creditor. S. 171 of the Companies Act must be construed with reference to other sections of the Act and the general scheme of administration of the assets of a company in liquidation laid down by the Act. No narrow construction should be placed upon the expression "or other legal proceeding" in that section. It need not and therefore should not be confined to "original proceedings in a Court of first instance, analogous to a suit, initiated by means of a petition similar to plaint." The words can and should be held to cover distress and execution proceedings in the ordinary Courts. Accordingly the words "other legal proceeding" in section 171 comprise any proceeding by the revenue authorities under section 46 (2) of the Income-tax Act and before forwarding the requisite certificate under S. 46 (2) to the Collector, which would put the machinery for the collection of the arrears of income-tax as arrears of land revenue into motion, the Income-tax authorities should have applied in the liquidation under S. 171 of the Companies Act for leave of the winding up Court. S. 226 of the Constitution Act applies to the jurisdiction conferred on the Allahabad High Court by the Companies Act. 1946 I.T.R. 248=1946 M.W.N. 292=50 C.W.N. found in many cases that the office of the official liquidator was allowed to remain vacant for an inordinately long time after the order for winding up has been made. The party at whose instance the order for winding was made, on many an occasion, apprehending that the assets may not be sufficient to yield any dividends to the creditors, ceased to take any further interest, and at times never got any official liquidator appointed at all. The result was that the affairs of the company were hopelessly neglected, and the funds of the company used to be often misapplied. It was thought, therefore, essential that some provision should be contained in the Act for some public official being automatically appointed the liquidator of every company which is ordered to be wound up, until some other person is appointed by the Court to act as permanent official liquidator, so that the properties and assets of the company may be properly protected in the meanwhile. Hence the insertion of the present section, by the Amending Act.

NOTICE UNDER S. 80, C. P. CODE.—The official liquidator like the official receiver appointed in insolvency cases is an official of the Court and has got definite powers conferred on him by this Act. He is therefore a public servant, and as such is entitled to notice under S. 80 of the C. P. Code. 11 O.W.N. 398=1934 O. 158; 44 B. 895 (40 C. 894, Dist.).

SEC. 172: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The present sub-section (1) has been substituted in the place of the old one. Under the previous sub-section (1) the duty was cast only on the company to file a copy of the order with the registrar and giving an option to the petitioner to do so if he chose; and, further, there was no time-limit fixed within which it had to be done. As a matter of fact, the provisions of the section were rarely complied with, and, if at all, only after unreasonable delay. The present sub-section (1) makes the filing compulsory both on the petitioner and the company, and also prescribes a time-limit within which it has to be done.

SEC. 173: SCOPE AND APPLICATION.—The Court has to see whether a stay of the proceedings will be conducive or detrimental to commercial morality and to the interest of the public at large. 24 P. W. R. 1919=49 I.C. 412. The Courts in India have the power to make an order for stay of the proceedings even under a voluntary winding up. 49 I.C. 412. A petition was filed by a creditor of a company for compulsory winding up. The petition was opposed by the company and certain other large creditors on the ground that the company, though involved, had since the petition, entered into an agreement for sale of its property to a new company to be formed and the order, if made, would cause loss to the creditors and the shareholders. Under the circumstances the Court properly ordered the petition to stand over and allowed time upon the company undertaking not to part with any portion of the purchase money except for preliminary expenses. The company was also allowed to complete the sale, liberty being given to the parties to apply in the meantime. 1924 R. 108=88 I.C. 138.

SEC. 174: SCOPE.—Although a creditor who is unable to obtain payment of his debt is entitled ex debito justitiæ to an order for the compulsory winding up of the company, still that right is not an individual right but a representative right. His application is not on his individual behalf alone but it is in fact on behalf of the entire body of the creditors. So, it is but fair and reasonable that the wishes of the majority of creditors should be given much value by the Court. 10 R. 143=1932 R. 75. Where a scheme of reconstruction suggested by a majority of the creditors was entirely illusory and unpractical, and was in essence but a scheme for the voluntary liquidation of the company without the intervention of the Court, the Court is not bound to accept it when the company is in a hopelessly involved condition and its liquidation must be made officially. 126 I.C. 185=1930 L. 177.

CONTRIBUTORIES.—In the case of a solvent company, the Court and also the official liquidator should have particular regard to the wishes of the contributories as to all matters affecting them as a class. 58 I.A. 416=55 M. 180=61 M.L.J. 783=1932 P. C. 1 (P.C.).

FULLY PAID UP SHAREHOLDERS.—For the purpose of this section, a fully paid up shareholder is in an entirely different position from a creditor or contributory. And consequently he has a right to appear and to be heard upon any application to wind up the company; and this right is not curtailed by the use of the word "contributories" in S. 174. 58 C. 62=1931 C. 391.

SHAREHOLDER NOT TO BE IDENTIFIED WITH COMPANY.—Where any shareholder is refused a hearing by the Court, the party aggrieved is only that shareholder and not the company. It would be improper to allow the company to come in and fight the battle or the grievances of the individual shareholder, as there is a great difference between the company opposing an application for winding up and a person coming with a right to be heard merely as a shareholder. 58 C. 62=1931 C. 391.

SEC. 175: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The amendment in sub-section (1) has been consequential on the amendment of S. 171. The amendment in sub-section (2) adds a provision requiring notice to be normally given to the company before the Court appoints a liquidator. The absence of any provision as to notice in the Act as it previously stood resulted in the provision of the section being abused in many cases where a creditor or a contributory who had maliciously presented a winding up petition had followed it up by an ex parte application for the appointment of a provisional liquidator. Statements were generally made which the company had no opportunity of rebutting. An order for appointment of a provisional liquidator, in these circumstances led very often to disastrous results, and many companies became practically ruined because of the appointment. The remedy ordinarily available in cases of such malicious petitions, would hardly be sufficient to compensate the loss caused to the credit of the company by the appointment of the provisional liquidator. The decided cases in England also have laid down under an analogous section that although the Courts had jurisdiction to make an order appointing a provisional liquidator ex parte, it ought not to be made except in cases of very great urgency and unless the application was by the company itself. With a view to protect the company from the abuse of the provisions of the Act, the present amendment requiring notice, has been made in the section.

(5) The acts of an official liquidator shall be valid notwithstanding any defect that may afterwards be discovered in his appointment: Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to give validity to acts done by an official liquidator after his appointment has been shown to be invalid.

CONSTRUCTION OF SUB-SECTION (6).—The intention of sub-section (6) is to avoid any question of competition between a receiver and an official liquidator. To construe it in such a way as to give preference to a receiver appointed in a suit brought by a secured creditor would result in defeating its apparent object. 58 C. 940=1932 C. 76. The word 'assets' in this sub-section (6) means the assets of the company and includes property which is subject to a charge. 58 C. 940. Where, therefore, there is a question of competition between a liquidator and a receiver appointed by the Court at the instance of debenture-holders or mortgagees, the Court will ordinarily in the exercise of its discretion give preference to the liquidator. 58 C. 940.

DISCRETION OF TRIAL COURT.—The appointment of a liquidator is a matter which is purely in the discretion of the trial Court, and the appellate Court should not interfere in the matter except under very special circumstances. 5 R. 685=1928 R. 36; 5 Bur. L.T. 193=17 I.C. 835.

SEC. 176: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The amendment in sub-section (2) has been consequential on the amendment of S. 171. The words, "on due cause shown" in S. 176 (1) of the Indian Companies Act govern the words may resign or may be removed by the Court. The acts of resignation or removal are linked together and subject to the same condition. An Official Liquidator can therefore resign on due cause shown. An Official Liquidator cannot be expected to carry on the affairs of the company at his own expense when there is no prospect whatever of recovering costs from the petitioner in the winding up proceedings who cannot be traced. In such circumstances he must be permitted to resign and should not be compelled to continue against his will. 1.L.R. (1942) Kar. 501=A.I.R. 1943 Sind 84.

RESIGNATION.—An official liquidator cannot resign at will without securing the concurrence of the liquidating Court out of mere caprice or resentment at inquiries regarding the nature of his past operations. If he does so, he is liable to forfeit his pay. 51 P.R. 1919=53 I.C. 649. Where an official liquidator fails to maintain a position of complete impartiality as between all the individuals whose interests are involved in the winding up and shows unusual partisan activity, the Court will be justified in removing him and appointing another in his place. 55 M. 180=61 M.L.J. 783=58 I.A. 416 (P.C.).

REMOVAL.—"Due cause" for removal of a liquidator under S. 176 (1) of the Companies Act is to be measured by the real, substantial, and honest interest of the liquidation and to the purpose for which the liquidator is appointed. Fair play to the liquidator himself is not to be left out of sight. Although the liquidator has been found to be negligent in carrying out the specific orders of the Court and the specific rules laid down in the Rules of Court, the Court will not remove the liquidator, if it appears that it is not in the "real, substantial, honest interest of the liquidation" that he should be removed from his post. 40 C.W.N. 857.

177. The official liquidator shall be described by the style of the official liquidator of the particular company in respect of which he is appointed, and not by his individual name.

Official liquidator.

¹[177-A. (1) Where the Court has made a winding up order or appointed an official liquidator provisionally, there shall, unless the Court thinks fit to order otherwise and so orders, be made out and submitted to the official liquidator a statement as to the affairs of the company verified by an affidavit and containing the following particulars, namely :—

(a) the assets of the company, stating separately the cash balance in hand and at the bank, if any :

(b) the debts and liabilities ;

(c) the names, residences and occupations of the creditors stating separately the amount of secured debts and unsecured debts, and in the case of secured debts particulars of the securities, their value and the dates when they were given ;

(d) the debts due to the company and the names, residences and occupations of the persons from whom they are due and the amount likely to be realised therefrom.

(2) The statement shall be submitted and verified by one or more of the persons who are at the relevant date the directors and by the person who is at that date, the secretary, manager or other chief officer of the company, or by such of the persons hereinafter in this sub-section mentioned as the official liquidator, subject to the direction of the Court may require to submit and verify the statement, that is to say, persons—

(a) who are or have been directors or officers of the company ;

(b) who have taken part in the formation of the company at any time within one year before the relevant date ;

(c) who are in the employment of the company, or have been in the employment of the company within the said year, and are in the opinion of the official liquidator capable of giving the information required ;

(d) who are or have been within the said year officers of or in the employment of a company which is, or within the said year, was, an officer of the company to which the statement relates.

(3) The statement shall be submitted within twenty-one days from the relevant date, or within such extended time as the official liquidator or the Court may for special reasons appoint.

(4) Any person making or concurring in making the statement and affidavit required by this section shall be allowed, and shall be paid by the official liquidator or provisional liquidator, as the case may be, out of the assets of the company, such costs and expenses incurred in and about the preparation and making of the

Sec. 177.—The Official Liquidator representing a company is in no different position from any one else against whom a stranger or a third party makes a claim. His only duty is to consider and if he thinks it is an admissible claim to admit, and if he thinks it an inadmissible claim to reject it; and accordingly he is not bound to call on the claimant to appear before him and make enquiry. 180 I.C. 69=1939 Rang. 46.

Sec. 177-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section and S. 177-B now added adopted Ss. 181 and 182 of the English Act. This section gives a slightly extended time for submission of the statement referred to in sub-section (3), and it has been necessitated on account of the difficulty which the liquidators have been often put to owing to the apathy and negligence of the directors in furnishing to the liquidators the necessary particulars as to the affairs of the company. It also makes it obligatory upon the directors and other persons who are ordinarily in charge of the company and its assets before its liquidation to disclose to the liquidator full particulars as to the assets and liabilities. This also obviates the examination which liquidators have had very often to resort to, to find out the details of the assets, etc., from unwilling and obstructing directors and other officers of the company, and enables them to get along with work expeditiously. A penalty also has been provided in respect of non-compliance with the provisions of this section.

(5) If any person, without reasonable excuse, knowingly and wilfully makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees for every day during which the default continues.

(6) Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributory of the company shall be entitled by himself or by his agent at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee, to inspect the statement submitted in pursuance of this section, and to a copy thereof or extract therefrom.

(7) Any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributory shall be guilty of an offence under section 182 of the Indian Penal Code and shall, on the application of the liquidator or of the official receiver, be punishable accordingly.

(8) In this section the expression "the relevant date" means, in a case where a provisional liquidator, is appointed, the date of his appointment and, in the case where no such appointment is made, the date of the winding up order.]

SEC. 177-B: AMENDMENTS BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section adopts S. 182 of the English Act. The making of the preliminary report will give the creditors and contributories and also the winding up Court a general idea as to the affairs of the company and the length of time which is likely to be taken in completing the winding up.

SEC. 178: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The amendment in sub-section (1) enables the provisional liquidator also to take into his custody the assets of the company automatically on his appointment. The substitution of sub-section (2) is consequential on the amendment of S. 171. A sale of the assets of the company after the winding up order in execution of a decree passed before that order, if it was without the leave of the winding up Court is voidable at the instance of the liquidator. 2 Pat. ²[178-A. (1) The official liquidator shall within a month from the date of the order for the winding up of a company convene a meeting of the creditors of the company (as ascertained from the books and documents of the company) for the purpose of determining whether or not a committee of inspection shall be appointed to act with the liquidator, and who are to be members of the committee, if appointed.

(2) The official liquidator shall within a week from the date of the creditors' meeting convene a meeting of the contributories to consider the decision of the creditors and to accept the same with or without modifications.

(3) If the contributories do not accept the decision of the creditors in its entirety, it shall be the duty of the official liquidator to apply to the Court for directions as to whether there shall be a committee of inspection and, if so, what shall be the composition of the committee, and who shall be members thereof.

(4) A committee of inspection appointed under this section shall consist of not more than twelve members being creditors and contributories of the company or persons holding general or special powers of attorney from creditors or contributories in such proportions as may be agreed on by the meetings of creditors and contributories, or as, in the case of difference, may be determined by the Court.

(5) The committee of inspection shall have the right to inspect the accounts of the official liquidator at all reasonable times.

(6) The committee shall meet at such times as they may from time to time appoint, and, failing such appointment, at least once a month, and the liquidator or any member of the committee may also call a meeting of the committee as and when he thinks necessary.

(7) The committee may act by a majority of their members present at a meeting, but shall not act unless a majority of the committee are present.

(8) A member of the committee may resign by notice in writing signed by him and delivered to the liquidator.

(9) If a member of the committee becomes bankrupt, or compounds or arranges with his creditors, or is absent from five consecutive meetings of the committee without the leave of those members who together with himself represent the creditors or contributories, as the case may be, his office shall thereupon become vacant.

(10) A member of the committee may be removed by an ordinary resolution at a meeting of creditors if he represents creditors, or of contributories if he represents contributories, of which seven days' notice has been given, stating the object of the meeting.

(11) On a vacancy occurring in the committee the liquidator shall forthwith summon a meeting of creditors or of contributories, as the case may require to fill the vacancy, and the meeting may, by resolution, re-appoint the same or appoint another creditor or contributory to fill the vacancy.

SEC. 178-A: AMENDMENT BY A39 XXII OF 1936.—This section is based on S. 199 of the English Act. It adopts the provision contained in the Bankruptcy laws for the appointment of a committee of inspection to be chosen from among the creditors of the bankrupt by the official assignee. In the case of companies also it has been thought desirable to enable the creditors and contributories of the company which is being wound up compulsorily to have a right through their chosen representatives to supervise the administration of the affairs and properties of the company by the liquidators.

(12) The continuing members of the committee, if not less than two, may act, notwithstanding any vacancy in the committee.]

179. The official liquidator shall have power, Powers of official liquidator. with the sanction of the Court, to do the following things :—

(a) to institute or defend any suit or prosecution, or other legal proceeding, civil or criminal, in the name and on behalf of the company ;

(b) to carry on the business of the company so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding up of the same ;

(c) to sell the immoveable and moveable property of the company by public auction or private contract, with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or company, or to sell the same in parcels ;

(d) to do all acts and to execute, in the name and on behalf of the company, all deeds, receipts, and other documents, and for that purpose to use, when necessary the company's seal ;

SEC. 179: PROCEEDINGS BY LIQUIDATOR.—NATURE OF.—The proceedings started by a liquidator are not initiated in his personal capacity but in the name and on behalf of the company, and it must be deemed as if the proceedings are being continued not only in the interest of the company but actually by the company through its liquidator. 55 A. 912=1933 A.L.J. 1203 (F.B.). The liquidator should not appeal in any case without the permission of the winding up Court, and if he does so, he runs considerable risk, in the event of failure, to pay the costs out of his own pocket. 43 A. 433=19 A.L.J. 262=60 I.C. 763. An offer to take a mortgage with possession of a mill belonging to the company, in the course of the winding up, when accepted by the Court is binding on the party offering, as the acceptance by the Court should be deemed to have been on behalf of the official liquidator, especially when the official liquidator had acted upon the offer and has changed his position. The party who has made the offer will be estopped from withdrawing the same. 1930 A.L.J. 305=127 I. C. 428=1930 A. 330.

OFFICIAL LIQUIDATOR—GENERAL DUTIES AND POWERS.—Generally all ordinary questions arising in the liquidation of a company are decided by the official liquidator himself. He ordinarily applies to the Court only when some special question of law arises or when he wishes a direction from the Court on a general question of policy. If this procedure is followed, an application under S. 183 (5) of the Companies Act will lie from the order of the official liquidator to the Court instead of the Court itself deciding the matter in the first instance. S. 179 of the Act lays down what powers may be given to the official liquidator. 1943 A.M.L.J. 21. Pursuant to an order of Court for sale by tender of a business which was a limited concern and which had been ordered to be wound up, the Official Receiver caused an advertisement to be published in the newspapers inviting tenders for the purchase of the business. The advertisement directed that the tenders should reach the Official Receiver on or before a specified date but it was not stated that the highest tender would be accepted and there was no reserve price fixed. The appellant was found to have submitted the highest tender. Subsequently in an application made by the Official Receiver to Court the Court was informed that other persons were willing to raise their offers to amounts higher than that offered by the appellant and the Court thereupon directed that a week's further time might be given for receipt of fresh offers or for increase of offers already made. It was also directed that the offers should be made in sealed covers to be opened in court. The appellant feeling aggrieved by this order appealed. Held, that as the advertisement did not state that the highest tender would be accepted and as the sale had not taken place at the time when the official Receiver took out the application for directions, it was competent for the court to pass the order in question calling for fresh tenders. The cause of action for the liquidator to realise contributions from the contributories arises only on the appointment of the liquidator. 48 A. 580=24 A.L.J. 691=1926 A. 550; 23 A.L.J. 473=1925 A. 519. The fact that the calls are barred by time as against the company and that the company could not realize them on account of lapse of time is no answer to the liquidators' claim for contribution. 10 P. 249=12 Pat.L.T. 215=1931 P. 44; 38 A. 347; 31 M. 66; 22 Bom. 654.

'LEAVE TO BID' TO LIQUIDATOR.—The Court in which winding up proceedings are pending has jurisdiction only to sanction the liquidators applying to the executing Court either in a particular case or generally in all cases in which it thinks it desirable, for leave to bid as a decree-holder under O. 21,

(e) to prove, rank and claim in the insolvency of any contributory, for any balance against his estate, and to receive dividends in the insolvency, in respect of that balance, as a separate debt due from the insolvent, and rateably with the other separate creditors ;

(f) to draw, accept, make and indorse any bill of exchange, hundi or promissory note in the name and on behalf of the company, with the same effect with respect to the liability of the company as if the bill, hundi, or note had been drawn, accepted, made or indorsed by or on behalf of the company in the course of its business ;

(g) to raise on the security of the assets of the company any money requisite ;

(h) to take out, in his official name, letters of administration to any deceased contributory, and to do in his official name any other act necessary for obtaining payment of any money due from a contributory or his estate which cannot be conveniently done in the name of the company ; and in all such cases the money due shall, for the purpose of enabling the liquidator to take out the letters of administration or recover the money, be deemed to be due to the liquidator himself : Provided that nothing herein empowered shall be deemed to affect the rights, duties and privileges of any Administrator-General ;

(i) to do all such other things as may be necessary for winding up the affairs of the company and distributing its assets.

180. The Court may provide by any order that the official liquidator may exercise any of the above powers without the sanction or intervention of the Court, and, where an official liquidator is provisionally appointed, may limit and restrict his powers by the order appointing him.

181. The official liquidator may, with the sanction of the Court, appoint an advocate, attorney or pleader entitled to appear before the Court to assist him in the performance of his duties : Provided that, where the official liquidator is an attorney he shall not appoint his partner, unless the latter consents to act without remuneration.

R. 72, C. P. Code. It has no jurisdiction itself to make an order giving the liquidator 'leave to bid'. The liquidator has to apply to the executing Court for 'leave to bid' at the sale, and the granting or refusing the same is entirely a matter for the executing Court to decide. 25 A.L.J. 891=1927 A. 681.

SEC. 179 (F).—The power given to the liquidator under S. 179 (f) to indorse a promissory note is a statutory power and it cannot be delegated in the absence of a statutory provision permitting such delegation. Held, that the indorsements of certain promissory notes by the agents appointed by the liquidators conveyed no title in law to the assignees. No subsequent ratification of such indorsements by the liquidator could make them valid as they were void ab initio. 52 L.W. 342=1940 Mad. 882=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 309.

SECS. 179 AND 183 (5).—Any sales or contracts of sale effected by the official liquidator of a company which has gone into liquidation in pursuance of the Court's sanction previously obtained are not mere conditional agreements subject to subsequent confirmation by the Court. Once the Court has sanctioned the sale of the company's property and has fixed a reserve price, the matter is closed so far the Court is concerned and the liquidator is free to dispose of the property provided he observes the conditions previously imposed by the Court under S. 179 of the Act, the liquidator can finally dispose of the property once he has got the sanction of the Court. It is not as if he has power merely to invite offers and to submit them to the Court for approval. Where the Court has given the official liquidator a general permission to sell the property of the company (provided that a certain price was obtained) and has expressly sanctioned a contract of sale entered into by him for a sum considerably in excess of the stipulated price, the Court cannot, by passing an order purporting to revoke its own sanction, nullify the contract of sale. Neither S. 179 nor any other provision in the Companies Act gives any authority to the Court to revoke the sanction granted by it. S. 183 (5) of the Act is also of no avail, because S. 183 (5) clearly cannot apply to a case in which the act or decision of the official liquidator has been performed or made in pursuance of the Court's express sanction. Nor has the Court any inherent power to revoke its own sanction after the sanction has been acted upon. 50 L. W. 879=1940 Mad. 179=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 107.

one of the liquidators on the ground of some irregularity in the conduct of the sale and the District Judge set aside the sale. Held, that in the absence of fraud the District Judge had no power to set aside the sale, as the official liquidators with the sanction of the Court assigned the decree to the person who became the purchaser. The principles of O. 21, R. 90, C. P. But an application under S. 183 (5) after the list of contributories had been settled, and nearly eleven years after the agreement to take the shares, is too belated an application to be allowed. SEC. 184: COURT'S POWER TO RECTIFY THE REGISTER OF MEMBERS.—The powers of the Court to rectify the register in winding up proceedings will be governed by the same principles which apply to its powers to rectify while the company is a going concern. The Court has power to decide any question relating to the title of the aggrieved party whose name has been omitted from the register, and generally to decide any question necessary or expedient to be decided for rectification of the register. The exercise of the power is, however, discretionary, having regard to the person who is the applicant before the Court, and to all the facts and circumstances of the case. 37 Bom. L.R. 904=160 I.C. 638=1936 B. 24.

FINALITY OF ORDER.—Any order passed by the Court bringing the name of a person as a contributory on the list of contributory is a final order, if not appealed against; and the question as to the liability of such person as contributory cannot be re-opened. 95 I.C. 252=1926 L. 414.

BURDEN OF PROOF AND COSTS OF CONTEST.—The burden of proving that his name was entered in the register fraudulently or without sufficient cause under S. 38 (1) of the Act, is upon the applicant under this section who applies for removing his name from the register of shareholders; and if he fails to discharge the same, he will be mulcted with the costs of the contest except under very special circumstances. 37 Bom.L.R. 904=160 I.C. 638=1936 B. 24.

SUBSCRIBER TO MEMORANDUM OF ASSOCIATION, WHEN CEASES TO BE MEMBER.—A subscriber to the memorandum of association of a company remains a member until such time as either the company, which is authorized by its Articles of Association to do so, accepts surrender of the shares for valid reasons or the subscriber himself pays for the shares and validly transfers them to somebody else. The mere fact that the subscriber did not pay the share amounts and the managing agent thereupon struck off the name of the subscriber from the list of directors and communicated to the Registrar that he had ceased to be not only a director but also ceased to be a member, will not have the effect of ceasing his membership. Hence, when the company went into liquidation, the Official Liquidator was held entitled to have such person included in the list of contributories. 133 I.C. 424=1931 A. 701. If such member is dead, his legal representatives would be liable, but in this case if the parties had acted for a long time on the footing that the member had ceased to be a member, the legal representatives, though made liable as contributories, would not be charged with interest. 1931 A. 701. It is well-settled that the signatories to the memorandum of association of a company become the first members of the company as from the date of incorporation mentioned in the Registrar's certificate. They are deemed to have become members of the company, and, on its registration, to he entered as members on its register of members. But neither this entry in the register nor the allotment of shares is a condition precedent. Each subscriber at once by subscribing irrevocably agrees to take from the company the number of shares placed opposite his signature unless all its share capital has already been allotted to other persons. The fact that no shares are allotted to him and that he has ceased to be treated as a member for a considerable time would not relieve him from liability as a member and to be included in the list of contributories settled under S. 184. 32 S. L.R. 167=1938 Sind 187. Where a father applied for shares in a company for his minor sons, signed the application form on their behalf, paid the purchase-money by his own cheque out of the Bank accounts opened by him in their names, and dividends were credited to those accounts and the balance in those accounts was drawn out by the minors when they became of age. Held, that the father, when he signed the applications on behalf of his minor sons, must be taken to know that the sons were incapable of contracting being minors, that therefore, he must be treated as the owner of the shares, and that consequently he, and not his sons, was liable to be put upon the list of contributories. I.L.R. (1939) Lah. 299=1939 Lah. 515. An application was made by one P, as guardian of the minor daughter for shares in a company and the company issued shares to and registered shares in the name of the daughter, describing her as a minor. When the company went into liquidation, the Official Liquidator claimed against the minor for contribution, but she, through her father and guardian, set up her minority and disclaimed personal responsibility. The Official Liquidator then claimed that her father, P who signed the application must be deemed to have contracted for the shares and should be placed on the list of contributories. There was no suggestion that the company were unaware of the daughter's minority; on the other hand they knew that they were being invited to contract with a minor and thought fit to contract with the minor. There was nothing on record to show that the father had at any time intended to become a subscriber of the company and there was no evidence that any of his money was used for the purpose. Held, (1) that the contract was void in law. On the face of it, the contract was made by both sides under complete misapprehension as to the law, but no misapprehension as to the facts. The father P could not be held to have contracted under an alias and could not therefore be placed on the list of contributories. I.L.R. (1942) Mad. 875=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 470=55 L.W. 200=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 425. A limited company by its very constitution is prohibited from purchasing its own shares, whether such purchase is authorised by the memorandum of its association or not, the purchase is void and illegal. The legal incapacity of a company to purchase its own shares is not dependent upon the fact of the purchase being made either within or outside the territorial limits of the place where the company is incorporated, but it is beyond the scope of its constitution. If a company therefore purchases its own shares, no matter where, a member who has sold his shares to the company cannot claim to be removed from the register of shareholders under S. 184 of the Companies Act, because the purchase by the company must be deemed to have been not validly made as it is ultra vires of the company. On the strength of such a transaction the vendor is not entitled to have his name removed from the register and to have the vendee's name put instead. If a company purchases its own shares, the effect is that in law the vendor does not cease to be the legal owner of the shares, and his liability as a member contributory in respect of unpaid calls is not thereby extinguished, even if the sale and purchase be effected outside the state or territory where the company is incorporated. Nor is the company estopped from pleading the invalidity of the purchase or that the purchase was for itself and not for a constituent by reason of representations made by its officers to the vendor, even if it be a foreign company. A company cannot be bound by estoppel to do something beyond its powers. In such a case, the remedy, if it all, can only be against the officers who made, the representation on the faith of which the contracts were entered into. 55 L.W. 653=1943 Mad. 111.

PLEDGER OF SHARES.—Where shares are pledged with the company, the legal owner thereof is the shareholder and not the company and it is the shareholder alone that will be held liable for the unpaid calls thereon. 24 I.C. 236=69 P.R. 1914.

RECTIFICATION, WHEN ORDERED.—When a shareholder's estate has been taken over by the Court of Wards (this case was in U. P.), the register may be rectified by placing the name of the Estate Collector in the place of the shareholder. 1930 A. 617=124 I.C. 726. A person cannot be included in the list of contributories, if before the winding up proceedings he has not only repudiated his shares but has also asserted his right in an action by the company to enforce calls upon him; and he will also be entitled to have the register rectified by removing his name therefrom. 1926 L. 414=95 I.C. 252.

WHEN RECTIFICATION NOT ORDERED.—If a person has been treated as a shareholder and he has acted as such, though there may

185. The Court may, at any time after making a winding up order, require any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories and any trustee, receiver, banker, agent, or officer of the company to pay, deliver, surrender or transfer forthwith, or within such time as the Court directs, to the official liquidator any money, property or documents in his hands to which the company is prima facie entitled.

186. (1) The Court may, at any time after making a winding up order, have been some irregularity in the issue of shares to him, he will be estopped from denying his membership, and he will not be entitled to the removal of his name from the register. 54 P.R. 1915=28 I.C. 53. A person purchased some shares on condition that he would be appointed chairman of the Local Board, and he was allotted shares and was also appointed chairman. But subsequently there was a breach of the condition by his dismissal from chairmanship. The remedy of such a person is only by an action for damages and not by getting his name removed from the register of shareholders. 1936 L. 700.

SEC. 185: SCOPE OF SECTION.—Apart from this section, the Court possesses ample powers ex debito justitiæ to pass interim orders for protection and preservation of the subject-matter in dispute, pending the result of the litigation. 14 L. 68=1933 L. 437. S. 185 only applies when it can be shown that the money or property covered by the order is, at the time of the order, is in the hands of the party ordered to deliver them up. 41 C.W.N. 975. The Court is not authorized to come to any final decision as to title under this section. 163 I. C. 378=1936 L. 408. That may subsequently be done under S. 186 or S. 235. 1936 L. 408. The section applies even where a lien is claimed on the property of the company, and the Court can order the property to be put into Court before adjudicating the truth or validity of the lien claimed. 1936 L. 408. The Court cannot, by a summary order under this section, order the refund of money realized by a creditor of the Bank under liquidation before the order of winding up was passed but after the Bank had passed a resolution stopping payment of debts. 46 P.R. 1915=29 I.C. 265. The proper course for the liquidator will be to file a regular suit like other claimants to recover the amount realized by such a creditor. 29 I. C. 265. S. 185 does not of course contemplate an elaborate enquiry, but the Court has a discretion to decide whether any particular claim made can or cannot be conveniently dealt with under the section. An application by the Official Liquidator under the section against an ex-managing agent of the company for payment of sums overdrawn by him while he was managing agent is maintainable and not excluded by the mere fact that he had ceased to be an agent before the commencement of liquidation proceedings. If in such application, the agent prays, that his claims to credit as against the company in respect of arrears of salary due to him and in respect of expenses of suits against him as agent it will not be proper to disallow the claims and to drive him to a separate suit, it is only fair that his claims against the company must be considered in the application itself. Nor will the Court be justified in treating an application under the section as if it were an ejectment suit and seeking to ascertain the rights of the parties only as on the date of the initiation of the proceedings. The proper course would be to take an account in respect of such of the items as the agent would be entitled to retain either under S. 217 of the Contract Act or under the terms of the agreement between the parties and of the Articles of the Association of the company; and the balance of the amount claimed by the liquidator would be the amount prima facie payable by the agent to the liquidator. 45 L.W. 119=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 219.

EX PARTE ORDERS—PRACTICE.—It should not be laid down as a rule of procedure that ex parte orders should be passed ordinarily where proceedings are taken under this section. Ex parte orders should be granted with the greatest caution and where rapid action is desired, it is always possible under the rules of the Court to serve with leave, short notice of any application to the Court. 6 Bom.L.R. 790.

SECS. 185 AND 188: DIRECTION TO REFUND MONEYS PAID—JURISDICTION OF COURT—LIMITS.—Where an application was made by the liquidators, asking the Court to direct certain persons to refund sums paid to them by the managing agents, after winding up petition, it was held that S. 185 empowered the Court exercising jurisdiction under the Act to require contributories and certain others to deliver up money, etc., in their hands to the liquidator and that neither S. 185 nor S. 188 gave the Court any power to pass orders against persons other than those mentioned in S. 185 of the Act, and that hence the Court had no jurisdiction to pass orders for the payment asked for by the liquidators. 1940 A.L.J. 739=I.L.R. (1940) All. 730=1940 All. 514.

SEC. 186: SCOPE OF SECTION.—This section as well as S. 235 empowers the Court to make an order against the person complained against, but neither of them professes to confer a new right on the person applying. The power of the Court is, however, restricted from proceeding suo motu. 55 A. 912=1933 A.L.J. 1203=1933 A. 789

Power to order payment of debts by contributory. make an order on any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories to pay, in manner directed by the order, any money due from him or from the estate of the person whom he represents to the company exclusive of any money payable by him or the estate by virtue of any call in pursuance of this Act.

(F.B.). This section does not create new liabilities or confer new rights on the liquidator but merely provides a summary procedure in the winding up Court against debtor-contributories for enforcing existing liabilities. The power of the Court under this section is discretionary, and it is not bound to pass an order for payment under this section and may order the liquidator to file a separate suit. 54 A. 1067=64 M.L.J. 403=1933 P.C. 63=60 I.A. 13 (P.C.); 59 P.R. 1915=31 I.C. 54; 4 L. 109=74 I.C. 600. Though the jurisdiction under this section is permissive, it ought not to be refused in the absence of cogent reasons, when a fit case is made out for its exercise. 36 P.R. 1916=31 I.C. 746. When there has been a valid call prior to liquidation and the date for its payment has passed, it becomes a debt due from the shareholder to the company and is just like any other debt. When subsequently the company goes into liquidation, that debt, becomes an asset of the company which have to be realised by the liquidator. It has lost its character as a call has become a debt and as such is realisable by the liquidator as any other debt or asset. The Court has no jurisdiction at all to question the propriety of a liquidator seeking to get in a debt due to the company prior to the liquidation under S. 186 of the Companies Act. 1942 A.W.R. (H.C.) 4.

APPLICATION OF SECTION.—It is not competent to a transferee of the debts and calls due from contributories to obtain an order under this section. An application by such a person, not being one on behalf of the company or for its benefit, is not maintainable. 59 I.C. 538. An order passed under this section in any person's favour is executable by him. But if he transfers the order in favour of any other person, that other person (the transferee) should first apply to the Court to get himself substituted in the place of his transferor, and it is only then that he would be entitled to apply for execution. Ss. 200 and 201 of this Act are subject to the provisions of O. 21, R. 15, C. P. Code. 92 P.R. 1918=47 I.C. 907. Where the Memorandum of Association shows that one of the objects of the company is to manage estates, it entitles the company to act as a liquidator of another company; and once the company having been appointed a liquidator and having accepted the position the legality of the appointment cannot be questioned in proceedings of a payment order under S. 186. 1936 L. 276=162 I.C. 306. When there has been a valid call prior to liquidation and the date for its payment has passed, it becomes a debt due from the shareholder to the company and is just like any other debt. When subsequently the company goes into liquidation, that debt becomes an asset of the company which have to be realised by the liquidator. It has lost its character as a call has become a debt and as such is realisable by the liquidator as any other debt or asset. The Court has no jurisdiction at all to question the propriety of a liquidator seeking to get in a debt due to the company prior to the liquidation under S. 186. I.L.R. (1942) A. 26=1942 A.L.J. 47=A.I.R. 1942 A. 136.

DEFENCE.—In summary proceedings instituted under this section, every objection is just as open to the person sought to be charged as it would have been if a suit had been brought by the liquidator in the company's name for the same money. Thus, if at the date of the application by the liquidator under this section to recover certain monies, a suit by him in the name of the company for the recovery of the said monies would have been dismissed as barred by the Limitation Act, the Court would have no power to order payment of such monies to the liquidator under this section. 54 A. 1067 (P.C.) (noted supra). But it is not open to a shareholder who has been settled on the list of contributories to plead, in proceedings taken against him under this section, that he was improperly so settled. 41 P.L.R. 1915; 71 I.C. 724=1923 A. 85. By virtue of S. 186 (2), it is wholly discretionary in a Court whether any set-off can be allowed. It is now clear beyond any doubt and as a fixed judicial principle that the Court never allows a person to whom the company is indebted to set-off that indebtedness against what is due from him as a contributory in respect of calls. It is otherwise where the two debts are of a purely commercial nature. But where the debt of the company is in respect of calls, the set-off is never available to a contributory. I.L.R. (1942) A. 26=1942 A.L.J. 47=A.I.R. 1942 A. 136. Under the law of set-off which is applicable in the winding up of a company, where there are two amounts, one in the account of A and the other in the account of A and B, if it is shown that the latter account, though standing in the name of A and B was really in trust for A, the amount due under one account can be set-off against the amount due under another account. (1942) 1 M.L.J. 161=55 L.W. 252=1942 Mad. 351. Under the law prevailing in India a deposit by a husband in the name of himself and his wife payable to either or survivor, in the absence of evidence to the contrary must be presumed to belong to the husband. 55 L.W. 252=1942 Mad. 351=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 161. (2) The Court in making such an order may, in the case of an unlimited company, allow to the contributory by way of set-off any money due to him or to the estate which he represents from the company on any independent dealing or contract with the company, but not any money due to him as a member of the company in respect of any dividend or profit; and may, in the case of a limited company, make to any director whose liability is unlimited or to his estate the like allowance:

Provided that, in the case of any company, whether limited or unlimited, when all the creditors are paid in full, any money due on any account whatever to a contributory from the company may be allowed to him by way of set-off against any subsequent call.

187. (1) The Court may, at any time after making a winding up order, and Power of Court to make calls. either before or after it has ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the company, make calls on and order payment thereof by all or any of the contributories for the time being settled on the list of the contributories to the extent of their liability, for payment of any money which the Court considers necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges and expenses of winding up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves.

in a bank in current and savings banks accounts in the name of himself and his wife payable to either or survivor, and takes a loan from the bank in his own name only, the amount standing to his credit in the joint account can be set-off against the money due under the loan account in the winding up of the bank, as the money is really his. 55 L.W. 252=1942 M.W.N. 211=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 351=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 161.

"MONEY DUE", MEANING OF.—The words "money due" in S. 186 refer to money due and recoverable in a suit instituted by the liquidator in the company's name at the date of the application under the section. 54 A. 1067 (P.C.) (noted supra). This meaning has been given to the expression on the basis that the section deals only with procedure for enforcing payment and does not purport to impose any liability. The term "money due" in its primary sense denotes an existing debt whether or not the right to recover the same is barred under the Limitation Act. Under the Limitation Act the debt is not extinguished but only the remedy to recover it is barred. The term used in the articles of association or any contract may be taken to include a barred debt also, if the context permits. 36 Bom.L.R. 32=1934 B. 97.

"AT ANY TIME".—The use of the words "at any time" in the section was not intended to over-ride the provisions of the Limitation Act. The Court cannot order payment of a time-barred debt under this section. The words can only mean at any time in the course of liquidation proceedings, commencing from the date of the winding up order. 4 L. 109=174 I.C. 600=1924 L. 53.

CONTRIBUTORY, PARTNER OF FIRM.—Where the principal partner of a firm had signed the promissory notes in favour of the company which went into liquidation subsequently, and the principal partner has been settled on the list of contributories and not the firm, still it is open to the liquidator to select him from among the partners and call upon him as contributory to liquidate the whole debt. 4 L. 239=77 I.C. 838.

SEC. 186 (2): CONTRIBUTORY OF LIMITED COMPANY, IF ENTITLED TO SET-OFF.—Sub-S. (2) to S. 186 permits a limited right of set-off to a contributory only when the company is unlimited. 1938 A.L.J. 925=1938 All. 613; 1942 A.W.R. (H.C.) 4. There is nothing in S. 186 which can reasonably be construed as a general deprivation of contributories to companies in liquidation of the right of set-off. 1940 A. L. J. 826=I. L. R. (1941) All. 153=1940 All. 544 (F.B.). See also 1942 A.W.R. (H.C.) 4.

LIABILITY OF REPRESENTATIVE CONTRIBUTORY.—EXTENT OF.—The contributory who is called on to pay as the representative of a deceased shareholder is liable to contribute only to the extent of the assets, which may have come into his hands. 10 P. 249=12 P.L.T. 215=1931 P. 44.

JURISDICTION.—A District Judge, under S. 3 of the Act, has jurisdiction to order payment even if some of the contributories reside outside British India. 15 L. 302=1934 L. 362. The provisions of S. 186 (1) are not mandatory and the Court exercising jurisdiction in the winding up may grant or reject an application. If the Court refuses the liquidator must proceed by way of a civil suit. 1940 A.L.J. 826=I.L.R. (1941) All. 153=1940 All. 544 (F.B.). Order under S. 186 not a decree within S. 73, C. P. Code. See 15 Luck. 332=1940 Oudh 237=1940 O. W. N. 132.

SEC. 187: SCOPE OF SECTION.—The section is not restricted to original calls but includes also unpaid calls before the winding up. 67 P.B. 1911=12 I.O. 958. So, the balance of the price of shares for which a call has been made before liquidation can be recovered by a summary action by the official liquidator. 12 I.O. 958. A contributory who has paid before the settlement of the list of contributories, need not pay once again after settlement of the list. 50 C. 1049 = 36 C.W.N. 409 = 1932 C. 691.

LIABILITY OF MEMBERS.—The right enforced by a Court in making calls is a statutory right of the creditors to enforce against the shareholders of the company on its insolvency, and not a right of the company being enforced by the liquidator. 38 A. 347 = 14 A.L.J. 349 = 35 I.C. 159. The calls are recoverable by the liquidator though they may have been barred under Art. 112 of the Limitation Act. A claim which might be held to be barred by the C.P. Code if brought by the company can be preferred by the official liquidator under the Companies Act. 50 A. 476 = 26 A.L.J. 256 = 1928 A. 272.

CALLS AND PREFERENCE SHAREHOLDERS.—Uncalled share money upon issued shares at the date of the winding up of a company forms part of the assets or capital of the company. The preference shareholders being entitled in winding up to return of capital in priority to other shares, unpaid ordinary share capital can be called up to meet the amount required to pay the preference share capital, and the preference share capital can be repaid to the preference shareholders out of calls made upon the ordinary shareholders to the extent of the unpaid capital on the issued shares. Where the memorandum of association of a company provides that "No dividend shall be payable except out of the net profits arising from the business of the company", there can be no dividend payable to the preference shareholders from the amount of the share capital when there have been no profits, although under the articles of association preference shares confer the right to a fixed cumulative preferential dividend. 1941 Mad. 806 = (1941) 2 M.L.J. 94.

JURISDICTION.—The only Court which can enforce an order passed by a High Court under this section against property of the contributory situated in a mofussil is the High Court and not the District Court. 57 M.L.J. 723 = 30 L.W. 849; 6 P. 132. In a personal action, a decree pronounced by a Court of a foreign state in absentem, the defendant not having submitted to its authority, is by international law a nullity. Where the defendant, who is a shareholder in a company registered in an Indian State and is a resident of British India, does not appear before the State Liquidation Court, before which the liquidation proceedings are started, and does not submit to the jurisdiction of the Liquidation Court, a call order made against him by the Liquidation Court, in absence of an express agreement in the Articles of Association that the disputes with the shareholders should be settled by the State Court, is without jurisdiction and cannot be enforced as such in British India. It is necessary that the liquidator suing the defendant in British India should prove all necessary facts to establish his liability. It is also necessary, in order to allow the plaintiff to succeed, that the call order for the particular amount was necessary and just. 40 P.L.B. 819 = 1938 Lah. 599.

Sec. 188: SCOPE OF SECTION.—A company judge has no jurisdiction to pass an order against a person who has entered into a contract with the liquidator during the course of the liquidation for payment of the money due from him in a bank and to direct the execution of the order as a simple money decree. S. 188 does not give jurisdiction to a Judge to enforce an order against persons other than contributories, or persons mentioned in S. 185. The word "purchaser" in S. 188 means the purchaser of the interest of a contributory. The words "or other persons from whom money is due," refer to a person from whom money is due under S. 185 so far as it is intended that an

(2) All other pertinent matters stated in the order shall be taken to be truly stated as against all persons, and in all proceedings whatsoever.

191. The Court may fix a time or times within which creditors are to prove their debts or claims, or to be excluded from the benefit of any distribution made before those debts are proved.

Adjustment of rights of contributories.

192. The Court shall adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves, and distribute any surplus among the persons entitled thereto.

193. The Court may, in the event of the assets being insufficient to satisfy the liabilities, make an order as to the payment out of the assets of the costs, charges and expenses incurred in the winding up in such order of priority as the Court thinks just.

194. (1) When the affairs of a company have been completely wound up, the Court shall make an order, that the company be dissolved from the date of the order, and the company shall be dissolved accordingly.

(2) The order shall be reported within fifteen days of the making thereof by the official liquidator to the registrar, who shall make in his books a minute of the dissolution of the company.

(3) If the official liquidator makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which he is in default.

Extraordinary powers of Court.

195. (1) The Court may, after it has made a winding up order, summon

SFC. 191: PROOF BEFORE APPOINTMENT OF LIQUIDATOR.—The Court cannot pass an order in the winding up proceedings admitting the proof of any debt due to any particular creditor, before a liquidator is appointed. 9 A. 180.

SECURED CREDITOR, PROOF BY.—See 16 A. 33; 55 P.W.R. 1907.

SECS. 191 AND 229.—So long as justice can be done to a creditor without disturbing the dividend already declared or paid, there is no reason why he should be prevented from getting his dividend merely because of failure to file proof of claim within the time limited by the notice under R. 83 of the Rules framed by the Madras High Court under the Companies Act. The delay in filing the affidavit of proof of a claim can be excused. On a literal reading of R. 91, as it now stands, it would seem that unless a creditor satisfies the Court that owing to ignorance or want of notice he did not file proof of his debt, his claim cannot be admitted. It is desirable that R. 91 should be amended on the lines of R. 65 of the English Bankruptcy Act or S. 72 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. 55 L.W. 99=1942

The persons entitled to receive the dividend are only the duly registered shareholders when the dividend is declared. This is the usual position in the absence of any provisions to the contrary in the Articles of Association. 48 C.W.N. 693.

SNC. 194.—An assignee of a payment order from the liquidation Court can get relief from the Court even after the dissolution of the company. 67 I.C. 443; 40 P. R. 1915=28 I.C. 286. The liquidator may, although he becomes functus officio in liquidation, complete a formal act like giving a transfer in writing for a decree which has already been transferred, even after dissolution. 54 M.L.J. 663=1928 M. 478.

DISSOLUTION MAY BE DECLARED VOID.—It is open to the Court under S. 243 of the Act to declare the dissolution to be void, and thereupon all proceedings may be taken as might have been taken if the company had not been dissolved.

SNC. 195: SCOPE OF SECTION.—An order under this section will be made only if it is likely to lead to some benefit to the creditors. It is in the discretion of the Court, although such discretion has to be exercised judicially. 40 P.R. 1915=28 I.C. 286.

(3) The Court may require him to produce any documents in his custody or power relating to the company; but, where he claims any lien on documents produced by him, the production shall be without prejudice to that lien, and the Court shall have jurisdiction in the winding up to determine all questions relating to that lien.

SCOPE OF SECTIONS 195 AND 196.—The scope of an examination under S. 195 is to seek information on matters which may be just or beneficial for the winding up of the company. If the conduct of persons connected with the formation or management of the company is to be investigated, that must be done under S. 196. The first one is intended to be used for the purpose of promoting the liquidation proceedings while the second section is primarily intended to investigate the conduct of those who have been charged with its affairs. 130 I.C. 409=1931 L. 8.

POWER OF COURT.—The powers of the Court are very wide and it is not necessary that the Court must first determine that the person called upon to furnish information does actually possess that information. If the Court has reason to think or even if an allegation is made that a certain person is in possession of information which would be useful for the purposes of the winding up of the company, the Court may call upon him to appear in Court and to examine him. If a party is entitled to take part in or to conduct an examination, the ordinary rule is that he is entitled to do so with the help of counsel. There is nothing in this section which bars the assistance of counsel for the Official Liquidator for an inquiry under this section. 130 I.C. 407=1931 L. 8.

RIGHT OF PETITIONING CREDITOR TO ATTENDANCE AND CONDUCT OF EXAMINATION.—Where the liquidator refuses to act or where he has not the means to act, the Court can give the conduct of the examination to a petitioning-creditor; and the Court has a discretion also to allow a creditor to attend, even while the official liquidator has the conduct of the examination. As to the examination under this section is a private one, it would be an invasion of this privacy if petitioning creditors and others were allowed to attend. 1924 R. 24=

1 R. 384=83 I.C. 3. The depositions made under the provisions of S. 195, and obtained by the Liquidator under R. 174 of Ch. XXXI of the Original Side Rules under the Companies Act, are private documents and the Liquidator is not entitled to refer to them in any other proceedings. I. L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 28=44 C.W.N. 512=1940 Cal. 488. In a suit filed by the Liquidator of a company for setting aside the purchase of the stock-in-trade and assets of the company by one of the defendants, the Liquidator applied for the appointment of a receiver of the assets of the company and referring to the examination under S. 195, alleged a conspiracy to defraud the creditors of the company. The defendants who had been examined under S. 195 of the Act at the instance of the Liquidator applied for obtaining copies of their depositions.

Held, that they were entitled to copies upon counsel for each defendant undertaking to prevent communication of his deposition to his co-defendants or their solicitors or counsel. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 28=44 C. W. N. 512=1940 Cal. 488.

INSPECTION BY PUBLIC OFFICE.—Public officers charged with the investigation of criminal offences, such as the Deputy Superintendent of Police, may be allowed by the Court to inspect the depositions made under this section and to take notes, but not copies. 57 I.C. 424=1930 C. 521.

APPEAL.—An order on the directors of a company to appear before the Court for examination is not a judgment within Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, and hence is not appealable. 55 C. 262=109 I.C. 704=1928 C. 295. However, when a District Judge disallowed the objections of the managing agents and ordered their examination, it was held that this final order was appealable. 10 L. 806 (F.B.)=117 I.C. 985=1929 L. 707; 1931 L. 8. But the appeal will lie against the final order only, and not against the preliminary order merely issuing the summons. 10 L. 806.

Power to order public examination of promoters, directors, etc.

Court stating that in his opinion a fraud has been committed by any person in the promotion or formation of the company or by any director or other officer of the company, in relation to the company since its formation, the Court may, after consideration of the application, direct that any person who has taken any part in the promotion or formation of the company, or has been a director, manager or other officer of the company shall attend before the Court on a day appointed by the Court for that purpose, and be publicly examined as to the promotion or formation or the conduct of the business of the company, or as to his conduct and dealings as director, manager or other officer thereof.

(2) The official liquidator shall take part in the examination, and for that purpose may, if specially authorised by the Court in that behalf, employ such legal assistance as may be sanctioned by the Court.

(3) Any creditor or contributory may also take part in the examination either personally or by any person entitled to appear before the Court.

(4) The Court may put such questions to the person examined as the Court thinks fit.

(5) The person examined shall be examined on oath, and shall answer all such questions as the Court may put or allow to be put to him.

(6) A person ordered to be examined under this section may at his own cost employ any person entitled to appear before the Court, who shall be at liberty to put to him such questions as the Court may deem just for the purpose of enabling him to explain or qualify any answers given by him: Provided that if he is, in the opinion of the Court, exculpated from any charges made or suggested against him the Court may allow him such costs as in its discretion it may think fit.

(7) Notes of the examinations shall be taken down in writing and shall be read over to or by, and signed by, the person examined, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him in civil proceedings, and shall be open to the inspection of any creditor or contributory at all reasonable times.

SEC. 196: SCOPE OF THE SECTION.—See 130 I.C. 407=1931 L. 8; noted under S. 195, supra. See also 98 I.C. 599=1926 L. 385 to the same effect.

DUTY OF COURT.—The Court should consider the matter judicially and pass order only on being satisfied that there is reasonable ground for the allegation of fraud upon the facts stated in the application. It is not, however, necessary that the charge of fraud should be specified in the application with the same precision and particularity as may be necessary in a criminal complaint under the I.P. Code. 56 A. 496=1933 A.L.J. 229=1933 A. 366.

EX PARTE ORDER.—Order for public examination can be made ex parte without notice. 56 L.W. 648=1944 Mad. 87=(1943) 2 M. L.J. 499. When the Court has passed an ex parte order for the public examination of an officer on an application of the liquidator, the only objection that can be raised by the officer for his examination is one of jurisdiction. He will not be entitled at that stage (i.e., before his public examination) to show that the charge of fraud is incorrect. 56 A. 496.

APPEAL.—An order passed for the public examination of an officer of the company is appealable. I.R. 1932 L. 658. An order refusing an application for inspection under sub-section (7) is also appealable. 96 I.C. 755=1926 L. 246.

SEC. 196: CL. (5): EXAMINATION, SCOPE OF.—When once the official liquidator has made out a prima facie case of fraud against an officer, the examination need not be confined to the particular fraud mentioned in the application of the liquidator. 56 A. 496=1933 A.L.J. 229=1933 A. 366.

SEC. 196: CL. (7).—The use of the words 'in civil proceedings' show that the statement of the person examined is unconditionally admissible in evidence in civil proceedings only; and that in criminal proceedings also against him it would be admissible but only subject to S. 132 of the Evidence Act. Such statements are not entirely excluded in criminal proceedings against him. 98 I.C. 599=1926 L. 385. Where the lending of monies on the shares of a banking Company is expressly prohibited by the Articles of Association, the allotment of shares in consideration of promissory notes executed by

(8) The Court may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the examination from time to time.

(9) An examination under this section may, if the Court so directs, and subject to any rules in this behalf, be held before any District Judge or before any officer of the High Court, being an official referee, master, registrar or deputy registrar, and the powers of the Court under this section as to the conduct of the examination, but not as to costs, may be exercised by the person before whom the examination is held.

197. The Court, at any time either before or after making a winding up order on proof of probable cause for believing that a contributory is about to quit British India or otherwise to abscond, or to remove or conceal any of his property, for the purpose of evading payment of calls or of avoiding examination respecting the affairs of the company, may cause the contributory to be arrested and his books and papers and moveable property to be seized and him and them to be safely kept until such time as the Court may order.

198. Any powers by this Act conferred on the Court shall be in addition to, and not in restriction of, any existing powers of instituting proceedings against any contributory or debtor of the company, or the estate of any contributory or debtor, for the recovery of any call or other sums.

Enforcement of and Appeal from Orders.

199. All orders made by a Court under this Act may be enforced in the same manner in which decrees of such Court made in any suit pending therein may be enforced.

200. Any order made by a Court for or in the course of the winding up of a company shall be enforced in any place in British India other than that in which such Court is situate, by the Court that would have had jurisdiction in respect of such company if the registered office of the company had been situate at such other place, and in the same manner in all respects as if such order had been made by the Court that is hereby required to enforce the same.

the shareholder is a contravention of the provisions of the Companies Act and contrary of the Articles of Association. It suggests fraud and would therefore justify the public examination of the directors of the Company. 56 L.W. 648=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 87= (1943) 2 M.L.J. 499.

RIGHT TO INSPECT.—The right of inspection is confined to the creditors and contributories and the parties to the proceedings which are pending. 96 I.C. 755=1926 L. 246.

SEC. 199: POWER OF COURT.—The company judge has jurisdiction to enforce compliance with the provisions of the Act, though there is no express power conferred on him by the Act. Thus, he may order a company to deliver a copy of the register of members to a shareholder even though there may be no express provision in the Companies Act, empowering him to do so. 1936 A. 568. The Court has also power to issue a mandatory injunction for enforcing compliance with the provisions of the Act, even though the proceedings are of a summary nature. 1936 A. 568.

SECS. 199 AND 202.—S. 202, clearly differentiates between appeals against orders and applies against decision and S. 199 applies only to orders. 1945 Lah. 146 (F. B.). A decision to overrule preliminary objections and proceed with the case on the merits and a refusal to grant leave to proceed with a suit in another Court are decisions and not orders coming within the ambit of S. 199, and therefore the memo of appeal therefrom under S. 202 has to be stamped under Sch. II, Art. 11, Court-Fees Act. 1945 Comp.C. 60=A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 146 (F.B.).

SEC. 200: EXECUTION OF ORDERS OF HIGH COURT IN DIFFERENT PROVINCE.—An order made by the High Court of one province can be enforced in another province, only by the High Court of that province; and the order cannot be sent to a District Court of that province directly. 6 P. 132=8 Pat. L.T. 577; 53 M. 147=57 M.L.J. 723=1930 M. 74. another province the High Court cannot authorize the official liquidator to apply to the District Court concerned for enforcing the order. 38 M.L.J. 377=1927 M. 271. See contra, 54 I.C. 384. According to the Madras High Court, the proper procedure to be adopted on such an application would be to treat the order passed by another High Court in the same manner as a decree passed by this High Court; and to transfer it for execution to the District Court concerned. 25 L.W. 113.

SEC. 201: SCOPE.—S. 201 provides its own special procedure and has to be followed. The procedure prescribed by S. 39, C. P. Code, is not applicable; an order made by a Court under the Companies Act can be enforced by another Court on the production of a certified copy of the order in the Court which is asked to enforce it. It is not necessary that the order should be transferred by the Court which made it to the Court which is asked to enforce as in the case of decrees under S. 39, C. P. Code. Where special provisions is made in a special statute, that special provision excludes the operation of a general provision in the general law. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 504=1943 Sind 89=1943 Comp. C. 83.

SEC. 202: SCOPE OF SECTION.—This section is wide enough to cover appeals against any order made in the matter of winding up of a company; provided such an order finally decides a dispute between the parties or deprives the appellant of an important and substantial right and is not a mere formal or an interlocutory order. 10 L. 806=1929 L. 707 (P.R.); 1926 L. 246; 130 I.C. 407=1931 L. 8. An order refusing copies of certain documents to the appellants was held appealable in 10 L. 806. So also in respect of an order passed for the examination of a director. 28 I.C. 280=40 P.R. 1915; and in respect of an order passed against the managing agents for their examination being conducted by the Official Liquidator through a counsel. 130 I.C. 407=1931 L. 8. The terms of S. 202, are wide enough to cover an order directing public examination of the directors of a Company in liquidation and hence such an order is appealable. 56 L.W. 648=1943 M.W.N. 716 (2)=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 87=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 499. See also

RE-HEARING.—The re-hearing of any order made in the matter of winding up can only take place before a Court of appeal. But an order which has been obtained ex parte or which is in truth a nullity may be discharged by the Court which made it. 1 L. 187=55 I.C. 820. See also 72 I.C. 106=1923 A. 429. A liquidating judge may recall a wrong order and rectify a mistake. 13 P.L.R. 1919.

RIGHT OF APPEAL.—There is no right of appeal under this section to persons who were neither auditors nor contributories of the company under liquidation, but who had only a prospective interest to be appointed as secretaries and agents if the company should be revived. Nor does it matter that they were the persons who originally propounded the scheme and were parties in the lower Court. 33 Bom.L.R. 1495. Where the directors of a company wish to prefer an appeal against an order directing the winding up, they should, notwithstanding the official liquidator's appointment in the meanwhile, prefer the appeal in the company's name. If a majority of the contributories concur in the filing of the appeal, the appeal is, in truth, that of the contributories. 38 C.W.N. 54=61 M.L.J. 788=55 M. 180 (P.C.). An appeal against a compulsory winding up order is not incompetent merely because the company as such has not been impleaded as a party, when it is in fact substantially represented before the Court by its director shareholders, all of whom are parties to the appeal. I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 680=1941 Lah. 134. The Official Liquidator is not a necessary party to an appeal against a compulsory winding up order, though it is desirable that he should be made a party in order to prevent possible collusion amongst interested parties and to ensure that all necessary facts are laid before the Court. I. L. R. (1941) Lah. 680=1941 Lah. 134. An order fixing the remuneration payable to an advocate for legal services performed by him to the Liquidators of the company is not an order made or given in the matter of the winding up of Circumstances in which company may be wound up voluntarily.

203. A company may be wound up voluntarily—

(1) when the period if (any) fixed for the duration of the company by the articles expires, or the event (if any) occurs, on the occurrence of which the articles provide that the company is to be dissolved and the company in general meeting has passed a resolution requiring the company to be wound up voluntarily ;

the company within the meaning of S. 202 of the Companies Act, and no appeal lies. It is of the nature of a ministerial order settling a dispute arising in the establishment employed under the Liquidators. I. L.R. (1942) Kar. 496=A.I.R. 1943 Sind 82.

ONLY SINGLE APPEAL AGAINST ORDER OF DISTRICT JUDGE.—There is only one appeal against the decision or order of a District Judge, in cases which are within his ordinary original jurisdiction, and, hence, there can be only one appeal against any decision or order passed by him in the winding up. 34 P.R. 1913=22 I.C. 250.

APPEAL FROM ORDERS IN WINDING UP UNDER SUPERVISION OF COURT.—Under S. 225 orders passed in winding up under supervision of Court are placed on the same footing as orders passed in winding up by the Court. Hence an appeal is competent from such orders also. 158 I.C. 853=1935 L. 174.

APPEALS WERE HELD TO LIE IN THE CASE OF THE FOLLOWING ORDERS.—(i) An order refusing copies of certain documents to the appellants. 10 L. 806. (ii) An order passed for the examination of a director under S. 196. 28 I.A. 286=40 P.R. 1915. (iii) An order passed against the managing agents for their examination being conducted by the official liquidator through a counsel. 130 I.C. 407=1931 L. 8. (iv) An order passed under S. 237 directing the official liquidator to prosecute certain persons for criminal offence. 1931 C. 12=132 I.C. 474. (v) An order of Judge sitting on the original side of the High Court, declaring that certain proxies, used in the statutory meeting held under S. 153 for the purpose of approving a scheme of arrangement, were invalid, and that another meeting should be held. 10 R. 189=137 I.C. 444=1932 R. 96. (vi) An order rejecting a scheme. 10 R. 438=1932 R. 154; 10 R. 189; 27 Bom.L.R. 655. A creditor who is aggrieved by an order sanctioning a scheme could also apply to the Court for leave to appeal against the order. 41 C.W.N. 599=1937 Cal. 667. (vii) An order passed by the Court bringing or refusing to bring the name of a person as a contributory in the book. 41 P.L.R. 1915=28 I.C. 95. See also 79 P.R. 1919.

APPEALS WERE HELD NOT TO LIE IN THE CASE OF THE FOLLOWING ORDERS.—(i) The framing of issues by a Court in a petition for the winding up of the company is not an "order" and is not appealable. 16 I.C.

794. (ii) An order of the liquidating Judge reducing the remuneration of an employee of the official liquidators sanctioned by the predecessor of the Judge. 1 L. 73=55 I.C. 928.

REVISION.—Where the Registrar declared a certain company dissolved; and an application for restoration of the same was rejected; the order not being one passed in winding up proceedings was held open to revision only, and an appeal against the rejection was treated as a revision petition. 86 I.C. 652=1925 L. 443.

SECS. 202 AND 235.—The last part of S. 202 which lays down that 'appeals will be had in the same manner, etc.' merely regulates the procedure to be followed in the presentation and hearing of such appeals. Where on a Petition under S. 235, the High Court holds the application to be maintainable its order is not of a merely formal or ministerial character, but finally decides points between the parties relating to substantial and important rights and is appealable under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent. 1938 Lah. 658.

SEC. 203: AMENDMENTS BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—In clause (3) the words "and the expression . . . of this section" have been inserted by the Amending Act. This is a mere consequential amendment.

NO VALID RESOLUTION FOR VOLUNTARY WINDING UP, POWER OF COURT.—Where there was no valid resolution for voluntary winding up and no valid ground for making a winding up order, but the Court passes the order for the compulsory winding up of the company on the ground that the majority of the shareholders at a meeting were in favour of the winding up, it was held that it did not constitute sufficient ground for the compulsory winding up order. 49 C. 399=69 I.C. 241.

DEFECTIVE EXTRAORDINARY RESOLUTION, EFFECT.—If an extraordinary resolution passed under the section does not provide that, by reason of its liabilities, the company cannot continue its business and that it is advisable to wind up, the defect is very serious. 35 P.R. 1917=36 I.C. 943. If any irregularity is discovered in the passing of the extraordinary resolution, after the supervision order was passed, the order may be discharged on application to the appellate Court. 36 I.C. 943. See also 115 I.C. 987=1934 R. 271 (an extraordinary resolution passed for voluntary winding up was con-

SEC. 207: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—For Ss. 207 to 219 of the previous Act, the present Ss. 207, 208 to 208-E, 209 to 209-H, 210 to 218 have been substituted. S. 207 deals with the declaration as to the solvency of the company by the directors. Ss. 208 to 208-E lay down the provisions regulating the members' voluntary winding up. Ss. 209 to 209-H lay down the provisions regulating the creditors' voluntary winding up. Ss. 210 to 218 contain provisions common both to the members' as well as to the creditors' voluntary winding up. The present Ss. 207 to 218 are copied from Ss. 230 to 255 of the English Act, the only changes made in this Act being that (1) in S. 208-D, a time period of 90 days has been so done, they have formed the opinion that the company will be able to pay its debts in full within a period, not exceeding three years, from the commencement of the winding up.

(2) Such declaration shall be supported by a report of the company's auditors on the company's affairs, and shall have no effect for the purposes of this Act unless it is delivered to the registrar for registration before the date mentioned in subsection (1) of this section.

(3) A winding up in the case of which a declaration has been made and delivered in accordance with this section is in this Act referred to as 'a member's voluntary winding up,' and a winding up in the case of which a declaration has not been made and delivered as aforesaid is in this Act referred to as 'a creditor's voluntary winding up.'

fixed, and in S. 215-E, the provisions of the corresponding S. 253 of the English Act, have been slightly expanded in form. Under the Act as it previously stood, no distinction was made between a members' voluntary winding up and a creditors' voluntary winding up. The distinction between them has been introduced by this amending Act. In the English Act also, this distinction was introduced only by the Consolidating Act of 1929. Companies going into voluntary liquidation may be either solvent or insolvent. In the former case the matters connected with the winding up are primarily the concern of the shareholders themselves, and in the latter case they are primarily the concern of the creditors. Hence it was thought necessary to introduce separate provisions regarding each of these cases. To enable creditors to secure control of any winding up in which the directors of the company cannot guarantee that the company will be solvent at the expiration of 3 years from the commencement of the winding up, Ss. 209 to 209-H have been enacted. Under the Act as it previously stood, the provisions relating to the participation and control by the creditors in the matter of the winding up proceedings were very ineffective, and in practice, the shareholders usually retained control over a voluntary winding up, except where the creditors were so prejudiced by the voluntary winding up as to justify the Court in making an order for the winding up compulsorily or subject to the supervision of the Court. The present sections enable the creditors, in circumstances clearly affecting them, to have practically effective control of the voluntary winding up of the company. So also in the case of clearly solvent companies, the winding up proceedings being essentially in the interests of the members themselves the interference of the creditors would be unnecessary and sometimes will prove also inconvenient. It is the shareholders themselves that must have to appoint the liquidators and have the control of the liquidation proceedings. It is in view of these above-mentioned different considerations which will have to be taken into account in cases of clearly solvent companies and companies which cannot be said to be so, that different sections have been enacted in the case of each. No doubt there will be several matters which will be common to both, and in respect of these matters Ss. 210 to 218 have been enacted and made applicable both to the members' voluntary winding up and to the creditors' voluntary winding up.

(2) For that purpose a general meeting may be convened by any contributory or, if there were more liquidators than one, by the continuing liquidators.

(3) The meeting shall be held in manner provided by this Act or by the articles, or in such manner as may on application by any contributory or by the continuing liquidators, be determined by the Court.]

(2) Any sale or arrangement in pursuance of this section shall be binding on the members of the transferor company.

(3) If any member of the transferor company who did not vote in favour of the special resolution expresses his dissent therefrom in writing addressed to the liquidator and left at the registered office of the company within seven days after the passing of the special resolution, he may require the liquidator either to abstain from carrying the resolution into effect or to purchase his interest at a price to be determined by agreement or by arbitration in manner hereafter provided.

(4) If the liquidator elects to purchase the member's interest, the purchase money must be paid before the company is dissolved and be raised by the liquidator in such manner as may be determined by special resolution.

(5) A special resolution shall not be invalid for the purposes of this section by reason that it is passed before or concurrently with a resolution for voluntary winding up or for appointing liquidators, but if an order is made within a year for winding up the company by or subject to the supervision of the Court, the special resolution shall not be valid unless sanctioned by the Court.

SEC. 208-C: POWER OF LIQUIDATOR NOT TO BE RESTRICTED BY RESOLUTION.—Where at the time of the amalgamation of a company with another, the shareholders of the former passed a special resolution under this section appointing liquidators for the purpose of carrying the same into effect, under supervision of directors of both the companies, powers of directors of one of which were to continue for carrying agreement into effect, the resolution is illegal to the extent of the restrictions imposed on the statutory powers of the liquidators. 52 B. 571=55 I.A. 274=82 C.W.N. 1038=55 M. APPLICATION TO CREDITORS' VOLUNTARY WINDING UP.—The provisions of this section apply to the case of a creditors' voluntary winding up with the modification that the liquidator in the latter case can exercise the powers only with the sanction either of the Court or of the Committee of Inspection. (Vide S. 209-F.)

RESOLUTION FOR AMALGAMATION.—A resolution for amalgamation even though it may be mixed up with other matters is not illegal and void. 26 Bom.L.R. 937=93 I.C. 580=1925 B. 49. It is sufficient if the resolution authorises the liquidator to adopt the agreement and to carry it into effect, and it is not necessary that the authorization should be in the words of this section. 1925 B. 49.

TRANSFER COMPANY MUST BE EMPOWERED BY ITS MEMORANDUM.—Every company has, under this section, a right of amalgamation with another company irrespective of its own constitution in the memorandum and articles, but the amalgamation will not bind the transferee company unless its constitution empowers it to effect such an acquisition. 52 B. 571 (P.C.).

(2) The meeting shall be called by advertisement specifying the time, place and object thereof, and published one month at least before the meeting in the manner specified in sub-section (1) of section 206 for publication of a notice under that sub-section.

Provided that, if a quorum is not present at the meeting, the liquidator shall, in lieu of the said return, make a return that the meeting was duly summoned and that no quorum was present thereat, and upon such a return being made the provisions of this sub-section as to the making of the return shall be deemed to have been complied with.

(4) The registrar on receiving the account and either of the returns mentioned in sub-section (3) shall forthwith register them and on the expiration of three months from the registration of the return the company shall be deemed to be dissolved:

Provided that the Court may, on the application of the liquidator or of any other person who appears to the Court to be interested, make an order deferring the date at which the dissolution of the company is to take effect for such time as the Court thinks fit.

SEC. 208-E: MEANING OF TERMS.—The words “are fully wound up” whenever used in this section must not be construed so narrowly and so strictly as to bring about a deadlock in the proceedings. The insertion of the words “from the registration of the return” in Cl. (4) of the section can only mean that time runs from that date and not from the date of filing of the return before the registrar. If the registrar does not do his duty, or the necessary preliminaries which would justify registration have not been observed and he insists on something more being done before he can take action, time does not begin to run until he does take such action. —S. 209 and Ss. 209-A to H of the Companies Act make provision for the procedure to be followed in a creditors' voluntary "winding up". If owing to an oversight these provisions have not been followed in the winding up, the best course to adopt will be for the Court to order that a meeting of the creditors should be held and that notices of the meeting should be sent by post to the creditors forthwith, and the company should cause notice of the meeting of the creditors to be advertised in the manner specified in S. 206 (1) for the publication of a notice under that sub-section, and the directors of the company should cause a full statement of the position of the company's affairs together with a list of the creditors of the company and the estimated amount of their claim to be laid before such meeting of creditors, and the directors of the company should appoint one of their number to preside at the said meeting. At such meeting the creditors should consider the question of nomination of a liquidator under S. 209-B, and the appointment of a committee of inspection under S. 209-C, and other questions dealt with in Ss. 209-D to H. 1941 Cal. 30—I.L.R. Provided that in the case of different persons being nominated, any director, member or creditor of the company may, within seven days after the date on which the nomination was made by the creditors, apply to the Court for an order either directing that the person nominated as liquidator by the company shall be liquidator instead of or jointly with the person nominated by the creditors, or appointing some other person to be liquidator instead of the person appointed by the creditors.]

Provided that the creditors may, if they think fit, resolve that all or any of the persons so appointed by the company ought not to be members of the committee of inspection, and, if the creditors so resolve, the persons mentioned in the resolution shall not, unless the Court otherwise directs, be qualified to act as members of the committee, and on any application to the Court under this provision the Court may, if it thinks fit, appoint other persons to act as such members in place of the persons mentioned in the resolution.]

prospects of a trading venture than the Court can ever hope to be. If, therefore, the majority of the shareholders show confidence in the management of the company and have faith in its future prospects, the Court will rarely interfere. It is not right for the Court to intervene because one shareholder is dissatisfied. 44 Bom.L.R. 387=1942 Bom. 231. An applicant for winding up has got to make out a case for winding up on his petition, and he cannot be allowed to fish out a case by cross-examination of the deponents who have made affidavits on behalf of the company or by inspecting the accounts. 44 Bom.L.R. 387=A. I. R. 1942 Bom. 231.

SEC. 211: CREDITORS' RIGHT IN VOLUNTARY LIQUIDATION.—When a company goes into liquidation, though a voluntary one, the right of the creditor is only to take what he can take under the scheme of liquidation and nothing more. A creditor who obtains a decree against the company going into liquidation cannot recover the whole amount due under the decree but only a share of the decree in the terms of the scheme of liquidation. 118 I.C. 387=1930 L. 299; 1925 O. 483. Executing Court cannot stay or avoid execution proceedings and it is only the Court having jurisdiction under the Company Law that can order stay of execution and enable equal distribution of assets. 1931 C. 569. S. 171 of the Companies Act provides that when a winding up order has been made by Court, no suit or other legal proceedings shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company except by leave of the Court and subject to such terms as the Court may impose. S. 222 provides that in the case of winding up under the supervision of Court, any attachment, distress, or execution put in force without the leave of the Court against the estate or effects of the company after the commencement of the winding up shall be void. But no such corresponding provision is to be found in the case of 'voluntary winding-up'. It is no doubt laid down in S. 21 that the assets of the company in voluntary liquidation shall be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities pari passu. But this is intended for the guidance of the private liquidator as the Legislature did not like to leave him with an unlimited power so as to enable him to give unfair or fraudulent preference to a particular creditor. This provision does not by itself oust the jurisdiction of any subordinate Court to continue execution against the assets of the company by any creditor, and the subordinate Court has no jurisdiction to dismiss an execution petition pending before it merely on the ground that the Company had gone into voluntary liquidation. If the liquidator is confronted with a decree which has to be satisfied out of the assets of a company before the distribution of the assets among the creditors he should apply under S. 215 of the Act to the Court for stay of any action, or execution against the company and unless such an order is passed the executing Court cannot refuse execution. 58 C. 913=35 C.W.N. 299=1931 C. 569; 38 A. 407=14 A.L.J. 513=36 I.C. 397. An Insurance Company governed by the new Insurance Act (IV of 1938) which came into force on 1st July, 1939, failed to obtain a certificate of registration within three months from the commencement of the Act and was obliged under S. 3 to stop carrying on its business from 1st October, 1939. Its directors were, however, endeavouring to bring the company into line with the Insurance Act, and set apart all contributions received after 30th September, 1939, in a suspense account, and opened a separate account in the names of the President and Secretary of the company. A question arose whether these sums could be claimed by the liquidator as part of the company's assets. Held, that they could not be, and that S. 211 of the Companies Act did not apply to these sums because they did not form part of the company's legitimate assets, and that as they had been wrongfully received and had not become mixed up with other funds, they must be refunded in tact to the contributors' less legitimate charges. As it was prohibited by S. 3 from receiving contributions, if it continued to receive these moneys in spite of this prohibition, it could not claim the moneys as its own. 223 I.C. 52.

COURT GENERALLY ORDERS STAY OF EXECUTION.—Even in cases of voluntary liquidation, the Court generally stays execution of the decree obtained against the company. To allow the execution to be proceeded with in such a case would be going against the provisions of this section. 131 I.C. 379=1931 A. 559.

SEC. 212: POWER OF LIQUIDATION.—The

(a) in the case of a members' voluntary winding up, with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company, and in the case of a creditors' voluntary winding up, with the sanction of either the Court or the committee of inspection, exercise any of the powers given by clauses (d), (e), (f) and (h) of section 179 to a liquidator in a winding up. The exercise by the liquidator of the powers given by this clause shall be subject to the control of the Court and any creditor or contributory may apply to the Court with respect to any exercise or proposed exercise of any of these powers ;

(b) without the sanction referred to in clause (a), exercise any of the other powers by this Act given to the liquidator in a winding up by the Court ;

(c) exercise the power of the Court under this Act of settling a list of contributories, and the list of contributories shall be prima facie evidence of the liability of the persons named therein to be contributories ;

(d) exercise the power of the Court of making calls ;

(e) summon general meetings of the company for the purpose of obtaining the sanction of the company by special or extraordinary resolution or for any other purpose he may think fit.

(2) The liquidator shall pay the debts of the company and shall adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves.

powers of the liquidator in a voluntary winding up are more liberal than those of an official liquidator, inasmuch as he can exercise many of the powers mentioned in S. 179 of the Act without the sanction of the Court which the latter cannot do. He may also settle the list of contributories, make calls, summon meetings, and do several acts without reference to the Court at all.

SUIT TO RECOVER CALLS—JURISDICTION.—A suit brought by the liquidator for the recovery of calls in liquidation is one which can be entertained by the Court of a Subordinate Judge. Neither S. 187 nor S. 213 presents any bar. 9 Bom.L.R. 825.

DUTIES OF LIQUIDATORS TO CREDITORS.—The liquidator occupies more or less the position of a receiver in insolvency, and is entitled to ask the Court ordering liquidation, to go behind a judgment against the company, and to determine whether any particular debt in respect of which the judgment had been obtained was binding on the company. It is not necessary for him to allege or prove fraud, and it is sufficient if he shows that there ought not to have been a judgment, e.g., that the mortgage on which an ex parte decree was obtained was one that the managing agents had no power to execute or that it is void against the liquidator for not having been registered under S. 109 of the Act. 34 Bom.L.R. 411=138 I.C. 442=1932 B 253.

JOINT LIQUIDATORS.—Where two persons are appointed liquidators jointly, the refusal of one of them to act renders abortive the resolution appointing them. 50 A. 419=266 A.L.J. 181=1928 A. 165.

SEC. 214: NOTICE.—When a person is appointed liquidator, however imperfect he may consider his appointment to be, he must carry out the duties or exercise the rights of the liquidator, and the filing of the notice of his appointment is one of such duties; and if he fails to do so, he becomes liable to the penalty provided in the section. 39 A. 412=39 I.C. 478=15 A.L.J. 346.

(2) Any creditor or contributory may, within three weeks from the completion of the arrangement, appeal to the Court against it, and the Court may thereupon, as it thinks just, amend, vary or confirm the arrangement.]

¹[216. (1) The liquidator or any contributory or creditor may apply to the Court to determine any question arising in the winding up of a company, or to exercise, as respects the enforcing of calls, staying of proceedings or any other matter, all or any of the powers which the Court might exercise if the company were being wound up by the Court.

SEC. 215: SCOPE OF SECTION.—The provisions of this section are mandatory. Where they are not complied with, parties cannot seek to enforce the transaction by invoking the doctrine of part performance. Where the original composition deed was modified at a meeting of the debenture-holders but it appeared that the resolution was not acceded to by 3/4 in number and value of the creditors, the resolution was held not binding on the creditors. 1930 A.L.J. 1157=1930 A. 59.

SEC. 216: SCOPE OF SECTION.—COURTS' POWERS TO DECLARE WINDING UP BAD.—S. 216 is exhaustive of the persons who are entitled to make applications and the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies has no locus standi to make an application to the Court. 42 Bom.L.R. 1031=I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 39=1941 Bom. 25. A creditor has no locus standi under S. 216 to ask for a declaration that the winding up is void. The powers of a Court under that section are strictly limited. The exercise of such powers must be, under the second sub-section, in cases which are just and beneficial, not only just and beneficial to the petitioner but just and beneficial to all parties. 162 I.C. 218=1936 P. 468. But a contrary view has been taken in Lahore High Court. See 1931 L. 500=131 I.C. 747, where it was held that the powers of Court described in this section are exactly the same as those of which the Court is seised in a case of compulsory liquidation as given in S. 194, and include the declaration of the factum of dissolution, and that the word "where" in this section was used to designate a class of cases rather than the stage of the proceedings at which the action is contemplated.

POWER TO ORDER PAYMENT OF CALLS.—The liquidator may apply to the Court for an order directing the defaulting contributory to pay the unpaid calls, whether made by himself or by the directors before the winding up. Stone v. City and County Bank, (1877) 3 C.P.D. 282 (A.C.). It is open to the alleged contributory to resist the call on the ground that his name was improperly included in the list of contributories, although he may not have raised the objection till then. 3 C.P.D. 282 (C.A.). This section does not take away the ordinary power of the liquidator to enforce calls by means of suits. 51 A. 406=1929 A.L.J. 103=1928 A. 675.

POWER TO ORDER PUBLIC EXAMINATION UNDER S. 196.—The liquidator may apply for the public examination of directors and other persons, provided for under S. 196 of the Act in the case of a winding up by Court. 44 D. 659=22 Bom.L.R. 219=55 I.C. 831.

NO POWER TO COURT TO DECLARE COURT AUCTION SALE INVALID.—When once an auction sale of the company's properties has been held by a competent Court in execution of a decree against the company, the liquidating Court has no power to declare the sale invalid and to set it aside at the instance of a liquidator in voluntary liquidation. 1935 L. 991.

POWER OF COURT TO STAY EXECUTION.—A purely voluntary winding up does not by itself prevent a person who holds a money decree against the company from taking execution proceedings against it, but under this section the Court has the power to stay the same, if it is satisfied that the exercise of such power will "be just and beneficial". The invariable practice of the Court is to stay execution of the decree unless there are very exceptional reasons for exercising its discretion otherwise. The reason is that the execution if followed would necessarily interfere with the distribution of the assets pari passu. The mere attachment of the properties of the company does not render the person a "secured creditor". Until the property is actually sold the position of the attaching creditor is not higher than that of

(2) The liquidator or any creditor or contributory may apply for an order setting aside any attachment, distress or execution put into force against the estate or effects of the company after the commencement of the winding up.

Such application shall be made—

(a) if the attachment, distress or execution is levied or put into force by a High Court, to such High Court, and

(b) if the attachment, distress or execution is levied or put into force in any other Court, to the Court having jurisdiction to wind up the company.

(3) The Court, if satisfied that the determination of the question or the required exercise of power or the order applied for will be just and beneficial, may accede wholly or partially to the application on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit, or may make such other order on the application as it thinks just.]

to all other claims.]

one who has a mere money claim against the judgment-debtor, 131 I.C. 379=1931 L. 589.

JURISDICTION TO GRANT STAY.—The High Court alone has jurisdiction to grant stay of execution of a decree obtained against the company before it went into a voluntary liquidation. 38 A. 407=14 A.L.J. 513=36 I.C. 397. So, where after the passing of a decree against the company, it went into voluntary liquidation, and the decree-holder subsequently applied to the lower Court for execution, and obtained the attachment of certain properties belonging to the company, an application for stay made to the lower Court by the liquidator was held to be incompetent. 58 C. 913=35 C. W.N. 299=1931 O. 569. But note now the amendment made in the section.

APPEAL BY AGGRIEVED CREDITOR.—An order depriving a creditor, who has a claim which has been duly proved and admitted by the liquidator, of the benefit of the winding up of the company, deprives him of a substantial and important right, and such an order is appealable. 31 C.W.N. 894=103 I.C. 659=1927 O. 689.

SEC. 217.—Where a mortgagee of the machinery of a company agreed to the liquidator selling the machinery without waiver of the security, on a question as to whether the landlord of the premises was entitled to a priority in respect of the rent due, it was held that as the mortgagee had invoked the assistance of the liquidator he must bear the expenses incidental to the assistance he had received and that rent was payable in priority. 1938 A.M.L.J. 100.

SEC. 218: SCOPE OF SECTION.—In the absence of proof that the rights of the creditors or contributories will be prejudiced by the voluntary winding up the application for compulsory voluntary winding up must be dismissed. But the question whether the company should be allowed to go into voluntary liquidation or whether the Court should wind it compulsorily, depends upon the facts of each particular case. 1930 S. 71=119 I.C. 539. For the Court to order compulsory winding up it is necessary to show that the rights of creditors or contributories are prejudiced by reason of the voluntary winding up. 6 L. 340=89 I.C. 613=1925 L. 527. A creditor who would otherwise be entitled to a compulsory order for winding up may apply to the Court for such an order though the company is at the date of such application in the process of being wound up voluntarily. But a voluntary liquidator cannot seek to compulsorily wind up the company. I.L.R. (1938) All. 945=1938 A.L.J. 898=1938 All. 623.

SEC. 219.—The Amending Act, XXII of 1936, deleted the old Ss. 207 and 219 and Winding up subject to supervision of Court.

221. When a company has by special or extraordinary resolution to wind up voluntarily, the Court may make an order that the power to order winding up subject to supervision. voluntary winding up shall continue, but subject to such supervision of the Court, and with such liberty for creditors, contributories or others to apply to the Court, and generally on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks just.

222. A petition for the continuance of a voluntary winding up subject to the supervision of the Court shall, for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the Court over suits, be deemed to be a petition for winding up by the Court.

Effect of petition for winding up subject to supervision.

223. The Court may, in deciding between a winding up by the Court and a winding up subject to supervision, in the appointment of liquidators, and in all other matters, relating to the winding up subject to supervision, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories as proved to it by any sufficient evidence.

Court may have regard to wishes of creditors and contributories.

224. (1) Where an order is made for a winding up subject to supervision, the Court may by the same or any subsequent order appoint any additional liquidator.

(2) A liquidator appointed by the Court under this section shall have the same powers, be subject to the same obligations, and in all respects stand in the same position as if he had been appointed by the company.

(3) The Court may remove any liquidator so appointed by the Court or any liquidator continued under the supervision order, and fill any vacancy, occasioned by the removal or by death or resignation.

225. (1) Where an order is made for a winding up subject to supervision, the liquidator may, subject to any restrictions imposed by the Court, exercise all his powers, without the sanction or intervention of the Court, in the same manner as if the company were being wound up altogether voluntarily.

(2) Except as provided in sub-section (1), and save for the purposes of section 196, any order made by the Court for a winding up subject to the supervision of the Court shall for all purposes, including the staying of suits and other proceedings, substituted in their place, the present ss. 207 to 218.

SEC. 221: ORDER FOR SUPERVISION.—WHEN CAN BE MADE.—An order for supervision by the Court can be made only where there is a valid winding up of the company. Where the whole case of the petitioner is that the winding up proceedings are ultra vires and void, his petition cannot be treated as one for an order for supervision. 162 I.C. 218=1936 P. 468. Mere irregularity in the form of the petition is not sufficient ground for the Court but it is to be dealt with by the majority of the shareholders; and it will not justify an order for supervision under this section. 47 B. 915=25 Bom. L. R. 1083=1924 B. 102. The Courts will interfere only if the rights of the shareholders are infringed or if a case of fraud or ultra vires, is made out. 47 B. 915; 46 P.R. 1911=101 I.C. 515. In making order for supervision under this section, all transactions between the date of the presentation and the winding up order if done in the ordinary course of business, will be confirmed by the Court. 59 M.L.J. 826=1930 M. 1012.

SEC. 222: OBJECT AND SCOPE OF SECTION.—The object of this section is to enable the Court to pass the necessary orders that all unsecured creditors may be paid pari passu. 54 B. 718=32 Bom.L.R. 953=1931 B. 2. This section is wide enough to cover appeals against any order made in the matter of winding up of the company, provided such an order finally decides a dispute between the parties and deprives the appellant of a substantial right and is not a mere formal or interlocutory order. 130 I.C. 407=1931 L. 8.

SEC. 225: SCOPE OF SECTION.—Under this section, the orders passed by the Court in winding up proceedings under supervision of Court, stand on the same footing as orders passed in winding up by Court and hence an appeal is competent from an order passed therein. 158 I.C. 853=1935 L. 174 (1).

be deemed to be an order of the Court for winding up the company by the Court, and shall confer full authority on the Court to make calls or to enforce calls made by the liquidators, and to exercise all other powers which it might have exercised if an order had been made for winding up the company altogether by the Court.

(3) In the construction of the provisions whereby the Court is empowered to direct any act or thing to be done to or in favour of the official liquidator, the expression "official liquidator" shall be deemed to mean the liquidator conducting the winding up subject to the supervision of the Court.

226. Where an order has been made for the winding up of a company subject to supervision, and an order is afterwards made for winding up by the Court, the Court may, by the last-mentioned order or by any subsequent order, appoint the voluntary liquidators or any of them, either provisionally or permanently, and either with or without the addition of any other person, to be official liquidator in the winding up by the Court.

Supplemental Provisions.

227. (1) In the case of voluntary winding up every transfer of shares, except transfers made to or with the sanction of the liquidator, and every alteration in the status of the members of the company made after the commencement of the winding up shall be void.

Avoidance of transfers, etc., after commencement of winding up.

(2) In the case of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, every disposition of the property (including actionable claims) of the company, and every transfer of shares or alteration in the status of its members, made after the commencement of the winding up shall, unless the Court otherwise orders, be void.

SEC. 227: APPLICATION OF SECTION.—It is within the jurisdiction of the Court at any time after the transfer of the shares, to order that the transaction is a good one and should stand. It does not mean that the transfer without previous sanction should be necessarily void. Complete discretion is left with the Court. 1934 A.L.J. 195=1934 A. 161. If it is found that the Court has not used its discretion in a just and proper manner it is open to the appellate Court to interfere in appropriate cases and to prevent the working of injustice to the company by this section. 54 B. 718=32 Bom.L.R. 953=1931 B. 2.

SEC. 227 AND SEC. 57: PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT—DISTINCTION—NOTICE—RELEVANCY.—The difference between S. 57, Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, and S. 227, Companies Act, is that while bona fide payments to creditors by an insolvent, subject to the provisions of the Insolvency Act are valid, payments to creditors of a company from the moment of the presentation of a winding up petition become void. While payments by an insolvent made bona fide to his creditors may be regarded as payments made in the ordinary course of business, payments by a company of debts existing at the time of the presentation of a petition for winding up, made after the presentation of the petition, cannot be so regarded. For the purposes of S. 227, it is immaterial whether the person making or receiving the payment had or did not have notice of the presentation of the petition for winding up, whereas a person claiming the protection of S. 57, P. T. I. Act to show that the transaction was without notice of the presentation of any petition. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 460=1939 Sind 196.

"UNLESS THE COURT OTHERWISE DIRECTS".—The Court, in the exercise of its discretion will not generally order the annulment of transaction bona fide entered into in the ordinary course of trade, and completed before the date of the winding up order, such as calls made or debentures issued bona fide, to avert the ruin of the company. 54 B. 718=32 Bom.L.R. 953=1931 B. 2; 59 M.L.J. 826=1930 M. 1912. And mere knowledge of the presentation of the petition is not necessarily conclusive to show want of bona fides. 54 B. 718. A petitioning creditor cannot utilize his petition, to gain pecuniary benefit to himself in the interval between the petition and the winding up order. 54 B. 718.

TRANSACTION IN FAVOR OF CREDITOR DIRECTOR.—A director of a company is a trustee for the company and is a trustee for the creditors of the company only to the extent of applying all the assets for the benefit of all the creditors so far as they will extend. If a director-creditor of the company knows that the company is in a state of insolvency, and obtains a hypothecation of the stock-in-trade and outstandings of the company and thereby obtains undue preference to other creditors, his transaction is tainted with fraud, and liable to be set aside. 40 C.W.N. 769.

228. In every winding up (subject in the case of insolvent companies to the Debts of all descriptions application in accordance with the provisions of this Act of the law of insolvency) all debts payable on a contingency, and all claims against the company, present or future, certain or contingent shall be admissible to proof against the company, a just estimate being made, so far as possible, of the value of such debts or claims as may be subject to any contingency or for some other reason do not bear a certain value.

SEC. 227 (2): SCOPE OR.—Transactions made after the commencement of a winding up which a Court would validate under S. 227 (2), are transactions bona fide entered into by a company for the benefit of the company and those interested in the assets of the company for preserving the business of the company as a going concern and not to the detriment of other creditors. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 460=1939 Sind 196. Where an insurance company makes payments between the commencement of the winding up and the date of the winding up order, to some of its policy-holders in respect of their policies, the amount of which had become due, such payments being payments of debts by company to its creditors clearly amount to dispositions of property within the meaning of S. 227 (2) and are not only void but cannot be validated. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 460=1939 Sind 196.

VALIDATION OF PAYMENTS—PRINCIPLES UPON WHICH COURTS SHOULD ACT.—As regards the validation of payments under S. 227 (2) the Court will usually validate payments made in good faith in the ordinary course of business. In deciding what are such payments, the principle to be kept in mind is that all creditors to whom money is due at the date of the petition for winding up, should be treated equally, with certain exceptions in favour of those who have priority under the express provisions of the Act. Where preferential payments are made to some creditors by the company or its officers, it is acting against this rule. Where on the other hand the business of the company is continued in good faith either because it is hoped that it may not be necessary eventually to wind up the company or because in the interests of all concerned it is better that the company should on being wound up be transferred as a going concern, it is necessary for the company to enter into various transactions and it would be impossible for it to do so if it was not able to make any transfers. 1940 A.L.J. 739=1940 All. 514=I.L.R. (1940) All. 730. See also 1939 Sind 196. Where during the pendency of winding up proceedings a Bank agrees to employ a cashier and to transfer his unsecured deposit with the Bank into a security deposit and does so transfer it, the whole transaction is void under S. 227 (2) as a disposition by the Company of its property made after commencement of winding up.

Inasmuch as the cashier obtained an undue advantage over his fellow creditors, the Court would not validate the disposition by giving it its sanction. I.L.R. (1942) A. 86=1942 A. 141.

SEC. 228: LIQUIDATOR'S POSITION AND DUTY.—The Official Receiver, and the official liquidator of an insolvent company, stand on the same footing. They are not the representatives of the insolvent, the individual or the company. On the one hand they represent the estate of the insolvent, and on the other hand they represent the interest of the whole body of creditors. The duty of the trustees in bankruptcy or the official liquidators is to distribute the assets of the insolvent, individual or the company, among such of their creditors as have a just claim. 49 A. 728=25 A.L.J. 450=1927 A. 426.

CLAIM BASED ON DECREE.—The decree that may be valid and binding on the insolvent is not necessarily valid or binding against the trustee in bankruptcy or the official liquidator. Under S. 34 (2) of the Provincial Insolvency Act, the debts have got to be "proved" by claimants before they can be entered in the schedule of creditors, and the same rule applies also in the liquidation of a company. Nobody has a right to claim more than what is justifiably due to him, on the mere ground that the insolvent, the individual or the representatives of an insolvent company had agreed to pay to the claimant more than what was justly and properly due to him. Liquidators are not the company nor the representatives of the company. The official liquidator is not bound to receive the decree as conclusive evidence of the liability of the company. Where there has been a genuine contest between a claimant or a creditor on the one hand and the company and the parties have fought out the case bona fide, it would not be open to the liquidator to re-open the case. But where the decree is found to rest on something less than a real trial on the merits of the case, the official liquidator would be justified in calling for independent proof of the claim based on it, i.e., may ask for what has been called "the consideration for the judgment". So also in the case of compromise decrees, where the genuineness of the compromise is doubtful, the official liquidator may call for independent proof of the claim apart from the decree. 49 A. 728=25 A.L.J. 450=1927 A. 426.

229. In the winding up of an insolvent company the same rules shall prevail and be observed with regard to the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors and to debts provable and to the valuation of annuities and future and contingent liabilities as are in force for the time being under the law of insolvency with respect to the estates of persons adjudged insolvent; and all persons who in any such case would be entitled to prove for and receive dividends out of the assets of the company may come in under the winding up, and make such claims against the company as they respectively are entitled to by virtue of this section.

SEC. 229: CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—The expression “rules . . . under the law of insolvency” in S. 229, should not be widened so as to include the whole “law of insolvency” but the expression should be narrowed so as to include only “rules” as given in S. 229. This section and S. 228 do not import all the provisions of the Provincial Insolvency Act, into company law, and in particular S. 28 (2) of the latter Act is not so imported. 160 I.C. 908=1936 Pesh. 57. But a different view has been taken by the Allahabad High Court. See 51 A. 695=1929 A.L.J. 811=1929 A. 353. (See also notes under S. 230, infra, as to the construction of this section and the different view, held by the Lahore and the Bombay High Courts on this point.) Where an assessment under S. 23 (4) of the Income-tax Act has been made in respect of a company and it had also become final as against the firm and the company subsequently goes into liquidation, the assessment cannot be re-opened ordinarily. There could be an interference with the assessment only, if there is reason to think that the assessment was vitiated by fraud. 16 Luck. 599=1941 O.W.N. 118=1941 Oudh. 260.

REMEDIES OPEN TO A SECURED CREDITOR.—It is not necessary for the secured creditor to prove his debt in liquidation. He may rely upon his security and proceed to realise his debt in the ordinary course of law. If after exhausting the security anything more remains to be paid to him, he may prove in liquidation for the deficient amount. Or, he may value his security without instituting a suit, and prove for the balance of the debt after deducting the assessed value. In this case, the liquidators may redeem the security at the value assessed; and when not redeemed, the secured creditor will not be allowed to prove for more than the balance, even when the security realises less than the assessed value. A third course also may be adopted by him, i.e., by surrendering his entire security and proving for the whole debt. 51 A. 695=1929 A.L.J. 811=1929 A. 353. A cheque was handed over to the Bombay Branch of the T. N. and Q. Bank by a company which had a current account with the Bank's branch at N in the Travancore State for collection and remission to the branch at N. The Bombay branch collected the cheque, but before it could send the amount to the branch at N, the Bank suspended payment and went into liquidation.

Held, that as the money had not got into the company's account at N, the Bank's position was that of an agent holding his principal's moneys and not that of debtor and creditor. Although the branches might be the agencies of one principal firm, they might be regarded as distinct trading bodies for certain special purposes of banking business. As the money never got to the branch at N, it belonged to the company and the company's money could not be used for paying the Bank's creditors. The liquidator was therefore bound to pay it over to the company. 55 L.W. 430=I.L.R. 1943 Mad. 187=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 646=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 128.

ATTACHING CREDITOR NOT SECURED CREDITOR.—Attachment creates no charge in favour of the attaching creditor but it merely prevents and avoids alienation and confers no right on him. Hence he cannot be treated as a secured creditor. However it is open to him in the winding up to obtain the leave of the Court to continue his execution. 31 Bom.L.R. 1029=122 I.C. 836=1930 B. 16. See also 21 Pat. 287.

INTEREST, CLAIM TO, BY SECURED CREDITOR AFTER DATE OF LIQUIDATION.—A secured creditor can claim interest up to the date of payment, when he seeks to recover what is due to him from the proceeds of the sale of the secured property. But when such proceeds are insufficient to satisfy his entire claim, and he seeks to prove against the other property as an unsecured creditor, he must confine his claim to the principal and interest which have accrued up to the date of adjudication or liquidation, as the case may be, deducting therefrom the amount realised by the sale of the property. He will not be allowed to deduct the interest which has accrued due after liquidation, from the amount realised by the sale of the security in the first instance and afterwards apply the balance to the principal and interest due up to the date of liquidation and then to prove for the balance. 1930 R. 20=7 R. 514=120 I.C. 702; 1930 R. 47; 1922 L. 281.

INTEREST SUBSEQUENT TO WINDING UP re UNSECURED CREDITORS.—Where a company has been ordered to be wound up, interest on debts which carry interest ceases to run from the date of the winding up (i.e., under S. 168, from the time of the presentation of the petition for the winding up) unless the assets are enough to pay all debts in full. Where the estate is insolvent nothing should be allowed for interest, but the opposite rule applies where the estate is solvent, i.e., where there is a surplus. In the latter case, in whatever manner the dividends may originally have been made, if it turns out that there is an ultimate surplus, the account must be taken as between the company and the creditors in the ordinary way, i.e., by applying each dividend in the first place to the payment of interest due at the date of such dividend, and the surplus, if any, to the reduction of the principal. 32 L.W. 950=1930 M. 1012=59 M.L.J. 826. Where certain cash deposit is made with a Bank as security for the good behaviour of an employee, the amount is received by the bank on a specific understanding to be applied for a specific purpose and is trust money in the hands of the Bank and not assets of the Bank divisible among creditors. 1940 O.W.N. 1022. Where interest is payable on such deposits the agreement to pay interest could not destroy the character of trust moneys. Trust moneys could be followed so as to reach the assets of the bank from whatever source they might come. The assets of the bank coming into the hands of the Liquidator would have to be earmarked first of all to the discharge of the claim by the depositors. 47 L.W. 153=178 I.C. 428=1938 Mad. 651. See also 1939 M.W.N. 1069; 1940 Mad. 178; 1939 M.W.N. 1066; 53 L.W. 512=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 559=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 125; 49 L.W. 181=1939 Mad. 337=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 209. Whenever money is paid by one person to another it can be said it is remitted for a specific purpose, e.g., when a buyer pays to a seller of goods or a hirer for the hire of an article; but because money is paid that does not ipso facto make the recipient a trustee. A trust would exist when a banker is to collect and remit, but not when he is to use and repay. 1941 M.W.N. 1067=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 910. Payment of arrears of premia to insurance company by assignee of policy for revival of lapsed policy—Condition as to production of medical certificate not fulfilled—Company ordered to be wound up before production—Assignee has no right to rank as preferential creditor—Trust not created. 1941 M.W.N. 1067=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 910.

CROSS-CLAIMS AND SET-OFF.—Though a debt due by a company is not presently payable, it can be set-off against money owing to the company in liquidation. If a debtor of a company takes an assignment of a debt due by the company, before it goes into liquidation, a set-off of the one against the other can be allowed in liquidation proceedings, and it would not amount to a fraudulent preference. 50 L.W. 759=1940 Mad. 157. A debtor of an insolvent company in respect of whose debt there is a surety is entitled to set-off against the money owing by the debtor to the company, moneys due to the debtor from the company, and a surety is entitled to set-off in respect of his obligation to the company moneys owing to him from the company. A debtor having a cross-claim which can be set-off against the company does not lose that right because the company has obtained a safeguard by a surety. The moneys due to the surety on the one hand and from him to the company on the other in respect of the surety debt, are mutual dealings, and he has the right to set-off against his indebtedness to the company the moneys due to him. Both the debtor and the surety who are under an obligation to pay moneys to the company but who themselves are creditors of the company may therefore set-off one debt against the other. 1939 M.W.N. 1231=1940 Mad. 266; 1941 Mad. 622=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 818. Where a person agreed to supply cotton to a company's mill for being spun into yarn and to advance sums of money for various expenses and the arrangement was that the creditor should deduct his advances from the spinning charges and the company was later on wound up, it was held, that the liquidators can recover only if the balance on such accounting is in their favour. 1940 A.L.J. 626=1940 All. 490. The effect of S. 3 of Limitation Act is to bring about the automatic dismissal of suits, founded upon causes of action which are time barred. It is only the remedy that is destroyed, but the debt remains. Such a debt can be set-off by a liquidator in winding up proceedings against debts by the company to the debtor. The right of set-off exercisable in winding up proceedings is distinguishable from the set-off provided for under the C.P. Code, O. 8, R. 6; for the condition of being legally recoverable does not attach. I.L.R. (1941) All. 415=1941 All. 278. If a debt is incurred by the members of a partnership they are jointly and severally liable. If A and B, members of a firm, sue C, C cannot set-off a debt due by A alone, whereas if C sues A and B, A can set-off a debt due by C. Where the liability of the partners is joint and several in a claim to enforce that joint and several liability, it is open to the partners to set-off a debt due to them. The rule of set-off in bankruptcy does not rest on the same principle as the right of set-off between solvent parties, because the principle is wider. 53 L.W. 560=1941 M.W.N. 358=1941 Mad. 654. It is no doubt true that where there is an amount due to a bank payable by A in his individual account, and an amount due by the bank payable to A and B in their joint account, the two accounts cannot be set-off; but if it could be shown that, though the account is in the name of A and B, A is solely entitled to the amount, a set-off has always been allowed.

Preferential payments.

230. (1) In a winding up there shall be paid in priority to all other debts—

(a) all revenue, taxes, cesses and rates, whether payable to the Crown or to a local authority, due from the company at the date hereinafter mentioned and having become due and payable within the twelve months next before that date ;

SECURITY GIVEN BY THIRD PARTY TO BANK IN SHAPE OF FIXED DEPOSIT IN BANK—RIGHT TO CLAIM SET-OFF.—There can be no set off of claims under S. 229 of the Companies Act when there are no mutual dealings. A Bank lent Rs. 2,000 to the applicant on a promissory note. As the bank was not willing to lend without security, S, the mother-in-law, gave as security a sum of Rs. 4,300 which she had in fixed deposit in the Bank along with a letter authorising the Bank to set-off the whole or any portion of the said deposit and interest accrued thereon towards the loan granted to the applicant. Before the fixed deposit matured, the Bank went into liquidation and the applicant claimed to set-off the amount due by the Bank to S against the amount due by him. S also filed an affidavit expressing her willingness to the set-off. Held, (1) that there were no mutual dealings in the case which would entitle the applicant to claim a set-off under S. 229, Companies Act; (2) that though the Bank had a right to set-off, the applicant could not say that he had a right to claim a set-off; (3) that the Bank should adjust the dividend payable under the deposit receipt towards the amount due and recover only the balance. 1941 Mad. 622=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 818. On a contention that a charge in respect of certain trust monies extends only to the assets in the hands of a Bank on the date of its liquidation and that the subsequent realisations of assets of the Bank were replenishments of the Bank's funds, but not necessarily of trust funds, it was held that where the subsequent realisations are only the previously existing assets changed into a different form, and not fresh funds which were not part of the previous assets, the charge would extend to those realizations also. 1940 O. W.N. 1022. If a security deposit made by an employee or by a selling agent of a company can be regarded as impressed with a trust, the depositor would, on the liquidation of assets of the Bank were replenishments get it back from the assets. Otherwise the relation would be that of creditor and debtor, and the former would have no preference. Where there is a written contract, the question would have to be decided on a construction of that instrument. The money would be regarded as trust money, unless there are terms creating relationship of creditor and debtor. The mere stipulation for payment of interest on the deposit money, or a right given in certain contingencies to liquidate its claim from the deposit would not establish the relationship of creditor and debtor. If it is trust money the right of the depositor would not be affected simply because it has not been kept by the company as an ear-marked fund but has been mixed up with other funds of the company. SECS. 229 AND 230: SCOPE—CROWN DEBTS—PRIORITY—IF EXTENDS TO TRADE DEBTS.—The provisions of S. 49 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act are not incorporated by S. 229 of the Companies Act and the priority of Crown debts in winding up proceedings is limited to those specifically mentioned in S. 230 of that Act. Priority regarding Crown debts does not extend to trade debts payable to the Crown. 41 C.W.N. 458=I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 684. See also 1931 L. 351. It is not in accordance with justice, equity and good conscience to apply the rule enunciated in (1899) 2 Q.B.D. 145, to India even if that case be regarded as correctly decided in accordance with English law. I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 706. A liquidation Court can in proper cases go behind assessments though the latter are prima facie evidence that certain income was earned and that an amount of tax is due. I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 706. The onus of proving that the assessment does not represent the real taxable income rests, however, on the liquidator. I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 706=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 228 (S.B.).

SEC. 230: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—It was thought inequitable to treat compensation payable to workmen under the Workmen's Compensation Act, provident fund, pension fund, gratuity, and other similar funds for the welfare of the employees of the company, as ordinary debts provable in the winding up; and hence this amendment gives them priority as under the English law. Under S. 137, if the Registrar finds anything unsatisfactory in the conduct of the company, he may report to the local Government; and the Government may appoint inspectors to investigate and report under S. 138 (iv). This investigation being in the interests of the company, it is proper that the expenses of the investigation should be not only borne by the company but also that preference should be given to payment thereof over the other liabilities of the company. Accordingly, this section and S. 141, have been amended. S. 141 as now amended provides for the payment of the expenses out of the assets of the company and for their recovery as an arrear of land revenue, and this section (S. 230), gives priority to them.

CONSTRUCTION AND SCOPE OF SS. 229 AND 230.—S. 229 makes the rules of insolvency law applicable as far as may be in respect of winding up proceedings; where, however, there is a conflict between the Companies Act and the Insolvency Act the provisions of the Companies Act should be given effect to. Where the Local Government claimed priority in respect of the amount spent by it for the purpose of investigation of the affairs of a Bank S. 141 (3) and the official liquidator objector, it was held that even if the amount should be deemed as a Crown debt it did not come under S. 230, and was not entitled to priority. 12 L. 678 = 1931 L. 351. See also 41 C.W.N. 458. The principle of the above ruling will still hold good, although the actual decision may not be correct in view of the amendment. But see 29 Bom.L.R. 1446 = 106 I.C. 27 = 1927 B. 606, has taken a different view in which the Secretary of State, as a judgment creditor of a company in liquidation was given priority in respect of a debt arising out of certain trade or commercial dealings between him and the company. The legislature in amending Ss. 141 and 230 of this Act, appears to have impliedly accepted the correctness of the view of the Lahore Court. See also 1936 Pesh. 57 = 160 I.C. 908, which puts a narrow construction on S. 229, and 51 A. 695 = 1929 A.L.J. 811 = 1929 A. 352, which takes a contrary view. The Patna High Court also has taken a view similar to that of Lahore, and has held that the Crown was not entitled to any preferential claim in respect of a decree obtained by it in certificate proceedings under S. 20 of the Bihar and Orissa State Aid to Industries Act, 1923. Vide 134 I.C. 429 = 1932 P. 1. The income-tax which does not become due and payable until after the winding up order has been made is not a debt for which priority can be claimed. I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 706 = 46 P.L.R. 1 = A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 228 (S.B.).

COSTS OF SUCCESSFUL LITIGANT AGAINST COMPANY—PRIORITY.—A successful litigant against a company in liquidation is entitled to be paid his costs in full in priority over other ordinary creditors except where there are other creditors in the same position as himself when they and he will rank pari passu as regards the fund available for the discharge of their debts. 43 P.L.R. 648 = 1941 Comp.C. 294. Where a foreign company is wound up in more jurisdictions than one, the law is that the Court of each jurisdiction will be governed by the forensic rules which govern the conduct of its own liquidation. S. 230 (1) (e) of the Act, as amended in 1936 is a forensic rule in this sense and ought to be applied in the matter of winding up of a foreign company which is an unregistered company under the Act, and that provision would therefore apply to the case of a sum due to any employee from the provident fund account maintained by the company. Where a provident fund is established for the benefit of the employees subscription to which is compulsory, and it is clear from the rules of the fund that the fund is held for a specific purpose, i.e., for payment to the employees or their legal representatives on the termination of their service, that fund is a trust fund and the relationship between the Bank and the employee is that of a trustee and cestui que trust and not that of a debtor and creditor. The fact that in certain contingencies the employee may not be paid the amount or the company may have a beneficial interest in the said moneys does not make the fund any the less a trust fund. The employees are therefore entitled in the winding up of the company, to be paid in full the amounts standing to their credit. 1938 M.W.N. 1332 = 1939 Mad. 352. See also 1940 Mad. 184; 1939 M.W.N. 1069.

SEC. 230 (1) (b) AND (2) (b): SALARY OF EMPLOYEE—PRIORITY OVER FLOATING CHARGE. On the winding up of a company an employee is, by virtue of S. 230 (1) (b) and (2) (b) entitled, in respect of salary to the extent of Rs. 1,000, to priority of payment as against the holder of a floating charge created by a debenture over the book debts of the company. 1941 Mad. 586 = (1941) 1 M. L.J. 577. See also 1938 All. 609. The managing agents of a company deposited in the general accounts of the company a sum of money as security for the fulfilment of their obligations under the agreement appointing them. They were to get interest on it, and to have a second charge on the machinery and other assets of the company. Winding up of the company was ordered. The managing agents claimed that their deposit was a trust fund and should be returned to them. In negativing such contention it was held that the fair test whether such a sum of money was to be held as a trust fund or not was to ask whether, in the circumstances, it was intended that it should remain a segregated fund, or whether it should, on payment, become the property of the company and be compensated for by the company's express or implied covenant to repay it. It was held that the circumstances that it passed into the general assets of the company and was utilised, by them for their general expenses and that interest was to be paid on it and that it was to be a second charge on the machinery, etc., of the company, clearly

(2) The foregoing debts shall—

(b) so far as the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors are insufficient to meet them, have priority over the claims of holders of debentures under any floating charge created by the company, and be paid accordingly out of any property comprised in or subject to that charge.

REVENUE, MEANING OF—S. 230 (1) (a).—If the section had read "all taxes cesses, rates and other revenue" the word "revenue" will have to be read ejusdem generis, with the preceding words. But in this section "revenue" comes first, and therefore it must not necessarily be taken to be ejusdem generis with the words that come after it. Hence the word in this section means only income. The rent of the Government telephone lines and also the charge for trunk calls is the income of the Government and therefore must be taken to be "revenue" within the meaning of S. 230 (a). 53 A. 92=1931 A.L.J. 24=1930 A. 884. Where selling agents deposited with a company certain amount, which was to carry interest and which was to be re-paid on the termination of the period and such persons applied for the return as per their agreement and not succeeding in getting it applied for the winding up of the company and contended that they are entitled to preferential payment, it was held that the agreement between parties did not create a trust or any other fiduciary relationship and the selling agents were not entitled to any preferential payment. CHIT FUND—PRIZE WINNER—SECURITY—POSITION OF.—The principle in equity that a creditor is not entitled to recover the debt for which security has been given when he is not in a position to return the security applies when the debtor and the person giving the security are the same person. Where the holder of a chit in a chit fund conducted by a company bids the chit and gets payment of the prize money on getting other persons to give their own non-prized tickets in the chit fund as security for the future subscriptions payable by the bidder, and the company thereafter goes into liquidation, it is not open to the bidder who has committed default in payment of future instalments to claim a set-off as against the amounts due by him the amounts due to the sureties under their tickets, which the company holds as security, though it has gone into liquidation. 50 L.W. 306=1939 Mad. 915=(1939) 2 M. SEC. 230-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section has been newly inserted. This gives the liquidator power, corresponding to that of a trustee in bankruptcy, to disclaim land burdened with covenants, unprofitable contracts and property which is unsaleable. Similar provision is contained in S. 267 of the English Act.

(5) The Court may, on the application of any person who is, as against the liquidator, entitled to the benefit or subject to the burden of a contract made with the company, make an order rescinding the contract on such terms as to payment by or to either party of damages for the non-performance of the contract, or otherwise as the Court thinks just, and any damages payable under the order to any such person may be proved by him as a debt in the winding up.

(6) The Court may, on an application by any person who either claims any interest in any disclaimed property or is under any liability not discharged by this Act in respect of any disclaimed property and on hearing any such persons as it thinks fit, make an order for the vesting of the property in or the delivery of the property to any persons entitled thereto, or to whom it may seem just that the property should be delivered by way of compensation for such liability as aforesaid, or a trustee for him, and on such terms as the Court thinks just, and on any such vesting order being made, the property comprised therein shall vest accordingly in the person therein named in that behalf without any conveyance or assignment for the purpose :

Provided that, where the property disclaimed is of a leasehold nature, the Court shall not make a vesting order in favour of any person claiming under the company whether as under-lessee or as mortgagee except upon the terms of making that person—

(a) subject to the same liabilities and obligations as those to which the company was subject under the lease in respect of the property at the commencement of the winding up ; or

(b) if the Court thinks fit, subject only to the same liabilities and obligations as if the lease had been assigned to that person at that date ; and in either event (if the case so requires) as if the lease had comprised only the property comprised in the vesting order, and any mortgagee or under-lessee declining to accept a vesting order upon such terms shall be excluded from all interest in and security upon the property, and, if there is no reason claiming under the company who is willing to accept an order upon such terms, the Court shall have power to vest the estate and interest of the company in the property in any person liable, either personally or in a representative character, and either alone or jointly with the company, to perform the lessee's covenants in the lease, freed and discharged from all estates, incumbrances and interests created therein by the company.

(7) Any person injured by the operation of a disclaimer under this section shall be deemed to be a creditor of the company to the amount of the injury, and may accordingly prove the amount as a debt in the winding up.]

SEC. 230-A (5) APPLICATION FOR RESCINDING OF CONTRACT.—Under S. 230-A (5), the Court is given a discretion to make an order rescinding a contract made by a person with a company prior to the winding up on his application to the Court. If the contract has already been rescinded, an application will not lie. 52 L.W. 635=(1940) M.W.N. 1077 =(1940) 2 M.L.J. 697.

SEC. 231: PURCHASE BETWEEN WINDING UP APPLICATION AND THE ORDER.—Where the company has contracted to purchase goods between the date of the presentation of the petition for winding up and the winding up order, and has actually taken delivery of these goods, the Court will confirm the transaction if the goods were purchased by the company in the ordinary course of business. 1930 M. 1012=59 M.L.J. 826.

TITLE OF THIRD PARTIES.—A winding up Court cannot take cognizance of and adjudicate on the title of third parties except for the limited purpose mentioned in this section, and S. 232, and if it is necessary, the liquidators must have recourse to regular suits. 51 A. 695=1929 A.L.J. 811=1929 A. 353. The official liquidator was held not entitled to a summary order for refund of the money raised by a creditor of the company before the order for winding up was passed but after the Bank had passed a resolution stopping payment of debts; and he was referred to a regular suit to recover the amount. 26 S.L.R. 102=1922 S. 106. Where a voluntary winding up is followed by a compulsory winding up by the Court, the former is superseded on account of the inconsistency between the provisions which rein the event of its being wound up, a fraudulent preference of its creditors, and be invalid accordingly.

(2) For the purposes of this section the presentation of a petition for winding up in the case of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, and a resolution for winding up in the case of a voluntary winding up, shall be deemed to correspond with the act of insolvency in the case of an individual.

(3) Any transfer or assignment by a company of all its property to trustees for the benefit of all its creditors shall be void.

232. (1) Where any company is being wound up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, any attachment, distress or execution put in force without leave of the Court against the estate or effects ¹[or any sale held without leave of the Court of any of the properties] of the company after the commencement of the winding up shall be void.

(2) Nothing in this section applies to proceedings by ²[the Crown].

233. Where a company is being wound up a floating charge on the undertaking or property of the company created within three months of the commencement of the winding up shall, unless it is proved that the company immediately after the creation of the charge was solvent, be invalid except to the amount of any cash paid to the company at the time of, or subsequently to the creation of, and in consideration for, the charge, together with interest on that amount at the rate of five percent. per annum.

234. late to the two forms of winding up. In such a case the crucial date for determining the period of three months under S. 54 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, is the date of the presentation of the petition to the Court for winding up. The presentation of the petition is the act of insolvency and not the prior resolution of the company for voluntary winding up. 55 L.W. 731=1942 M.W.N. 671=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 54=(1942) 2 M. SEC. 232: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—It was held in 43 A. 433 that the section as it stood then did not apply to sales of any property held after the commencement of the winding up. The real object of the section being to protect the properties of the company in liquidation, the construction put upon it by the Allahabad Court to some extent frustrated the object. With a view to render the section clear and to have the matter of "sales" also expressly included in the section, the present amendment has been made. 43 A. 433 is no longer good law.

APPLICABILITY OF SECTION.—The provisions of this section are applicable only to two kinds of winding up, viz., either by the Court or subject to its supervision, and they do not apply to a case of voluntary winding-up S 171 of the Act cannot be invoked to apply to a case of voluntary winding up as that section is contained in a chapter specifically headed "Winding up by the Court". Hence any attachment, distress or execution put in force against a company without the leave of the Court after a voluntary winding up shall not ipso facto put an end to the attachment already in force. This is also in accordance with the English law. 1924 O. 406=79 I.C. 968. See also 38 A. 407=36 I.C. 397=14 A.L.J. 513. As to the meaning of the term "put in force", see 43 A. 433=19 A.L.J. 262.

"EXECUTION SALE AFTER WINDING UP.—A sale of the assets of a company after the winding up order, in execution of a decree passed before the order, without the permission of the Court, is voidable at the instance of the liquidator. 2 P.L.J. 77=38 I.C. 91. A contrary view was taken in 43 A. 433; but now the Act has been amended, and 43 A. 433 will no longer be good law on this point.

SEC. 233: FLOATING SECURITY.—A floating security is not a future security or a specific security; and it is a present security which presently affects the assets of the company expressed to be included in it. 50 B. 547=28 Bom.L.R. 689=1926 B. 427.

SEC. 234: POWER OF LIQUIDATOR TO REFER TO ARBITRATION.—The powers of liquidators as regards reference of disputes to arbitration are not co-extensive with the powers of directors or managers of a living company.

(i) pay any classes of creditors in full ;
 (ii) make any compromise or arrangement with creditors or persons claiming to be creditors or having or alleging themselves to have any claim, to present or future whereby the company may be rendered liable ;

(iii) compromise all calls and liabilities to calls, debts and liabilities capable of resulting in debts, and all claims, present or future certain or contingent subsisting or supposed to subsist between the company and a contributory or alleged contributory or other debtor or person apprehending liability to the company, and all questions in any way relating to or affecting the assets or the winding up of the company, on such terms as may be agreed and take any security for the discharge of any such call, debt, liability or claim, and give a complete discharge in respect thereof.

(2) The exercise by the liquidator of the powers of this section shall be subject to the control of the Court, and any creditor or contributory may apply to the Court with respect to any exercise or proposed exercise of any of these powers.

any money or property of the company, or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company, the Court may, on the application of the liquidator, or of any creditor or contributory [made within three years from the date of the first appointment of a liquidator in the winding up or of the misapplication, retainer, misfeasance or breach of trust, as the case may be, whichever is longer], examine into the conduct of the promoter, director, manager, liquidator or officer, and compel him to repay or restore the money or property or any part thereof respectively with interest at such rate as the Court thinks just, or to contribute such sum to the assets of the company by way of compensation in respect of the misapplication, retainer, misfeasance or breach of trust as the Court thinks just.

(2) This section shall apply notwithstanding that the offence is one for which the offender may be criminally responsible.

CREDITORS.—The creditors referred to in S. 230 of the Act are persons entitled to priority under the statute but the Court has under S. 234 a discretion to order payment in full to any class of creditors other than those referred to in S. 230. 1936 O.W.N. 539=163 I.C. 194.

COMPROMISE.—Under S. 234, a winding up Court has power to pass a consent order and if such order provides for execution against a guarantor, the Court has jurisdiction to enforce the order by execution. It is not permissible to call into question the correctness of the decisions of the Court in a separate suit. 46 C.W.N. 98. Sanction by extraordinary resolution is necessary in order that a compromise between a liquidator of a company and contributory should bind the liquidator. 4 L. 239=77 I.C. 338=1924 L. 149. See also 71 I.C. 724=1923 L. 85.

TRUST MONIES—DISAPPEARANCE—CLAIM ENTERED AS PREFERENTIAL CLAIM UNDER S. 234.—EFFECT.—Trust monies are entirely outside the liquidation and do not vest in the liquidator as assets. Trust monies never become assets of the company. Where certain G. P. Notes were deposited in a Bank as security for the good conduct of an employee and on liquidation, it was found that the notes in question were not traceable but the liquidator had entered the name of the depositor in the list of preferential claims under S. 234, it was held that it amounted to an admission that the proceeds of those notes were included in the Bank's moneys. 1941 Oudh 126=1940 O.W.N. 1022. On this point see also (1940) 2 M.L.J. 559; 1940 Mad. 184; 1939 M.W.N. 1066; 1939 M.W.N. 1069.

SEC. 235: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—Sub-section (3) which has been repealed by the Amending Act XXII of 1936, made the limitation period for a suit provided in the Limitation Act applicable to an application against the delinquent directors, etc., made under this section, i.e., the application had to be made within 3 years from the date of delinquency of the directors, etc. The consequence of this was that the delinquent directors were enabled to evade their civil liability in many cases on the ground of limitation. As a matter of fact, liquidation proceedings are always prolonged and it will not be easy for a liquidator to bring home the liability of directors and officers. The trouble taken practically became waste, so far as the recovery of the moneys from the directors is concerned. As an instance in point, 54 M. 153 may be cited. In order to avoid this unfortunate result, the present amendment has deleted the old sub-section (3), and has inserted the words "made within three years, etc." in sub-section (1). Now the limitation for an application under this section will be 3 years from the date of the appointment of the liquidator, and not as it was formerly, three years from the date of the commission of the offence by the directors, etc. The three years' period provided in this section gives a reasonable and practically sufficient time to the liquidator to determine as to the liabilities of the directors, etc., and to file, if necessary, an application under this section.

CONSTRUCTION.—This section has been copied from the English statute and must have the same meaning as in the parent statute. 8 L. 549=1926 L. 624. A representative of an executor can be brought within the purview of this section, only if he were himself capable of being defined or described by any of the words used therein. (Ibid.) S. 235 cannot be applied against the personal representatives of a deceased liquidator. It is concerned only with an inquiry into the conduct of the officers of the company in relation to the company's property; it was never intended to involve the Court on an application under the section in an inquiry relating to the estate of a deceased person. Where pending proceedings against a liquidator under S. 235 for misfeasance the liquidator dies, such proceedings cannot be continued against his legal representatives. I.L.R. Where a director of a company signed a prospectus without caring to ascertain what the antecedents of the other directors were or how the company was going to be worked or who the partners of the firm of managing agents were, but nearly 12 days before the declaration under S. 103 of the Act was sent to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies and before the company commenced business he resigned. Held, that in the circumstances it could not be said that he was guilty of any misfeasance by reason of which any pecuniary loss was sustained by the company. 55 L.W. 165=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 365=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 207. Where after the amendment of S. 235 liquidation proceedings are started, the official liquidators are entitled to have the conduct of any promoter, director or manager or officer of the company concerned examined under that section and to claim compensation for the wrongful act of any such person, proved as a result of such inquiry, notwithstanding that a cause of action on the act would in a suit by the company itself would have been barred. 222 I.C. 148=1946 A.W.R. (H.C.) 21. A proceeding under S. 235 against a director of a company cannot be continued against his heirs after his death during the proceedings. There is nothing in S. 198 of the Act to indicate that the powers of the Court with regard to the estate of a contributory or a debtor can be exercised in a summary proceeding under S. 235 of the Act. 59 L.W. 38=1946 M.W.N. 74 (1)=(1946) 1 M.L.J. 53. See also 1938 All. L.J. 1002. The Court should not make all directors jointly and severally liable for all acts of misfeasance without finding which directors are responsible for the various acts charged; and the order should be in respect of each act of misfeasance, and also only against those who are responsible for that act. 29 C. 688. A person who merely signs the memorandum of association and takes shares, but takes no part in the formation of the company does not become a promoter of the company; nor does the fact that the money paid by him for his shares is utilized in the formation of the company make him a promoter. 46 L.W. 887=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 820.

SCOPE AND OBJECT OF SECTION.—See 1938 Jah. 638 cited under S. 202 supra. This section is merely a procedural one and creates no new offence and gives no new rights. It only provides a summary and efficient remedy which apart from the section might have been enforced by the ordinary jurisdiction of the Court. 54 B. 226=32 Bom. L.R. 232=1930 B. 572; 54 M. 153=1931 M. 58=60 M.L.J. 280; 55 A. 912=1933 A.L.J. 1203=1933 A. 789 (F.B.). The summary procedure contained in this section is not applicable to every claim which the company may have against any of its officers, and can be resorted to only when such claims are in the nature of misfeasance or breach of trust in the performance of their duties. Re Etic, Ltd., 1928 Ch. 861=97 L.J. Ch. 460; 5 L. 461=85 I.C. 126=1925 L. 194. Prejudice to the interest of the company by the acts of the directors must be shown before taking any proceedings against them under this section. 23 P.L.R. 1917=39 I.C. 769; 3 A.W.R. 222. Proceedings under this section are domestic proceedings between the company and its officers, and the orders are passed in a special jurisdiction and hence, orders in such proceedings do not bar a suit against a third party whose wrongful act has caused loss to the company. 159 I.C. 977=1935 A. 995. An application under this section is a representative proceeding filed on behalf of a class of persons and not to enforce any personal remedy or to obtain any exclusive benefit. 55 A. 912=1933 A. 789 (F.B.). If the directors enter into a contract and make a payment on it during the winding up proceedings, they do so at their peril, and excepting those cases in which it would be held that the payment was necessary for the winding up or for the carrying on of the business of the company pending the hearing of the winding up petition, the directors must be aware that there is always a risk of such payments being void under this section. In the sense therefore that the directors were aware that they were making an unauthorized payment, they were disposing of the property of the company wrongfully and therefore guilty of a breach of trust and the absence of dishonesty or fraud is immaterial. The directors, therefore, are not entitled to relief under S. 281, Companies Act. 1937 P. 293=168 I.C. 786. It is not necessary in a petition presented to the High Court under S. 235 to fully and adequately set out the particulars on which the claim is based. The rules framed under S. 235 do not require that an affidavit supporting the facts mentioned in the petition should be filed along with the petition or that if it is not filed it cannot be received at a later stage. 1938 Lah. 658. S. 237 affords no protection to company promoters and directors against prosecutions for breaches of trust. That section is intended to safeguard the interests of the shareholders of a company which has failed to prevent what remains of their money from being wasted by the liquidator on unprofitable criminal prosecutions. But there is nothing which restricts the powers of the police or of any private person to file a complaint of criminal breach of trust against a company director or any other person, and the police do not require sanction to prosecute for criminal breach of trust. 1937 M.W.N. 1122.

NATURE OF DIRECTOR'S DUTIES AND LIABILITIES.—In order to ascertain the duties that a person appointed to the board of an established company undertakes to perform, it is necessary to consider not only the nature of the company's business, but also the manner in which the work of the company is in fact distributed between the directors and the other officials of the company, provided always that this distribution is a reasonable one in the circumstances and is not inconsistent with any express provisions of the articles. In discharging his duties, a director must not only act honestly but must also exercise some degree of both skill and diligence. But a director need not exhibit in the performance of his duties a greater degree of skill than may reasonably be expected from a person of his knowledge and experience; nor is he bound to give continuous attention to the affairs of the company, his duties being of an intermittent nature to be performed at periodical meetings, and in respect of all duties that may be left to some other official, a director is, in the absence of grounds for suspicion, justified in trusting that official to perform such duties honestly. Where the articles of association contain an indemnity clause which protects the directors, protectors, etc., except where loss has been incurred as the result of wilful neglect or wilful neglect on their part, a director cannot be made liable unless he knows that he is committing, and intends to commit, a breach of his duty, or is recklessly careless. Any act or omission to do an act is wilful where the person concerned knows what he is doing and intends to do what he is doing. A director is entitled to rely on the judgment, information, and advice of the chairman or general manager or advisory director, as to whose integrity, skill and competence he has no reason for suspicion. 46 L.W. 869=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 848. S. 235 does not prima facie exclude non-feasance. The section would apply to every act whether of commission or omission which is a breach of duty to the company in consequence whereof loss to the company results. To become a director of a company by accepting a gift of shares without paying for them is a misfeasance. Where such a person continues to act as a director, and, in spite of the auditor's report exposing the fraud of the company does not make any enquiries or take steps, but joins in a resolution condemning the auditor's report and signs the balance-sheet sanctioning the remuneration to the managing agents, he is guilty of gross and wilful negligence and clearly of misfeasance under S. 235. 55 L.W. 165=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 365=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 207.

DIRECTOR'S LIABILITY, WHEN ARISES.—The directors, who by wilfully shutting their eyes to the acts of the agents or the managing agents and by recklessly sanctioning the acts of such agents consciously aid in the committal of acts of misfeasance, misappropriation, and falsification of accounts and balance-sheets, are themselves guilty of wilful misconduct and are liable to pay compensation if that state of affairs continues over a series of years. 55 M. 226=32 Bom.L.R. 323=1930 B. 572. But where the act of the director is not wilful or reckless, but, only amounts to mere neglect or breach of duty that will not come ipso facto, under this section. 1 Luck. 334=1926 O. 234. A director will not be liable for any error of judgment; and as regards imprudence, in order to fix personal liability on him, the imprudence must be so great and manifest as to amount to gross negligence, and he must not at the same time be authorised to do the imprudent act. 2 O.W.N. 920=32 I.C. 50=1926 O. 158. Further, if there is no reason for doubting the fidelity of the officers in the employment of the company, the directors will not be liable if those officers should commit any acts of misfeasance, etc., and the directors trusted them. 1 Luck. 334=1926 O. 243. If the company is being wound up the remedy against a delinquent director whether for negligence, fraud or misfeasance is under S. 235. Where such proceedings have been taken against a director, subsequent suit against him for compensation for fraud or misfeasance is incompetent on the principle of res judicata. 40 P.L.R. 883=1938 Lah. 577. Where books of a company which must have some value to the company are found in the possession of the manager of the company, the Court has power to order them to be delivered to the liquidator; it is not necessary that the order should also state the amount for which the person against whom it is passed is liable in the event of non-delivery of the property. I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 120=53 L.W. 502=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 594.

BROKER.—A broker has nothing to do with the management of the company and may have no knowledge of what is being done inside the company's office; and he is not an 'officer' of the company. 1938 M. 159=I.L.R. 1938 M. 192=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 820.

ACTS OF MISFEASANCE BY DIRECTORS.—See 46 L.W. 869=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 848. (i) Allotment of shares made without an application and allotment money not being paid. 154 I.C. 33=1934 A. 855. (ii) The director being a party to a calculated and deliberate fraud in the flotation of the company and in the conduct of its business. 1934 A. 855. (iii) All omission by directors to come to any conclusion whatsoever on an important piece of business duly proposed for the decision of the Board. 143 I.C. 713=1933 S. 103. (iv) Distribution of dividends out of capital and other funds, not being profits. 47 A. 669=23 A.L.J. 473. (v) A wilful contravention of the provisions of S. 101 of the Act. 154 I.C. 33=1934 A. 855.

LIMITATION.—Directors of companies are not trustees in whom the properties of the companies have become vested in trust for any specific purpose, so as to bring them within S. 10 of the Limitation Act. 18 B. 119; 54 M. 153=60 M.L.J. 280. See also 1937 P. 293. Hence, the articles of the Limitation Act apply to only claim against them in respect of acts of misfeasance committed by them. (Ibid.) This section is not intended to revive any rights that have already become barred by time. 71 I.C. 899=1933 L. 58. There has been a difference of opinion among the several High Courts as regards the period of limitation and time from which the period has to be computed; but the matter has been set at rest by the amendment introduced by the Amending Act XXII of 1936, which fixes a period of 3 years, computed either from the date of the misfeasance, etc., or from the date of the first appointment of the liquidator, whichever being longer.

Where in a petition under S. 235, to the High Court, the names of certain persons are added subsequently but documents relating to them which taken together fulfil the requirements of the rule framed under S. 235 are not filed at that time but later, the date of the application against the added defendants is the date on which the documents are filed. 1938 Lah. 658.

PRACTICE.—An official liquidator who files an application under this section will not be called upon to furnish security for costs. 55 A. 250=1933 A.L.J. 199.

PROCEDURE.—An application under S. 235 is in the nature of a plaint and the proceedings under S. 235 are judicial proceedings; but the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure are inapplicable to a petition under S. 235 because express provisions for its contents and the formalities connected with it are provided for by the Companies Act and the rules made thereunder. 1938 Lah. 658. Where in the proceedings under S. 235, instituted in the High Court against certain persons, the matters alleged against some of such persons are entirely different from those which are subject-matter of the investigation against others, the claims against all cannot be tried jointly on principles underlying O. 2, R. 6, C.P. Code; there being no real common unity between them. 1938 Lah. 658.

SEC. 236: SCOPE—IF EXHAUSTIVE.—It is not correct to hold that charges of falsification of accounts or forgery against the promoters of a company can only be tried under S. 236 of the Companies Act. A penal enactment in a special Act is no bar to a prosecution under the Penal Code. A prosecution of the promoters of a company under the Penal Code on such charges is perfectly legal. I.L.R. (1937) All. 779=1937 A.L.J. 1073=1937 All. 714. A Bank, which was a limited company having gone into voluntary liquidation, the secretary who was also a director was appointed as the liquidator. director, manager or other officer, or any member, of the company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally liable, the Court may, either on the application of any person interested in the winding up or of its own motion, direct the liquidator either himself to prosecute the offender or to refer the matter to the registrar.

He was convicted on charges under S. 236 and S. 282 for falsifying the accounts and for sending false returns. Held, (i) that any wrongful act done by him as liquidator was a wrongful act by him as an officer, of the company, so as to render him liable under S. 236, and that by his mere appointment as liquidator he did not cease to be a director so as to escape liability as director; and therefore whether as director or officer, S. 236 would apply to him; (ii) that he was also properly convicted under S. 282, though he may not have been legally appointed as a liquidator owing to want of quorum at the meeting at which he was appointed liquidator. 55 L.W. 410=1942 M.W.N. 433=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 702=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 140.

SEC. 237: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The present section has been substituted for the old S. 237, and it now contains the more adequate provisions to be found in S. 277 of the English Act. The chief amendments are with reference to prosecutions in the course of voluntary liquidation proceedings. The old section merely provided that the liquidator in such cases may prosecute the offender with the previous sanction of the Court. The present section requires a report to be made by the liquidator to the Registrar, so as to enable the Registrar to determine if any prosecution is necessary. If the Registrar thinks that a prosecution is unnecessary he has to inform the same to the liquidator; and thereupon the liquidator may apply for the sanction of the Court. If the Registrar thinks that the matter requires further investigation, he may refer the matter for the Local Government, which can have the matter thoroughly investigated by any person designated by it and approved by the Court. And thirdly if the Registrar thinks that a prosecution is necessary, he may place the papers before the Advocate-General or the Public Prosecutor and, if advised to do so, institute proceedings. In sub-section (5), provision has been made for the Court itself suo moto, or on the application of any person interested, to order the liquidator to make a report to the Registrar, when he has not himself done so.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—The fact that one of the members of a firm acting as managing agents of a company was punished in his individual capacity as a director of the company is no ground for not punishing him in his capacity as a member of the managing firm. 18 P.R. (Cr.) 1916=35 I.C. 482. The liquidator has power to take action under this section, in respect of the assets realised after the dissolution of the company, even after such dissolution. 28 P.L.R. 1917=39 I.C. 769. The Official Liquidator of a company wrote to the High Court that on going through the account books and the records of the company he found that the promoters of the company had committed various acts of dishonesty amounting to criminal breach of trust and manipulation of accounts. The Company Judges of the High Court were of opinion that there was a prima facie case against the promoters and desired that the matter be investigated. The Registrar of the High Court forwarded the Official Liquidator's letter to the Police under cover of a letter which stated that the Court considered it a fit case for inquiry by the Police. The promoters who were prosecuted pleaded that the prosecution was illegal for the reason that the procedure laid down by S. 237, was not followed. Held, that the provisions of S. 237 had been substantially complied with. I.L.R. 1937 All. 779=1937 A.L.J. 1073=171 I.C. 994=1937 All. 714. The whole scheme of S. 237 appears to be enabling rather than mandatory or exclusive. The Court may order the liquidator to prosecute or refer the matter to the Registrar. The Registrar may refuse to prosecute and the liquidator with the previous sanction of the Court may prosecute, but the section is not limited to the criminal liability of directors under the Companies Act, so that the section is not limited to special offences created under the Act. 1942 Sind 9. There is nothing in law to prevent a private person making a complaint to a Court of offences under the Companies Act or the Penal Code against directors or officers of the Company in relation to the company even if the company is being wound up. 1942 Sind 9. (2) If it appears to the liquidator in the course of a voluntary winding up that any past or present director, manager or other officer, or any member of the company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally liable, he shall forthwith report the matter to the registrar and shall furnish to him such information and give to him such access to and facilities for inspecting and taking copies of any documents, being information or documents in the possession or under the control of the liquidator relating to the matter in question, as he may require.

(3) Where any report is made under sub-section (2) to the registrar, he may, if he thinks fit, refer the matter to the ¹[Central Government] for further inquiry, and the ¹[Central Government] shall thereupon investigate the matter and may, if they think it expedient, apply to the Court for an order conferring on any person designated by the ¹[Central Government] for the purpose with respect to the company concerned all such powers of investigating the affairs of the company as are provided by this Act in the case of a winding up by the Court.

(4) If on any report to the registrar under sub-section (2) it appears to him that the case is not one in which proceedings ought to be taken by him, he shall inform the liquidator accordingly and thereupon, subject to the previous sanction of the Court, the liquidator may himself take proceedings against the offender.

(5) If it appears to the Court in the course of a voluntary winding up that any past or present director, manager or other officer, or any member, of the company has been guilty as aforesaid, and that no report with respect to the matter has been made by the liquidator to the registrar, the Court may, on the application of any person interested in the winding up or of its own motion, direct the liquidator to make such a report, and on a report being made accordingly, the provisions of this section shall have effect as though the report has been made in pursuance of the provisions of sub-section (2).

SEC. 238-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section follows S. 271 of the English Act, in providing for the punishment of offences antecedent to or in the course of a winding up, e.g., non-disclosure of assets, wrongful retention or concealment, or removal of the same, non-delivery to liquidator of the books and papers of the company, falsification, destruction or mutilation of accounts, etc.

(o) within twelve months next before the commencement of the winding up or at any time thereafter pawns, pledges or disposes of any property of the company which has been obtained on credit and has not been paid for, unless such pawning, pledging or disposing is in the ordinary way of the business of the company ; or

(2) Where any person pawns, pledges or disposes of any property in circumstances which amount to an offence under clause (o) of sub-section (1) every person who takes in pawn or pledge or otherwise receives the property knowing it to be pawned, pledged or disposed of in such circumstances as aforesaid shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years.]

239. (1) Where by this Act, the Court is authorised in relation to winding up to have regard to the wishes of creditors or contributories, as proved to it by any sufficient evidence, the Court may, if it thinks fit for the purpose of ascertaining those wishes, direct meetings of the creditors or contributories to be called, held and conducted in such manner as the Court directs, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting and to report the result thereof to the Court.

Meetings to ascertain wishes of creditors or contributories.

(2) In the case of creditors, regard shall be had to the value of each creditor's debt.

(3) In the case of contributories regard shall be had to the number of votes conferred on each contributory by the articles.

240. Where any company is being wound up, all documents of the company titious. 1935 L. 157. Entries in the books of a company are prima facie evidence of the transaction to which they relate and it is for the contributory denying the transacand of the liquidators shall, as between the contributories of the company, be prima facie evidence of the truth of all matters purporting to be therein recorded.

241. After an order for a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, the Court may make such order for inspection by creditors and contributories of the company of its documents as the Court thinks just, and any documents in the possession of the company may be inspected by creditors or contributories accordingly, but not further or otherwise.

Disposal of documents of company.

242. (1) When a company has been wound up and is about to be dissolved, the documents of the company and of the liquidators may be disposed of as follows

(that is to say) :—

(a) in the case of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, in such way as the Court directs ;

(b) in the case of a voluntary winding up, in such way as the company by extraordinary resolution directs.

(2) After three years from the dissolution of the company, no responsibility shall rest on the company or the liquidators, or any person to whom the custody of the documents has been committed, by reason of the same not being forthcoming to any person claiming to be interested therein.

243. (1) Where a company has been dissolved, the Court may at any time within two years of the date of the dissolution, on an application being made for the purpose by the liquidator of the Company or by any other person who appears to the Court to be interested, make an order, upon such terms as the Court thinks fit, declaring the dissolution to have been void, and thereupon such proceedings may be taken as might have been taken if the company had not been dissolved.

(2) It shall be the duty of the person on whose application the order was made within twenty-one days after the making of the order, to file with the registrar a certified copy of the order, and if that person fails so to do, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

the liquidator shall, ¹[once in each year and at intervals or not more than twelve months], until the winding up s concluded, ²[file in Court or with the registrar, as the case may be] a statement tion to rebut that evidence and disprove the entries recorded in books of the company and rebut the presumption arising against him. The mere statement of the contributory that he did not enter into the transaction and has repudiated the transaction will not save him from his liability. 39 P.L.R. 136=1937 L. 61.

SEC. 241.—This section does not give the right of inspection in cases of voluntary winding up. Morgan's case, (1884) 2 Ch. D. 620. S. 241 places the matter of ordering inspection of documents in the discretion of the Court which will not be interfered with merely on the ground that he is likely to use the information in the interest of directors yet to be examined. 1937 L. 82.

SEC. 243.—Even after the dissolution of a company, the liquidator has power to take action in respect of the assets realised after the dissolution of the company. 26 P.L.J. 1917=39 I.C. 769. The rule in Morris v. Harris, 1927 A.C. 252, that the effect of a subsequent declaration of the Court that a resolution for voluntary winding was void is not to invalidate any proceedings taken during the interval between the dissolution and its avoidance does not apply to a case where the resolution is tainted by fraud. I.L.R. (1937) 1 C. 203=1937 C. 129=64 C. L.J. 280.

SEC. 244: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The amendments provide that the interim report of the liquidator should be submitted to the Court or the registrar, as the case may be, but that a copy should in in the prescribed form and containing the prescribed particulars with respect to the proceedings in and position of the liquidation.

(2) Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributory of the company shall be entitled, by himself or by his agent, at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee, to inspect the statement and to receive a copy thereof or extract therefrom; but any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributory shall be deemed to be guilty of an offence under section 182 of the Indian Penal Code, and shall be punishable accordingly on the application of the liquidator.

(3) If a liquidator fails to comply with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for each day during which the default continues.

Payments of liquidator into bank.

Court shall, in such manner and at such times as may be prescribed, pay the money received by him into a scheduled bank as defined in clause (e) of section 2 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 :

Provided that if the Court is satisfied that for the purpose of carrying on the business of the company or of obtaining advances or for any other reason it is for the advantage of the creditors or contributories that the liquidator should have an account with any other bank, the Court may authorise the liquidator to make his payments into or out of such other bank as the Court may select and thereupon those payments shall be made in the prescribed manner.

(2) If any such liquidator at any time retains for more than ten days a sum exceeding five hundred rupees or such other amount as the Court may in any particular case authorise him to retain, then, unless he explains the retention to the satisfaction of the Court, he shall pay interest on the amount so retained in excess at the rate of twenty per cent, per annum and shall be liable to disallowance of all or such part of his remuneration as the Court may think just and to be removed from his office by the Court and shall be liable to pay any expenses occasioned by reason of his default.

(3) A liquidator of a company which is being wound up shall open a special banking account and pay all sums received by him as liquidator into such account.]

The forms and particulars to be contained in these statements are prescribed by the High Courts, which have followed Rr. 193 to 195 of the English Companies 'Winding up Rules' and have prescribed a form similar to the English Form No. 92.

SEC. 244-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section is now based on S. 194 of the English Act. It is but proper monies should not be mixed up with the liquidator's private monies or kept in his private accounts in any bank. The section renders the liquidator not only liable to pay heavy interest in cases where he retains without adequate justification or authority any sum exceeding Rs. 500 for more than 10 days, but also liable to be removed without payment of any remuneration.

MADRAS COMPANY RULES, R. 66—

SCOPE AND EFFECT OF.—A cheque drawn on a Bank in favour of "M.R., Official Liquidator in O.P. No. 5 of 1939 or order," was presented to the Bank by M.R. for payment over the counter. The Bank after calling for the order of appointment of the Official Liquidator and perusing the same, paid him the amount of the cheque. M.R. misappropriated the amount and he was removed from the office of Official Liquidator. The new Official Liquidator sued the Bank for recovery of the amount alleging that the Bank was negligent in paying the amount to M.R. over the counter, instead of insisting on presentation of the cheque through a Bank and payment into a Bank account. Held, (1) that under S. 244-A of the Act and R. 66 of the Madras Company Rules, it was incumbent on the Official Liquidator to open a Bank account and to get the cheques received by him in the course of liquidation collected and cashed through such bank account, and the Bank on which the cheque was drawn they became payable or refundable, the liquidator shall forthwith pay the said money into the Reserve Bank of India to the credit of the Central Government in an account to be called the Companies Liquidation Account and the liquidator shall, on the dissolution of the company, similarly pay into the said account any money representing unclaimed dividends or undistributed assets in his hands at the date of dissolution.

(2) The liquidator shall, when making any payment referred to in sub-section (1), furnish to such officer as the Central Government may appoint in this behalf a statement in the prescribed form setting forth in respect of all sums included in such payment the nature of the sums, the names and last known addresses of the persons entitled to participate therein, the amount to which each is entitled and the nature of his claim thereto, and such other particulars as may be prescribed.

(3) The receipt of the Reserve Bank of India for any money paid to it under sub-section (1) shall be an effectual discharge of the liquidator in respect thereof.

(4) Where the company is being wound up by the Court, the liquidator shall make the payments referred to in sub-section (1) by transfer from the special banking account referred to in sub-section (3) of section 244-A, and where the company is wound up voluntarily, or subject to the supervision of the Court, the liquidator shall, when filing a statement in pursuance of sub-section (1) of section 244, indicate the sum of money which is payable to the Reserve Bank of India under sub-section (1) which he has had in his hands or under his control during the six months preceding the date to which the said statement is brought down, and shall, within fourteen days of the date of filing the said statement, pay that sum into the Companies Liquidation Account.

(5) Any person claiming to be entitled to any money paid into the Companies Liquidation Account in pursuance of this section may apply to the Court for an order for payment thereof, and the Court, if satisfied that the person claiming is entitled, may make an order for the payment to that person of the sum due :

Provided that before making such order the Court shall cause a notice to be served on such officer as the Central Government may appoint in this behalf calling on the officer to show cause within one month from the date of the service of the notice why the order should not be made.

(6) Any money paid into the Companies Liquidation Account in pursuance of this section, which remains unclaimed thereafter for a period of fifteen years, shall be transferred to the general revenue account of the Central Government ; but any claim preferred under sub-section (5) to any money so transferred shall be allowable as if such transfer had not been made, the order for payment on such claim being treated as an order for refund of revenue.

the bank and its officers, the bank must be held liable to make good the amount to the new Official Liquidator; (4) that since the Bank did not pay the amount in due course and in good faith, S. 85 of the Negotiable Instruments Act would not help the Bank as S. 85 would only protect the Bank if it made payment in accordance with the tenor of the instrument, in good faith and without negligence. 57 L.W. 533=1944 Comp. sions in the section as it previously stood. PART IX.

WINDING UP OF UNREGISTERED COMPANIES.

270. For the purposes of this Part, the expression "unregistered company" shall not include a railway company incorporated by Act of Parliament or by an ¹[Indian law], nor a company registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1866, or under any Act repealed thereby, or under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or under this Act, but save as aforesaid, shall include any partnership, association or company consisting of more than seven members.

271. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Part, any unregistered company may be wound up under this Act, and all the provisions of this Act with respect to winding up shall apply to an unregistered company, with the following exceptions and additions :—

(i) an unregistered company shall, for the purpose of determining the Court having jurisdiction in the matter of the winding up, be deemed to be registered in the province where its principal place of business is situate or, if it has a principal

SEC. 270.—See 1939 Mad. 318, cited, under S. 153, supra.

CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—This section is not exhaustive. The words "shall include" do not amount to "shall mean and include". 38 Bom.L.R. 1080=1937 Bom. 15. A Court in British India, therefore, has jurisdiction under this section read with S. 271, to wind up as an unregistered company a foreign company, whatever the number of its members, whether or not consisting of more than seven members if it has an office and assets within its jurisdiction. The foreign company will come within the second part of S. 270, and will be an unregistered company for the purpose of Part IX of the Act. 38 Bom.L.R. 1080=1937 Bom. 15. See contra, 8 R. 658=1931 R. 7=131 I.C. 497. The expression "consisting of more than seven members" means consisting of more than seven members at the time of winding up, i.e., on the date of the presentation of the petition. 8 R. 658=1931 R. 7=131 I.C. 497.

SEC. 271: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—Sub-section (3) follows S. 338 (2) of the English Act and provides for the winding up of companies incorporated outside British India. This will enable the Court to deal effectively with fraudulent companies incorporated outside British India and which had been dissolved or had ceased to exist under the laws of the country in which they were incorporated. Further a provision like this is necessary to remove unnecessary burden in the office of the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF SECTION.—(See also notes under S. 153, supra.) When an unregistered company has less than seven members at the time when the petition for winding up is presented, the Court has no jurisdiction under S. 271 of the Act to order the winding up of the same, as such a company does not come under the definition of an "unregistered company" contained in S. 270 of the Act. 8 R. 658=131 I.C. 497=1931 R. 77. (iv) an unregistered company shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be unable to pay its debts—

(a) if a creditor, by assignment or otherwise, to whom the company is indebted in a sum exceeding five hundred rupees then due, has served on the company, by leaving at its principal place of business, or by delivering to the secretary, or some director, manager or principal officer of the company, or by otherwise serving in such manner as the Court may approve or direct, a demand under his hand requiring the company to pay the sum so due, and the company has for three weeks after the service of the demand neglected to pay the sum, or to secure or compound for it to the satisfaction of the creditor;

(b) if any suit or other legal proceeding has been instituted against any member for any debt or demand due or claimed to be due, from the company or from him in his character of member, and notice in writing of the institution of the suit or other legal proceeding having been served on the company by leaving the same at its principal place of business or by delivering it to the secretary, or some director, manager or principal officer of the company or by otherwise serving the same in such manner as the Court may approve or direct, the company has not within ten days after service of the notice paid, secured or compounded for the debt or demand, or procured the suit or other legal proceeding to be stayed, or indemnified the defendant to his reasonable satisfaction against the suit or other legal proceeding, and against all costs, damages and expenses to be incurred by him by reason of the same;

(c) if execution of other process issued on a decree or order obtained in any Court in favour of a creditor against the company, or any member thereof as such or any person authorised to be sued as nominal defendant on behalf of the company, is returned unsatisfied; and

(d) if it is otherwise proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the company is unable to pay its debts.

(2) Nothing in this Part shall affect the operation of any enactment which provides for any partnership, association or company being wound up, or being wound up as a company or as an unregistered company, under any enactment repealed by this Act, except that references in any such first-mentioned enactment to any such repealed enactment shall be read as references to the corresponding provision (if any) of this Act.

SEC. 277: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—The amendment to sub-section (3) provides for the submission of all the necessary information required to be inserted in the balance-sheet under this Act. According to S. 347 of the English Act, the balance-sheets of companies incorporated outside Great Britain must comply with the same requirements as those of companies registered in Great Britain. But this provision has been somewhat relaxed in this amendment by requiring only a supplementary of this Act or within one month from the establishment of such place of business, as the case may be, file with the registrar in the province in which such place of business is situated,—

(a) a certified copy of the charter, statutes or memorandum and articles of the company, or other instrument constituting or defining the constitution of the company, and, if the instrument is not written in the English language, a certified translation thereof;

(b) the full address of the registered or principal office of the company;

(c) a list of the directors and managers (if any) of the company;

(d) the names and addresses of some one or more persons resident in British India authorised to accept on behalf of the company service of process and any notices required to be served on the company;

¹[(e) the full address of that office of the company in British India which is to be deemed the principal place of business in British India of the company;] and, in the event of any alteration being made in any such instrument ²[or in any such address] or in the directors or managers or in the names or addresses of any such persons as aforesaid, the company shall, within the prescribed time, file with the registrar a notice of the alteration.

(2) Any process or notice required to be served on the company shall be sufficiently served, if addressed to any person whose name has been so filed as aforesaid and left at or sent by post to the address which has been so filed.

(3) Every company to which this section applies shall in every year file with the registrar of the province in which the company has its principal place of business—

(i) in a case whereby the law, for the time being in force, of the country in which the company is incorporated such company is required to file with the public authority an annual balance-sheet,— statement. This has been explained by the Select Committee as follows:—"In view of the difficulty, which it is represented, would be experienced by certain companies incorporated abroad if they were required to prepare and file balance-sheets in the form required from companies incorporated in British India when the balance-sheet prescribed by the law under which they are incorporated is of a widely divergent nature, we have considered it sufficient to secure that they shall file with the registrar a copy of their own balance-sheet, but shall supplement it, if necessary by further documents giving the information which is deemed essential and which have now been tabulated in a new form inserted as Form H in the Third Schedule of the Act. Where any such company is not required by the law of the country in which it is incorporated to file a balance-sheet, the company must comply with the requirements of the British Indian law in this respect. The old section contained a proviso to sub-section (3) which enabled the Governor-General in Council to exempt certain companies from furnishing the requirements contained in the sub-section; but this power has been taken away by the amendment. The present sub-section (5) adopts practically the provisions contained in sub-section (4) to S. 348 of the English Act; and its necessity is obvious. A foreign company registered in the foreign State is entitled to file suits and maintain actions in British India, and it is not necessary that it must register itself in British India for that purpose. The default on the part of the foreign company in fulfilling the requirements of S. 277 of the Companies Act does not disable it from maintaining a suit in British India." 38 Bom.L.R. 1092=1937 B. 24.

SERVICE OF NOTICE.—The service of notice to these companies should be only in the mode provided in the section. It is not sufficient if it is done in the manner prescribed in O. 29, R. 2, C. P. Code, 108 I.C. 660=1928 S. 111.

(ii) in a case where no such provision is made by the law, for the time being in force, of the country in which the company is incorporated,—such a statement ¹[in triplicate] in the form of a balance-sheet as such company would, if it were a company formed and registered under this Act, be required to file in accordance with the provisions of this Act :

SEC. 277-A: AMENDMENTS BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section and Ss. 277-B to 277-E have been inserted by the Amending

Act XXII of 1936. Formerly, there was only one section (S. 277) dealing with companies incorporated outside British India, and it was found to be inadequate to deal effectively with such companies, and so Ss. 277-A to 277-E, have been added in this Act. A considerable trade is being carried on in this country in shares, bonds, etc., of foreign companies with the aid of unscrupulous agents and fraudulent advertisements, and ignorant investors are often ruined. Many of the investors purchase these shares, bonds, debentures, etc., merely relying upon the very exaggerated and false

(i) before the issue, circulation or distribution of the prospectus in British India a copy thereof, certified by the chairman and two other directors of the company as having been approved by resolution of the managing body, has been delivered for registration to the registrar ;

(ii) the prospectus states on the face of it that the copy has been so delivered ;

(iii) the prospectus is dated ; and

(iv) the prospectus otherwise complies with this Part ; or

(b) to issue to any person in British India a form of application for shares in or debentures of such a company or intended company as aforesaid, unless the form is issued with a prospectus which complies with this Part :

Provided that this provision shall not apply if it is shown that the form of application was issued in connection with a bona fide invitation to a person to enter into an underwriting agreement with respect to the shares or debentures.

(2) This section shall not apply to the issue to existing members or debenture holders of a company of a prospectus or form of application relating to shares in or debentures of the company, whether an applicant for shares or debentures will or will not have the right to renounce in favour of other persons, but, subject as aforesaid, this section shall apply to a prospectus or form of application whether issued on or with reference to the formation of a company or subsequently.

(3) Where any document by which any shares in or debentures of a company incorporated outside British India are offered for sale to the public would, if the company concerned had been a company within the meaning of this Act, have been deemed by virtue of section 98-A to be a prospectus issued by the company, that document shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this section, a prospectus issued by the company.

(4) An offer of shares or debentures for subscription or sale to any person whose ordinary business or part of whose ordinary business it is to buy or sell shares or debentures, whether as principal or agent, shall not be deemed an offer to the public for the purposes of this section.

(5) Any person who is knowingly responsible for the issue, circulation or distribution of any prospectus, or for the issue of a form of application for shares or debentures, in contravention of the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five thousand rupees.

accounts given by the canvassers as to their profitable nature, and without making any investigations as to the correctness or truth of the same. Under these circumstances, it is the duty of the Government to make such provisions in the law so as to enable these persons to obtain all the information necessary to enable them to judge for themselves as to the profitable nature or otherwise of such investments. If, in spite of this the investors choose to invest their monies in them and get ruined, they will have to blame themselves. Similar circumstances were found to prevail, in England also and Ss. 354 and 355 have been included in the English Act to regulate the issue of prospectuses on behalf of companies incorporated outside that country. This section and S. 277-B reproduce in this Act Ss. 354 and 355 of the English Act. S. 277-A requires that before any shares or debentures of a foreign company are issued, circulated or distributed in British India, a duly certified prospectus should be filed with the Registrar, and a copy of such prospectus should accompany every form of application for shares or debentures issued, etc., in British India. Certain exceptions are laid down, and penalty also is prescribed for violation of the provisions of this section.

(a) contain particulars with respect to the following matters :—

- (i) the objects of the company ;
- (ii) the instruments constituting or defining the constitution of the company ;
- (iii) the enactment, or provisions having the force of an enactment, by or under which the incorporation of the company was effected ;
- (iv) an address in British India where the said instrument, enactments or provisions, or copies thereof, and if the same are in a foreign language a translation thereof in the English language certified in the prescribed manner, can be inspected ;
- (v) the date on which and the country in which the company was incorporated ;

(vi) whether the company has established a place of business in British India, and, if so, the address of its principal office in British India :

Provided that the provisions of sub-clauses (i), (ii) and (iii) of this clause shall not apply in the case of a prospectus issued more than two years after the date at which the company is entitled to commence business ;

(b) subject to the provisions of this section, state the matters specified in sub-section (1-A) of section 93 and set out the reports specified in that section :

Provided that—

(i) where any prospectus is published as a newspaper advertisement, it shall be a sufficient compliance with the requirement that the prospectus must specify the objects of the company if the advertisement specifies the primary object with which the company was formed, and

(ii) in section 93 of this Act a reference to the articles of the company shall be deemed to be a reference to the constitution of the company.

(2) Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares or debentures to waive compliance with any requirement of this section, or purporting to affect him with notice of any contract, document, or matter not specifically referred to in the prospectus, shall be void.

(3) In the event of non-compliance with or contravention of any of the requirements of this section, a director or other person responsible for the prospectus shall not incur any liability by reason of the non-compliance or contravention, if—

(a) as regards any matter not disclosed, he proves that he was not cognisant thereof ; or

(b) he proves that the non-compliance or contravention arose from an honest mistake of fact on his part ; or

(c) the non-compliance or contravention was in respect of matters which in the opinion of the Court dealing with the case, were immaterial or were otherwise such as ought, in the opinion of that Court, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, reasonably to be excused :

Provided that in the event of failure to include in a prospectus a statement with respect to the matters specified in clause (n) of sub-section (1) of section 93, no director or other person shall incur any liability in respect of the failure unless it be proved that he had knowledge of the matters not disclosed.

SEC. 277-D: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section enacts the provisions contained in S. 90 of the English Act. Provisions as to the registration of charges and mortgages with the registrar, are intended to afford facility to those who have business dealings with the company and also to the members, to find out the exact financial position of the company. There is no justification at all for not insisting on the registration of the same in the case of foreign companies, having an established place of business in this country. Moreover, it is more essential in the case of such companies than in the case of companies registered under this Act. Hence this section has been inserted.

The Select Committee observed: 'We consider that the provision of the New Zealand Companies Act of 1933 requiring these companies to keep books of account in relation to the business done in the country where they are trading should be incorporated in the Act, and we have provided accordingly in this S. 277-E.'

BANKING COMPANIES.

(i) the borrowing, raising or taking up of money ; the lending or advancing of money either upon or without security ; the drawing, making, accepting, discounting, buying, selling, collecting, and dealing in bills of exchange, hoondees, promissory notes, coupons, drafts, bills of lading, railway receipts, warrants, debentures, certificates, scrips and other instruments, and securities whether transferable or negotiable or not ; the granting and issuing of letters of credit, travellers cheques and circular notes ; the buying selling and dealing in bullion and specie ; the buying and selling of foreign exchange including foreign bank notes ; the acquiring, holding, issuing on commission, underwriting and dealing in stock, funds, shares, debentures, debenture stock, bonds, obligations, securities and investments of all kinds ; the purchasing and selling of bonds, scrips or other forms of securities on behalf of constituents or others ; the negotiating of loans and advances ; the receiving of all kinds.

SEC. 277-F: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section and Ss. 277-G to 277-N have been inserted by the Amending Act XXII of 1936, and they lay down the special regulations to govern Banking Companies. It was felt necessary that the law relating to ordinary Banking Companies should be thoroughly overhauled in view of the various defects that have been found to exist in the matter of their regulation, conduct and control. At one time it was thought that a special enactment should be made with reference to these companies, but as there was no immediate prospect of any such legislation some special provisions relating to banking companies have been included in this Act. Some of the defects that were clear and which caused the ruin of many banking companies were: (i) their launching into trading ventures; (ii) their management by persons having other interests and by ignorant people; (iii) their commencing business without sufficient capital; (iv) their charging the unpaid capital; (v) their failure to keep sufficient reserve fund; (vi) their failure to keep adequate cash reserve to meet time and demand liabilities; (vii) their forming, or taking shares in, subsidiary companies carrying on other kinds of business; and (viii) want of facilities in the nature of a moratorium to enable deserving companies to tide over temporary difficulties. With a view to get over the above-mentioned defects, this and the following sections up to S. 277-N have been enacted. It is obviously undesirable that a banking company should enter into trading operations themselves or to come into any close contractual relationship with trading concerns except as bankers. With this object in view this (S. 277-F) defines "a banking company" and attempts to limit its action to banking business alone, and to such other ordinary transactions as may emerge in the course of such business. It sets forth a fairly comprehensive list of 17 forms of business which may be undertaken by a banking company, in addition to its main business of accepting of deposits of money on current account or otherwise subject to withdrawal by cheque, draft or order. It would not be necessary for any banking company to go beyond the undertakings mentioned in this section; and if it does so, it will no longer be a banking company but some kind of trading company. As a further precaution, the Governor-General in Council has been empowered by notification in the Gazette to add to the 17 forms of business mentioned in this section other forms of business also, if they should be found to be necessary.

(5) carrying on and transacting every kind of guarantee and indemnity business ;

(6) promoting or financing or assisting in promoting or financing any business undertaking or industry, either existing or new, and developing or forming the same either through the instrumentality of syndicates or otherwise ;

(7) acquisition by purchase, lease, exchange, hire or otherwise of any property immovable or movable and any rights or privileges which the company may think necessary or convenient to acquire or the acquisition of which in the opinion of the company is likely to facilitate the realisation of any securities held by the company or to prevent or diminish any apprehended loss or liability ;

(14) the acquisition, construction, maintenance and alteration of any building or works necessary or convenient for the purposes of the company ;

(15) selling, improving, managing, developing, exchanging, leasing, mortgaging, disposing of or turning into account or otherwise dealing with all or any part of the property and rights of the company ;

pany before shares have been allotted to an amount sufficient to yield a working capital of at least Rs. 50,000 and a duly signed affidavit to that effect has been filed with the registrar by the directors and manager. It requires a definite minimum amount which is not required in the case of other companies formed under this Act (vide S. 103). Although in the case of ordinary trading companies the matter of fixing the minimum required to commence the business may be left to the discretion of the directors with some necessary reservations, it is different in the case of banking companies which, from the very nature of their business, would require a sufficient working capital in cash obtained from the sale of shares. Hence this section requires a minimum net sum of Rs. 50,000 as working capital after payment of all other outgoings such as preliminary expenses, commissions, discounts, etc., for the bank to commence its business.

SEC. 277-J: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII of 1936.—This section prohibits the creation of any charge on any unpaid capital of the bank, and declares the same to be invalid. This was one of the suggestions made by the Central Banking Enquiry Committee, and it reserves the uncalled capital for the business. This affords also some protection to the creditors of the bank.

SEC. 277-K: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII of 1936.—This section provides for the keeping of a reserve fund by the bank. There are no provisions in the Act with reference to the maintenance of reserve fund or to the declaration of dividends; and these matters have been generally left over for the company itself to determine and provide for in the articles in the case of ordinary companies. But in the case of banking companies, a reserve fund is absolutely essential. Many companies carrying on banking business have been found to declare enormous dividends from the profits of each year going in some cases upto 50 per cent. without providing any reserve fund at all to meet unexpected emergencies or losses in the business; and many a company which adopted that course some day or other met with an inevitable crash; and the depositors were put to immense loss. It has been found necessary therefore that in the case of banking companies at least, some suitable provision should be made for the keeping of a sufficient amount by way of reserve out of the profit earned each year before the declaration and distribution of dividends. The Central Banking Enquiry Committee suggested the reservation from out of the profits of each year a sum equal to 2½ per cent. of its paid up

(3) A banking company shall invest the amount standing to the credit of its reserve fund in Government securities or in securities mentioned or referred to in section 20 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, or keep deposited in a special account to be opened by the company for the purpose in a scheduled bank as defined in clause (e) of section (2) of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 :

capital, but the legislature thought it better to express the amount which is to be transferred to the reserve fund as a fixed percentage of the profits rather than as a percentage of the capital, and has accordingly fixed in this section that a sum equivalent to not less than 20 per cent. of the profits of each year should be carried as reserve fund until the said fund becomes equal to the paid up capital. This section also deals with the investment of the reserve fund, and provides that the same should be invested in Government securities mentioned in S. 20 of the Trusts Act, or in a special account by the company with any scheduled bank as defined in clause (e) of S. 2 of the Reserve Bank of India Act. This provision has been found necessary because in the case of many companies although large amounts were kept in the accounts as reserve fund, still such amounts were being improperly utilised by the directors with the result that they could not be availed of for immediate use. This section is made applicable even to companies incorporated before the commencement of this Act; and provides a period of 2 years in the case of such companies for complying with the provisions of sub-section (2).

SECS. 277-K AND 277-L: Applicability and scope—Banking Company incorporated before Act—Reserve fund.—The proviso at the foot of clause (3) of S. 277-K of the Companies Act is a subsidiary clause to Cl. (3) and applies only to that clause and does not apply to Cls. (1) and (2) also. There is no warrant for holding that S. 277-K does not apply to a reserve fund already in existence. The use of the word "maintain" in cl. (1) means "maintain in tact" and necessarily prohibits the utilisation of the reserve fund in any way other than in accordance with cl. (3) of the section. 56 L. W. 342=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 629=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 19.

SEC. 277-L: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section provides for the maintenance by the bank of a cash reserve. Apart from the reserve fund which is to be maintained by the bank, it is also necessary that it should maintain a cash reserve, with reference to a percentage of the time and demand liabilities of the bank. In the circumstances peculiar to this country where banking business is more or less in its infancy, it is necessary that there should be a statutory provision for the compulsory maintenance of a minimum cash reserve, although it may involve the risk of the minimum limit being turned into the maximum limit by the company in actual practice. The principle of having some fixed amount as cash reserve has been adopted in the case of scheduled banks as defined in the Reserve Bank of India Act. Hence this section makes it obligatory on all banking companies to maintain a cash reserve of a sum equivalent to at least 1½ per cent. of the time liabilities and 5 per cent. of the demand liabilities of the bank. To ensure the observance of this provision by the company it is required to file with the registrar before the 10th day of each month a statement regarding the daily cash balances as disclosed by the accounts of the previous month. Sub-section (3) excepts scheduled banks as defined in the Reserve Bank of India Act from the operation of this section and also of S. 277-K. The section further provides for heavy penalties being laid on every director or officer who is knowingly and wilfully a party to any default in complying with the provisions of this section as well as those of sections 277-G, 277-H, 277 or 277-M. Where the evidence does not warrant the conclusion that an ordinary director of a company was knowingly and wilfully a party to the default to maintain the requisite cash reserve, he cannot be convicted under S. 277-L of the Act. 51 L.W. 434=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 478.

(2) For the purposes of sub-section (1) 'demand liabilities' means liabilities which must be met on demand, and 'time liabilities' means liabilities which are not demand liabilities.

(3) Nothing in this section or in section 277K shall apply to a scheduled bank as defined in clause (e) of section 2 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934.

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to shares held by a banking company before the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936.]

²[277N. (1) The Court may on the application of a banking company which is temporarily unable to meet its obligations make an order staying the commencement or continuance of all actions and proceedings against the company for a fixed period of time on such terms and conditions as it shall think fit and proper and may from time to time extend the period.

SEC. 277-M: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section prohibits a banking company from forming or holding shares in any subsidiary company except a subsidiary company of its own formed for the purpose of carrying out some of the forms of business mentioned in S. 277-F incidental to banking operations.

SEC. 277-N: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section invests the Court with power in certain cases to stay the commencement or continuance of all actions and proceedings against a banking company for any fixed period with or without conditions attached. This is based on one of the recommendations of the Central Banking Enquiry Committee which suggested that some provision should be made for a moratorium to save from liquidation a banking company in temporary difficulties.

torium to save from liquidation a banking company in temporary difficulties. The liquidation of a bank affects the public to a very great extent and if it could be avoided by any means, it should be resorted to. Prior to the enactment of this section it has no doubt been possible for banking companies to avoid liquidation by taking proceedings under S. 153 of the Act and proposing schemes of composition with the creditors. But this has been found in practice to be unsatisfactory, inadequate, and causing considerable difficulty. Further, under that section, no interim protection could be obtained. Hence this section has been enacted. The protection under this section would be given only in the case of deserving companies which find themselves in temporary difficulties, and which could get over the same if some time and relief should be granted to them. So it has been provided that a banking company applying to the Court for protection under this section, should have first applied to the registrar and allowed him to have the books and documents of the company examined by a competent accountant in order to enable him to ascertain the exact financial position of the company and should have obtained a report from the registrar to the effect that

(2) No such application shall be maintainable unless accompanied by a report of the registrar :

Provided, however, the Court may, for sufficient reasons, grant interim relief, even if the application is not accompanied by such report.

(3) The registrar shall for the purposes of his report be entitled at the cost of the company to investigate the financial condition of the company and for such purpose to have the books and documents of the company examined by an accountant holding a certificate issued under section 144.]

SUPPLEMENTAL.

Legal proceedings, offences, etc.

278. (1) No Court inferior to that of a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class shall try any offence against this Act.

(2) If any offence which by this Act is declared to be punishable by fine only is committed by any person within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay, such offence shall be punishable upon summary conviction by any Presidency Magistrate of the place at which such Court is held.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, every offence against this Act shall, for the purposes of the said Code, be deemed to be non-cognizable.

279. The Court imposing any fine under this Act may direct that the whole or any part thereof be applied in or towards payment of the costs of the proceedings, or in or towards the rewarding of the person on whose information the fine is recovered.

280. Where a limited company is plaintiff or petitioner in any suit or other legal proceeding, any Court having jurisdiction in the matter may, if it appears that there is reason to believe that the company will be unable to pay the costs of the defendant if successful in his defence, require sufficient security to be given for those costs, and may stay all proceedings until the security is given.

it is a fit case for the grant of any relief under this section. Provision also is contained in the section for the grant of interim relief, in urgent cases, even before the investigation by the Registrar and the receipt of his report.

SCOPE AND OBJECT.—It was never the intention of the Legislature in enacting S. 277-N that a company in an insolvent position should be allowed to continue its operations under the protection of the Court and that those who had dealings with the company should be prevented from seeking legal remedies to which they would otherwise have been entitled. The Court could only undertake the responsibility of barring these legal remedies to which the people would ordinarily be entitled if it was certain within reasonable limits that they would not suffer any real loss by being deprived of these remedies. Where the Court is not satisfied that the company is in a solvent condition essentially an order under S. 277-N cannot be passed. 1939 A.L.J. 1009=1939 All. 726=I.L.R. (1939) All. 938.

SEC. 280: APPLICATION OF SECTION.—A misfeasance proceeding under S. 235 is not a suit or legal proceeding within the meaning of this section. (On this ground and also on grounds of public policy, the liquidator who files a misfeasance summons cannot be required to furnish security for costs. 55 A. 250=1930 A.L.J. 199=1933 A. 205. No appeal lies from an order refusing to direct a Company in liquidation to furnish security under S. 280 of the Act. 55 L.W. 89=1942 Mad. 405=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 180. SEC. 281: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section has been substituted for the old S. 281; and it follows S. 372 of the English Act, the provisions of which are more, ample and detailed. "Default" and breach of trust against a person to whom this section applies, it appears to the Court hearing the case that that person is or may be liable in respect of the negligence default breach of duty or breach of trust, but that he has acted honestly and reasonably, and that having regard to all the circumstances of the case, including those connected with his appointment, he ought fairly to be excused for the negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust, that Court may relieve him, either wholly or partly, from his liability on such terms as the Court may think fit.

(2) Where any person to whom this section applies has reason to apprehend that any claim will or might be made against him in respect of any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust, he may apply to the Court for relief, and the Court on any such application shall have the same power to relieve him as under this section it would have had if it had been a Court before which proceedings against that person for negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust had been brought.

(3) The persons to whom this section applies are the following :—

- (a) directors of a company ;
- (b) managers and managing agents of a company ;
- (c) officers of a company ;
- (d) persons employed by a company as auditors, whether they are or are not officers of the company.]

“breach of duty” have been added to “negligence” and “breach of trust” in sub-section (1); and provision has been made in sub-section (2) for any director, manager, etc., who may apprehend that any claim may be made against him in respect of negligence, default, etc., to apply to the Court himself in anticipation instead of waiting till the actual claim is made. In sub-section (3) the persons who are entitled to the grant of relief under this section are enumerated. The old section applied only to directors and this substituted section enumerates four classes of persons, including persons employed by the company as auditors.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—This section is not meant to cover any gross neglect of a director's ordinary duties over a long series of years. Even where managing agents have been appointed with very wide and all real powers, the directors have still their duties to perform or else the directors' names would have operated only as a mere trap for the unwary public. If the directors fail to perform their duties they must take the financial and other consequences of their negligence. 54 B. 227=32 Bom.L.R. 232=1930 B. 572; 47 A. 669=23 A.L.J. 473=1925 A. 519. It is wrong to think that S. 281 (2) is a section under which the Court is empowered to extend the time for holding meetings. The section does no such thing. It gives to the High Court a power to relieve certain classes of persons from the consequences of the default where they have an apprehension that they will be prosecuted and that apprehension can arise only after the Registrar of joint stock companies has done his duty and decided whether or not he proposes to prosecute. The duty of deciding whether there should be a prosecution or not, is not a function which is intended by S. 281 (2) of the Act to be cast upon the High Court. The proper sequence of events is that the Registrar of joint stock companies should state whether he intends to launch prosecution or not. If he makes up his mind to prosecute and actually initiates the prosecution, then there can be an application under S. 281 (2) to the Court in which the prosecution is pending. If in such a case relief is sought before the prosecution is actually lodged, then that will be a proper case in which to apply to the High Court under S. 281 (2). But in such a case it would only be upon strong grounds and for special reasons that the High Court would interfere with a proposed prosecution. 1941 A. L. W. 1076. The power to relieve a director from the consequences of his wilful negligence is placed in the hands of the Court under S. 281 of the Act when the Court is convinced that the director has acted honestly and reasonably. Where it cannot be said that he has acted reasonably, though he may be said to have acted honestly, the Court has no power to grant any relief under the section. 46 L.W. 869=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 848. Before S. 281 can be invoked, it must be shown that the directors have acted honestly as well as reasonably. Though directors of a company are not trustees in the technical sense, they hold a fiduciary position with regard to the assets of the company and they are guilty of a grave breach of duty if they permit the managing director to gamble in differences on the stock exchange and to dissipate the company's funds in such gambling. Gambling in difference on the stock exchange can by no stretch of imagination be said to be legitimate business of a company which is carrying on business as an investment trust. Where in misfeasance proceedings against the directors of the company it is

282. found that the managing director indulged in gambling on the stock exchange and borrowed money on the company's account which, however, he used for his own purposes, the ordinary directors together with the managing directors must be held liable for the losses sustained by the company as the result of the gambling transactions, but as regards the individual borrowings by the managing director, the other directors and the co-managing director cannot be held liable to repay the company, when it is apparent that they were not aware of the borrowings and there was no ground for suspicion that the managing director was not acting properly. 1944 Comp. SEC. 282: CONSTRUCTION OF BALANCE-SHEETS.—Balance-sheets and prospectuses are governed by the same principles of law with regard to the making of false statements. It is the effect upon the ordinary investor reading the statements in ordinarily careful manner in which an investor would do, which has to be considered when the Court has to find whether a breach of this section has been committed. 40 C. W. N. 1341=1936 C. 680. A balance sheet which does not disclose the true state of affairs of a company is not a properly drawn up balance sheet, and the opinion of an auditor that it has been properly drawn up is of no value whatever. 40 C.W.N. 1341. A banker in drawing up a balance sheet, must disclose both loans and overdrafts; and it does not make the slightest difference whether a particular advance made by him is a loan or an overdraft, when the question is as to the suppression of an advance from the balance sheet. (Per Henderson, J.) 40 C. W.N. 1341=1936 C. 680. There can never be an overdraft based on a deposit account. Overdrafts are the usual accompaniments of current accounts. (Per Cunliffe, J., ibid.) The liquidator referred to in S. 282 is presumably the de facto liquidator. A person who accepts an appointment as liquidator of a company and who acts in accordance with the powers granted to him must be deemed to have accepted the duties and responsibilities of that office and so any wrongful act done by him is a wrongful act done by him as liquidator, even if his appointment is not legal. 55 L.W. 410=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 702=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 140.

LOAN AND DEPOSIT.—A loan and a deposit

are items differing from the balance sheet point of view. They ought to appear on different sides, one as an asset and the other as a liability. The act of consolidating the two and presenting them as one item in the balance sheet is a striking case of non-disclosure, amounting to suppression of truth; and the statement would be false in material particulars, and the managing directors would be guilty of an offence under this section. 40 C.W.N. 1341=1936 C. 680.

FALSE STATEMENT IN BALANCE SHEET.—If a balance sheet shows as profits a sum of money representing the linterest on bad and doubtful debts due to the bank which was never paid and was never likely to be paid, it contains a false statement and a material one, for which the directors signing it are liable to be prosecuted under this section. 25 S. L. R. 297. A private complaint in respect of offence under S. 282 is not barred. 1942 Sind 9. See also 1937 M.W.N. 1122.

ACTS AMOUNTING TO OFFENCE.—A person who makes a declaration that all the directors had paid their dues as mentioned in the prospectus, while as a matter of fact they had not so paid, and obtains an order for the commencement of business, is guilty under this section. 46 A. 218=22 A.L.J. 83=1924 A. 314. Where the manager signs a balance sheet false in material particulars, he is liable; and it is no defence to the charge that he was not bound to sign it or that he had signed it merely because the directors wished him to do so. 25 S.L.R. 297=134 I.C. 993=1932 S. 4. Nor is it a defence to the directors who have signed it, to plead that they had no knowledge of banking accounts and that they did not often attend the meetings of the directors. 1932 S. 4.

"WILFULLY", MEANING OF.—The word "wilfully" in this section does not embody the idea of a criminal mentality. It means nothing more nor less than the spontaneous action of a person who is a free agent. It is not a term of art, but a legal expression to be fitted to the circumstances being considered by the Court and to be interpreted according to the facts of each case. 40 C. W.N. 1341=1936 C. 680. It is not necessary that the statement should be such as to deceive any one or that it should even be dishonestly made. 159 I.C. 523=1935 C. 731. So where, after the company has begun to earn revenue, current expenditure has been debited to organisation expenses when it ought to have been debited in the revenue accounts in the balance sheet, it must be held to contain a wilful false statement. 1935 C. 731.

SEC. 282-A: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section follows S. 87 of the Friendly Societies Act of 1896. Several cases of wrongful detention and misapplication of the company's properties by the directors, managers, and other employees of the company have occurred and the provisions of the Act were found to be insufficient to afford adequate and speedy relief, and hence it was thought necessary to introduce this section providing for such cases and subjecting the delinquents to a heavy penalty. Bank in liquidation—Managing agent failing to deliver property to liquidator—Offence. (1944) 1 M.L.J. 390 cited under S. 238-A.

SEC. 282-B: AMENDMENT BY ACT XXII OF 1936.—This section has been designed to prevent misuse of securities lodged with a company by its employees under their contracts of service and to safeguard provident funds. It provides for the investment of all future funds in trust securities, and as to the existing funds which are not so invested it requires the same to be so invested in not more than 10 annual instalments, each instalment being not less than 1/10 of the amount of such monies. Sub-section (4) enables the employee to satisfy himself as to the safe investment of the funds. Further, to ensure the observance of the provisions of this section, a heavy penalty is provided for any contravention of the same.

TRUST—PROVIDENT FUND MONIES AND EMPLOYEES CASH SECURITY DEPOSITED IN BANK—IF CREATES A TRUST.—The fact that a Bank is given notice that money deposited is trust money does not make the Bank a trustee thereof. The legal consequence of such notice is only that the Bank should not participate in a breach of trust by the trustee. S. 282-B of the Companies Act imposes on a company a duty to invest all provident fund moneys in securities mentioned in S. 20 of the Trusts Act, and all such moneys belonging to the Fund at the commencement of the Companies Act which are not so invested shall be invested in such securities by annual instalments not exceeding ten in number and not less in amount than one-tenth of the whole amount of such moneys. On the coming into force of S. 282-B, if the said moneys are not invested in any such securities as are mentioned in S. 20 of the Trusts Act, the obligation of a company is to invest a tenth of the said moneys in that year and in every succeeding year in the authorised securities, and the balance of the moneys can be invested in any authorised Bank or Banks according to the rules of the institution. In so far as a company has not invested the said sum in any authorised security the company is guilty of a breach of trust, and a Bank holding the moneys in deposit must be held to participate in that breach of trust, and the bank can therefore be compelled to restore such trust fund, i.e., in respect of so much of the provident fund as it is obligatory on the company to invest in authorised securities. 1940 Mad. 184=1939 M.W.N. 1068. See also 1938 M.W.N. 1332=1939 Mad. 352; 49 L.W. 181=1939 Mad. 337=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 209. Where a company has deposited its employees security fund and Provident Fund in a Bank prior to the coming into the operation of S. 282-B of the Companies Act, as amended in 1936, and the deposit is renewed after that section came into force it cannot be said that the renewal constitutes a breach of trust on the ground that the moneys are not invested in approved securities mentioned in S. 20 of the Trusts Act as required by S. 282-B of the Companies Act. So far as the amount of the security deposit is concerned, there can be no breach of trust, because the Bank is not a trustee in respect of the same, although the company may be a trustee and the money may be trust money in its hands. In regard to the provident fund deposit, there can be a breach of trust only in respect of so much

Provided that the where one-tenth part of the whole amount of the money belonging to such fund exceeds the maximum amount which may be deposited in a Post Office Savings Bank account under the rules regulating such deposits for the time being in force, the amount of such excess may be kept or deposited in a special account to be opened for the purpose in a scheduled bank as defined in clause (e) of section 2 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 (II of 1934).] (Added by Act XIII of 1946.)

(3) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the rules of any fund to which sub-section (2) applies or in any contract between a company and its employees, no employee shall be entitled to receive in respect of such portion of the amount to his credit in such fund as is invested in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2) interest at a rate exceeding the rate of interest yielded by such investment.

(4) An employee shall be entitled on request made in this behalf to the company to see the banks' receipt for any money or security such as is referred to in sub-section (1) and sub-section (2).

(5) Any director, managing agent, manager or other officer of the company who knowingly contravenes or permits or authorises the contravention of the provisions of this section shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.]

[(6) Nothing in sub-section (2) shall affect any rights of an employee under the rules of a provident fund to obtain advances from or to withdraw money standing to his credit in the fund, where the fund is a recognized provident fund within the meaning of clause (a) of section 58-A of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, (XI of 1922), or, the rules of the fund contain provisions corresponding to rules 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9 of the Indian Income tax (Provident Funds Relief) Rules] (Added by Act IV of 1945).

As the result of the statutory obligation under S. 282-B (1) of the Companies Act imposed upon a Bank, the employees' cash security was deposited by the Bank in a scheduled Bank which subsequently went into liquidation. The depositor bank claimed priority in respect of the deposit on the ground that the amount had been deposited for a specific purpose. Held, that the depositor Bank held the moneys for a special purpose and was required by statute to deposit therein in a scheduled bank, and that the deposit bank was not a trustee, though the depositor was a trustee. The position of the deposit bank was still that of a banker keeping an account for a customer and therefore the depositor could not claim any priority. The relationship between the depositor and deposit bank was only that of creditor and debtor though the deposit bank having notice of the trust could not be a party to a breach of trust by the trustee. 52 L.W. 512= (1940) 2 M.L.J. 559=I.L.R. ART. 2.—The restrictions contained in S. 103 of the Act are by that section itself made inapplicable to private companies or to companies registered before the commencement of this Act which do not issue prospectuses inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, or to companies limited by guarantee without having a share capital in so far as the restrictions relating to shares are concerned.

ART. 3.—As to the different shares and the rights attached to them, see notes under S. 2 (16) supra.

ART. 7.—Where the articles of association of a company provide for the issue of a duplicate share certificate on proof of loss or destruction or on such indemnity as the directors might deem fit, the directors' discretion as to the indemnity to be furnished must be deemed to be absolute so that the Court would not interfere in the matter of the exercise of their discretion. 31 C.W.N. 155=1927 C. 947.

ART. 8.—This article is intended to prevent the unrestricted reduction of the share fect, and delivery of a certificate for a share to one of several joint-holders shall be sufficient delivery to all.

7. If a share certificate is defaced, lost or destroyed, it may be renewed on payment of such fee, if any, not exceeding eight annas, and on such terms, if any, as to evidence and indemnity as the directors think fit.

8. ¹[Except to the extent allowed by section 54-A of the Indian Companies Act, 1913], no part of the funds of the company shall be employed in the purchase of, or in loans upon the security of, the company's shares.

Lien.

9. The company shall have a lien on every share (not being a fully-paid share) for all moneys (whether presently payable or not) called or payable at a fixed time in respect of that share, and the company shall also have a lien on all shares (other than fully-paid shares) standing registered in the name of a single person, for all moneys presently payable by him or his estate to the company; but the directors may at any time declare any share to be wholly or in part exempt from the provisions of this clause. The company's lien, if any, on a share shall extend to all dividends payable thereon.

10. The company may sell, in such manner as the director thinks fit, any shares on which the company has a lien, but no sale shall be made unless some sum in respect of which the lien exists is presently payable, nor until the expiration of fourteen days after a notice in writing, stating and demanding payment of such part of amount in respect of which the lien exists as is presently payable, has been given to the registered holder for the time being of the share, or the person entitled by reason of his death or insolvency to the share.

11. The proceeds of the sale shall be applied in payment of such part of the amount in respect of which the lien exists as is presently payable, and the residue shall (subject to a like lien for sums not presently payable as existed upon the shares prior to the sale) be paid to the person entitled to the shares at the date of the sale. The purchaser shall be registered as the holder of the shares, and he shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase-money, nor shall his title to the shares be affected by any irregularity or invalidity in the proceedings in reference to the sale.

Calls on Shares.

12. The directors may from time to time make calls upon the members in respect of any moneys unpaid on their shares, provided that no call shall exceed one-fourth of the nominal amount of the share, or be payable at less than one month from the last call; and each member shall (subject to receiving at least fourteen days' notice specifying the time or times of payments) pay to the company at the time or times so specified the amount called on his shares.

capital of the company. The Act itself provides for the reduction of the capital in certain cases, and lays down suitable safeguards so that the power may not be abused. Vide S. 54-A, and Ss. 55 to 66.

In the case of British and America Trustee and Finance Corporation v. Couper, [1894] A.C. 399, Lord Macnaghten says:—"The exercise of the power is fenced round by safeguards, which are calculated to protect the interests of creditors, the interests of shareholders, and the interests of the public. Creditors are protected by express provisions. Their consent must be procured or their claims satisfied. The public, the shareholders and every class of shareholders, individually and collectively, are protected by the necessary publicity of the proceedings and by the discretion, which is entrusted to the Court. Until confirmed by the Court, the proposed reduction is not to take effect, though all the creditors have been satisfied. When it is confirmed, the memorandum is to be altered in the prescribed manner, and the company, as it were, makes a new start. With these safeguards, which certainly are not inconsiderable, the Act apparently leaves the company to determine the extent, the mode and the incidence of the reduction, and the application or disposition of any capital moneys, which the proposed reduction may set free."

ART. 9.—Where the article gives the company a lien in respect of the debts due by a shareholder to it, it is not necessary that the debt should have been contracted by the shareholder after his membership. The lien applies even in respect of his debts contracted with the company before he became a shareholder. Chandoor v. Venugopal Rice Factory, 43 I.C. 508.

ART. 12.—Three calls were made in pursuance of three resolutions of the directors which were passed without stipulating the amount, time and place for the payments. An allottee failed to pay the allotment and call money; and thereupon the directors passed a resolution forfeiting the shares. But later, they rescinded the resolution and made a fresh call which also was not paid by the allottee. Thereupon, the company brought a suit, and it was held that the first three calls were invalid and the forfeiture resolution ultra vires; that the new resolution was valid, and that the company was not precluded from showing the ultra vires acts of the directors. 54 B. 178=32 Bom.L.R. 87=1930 B. 267. Calls can be made only by a resolution of the board of directors indicating the amount of the call, the time and place at which, and the person to whom, it is to be paid; and the omission to include these directions cannot be cured by any subsequent notice regarding the directions. 50 B. 461=28 Bom.L.R. 411=1926 B. 341. But it was held in 35 Bom. L.R. 26=1933 B. 80, with reference to a particular article of a company, that it was not necessary for the resolution of the directors making the call to specify the time and place at which or the person to whom the payment was to be made, that in the absence of any evidence the Court might assume that the notices were sent out by the agents

13. The joint-holders of a share shall be jointly and severally liable to pay all calls in respect thereof.

14. If a sum called in respect of a share is not paid before or on the day appointed for payment thereof, the person from whom the sum is due shall pay interest upon the sum at the rate of five per cent. per annum from the day appointed for the payment thereof to the time of the actual payment, but the directors shall be at liberty to waive payment of that interest wholly or in part.

15. The provisions of these regulations as to payment of interest shall apply in the case of non-payment of any sum which, by the terms of issue of a share, becomes payable at a fixed time, whether on account of the amount of the share, or by way of premium as if the same had become payable by virtue of a call duly made and notified.

16. The directors may make arrangements on the issue of shares for a difference between the holders in the amount of calls to be paid and in the times of payment.

17. The directors may, if they think fit, receive from any member willing to advance the same all or any part of the moneys uncalled and unpaid upon any shares held by him; and upon all or any of the moneys so advanced may (until the same would, but for such advance, become presently payable) pay interest at such rate (not exceeding, without the sanction of the company in general meeting, six per cent.) as may be agreed upon between the member paying the sum in advance and the directors.

of the company with the sanction of the directors, and also that, assuming a formal notice was necessary in such cases, it was open to the parties to waive the same.

ART. 14: INTEREST.—As to interest on calls in arrears after forfeiture of the shares, see 48 B. 715=27 Bom.L.R. 574=88 I.C. 96. See also 1932 A. 342=1932 A.L.J. 354, where on non-payment of calls the share was forfeited and subsequently the liquidator sued to recover the amount due with interest, it was held that interest at 5 per cent. might be awarded up to the date of forfeiture but not thereafter.

ART. 16.—Any agreement with a company's agent entered into by a person that he should not be liable for payment of call money on shares is a fraud on creditors. It can only amount to a personal arrangement with agent and cannot be a defence to suit by company to recover the same. Forget v. The Cement Products Co., of Canada, Ltd., 1916 W.N. 259=1917 P.C. 267 (P.C.).

ART. 17.—A company, by the issue to a member, of a share credited with a definite sum as paid thereon, can in no sense become a debtor to its shareholder in respect of that full amount. 54 B. 437=57 I.A. 152=34 C.W.N. 709=1930 P.C. 151=59 M.L.J. 242 (P.C.).

ART. 18: APPLICATION OF ARTICLE.—Any provision regarding voluntary transfers in the Articles of Association will not apply to transfers by Court sale. 28 L.W. 932=1928 M. 571=111 I.C. 225.

ESSENTIALS FOR TRANSFER—EQUITABLE TITLE—AVAILABILITY AGAINST THIRD PARTIES.—Where the law prescribes a mode of transfer, any transfer otherwise than by the manner prescribed by law will not confer a valid title. This R. 18 requires that the deed of transfer has to be executed by the transferor and the transferee, and that the transferor shall be deemed to remain the holder of the share until the name of the transferee shall be entered in the register. Where the deed of transfer was signed only by the transferor, the right of the transferee was merely a right in equity to compel the vendor to execute a proper conveyance and the transaction evidenced by the transfer can be treated only as an agreement to convey capable of being perfected into an absolute conveyance by complying with the rules laid down in the Companies Act and the Articles of Association. This equitable title acquired against the transferor, will not avail against third parties. So, in the case of a conflict between a person who had obtained a deed of transfer signed by the transferor alone, and a person who had purchased the share subsequently in a Court auction sale, and of which due notice was given to the company it was held that the latter was entitled to priority as regards the transfer. 45 M. 537=42 M.L.J. 449=70 I.C. 659.

TRANSFER BY COURT SALE.—As regards the shares held in limited companies by judgment-debtors their attachment and sale are governed by the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code. O. 21, R. 46, C. P. Code, enacts that in the case of a share in the capital of a Corporation, attachment shall be made by a written order prohibiting the person in whose name the shares may be standing from transferring the same or receiving any dividend thereon and a copy of the order being sent to the proper officer of the Corporation. O. 21, R. 76 provides that the Court may instead of directing the sale to be made by public auction authorize the sale of such instrument or share through a broker. O. 21, R. 79 (3) provides that the delivery thereof shall be made by a written order of the Court prohibiting the person in whose name the share may be standing from making any transfer of the share to any person except the purchaser or receiving payment of any dividend or interest thereon, and the manager, secretary or other proper officer of the corporation from permitting any such transfer or making any such payment to any person except the purchaser. O. 21, R. 80 provides that where the execution of a document or the endorsement of the party in whose name a negotiable instrument or a share in a Corporation is standing is required to transfer such nego-

Transfer and transmission of shares.

18. The instrument of transfer of any share in the company shall be executed both by the transferor and transferee, and the transferor shall be deemed to remain holder of the share until the name of the transferee is entered in the register of members in respect thereof.

19. Shares in the company shall be transferred in the following form, or in any usual or common form which the directors shall approve :

I, A. B. of _____, in consideration of the sum of rupees _____ paid to me by C. D. of _____ (hereinafter called "the said transferee"), do hereby transfer to the said transferee the share [or shares] numbered in the undertaking called the _____ Company, Limited, to hold unto the said transferee, his executors, administrators and assigns, subject to the several conditions on which I held the same at the time of the execution thereof, and I, the said transferee, do hereby agree to take the said share [or shares] subject to the conditions aforesaid. As witness our hands the _____ day of _____ Witness to the signatures of, etc.

20. The directors may decline to register any transfer of shares, not being fully paid shares, to a person of whom they do not approve, and may also decline to register any transfer of shares on which the company has a lien. The directors may also suspend the registration of transfers during the fourteen days immediately preceding the ordinary general meeting in each year. The directors may decline to recognise any instrument of transfer unless—

(a) a fee not exceeding two rupees is paid to the company in respect thereof; and
(b) the instrument of transfer is accompanied by the certificate of the shares to which it relates, and such other evidence as the directors may reasonably require to show the right of the transferor to make the transfer.

21. The executors or administrators of a deceased sold holder of a share shall be the only persons recognised by the company as having any title to the share. In the case of a share registered in the names of two or more holders, the survivors or survivor, or the executors or administrators of the deceased survivor, shall be the only persons recognised by the company as having any title to the share.

transferable instrument or share, the Judge or such officer as he may appoint in this behalf may execute such document or make such endorsement as may be necessary and such execution or endorsement shall have the same effect as an execution or endorsement by the party. Where the sale is confirmed and the provisions of the Code have been complied with, the transfer becomes complete and there is nothing further to be done by the transferee or by the Court. 45 M. 537=70 I.C. 659=52 M.L.J. 449.

TRANSFER IN BLANK.—The delivery of share certificates with the transfer executed in blank passes a title both legal and equitable; but not the property in the shares. 46 B. 489=23 Bom.L.R. 1144=66 I.C. 726.

ART. 20: DISCRETION OF DIRECTORS TO RECOGNISE EXECUTION PURCHASERS.—The discretion given by the rule to the directors either to register or to decline to register any transfer of shares is to prevent undesirable persons or debtors of the company from getting transfers of the shares. This discretion can be exercised not only in the case of private transfers but also in the case of purchase of shares in execution of decrees. 45 M. 537=42 M.L.J. 449; 41 B. 76.

COMPANY SELLING SHARES OF SHAREHOLDERS.—POSITION OF.—Where a limited liability company undertakes to sell the shares belonging to one of its shareholders, the position of its Managing Director in negotiating and completing the sale is one of a fiduciary character. Utmost good faith should be insisted upon in transactions of this description. If any advantage was obtained by the Managing Director by the sale, whether the purchase was made in his name or in the name of his minor sons, the benefit must go to the owner of the shares. 1930 A.L.J. 1396=128 I.C. 229=1930 A. 615.

PURCHASER OF SHARE—RIGHT TO DIVIDEND.—In the absence of a contract to the contrary a purchaser of shares would ordinarily be entitled to all the dividends which may have been declared after the date of the purchase. But there is nothing in law against a shareholder reserving the dividends to himself selling only the shares. When there was a definite understanding that only the shares and not the dividends on the shares were the subject of bargain, whether under private or public sale, the original owner would be entitled to the dividend relating to the period anterior to the sale, even though the same may have been declared subsequent to the date of sale. 1930 A.L.J. 1396=128 I.C. 229=1930 A. 615.

ART. 21: APPLICABILITY OF RULE.—Arts. 21 and 22, while appropriate to a system such as that prevailing in England under which a legal title from a deceased person can only be traced either through probate or through letters of administration, are hardly so appropriate to a system under which a legal title by devolution may be obtained, apart altogether from and without either probate or letters of administration. 1936 R. 52. The provision contained in this article causes great hardship to the heirs of small investors, who are put to the necessity of obtaining letters of administration at

22. Any person becoming entitled to a share in consequence of the death or insolvency of a member shall, upon such evidence being produced as may from time to time be required by the directors, have the right, either to be registered as a member in respect of the share or, instead of being registered himself, to make such transfer of the share as the deceased or insolvent person could have made; but the directors shall, in either case, have the same right to decline or suspend registration as they would have had in the case of a transfer of the share by the deceased or insolvent person, before the death or insolvency.

23. A person becoming entitled to a share by reason of the death or insolvency of the holder shall be entitled to the same dividends and other advantages to which he would be entitled if he were the registered holder of the share, except that he shall not, before being registered as a member in respect of the share, be entitled in respect of it to exercise any right conferred by membership in relation to meetings of the company.

Forfeiture of Shares.

24. If a member fails to pay any call or instalment of a call on the day appointed for payment thereof, the directors may, at any time thereafter during such time as any part of such call or instalment remains unpaid, serve a notice on him requiring payment of so much of call or instalment as is unpaid, together with any interest which may have accrued.

considerable expense. So also, where shares are held by a member of a Joint Hindu family some difficulty is felt. The shares held by such a member generally belong to the joint Hindu family, and on his death the survivor becomes entitled to them by right of survivorship. In such a case, he would not be entitled according to law to obtain letters of administration in respect of such shares. The directors, therefore, cannot validly require such a person to produce letters of administration which he could not obtain under law. 1930 A. 82=126 I.C. 357. It is not within the legal competence of any company to lay down any condition regulating the grant of letters of administration in contravention of any statutory enactment relating thereto. The Articles of Association of a company provided that the executors or administrators of a deceased shareholder are the only persons who are recognised by the company as having a title to the shares. In a joint Hindu family, a person claiming by survivorship is not entitled to a grant of letters of administration to any portion of such property. Hence in such cases, the company cannot insist upon the surviving member of the joint Hindu family obtaining letters of administration. It is open to the company to refuse to recognise the claim in the absence of satisfactory evidence of the right of survivorship. But if the company disputes or denies the title of the claimant without any just cause, and merely on the ground that letters of administration have not been obtained, the company will expose itself to the risk, trouble and expense of a declaratory suit by the claimant. 1930 A. 82.

ART. 22.—As to the power to transfer shares of the legal representative of a deceased member, see S. 35. The legal representatives of a deceased member or the receiver in insolvency would in their representative capacity on behalf of the estate, be entitled to receive dividends, bonuses and other benefits attached to the shares, and would be bound to pay the calls as contributories. See Ss. 160 and 161 and also Art. 23.)

ART. 24.—The director of a company has no power to cancel or forfeit shares or release shareholders in the absence of such special power. 19 A.L.J. 351=62 I.C. 450. The articles of association are merely the terms of the contract which a member is supposed to know and to have agreed to. The company, therefore, cannot make a member liable for forfeiture otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of the articles of association. There is no valid forfeiture if notice as required to be given has not been given. (Stanhope's case, (1866) L.R. 1 Ch. 161.)

CONDITIONS OF VALID FORFEITURE.—A valid call and default are conditions precedent to and necessary for a valid forfeiture. The directors, for instance, must be properly appointed. The resolution of the directors making the call should mention the amount, the time and place of payment. Where these things are absent, the calls would be invalid as against the contributories, and on such invalid calls there can be no legal default and consequently no legal forfeiture. But mere laches on the part of directors or irregularities such as that the forfeiture is not formally registered or that there is no formal resolution of the directors do not affect the legality of the forfeiture. 54 B. 178=32 Bom.L.R. 87=1930 B. 267. A mere intention to forfeit not carried into effect does not amount to forfeiture. A company's minutes book only showed a resolution notice calling for payment, and another notice demanding payment within six week's 'failing which shares held by them will be forfeited as provided in the Act'. The shareholders did not comply with the notice and more than a year later the company was wound up. It was held that the notice by itself was sufficient to operate as a forfeiture, and no resolution to that effect by the directors was required. Therefore, the contributories were held bound to contribute. 10 P. 249=130 I.C. 534=1931 P. 44; 36 P.L.R. 282=155 I.C. 16=1934 L. 1015. But where there is a valid resolution of forfeiture, the fact that the member's name has not been removed from the register is immaterial. Lyster's Case, (1867) 4 Eq. 233; Marshall v. Glamorgan Iron and Coal Co., (1868) 7 Eq. 129.

REVOCATION OF FORFEITURE.—Where the

25. The notice shall name a further day (not earlier than the expiration of fourteen days' from the date of the notice) on or before which the payment required by the notice is to be made and shall state that, in the event of non-payment at or before the time appointed, the shares in respect of which the call was made will be liable to be forfeited.

26. If the requirements of any such notice as aforesaid are not complied with, any share in respect of which the notice has been given may at any time thereafter, before the payment required by the notice has been made, be forfeited by a resolution of the directors to that effect.

27. A forfeited share may be sold or otherwise disposed of on such terms and in such manner as the directors think fit, and at any time before a sale or disposition the forfeiture may be cancelled on such terms as the directors think fit.

28. A person whose shares have been forfeited shall cease to be a member in respect of the forfeited shares, but shall, notwithstanding, remain liable to pay to the company all moneys which, at the date of forfeiture were presently payable by him to the company in respect of the shares, but his liability shall cease if and when the company received payment in full of the nominal amount of the shares.

29. A duly verified declaration in writing that the declarant is a director of the company, and that a share in the company has been duly forfeited on a date stated in the declaration, shall be conclusive evidence of the facts therein stated as against all persons claiming to be entitled to the share, and that declaration, and the receipt of the company for the consideration, if any, given, for the share on the sale or disposition thereof, shall constitute a good title to the share, and the person to whom the share is sold or disposed of shall be registered as the holder of the share and shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase-money (if any) nor shall his title to the share be affected by any irregularity or invalidity on the proceedings in reference to the forfeiture, sale or disposal of the share.

calls have been valid and there has been default, and the power of forfeiture has once been exercised by the directors, it is not open to the directors and to the company to rely upon the irregularity of their own procedure and without the consent of the contributory whose shares have been forfeited to revoke the forfeiture and replace him on the register as contributory. 54 B. 178=32 Bom.L.R. 87=1930 B. 267. But where the calls have been invalid as the directors making the calls did not stipulate the amount, time or place of payment, the allottee of the shares is not bound to pay these calls, and his failure to do so cannot constitute default entailing forfeiture. In such a case, even if the directors should pass a resolution of forfeiture, it would be ultra vires on their part. It is therefore open to them to rescind that resolution of forfeiture and to issue a fresh call on the shares held by the allottee. When the allottee fails to pay, it would be open to the company to maintain a suit both for the allotment and call money. 54 B. 178.

PRESUMPTION.—Where there is an entry as to forfeiture in the company's register, there is a presumption that the same has been properly made and that all the antecedent requirements have been complied with; but this presumption is rebuttable. 83 I.C. 94=1924 M. 703.

CANCELLATION OF SHARES.—A resolution authorising the money of those shareholders who have not paid their allotment money and are not willing to remain as members to be returned, is ultra vires. 19 A.L.J. 351=62 I.C. 450.

FORFEITURE AND SURRENDER, DISTINGUISHED—Forfeiture denotes a proceeding taken by the company adversely to the shareholder; but surrender denotes consent on the part of the shareholder.

C. C. M.—204

ART. 26.—Where notices were issued to shareholders making calls, stating that in default of payment the shares will be forfeited, but no resolution was passed by the directors actually forfeiting the shares, and the company afterwards went into liquidation, it was held that there was no valid forfeiture and that the shareholders were liable to pay the amounts of their calls in the winding up. 155 I.C. 16=1934 L. 1915.

ART. 27.—There is no obligation on the part of the directors to sell or ascertain the value of a forfeited share the moment that it was forfeited. In a suit for the value of the shares, to fix the value as at the time of bringing the suit would not be incorrect or unreasonable. 158 I.C. 10=1935 L. 190.

ART. 28: LIMITATION.—This article imposes on forfeiture, a new obligation or a new debt, and as the shareholder thenceforth ceases to be a member of the company, his liability to pay future calls is gone, and all that is left is this new liability to pay the company "all monies which at the date of forfeiture were presently payable by him to the company in respect of the shares". Such a person is liable with regard to unpaid calls, not as a contributory either as a present or a past member of the company, but as a debtor to the company. This gives the company a fresh cause of action. So a suit to enforce this obligation is governed by Art. 115 and time begins to run from the date on which shares are forfeited. 52 B. 477=30 Bom.L.R. 549=1928 B. 252. The fact that the calls are barred by time as against the company and that the company could not realise them by lapse of time is no answer to the liquidator's claim for contribution. 38 A. 357; 31 M. 66; 22 B. 654; 10 P. 249=12 Pat.L.T. 215. See also 54 A. 541=1932 A.L.J. 354=1932 A. 342.

30. The provisions of these regulations as to forfeiture shall apply in the case of non-payment of any sum which, by the terms of issue of a share, becomes payable at a fixed time, whether on account of the amount of the share, or by way of premium, as if the same had been payable by virtue of a call duly made and notified.

Conversion of shares into stock.

31. The directors may, with the sanction of the company previously given in general meeting, convert any paid-up shares into stock and may with the like sanction re-convert any stock into paid-up share of any denomination.

32. The holders of stock may transfer the same, or any part thereof in the same manner, and subject to the same regulations, as, and subject to which, the shares from which the stock arose might previously to conversion have been transferred, or as near thereto as circumstances admit; but the directors may from time to time fix the minimum amount of stock transferable, and restrict or forbid the transfer of fractions of that minimum, but the minimum shall not exceed the nominal amount of the shares from which the stock arose.

33. The holders of stock shall, according to the amount of the stock held by them have the same rights, privileges and advantages as regards dividends, voting at meetings of the company, and other matters, as if they held the shares from which the stock arose, but no such privilege or advantage (except participation in the dividends and profits of the company) shall be conferred by any such aliquot part of stock as would not, if existing in shares, have conferred that privilege or advantage.

34. Such of the regulations of the company (other than those relating to share-warrants), as are applicable to paid-up shares shall apply to stock, and the words "share" and "shareholder" therein shall include "stock" and "stockholder."

Share-warrants.

35. The company may issue share-warrants, and accordingly the directors may in their discretion, with respect to any share which is fully paid up, on application in writing signed by the person registered as holder of the share, and authenticated by such evidence (if any) as the directors may from time to time require as to the identity of the person signing the request, and on receiving the certificate (if any) of the share, and the amount of the stamp duty on the warrant and such fee as the directors may from time to time require, issue under the company's seal a warrant, duly stamped, stating that the bearer of the warrant is entitled to the shares therein specified, and may provide by coupons or otherwise for the payment of dividends or other moneys on the shares included in the warrant.

36. A share-warrant shall entitle the bearer to the shares included in it and the shares shall be transferred by the delivery of the share-warrant, and the provisions of the regulations of the company with respect to transfer and transmission of shares shall not apply thereto.

37. The bearer of a share warrant shall, on surrender of the warrant to the company for cancellation, and on payment of such sum as the directors may from time to time prescribe, be entitled to have his name entered as a member in the register of members in respect of the shares included in the warrant.

38. The bearer of a share-warrant may at any time deposit the warrant at the office of the company, and so long as the warrant remains so deposited, the depositor shall have the same right of signing a requisition for calling a meeting of the company, and of attending and voting and exercising the other privileges of a member at any meeting held after the expiration of two clear days from the time of deposit, as if his name were inserted in the register of members as the holder of the shares included in the deposited warrant. Not more than one person shall be recognised as depositor of the share warrant. The company shall, on two days, written notice, return the deposited share-warrant to the depositor.

39. Subject as herein otherwise expressly provided, no person shall, as bearer of a share-warrant, sign a requisition for calling a meeting of the company, or attend, or vote or exercise any other privilege of a member at a meeting of the company, or be entitled to receive any notices from the company; but the bearer of a share-warrant shall be entitled in all other respects to the same privileges and advantages as if he were named in the register of members as the holder of the shares included in the warrant, and he shall be a member of the company.

40. The directors may from time to time make rules as to the terms on which (if they shall think fit) a new share-warrant or coupon may be issued by way of renewal in case of defacement, loss or destruction.

Alteration of Capital.

41. The directors may, with the sanction of ¹[the company in general meeting], increase the share capital by such sum, to be divided into shares of such amount, as the resolution shall prescribe.

42. Subject to any direction to the contrary that may be given by the resolution sanctioning the increase of share capital, all new shares shall, before issue, be offered to such persons as at the date of the offer are entitled to receive notices from the company of general meetings in proportion as nearly as the circumstances admit, to the amount of the existing shares to which they are entitled. The offer shall be made by notice specifying the number of shares offered, and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined, and after the expiration of that time, or on the receipt of an intimation from the person to whom the offer is made that he declines to accept the shares offered, the directors may dispose of the same in such manner as they think most beneficial to the company. The directors may likewise so dispose of any new shares which (by reason of the ratio which the new shares bear to shares held by persons entitled to an offer of new shares) cannot in the opinion of the directors, be conveniently offered under this article.

43. The new shares shall be subject to the same provisions with reference to the payment of calls, lien, transfer, transmission, forfeiture and otherwise as the shares in the original share capital.

44. The company may, by ¹[ordinary resolution],

(a) consolidate and divide its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares ;
(b) by sub-division of its existing shares or any of them, divide the whole or any part of its share capital, into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by the memorandum of association, subject, nevertheless, to the provisions of paragraph (d) of sub-section (1) of section 50 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 ;

(c) cancel any shares which, at the date of the passing of the resolution, have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person ;

²[44-A. The company may, by special resolution, reduce its share capital in any manner and with, and subject to any incident authorised and consent required, by law.]

General Meetings.

45. The statutory general meeting of the company shall be held within the period required by section 77 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

46. A general meeting shall be held ³[within eighteen months from the date of its incorporation and thereafter once at least in every year] at such time (not being more than fifteen months after the holding of the last preceding general meeting) and place as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, or, in default, at such time in the month following that in which the anniversary of the company's incorporation occurs, and at such place as the directors shall appoint. In default of a general meeting, being so held, a general meeting shall be held in the month next following and may be called by any two members in the same manner as nearly as possible as that in which meetings are to be called by the directors.

47. The above-mentioned general meetings shall be called ordinary meetings ; all other general meetings shall be called extraordinary.

48. The directors may, whenever they think fit, call an extraordinary general meeting, and extraordinary general meetings shall also be called on such requisition, or in default, may be called by such requisitionists, as provided by section 78 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913. If at any time there are not within British India sufficient directors capable of acting to form a quorum, any director or any two members of the company may call an extraordinary general meeting in the same manner as nearly as possible as that in which meetings may be called by the directors.

Proceedings at General Meeting.

49. ⁴[Subject to the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 81 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, relating to special resolutions], fourteen days, notice at the least (exclusive of the day on which the notice is served or deemed to be served, but inclusive of the day for which notice is given) specifying the place, the day and hour of meeting, and, in case of special business, the general nature of that business, shall be given in manner hereinafter mentioned, or in such other manner, if any, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, to such persons as are, under ⁵[the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or] the regulations of the company, entitled to receive such notices from the company ; but the ⁶[the accidental omission to give notice to or the non-receipt of notice] by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting.

50. All business shall be deemed special that is transacted at an extraordinary meeting, and all that is transacted at an ordinary meeting with the exception of sanctioning a dividend, the consideration of the amounts, balance-sheets and the ordinary report of the directors and auditors, the election of directors and other officers in the place of those retiring by rotation, and the fixing of the remuneration of the auditors.

51. No business shall be transacted at any general meeting unless a quorum of members is present at the time when the meeting proceeds to business ; save as herein otherwise provided, ⁷[two members in the case of a private company and five members in the case of any other company] personally present shall be a quorum.

52. If within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum is not present, the meeting, if called upon the requisition of members, shall be dissolved ; in any other case, it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week at the same time and place, and, if at the adjourned meeting a quorum is not present within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting, the members present shall be a quorum.

ART. 49: ESSENTIALS OF VALID MEETING. —For a meeting to be a meeting of the company it must be a meeting convened strictly in accordance with the Articles of Association either by the directors or by the shareholders under requisition or by the direction of the Court to the liquidator in winding up proceedings. 52 C. 513—1925 C. 817.

53. The chairman, if any, of the board of directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the company.

54. If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present within fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting, or is unwilling to act as chairman, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman.

55. The chairman may, with the consent of any meeting at which a quorum is present (and shall if so directed by the meeting), adjourn the meeting from time to time and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place. When a meeting is adjourned for ten days or more, notice of the adjourned meeting shall be given as in the case of an original meeting. Save as aforesaid, it shall not be necessary to give any notice of an adjournment or of the business to be transacted at an adjourned meeting.

56. At any general meeting a resolution put to the vote of the meeting shall be decided on a show of hands, unless a poll is (before or on the declaration of the result of the show of hands) demanded [in accordance with the provisions of clause (c) of sub-section (1) of section 79 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913], and unless a poll is so demanded, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has, on a show of hands, been carried, or carried unanimously, or by a particular majority, or lost, and an entry to that effect in the book of the proceedings of the company shall be conclusive evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against, that resolution.

57. If a poll is duly demanded, it shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of the poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the meeting at which the poll was demanded.

58. In the case of an equality of votes, whether on a show of hands or on a poll, the chairman, of the meeting at which the show of hands takes place, or at which the poll is demanded, shall be entitled to a second or casting vote.

59. A poll demanded on the election of a chairman or on a question of adjournment shall be taken forthwith. A poll demanded on any other question shall be taken at such time as the chairman of the meeting directs.

Votes of Members.

60. On a show of hands every member present in person shall have one vote. ²[On a poll every member shall have one vote in respect of each share or each hundred rupees of stock held by him.]

ART. 53: MEMBER'S RIGHT TO BE HEARD.—At a meeting, a shareholder has a right to be heard on reasonable terms for a reasonable time. But whether the denial of this right vitiates the resolution, depends upon the facts of each case. 26 Bom.L.R. 987 =1925 B. 49.

AMENDMENTS.—Any proper amendment, moved by any member at a meeting, should be put to the meeting for consideration, and if the chairman rules out any such amendment, the resolution is liable to be set aside. But if an amendment is really a counter-proposal involving either adjournment of the consideration of the resolution or the rejection of the resolution proposed before the meeting, or goes beyond the scope of the subject-matter of the resolution it should be ruled out. 26 Bom.L.R. 987=1925 B. 49. An amendment may be rejected if it is contrary to the terms of the order of the Court, under which the meeting takes place. 26 Bom.L.R. 907=1925 B. 105.

POINT OF ORDER.—A point of order assailing the competency of the meeting to consider a proposed resolution, which is long enough to form a speech against the resolution, can be ruled out. 26 Bom.L.R. 987 =1925 B. 49. A point of order objecting to the validity of votes tendered for the resolution should be handed over to the chairman before he commences to take the poll, and it should also be directed to particular votes. 26 Bom.L.R. 987=1925 B. 49=90 I.C. 580.

ART. 55: CHAIRMAN'S POWER OF CLOSING MEETING.—The chairman empowered by the Articles of Association to adjourn a meeting has a discretion to adjourn with the consent of the meeting, but he is not bound to do so. 47 B. 915=25 Bom.L.R. 1083=80 I.C. 75.

RIGHT OF GENERAL MEETING TO ADJOURN.—In the absence of an express prohibition to the contrary, the law gives the right to every meeting to adjourn itself, provided the adjournment is for a bona fide purpose. 55 M.L.J. 385=1928 M. 1215.

PROXIES, USE OF, IN ADJOURNED MEETING.—An adjourned meeting is merely a continuation of the meeting and old proxies may be made use of at the adjourned meeting also. 55 M.L.J. 358=1928 M. 1215.

ART. 56.—The mere fact that an amendment to a resolution was first lost on a show of hands but on demand for a poll before the result was declared it was withdrawn in view of another amendment, does not invalidate the original resolution. 26 Bom.L.R. 987=1925 B. 49.

61. In the case of joint-holders, the vote of the senior who tenders a vote, whether in person or by proxy, shall be accepted to the exclusion of the votes of the other joint-holders; and for this purpose seniority shall be determined by the order in which the names stand in the register of members.

62. A member of unsound mind, or in respect of whom an order has been made by any Court having jurisdiction in lunacy, may vote, whether on a show of hands or on a poll, by his committee or other legal guardian, and any such committee or guardian may, on a poll, vote by proxy.

63. No member shall be entitled to vote at any general meeting unless all calls or other sums presently payable by him in respect of shares in the company have been paid.

64. On a poll votes may be given either personally or by proxy : Provided that no company shall vote by proxy as long as a resolution of its directors in accordance with the provisions of section 80 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, is in force.

65. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing under the hand of the appointer or of his attorney duly authorised in writing, or, if the appointer is a corporation either under the common seal, or under the hand of an officer or attorney so authorised. No person shall act as a proxy unless ¹[he is a member of the company].

66. The instrument appointing a proxy and the power-of-attorney or other authority (if any), under which it is signed or a notarially certified copy of that power or authority, shall be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than seventy-two hours before the time for holding the meeting at which the person named in the instrument proposes to vote, and in default the instrument of proxy shall not be treated as valid.

67. An instrument appointing a proxy may be in the following form, or in any other form which the directors shall approve :—

which the directors shall approve:—

“ I, _____ of _____ Company, Limited, in the district of _____ being a member of the _____ company, Limited, hereby appoint _____ of _____ as my proxy to vote for me and on my behalf at the [ordinary or extraordinary, as the case may be] general meeting of the company to be held on the _____ day of _____ and at any adjournment thereof.”

Directors.

68. The numbers of the directors and the names of the first directors shall be determined in writing by a majority of the subscribers of the memorandum of association.

69. The remuneration of the directors shall from time to time be determined by the company in general meeting.

70. The qualification of a director shall be the holding of at least one share in the company, and it shall be his duty to comply with the provisions of section 85 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

Power and duties of Directors.

71. The business of the company shall be managed by the directors, who may pay all expenses incurred in getting up and registering the company, and may exercise all such powers of the company as are not, by the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force, or by these articles, required to be exercised by the company in general meeting, subject nevertheless to any regulation of these articles, to the provisions of the said Act, and to such regulations being not inconsistent with the aforesaid regulations or provisions, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting; but no regulation made by the company in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if that regulation had not been made.

72. The directors may from time to time appoint one or more of their body to the office of managing director or manager for such term, and at such remuneration (whether by way of salary, or commission or participation in profits, or partly in one way and partly in another) as they may think fit, and a director so appointed shall not, while holding that office, be subject to retirement by rotation, or taken into account in determining the rotation of retirement of directors, but his appointment shall be subject to determination ipso facto if he ceases from any cause to be a director, or if the company in general meeting resolve that his tenure of the office of managing director or manager be determined.

73. The amount for the time being remaining undischarged of moneys borrowed or raised by the directors for the purposes of the company (otherwise than by the issue of share capital) shall not at any time exceed the issued share capital of the company without the sanction of the company in general meeting.

The requirement of the article is that the directors shall so restrict their borrowing that the amount for the time being remaining undischarged shall not exceed the limit specified. The directors shall duly comply with the provisions of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force, and in particular with the provisions in regard to the registration of the particulars of mortgages and charges affecting the property of the company or created by it, and to keeping a register of the directors, and to sending to the registrar, an annual list of members, and a summary of particulars relating thereto and notice of any consolidation or increase of share capital, or conversion of shares into stock, and copies of special resolutions and a copy of the register of directors and notifications of any changes therein.

75. The director shall cause minutes to be made in books provided for the purpose—

- (a) of all appointments of officers made by the directors;
 - (b) of the names of the directors at each meeting of the directors and of any committee of the directors;
 - (c) of all resolutions and proceedings at all meetings of the company, and, of the directors, and of committees of directors;
- and every director present at any meeting of directors or committee of directors shall sign his name in a book to be kept for that purpose.

The seal.

76. The seal of the company shall not be affixed to any instrument except by the authority of a resolution of the board of directors, and in the presence of at least two directors and of the secretary or such other person as the directors may appoint for the purpose; and those two directors and secretary or other person as aforesaid shall sign every instrument to which the seal of the company is so affixed in their presence.

Disqualifications of Directors.

77. The officer of director shall be vacated if the director—

however the loans, although in excess of the authority of the directors, are not ultra vires, the money having been received by the company and applied for its purposes, the Official Liquidator of the company cannot, during the winding up proceedings, reduce the balance outstanding at the date of liquidation by disputing the liability of the company to pay the whole sums advanced. I.L.R. (1933) Bom. 421=42 C.W.N. 733=40 Bom.L.R. 1109=1938 P.O. 159 (P.G.). Though the borrowings by the directors of a company may have at times exceeded the limits fixed by Art. 73, where the claim made by a creditor lending money is not in excess of the amount limited, the claim cannot be challenged on the ground that the incurring of the debt was ultra vires. The rule in Clayton's case has no application where the question is between moneys borrowed intra vires and moneys borrowed ultra vires. As soon as the amount due comes to below the limit, the borrowing is authorised under Art. 73, and the presumption would be that the moneys already repaid represented the moneys borrowed ultra vires which never became the property of the company, but remained the property of the lender. In a case where the borrowing is ultra vires the directors, and not ultra vires the company, the money can be recovered in an action for money had and received. 37 Bom.L.R. 978=1936 B. 62.

ART. 75.—There is always a presumption in favour of the validity of the proceedings rather than in favour of their invalidity, if the fact which would go to invalidate the proceedings is not established beyond reasonable doubt. 26 Bom.L.R. 987=1925 B. 49. The minutes in the books are to be received, though not as conclusive, yet as prima facie evidence of resolutions and proceedings at general meetings and a chairman's declaration of a poll as evidenced by an entry in minutes will be presumed to be correct, and this presumption is rebuttable. But if the meeting be held under the orders of the Court under the chairmanship of an officer of the Court the presumption is absolute. 28 Bom.L.R. 907=1925 B. 105.

ART. 76: IRREGULARITY IN AFFIXING SEAL.

—Where a document is intended and required to be under seal, a mere defect or irregularity in affixing the seal, does not make the document bad for all purposes. If the Court is satisfied that the parties intended and had power to create a charge by

Rotation of Directors.

78. At the first ordinary meeting of the company, the whole of the directors shall retire from office, and at the ordinary meeting in every subsequent year, one-third of the directors for the time being or, if their number is not three or a multiple of three, then the number nearest to one-third shall retire from office.

79. The directors to retire in every year shall be those who have been longest in office since their last election, but as between persons who became directors on the same day those to retire shall (unless they otherwise agree among themselves) be determined by lot.

80. A retiring director shall be eligible for re-election.

81. The company at the general meeting at which a director retires in manner aforesaid may fill up the vacated office by electing a person thereto.

82. If at any meeting at which an election of directors ought to take place, the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the meeting shall stand adjourned till the same day in the next week at the same time and place, and, if at the adjourned meeting the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the vacating directors or such of them as have not had their places filled up shall be deemed to have been re-elected at the adjourned meeting.

83. ³[Subject to the provisions of sections 83-A and 83-B of the Indian Companies Act, 1913] the Company may from time to time in general meeting increase or reduce the number of directors, and may also determine in what rotation the increased or reduced number is to go out of office.

84. Any casual vacancy occurring on the board of directors may be filled up by the directors but the person so chosen shall be subject to retirement at the same time as if he had become a director on the day on which the director in whose place he is appointed was last elected a director.

85. The directors shall have power at any time, and from time to time, to appoint a person as an additional director who shall retire from office at the next following ordinary general meeting, but shall be eligible for election by the company at that meeting as an additional director.

86. The Company may by extraordinary resolution remove any director before the expiration of his period of office, and may by an ordinary resolution appoint another person in his stead ; the person so appointed shall be subject to retirement at the same time as if he had become a director on the day on which the director in whose place he is appointed was last elected a director.

Proceedings of Directors.

87. The directors may meet together for the despatch of business, adjourn and otherwise regulate their meetings, as they think fit. Questions arising at any meeting shall be decided by a majority of votes. In case of an equality of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote. A director may, and the secretary on the requisition of a director shall, at any time, summon a meeting of directors.

the document, it will give effect to the intention notwithstanding any mistake in or a failure of the attempt to effect it. If, further, the document was acted upon by the company, the obligation it embodies will be enforced. 57 C. 1101=34 C.W.N. 570=1930 C. 782. An agreement between a company and a person as bantian of the company that the latter will advance all the necessary funds up to a certain limit and in return will have the sole right to collect all sums due on bills to the company and re-pay himself the advances so made as also his remuneration, is an instrument which if otherwise binding creates an equitable charge on the company's outstandings for the amount due to the person. Such an agreement need not be under the company's seal. It is enough if it is in writing. Even if such agreement is required to be under seal by the Articles of Association, if it is fixed with the seal irregularly, the irregularity does not affect the binding character of the agreement. 57 C. 1101=34 C.W.N. 570=1930 C. 782.

ART. 87: MEETING MUST BE DULY ASSEMBLED.—The mere accidental assembling of a majority of persons who are directors of a company does not constitute a legal board, and the acts of the directors at a meeting irregularly called, as where notice of meeting is not given to some of the directors, is not binding on the company, unless ratified. A majority must have been duly assembled, and then a majority of those who are assembled can act for the whole. But where there is a custom or by-law of the directors to hold meetings for the transaction of business at a certain time and place, special notice of such meetings is not necessary in order to validate such business transacted thereat. So also, where a meeting is regularly assembled, but adjourns to a future time and place, special notice of adjourned meeting is not necessary, since the fact and record of adjournment give such notice.

DIRECTOR CANNOT ACT BY PROXY.—A director cannot delegate the performance of his discretionary duties, which imply trust and confidence, to a proxy, but he must attend the meetings of the Board and set in person.

NOTICE OF MEETING.—The right of all the

88. The quorum necessary for the transaction of the business of the directors may be fixed by the directors, and unless so fixed shall (when the number of directors exceeds three) be three.

89. The continuing directors may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body, but, if and so long as their number is reduced below the number fixed by or pursuant to the regulations of the company as the necessary quorum of directors, the continuing directors may act for the purpose of increasing the number of directors to that number, or of summoning a general meeting of the company but for no other purpose.

90. The directors may elect a chairman of their meetings and determine the period for which he is to hold office; but if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present within five minutes after the time appointed for holding the same, the directors present may choose one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

91. The directors may delegate any of their powers to committees consisting of such member or members of their body as they think fit; any committee so ¹[formed] shall, in the exercise of the powers so delegated, conform to any regulations that may be imposed on them by the directors.

92. A committee may elect a chairman of their meetings; if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present within five minutes after the time appointed for holding the same, the members present may choose one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

93. A committee may meet and adjourn as they think proper. Questions arising at any meeting shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present, and in case of an equality of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

94. All acts done by any meeting of the directors or of a committee of directors, or by any person acting as a director, shall, notwithstanding that it be afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of any such directors or persons acting as aforesaid, or that they or any of them were disqualified, be as valid as if every such person had been duly appointed and was qualified to be a director.

Dividends and Reserve.

95. The company in general meeting may declare dividends, but no dividends shall exceed the amount recommended by the directors.

96. The directors may from time to time pay to the members such interim dividends as appear to the directors to be justified by the profits of the company.

97. No dividends shall be paid otherwise than out of profits ²[of the year or any other undistributed profits].

98. Subject to the rights of persons (if any) entitled to shares with special rights as to dividends all dividends shall be declared and paid according to the amounts paid on the shares, but if and so long as nothing is paid upon any of the shares in the company, dividends may be declared and paid according to the amounts of the shares. No amount paid on a share in advance of calls shall, while carrying interest, be treated for the purposes of this article as paid on the share.

99. The directors may, before recommending any dividend, set aside out of the profits of the company such sums as they think proper as a reserve or reserves which shall, at the discretion of the directors, be applicable for meeting contingencies, or for equalizing dividends, or for any other purpose directors to notice is founded on the right of being present for the purpose of consultation of which right a minority cannot be arbitrary deprived by the majority. But while all the members must be notified in order to validate the transactions had at the meeting, it is not necessary that all should be present; but it will be sufficient if a quorum assemble. It follows that proceedings at a meeting of the majority of directors, without notice to the other members, are void, although all those present voted in favour of the action taken, and the result would have been the same had the other members been present. It is not necessary that a notice convening a meeting of the directors should contain particulars as to the business which is to be done at the meeting. APPENDIX I.

Shares.

1. No person shall be deemed to have accepted any share in the Company unless he has testified his acceptance thereof by writing under this hand in such form as the Company from time to time directs.

2. The Company may from time to time make such calls upon the shareholders, in respect of all moneys unpaid on their shares, as they think fit, provided that twenty-one days' notice at least is given of each call; and each shareholder shall be liable to pay the amount of calls so made to the persons and at the times and places appointed by the Company.

3. A call shall be deemed to have been made at the time when the resolution authorizing such call was passed.

LEG. BNF.

C.G.M.—207

* The Table is reproduced here as an Appendix for convenience of reference.

4. If, before or on the day appointed for payment, any shareholder does not pay the amount of any call to which he is liable, then such shareholder shall be liable to pay interest for the same at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum from the day appointed for the payment thereof to the time of the actual payment.

5. The company may, if they think fit, receive from any of the shareholders willing to advance the same, all or any part of the moneys due upon their respective shares beyond the sums actually called for, and upon the moneys so paid in advance, or so much thereof as from time to time exceeds the amount of the calls then made upon the shares in respect of which such advance has been made, the Company may pay interest at such rate as the shareholder paying such sum in advance and the Company agree upon.

6. If several persons are registered as joint holders of any share, any one of such persons may give effectual receipts for any dividend payable in respect of such share.

7. The Company may decline to register any transfer of shares made by a shareholder who is indebted to them.

8. Every shareholder shall, on payment of such sum not exceeding eight annas as the Company may prescribe, be entitled to a certificate under the common seal of the Company, specifying the share or shares held by him and the amount paid up thereon.

9. If such certificate is worn out or lost, it may be renewed on payment of such sum, not exceeding eight annas, as the Company may prescribe.

10. The transfer books shall be closed during the fourteen days immediately preceding the ordinary general meeting in each year.

Transmission of Shares.

11. The executors or administrators or representatives of a deceased shareholder shall be the only persons recognized by the Company as having any title to his share.

12. Any person becoming entitled to a share in consequence of the death, bankruptcy or insolvency of any shareholder, or in consequence of the marriage of any female shareholder or in any way other than by transfer, may be registered as a shareholder upon such evidence being produced as may from time to time be required by the Company.

13. Any person who has become entitled to a share in any way other than by transfer may, instead of being registered himself, elect to have some person to be named by him registered as a holder of such share.

14. The person so becoming entitled shall testify such election by executing to his nominee a transfer of such share.

15. The instrument of transfer shall be presented to the Company accompanied with such evidence as they may require to prove the title of the transferor, and thereupon the Company shall register the transferee as a shareholder.

Forfeiture of shares.

16. If any shareholder fails to pay any call due on the appointed day, the Company may, at any time thereafter, during such time as the call remains unpaid, serve a notice on him, requiring him to pay such call, together with any interest that may have accrued by reason of such non-payment.

17. The notice shall name a further date, and a place or places, being a place or places at which calls of the Company are usually made payable, on and at which such call is to be paid; it shall also state that, in the event of non-payment at the time and place appointed, the shares in respect of which such call was made will be liable to be forfeited.

18. If the requisitions of any such notice as aforesaid are not complied with, any share in respect of which such notice has been given may be forfeited by a resolution of the directors to that effect.

19. Any shares so forfeited shall be deemed to be the property of the Company, and may be disposed of in such manner as the Company thinks fit.

20. Any shareholder whose shares have been forfeited shall notwithstanding be liable to pay to the Company all calls owing upon such shares at the time of the forfeiture.

Increase in Capital.

21. The Company may, with the sanction of the Company previously given in general meeting, increase its capital.

22. Any capital raised by the creation of new shares shall be considered as part of the original capital, and shall be subject to the same provisions in all respects, whether with reference to the payment of calls, or the forfeiture of shares on non-payment of calls or otherwise, as if it had been part of the original capital.

General Meetings.

23. The first general meeting shall be held at such time, not being more than twelve months after the incorporation of the Company, and at such place as the directors may determine.

24. Subsequent general meetings shall be held at such time and place as may be prescribed by the Company in general meeting; and if no other time or place is prescribed, a general meeting shall be held on the 1st [first Monday in February] in every year, at such place as may be determined by the directors.

LEG. EMP.

1 The bracketted portion read originally as follows: " . . . day of "

25. The above-mentioned general meetings shall be called ordinary meetings ; all other general meetings shall be called extraordinary.

26. The directors may, whenever they think fit, and they shall, upon a requisition made in writing by any number of shareholders holding in the aggregate not less than one-fifth part of the shares of the Company, convene an extraordinary general meeting.

27. Any requisition so made by the shareholders shall express the object of the meeting proposed to be called, and shall be left at the registered office of the Company.

28. Upon the receipt of such requisition, the directors shall forthwith proceed to convene a general meeting ; if they do not proceed to convene the same within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition, the requisitionists, or any other shareholders holding the required number of shares, may themselves convene a meeting.

29. Seven days' notice at the least, specifying the place, the time, the hour of meeting, and the purpose for which any general meeting is to be held, shall be given by advertisement, or in such other manner (if any) as may be prescribed by the Company.

30. Any shareholder may, on giving not less than three days' previous notice, submit any resolution to a meeting beyond the matters contained in the notice given of such meeting.

31. The notice required of a shareholder shall be given by leaving a copy of the resolution at the registered office of the Company.

32. No business shall be transacted at any meeting, except the declaration of a dividend, unless a quorum of shareholders is present at the commencement of such business : and such quorum shall be ascertained as follows (that is to say) ; if the shareholders belonging to the Company at the time of the meeting do not exceed ten in number, the quorum shall be five ; if they exceed ten, there shall be added to the above quorum one for every five additional shareholders up to fifty, and one for every ten additional shares after fifty, with this limitation, that it shall not be necessary for any quorum in any case to exceed forty.

33. If within one hour from the time appointed for the meeting the required number of shareholders is not present, the meeting, if convened upon the requisition of the shareholders, shall be dissolved ; in any other case it shall stand adjourned to the following day at the same time and place ; and if at such adjourned meeting the required number of shareholders is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

34. The chairman (if any) of the Board of Directors shall preside as Chairman at every meeting of the Company.

35. If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present at the time of holding the same, the shareholders present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

36. The chairman may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn any meeting from time to time and from place to place ; but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place.

37. At any general meeting, unless a poll is demanded by at least five shareholders, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has been carried, and an entry to that effect in the book of proceedings of the Company, shall be sufficient evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against such resolution.

38. If a poll is demanded in manner aforesaid, the same shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs ; and the result of such poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the Company in general meeting.

Votes of Shareholders.

39. Every shareholder shall have one vote for every share up to ten ; he shall have an additional vote for every five shares beyond the first ten shares up to one hundred, and an additional vote for every ten shares held by him beyond the first hundred shares.

40. If any shareholder is a lunatic or idiot, he may vote by his committee ; and if any shareholder is a minor, he may vote by his guardian, or any one of his guardians if more than one.

41. If more persons than one are jointly entitled to a share or shares, the persons whose names stand first in the register of shareholders as one of the holders of such share or shares, and no other, shall be entitled to vote in respect of the same.

42. No shareholder shall be entitled to vote at any meeting unless all calls due from him have been paid, nor until he shall have been possessed of his shares three calendar months, unless such shares shall have been acquired or shall have come by bequest, or by marriage, or by succession to an intestate's estate, or by any deed of settlement after the death of any person who shall have been entitled for life to the dividends of such shares.

43. Votes may be given either personally or by proxies ; a proxy shall be appointed in writing under the hand of the appointer, or, if such appointer is a corporation, under their common seal.

44. No person shall be appointed a proxy who is not a shareholder, and the instrument appointing him shall be deposited at the registered office of the Company not less than forty-eight hours before the time of holding the meeting at which he proposes to vote ; but no instrument, appointing a proxy shall be valid after the expiration of one month from the date of its execution, Directors.

45. The number of the directors and the names of the first directors shall be determined by the subscribers of the memorandum of association.

46. Until directors are appointed, the subscribers of the memorandum of association shall for all the purposes of this Act be deemed to be directors.

Powers of Directors.

47. The business of the Company shall be managed by the directors, who may exercise all such powers of the Company as are not by this Act or by the articles of association (if any) declared to be exercisable by the Company in general meeting, subject nevertheless to any regulations of the articles of association, to the provisions of this Act, and to such regulations, not being inconsistent with the aforesaid regulations or provisions, as may be prescribed by the Company in general meeting, but no regulation made by the Company in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if such regulation had not been made.

Disqualification of Directors.

48. The office of director shall be vacated—

if he holds any other office or place of profit under the Company ;

if he becomes bankrupt or insolvent ;

if he is concerned in or participates in the profits of any contract with the Company ;

if he participates in the profits of any work done for the Company.

But the above rules shall be subject to the following exceptions :—that no director shall vacate his office by reason of his being a shareholder in any incorporated Company which has entered into contracts with or done any work for the Company of which he is a director ; nevertheless he shall not vote in respect of such contract or work ; and, if he does so vote, his vote shall not be counted, and he shall incur a penalty, not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Rotation of Directors.

49. At the first ordinary meeting after the incorporation of the Company the whole of the directors shall retire from office ; and at the first ordinary meeting in every subsequent year, one-third of the directors for the time being, or, if their number is not a multiple of three, then the number nearest to one-third, shall retire from office.

50. The one-third or other nearest number to retire during the first and second years ensuing the incorporation of the Company shall, unless the directors agree among themselves, be determined by ballot ; in every subsequent year the one-third or other nearest number who have been longest in office shall retire.

51. A retiring director shall be re-eligible.

52. The Company at the general meeting at which any directors retire in manner aforesaid shall fill up the vacated offices by electing a like number of persons.

53. If at any meeting at which an election of directors ought to take place no such election is made, the meeting shall stand adjourned till the next day, at the same time and place, and, if at such adjourned meeting no election takes place, the former directors shall continue to act until new directors are appointed at the first ordinary meeting of the following year.

54. The Company may from time to time, in general meeting, increase or reduce the number of directors, and may also determine in what rotation such increased or reduced number is to go out of office.

55. Any casual vacancy occurring in the Board of Directors may be filled up by the Directors ; but any person so chosen shall retain his office so long only as the vacating director would have retained the same if no vacancy had occurred.

Proceedings of Directors.

56. The directors may meet together for the despatch of business, adjourn and otherwise regulate their meetings, as they think fit, and determine the quorum necessary for the transaction of business ; questions arising at any meeting shall be decided by a majority of votes ; in case of an equality of votes, the chairman, in addition to his original vote, shall have a casting vote ; a director may at any time summon a meeting of the directors.

57. The directors may elect a chairman of their meetings and determine the period for which he is to hold office ; but if no such chairman is elected or if at any meeting the chairman is not present at the time appointed for holding the same, the directors present shall choose some one of the number to be chairman of such meeting.

58. The directors may delegate any of their powers to committees consisting of such member or members of their body as they think fit : any committee so formed shall, in the exercise of the powers so delegated, conform to any regulations that may be imposed on them by the directors.

59. A committee may elect a chairman of their meetings : if no such chairman is elected, or if he is not present at the time appointed for holding the same, the members present shall choose one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

60. A committee may meet and adjourn as they think proper : questions at any meeting shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present ; and in case of an equal division of votes, the chairman shall have a casting vote.

61. All acts done by any meeting of the directors, or of a committee of directors, or by any person acting as a director, shall notwithstanding that it be afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of any such directors or persons acting as aforesaid, or that they or any of them were disqualified, be as valid as if every such person had been duly appointed and was qualified to be a director.

62. The director shall cause minutes to be made in books provided for the purpose—

- (1) of all appointments of officers made by the directors ;
- (2) of the names of directors present at each meeting of directors and committees of directors ;
- (3) of all orders made by the directors and committees of directors ; and
- (4) of all resolutions and proceedings of meetings of the Company, and of the directors and committees of directors.

And any such minute as aforesaid if signed by any person purporting to be the chairman of any meeting of directors, or committee of directors, shall be receivable in evidence without any further proof.

63. The Company, in general meeting, may, by a special resolution, remove any director before the expiration of his period of office, and appoint another qualified person in his stead ; the person so appointed shall hold office during such time only as the director in whose place he is appointed would have held the same if he had not been removed.

Dividends.

64. The directors may, with the sanction of the Company in general meeting, declare a dividend to be paid to the shareholders in proportion to their shares.

65. The directors may, before recommending any dividend, set aside out of the profits of the Company such sum as they think proper as a reserved fund to meet contingencies, or for equalizing dividends or for repairing or maintaining the works connected with the business of the Company, or any part thereof ; and the directors may invest the sum so set apart as a reserved fund upon such securities as they, with the sanction of the Company, may select.

66. The directors may deduct from the dividends payable to any shareholder all such sums of money as may be due from him to the Company on account of calls or otherwise.

67. Notice of any dividend that may have been declared shall be given to each shareholder or sent by post or otherwise to his registered place of abode ; and all dividends unclaimed for three years, after having been declared, may be forfeited by the directors for the benefit of the Company.

68. No dividend shall bear interest as against the Company.

Accounts.

69. Once at the least in every year the directors shall lay before the Company in general meeting a statement of the income and expenditure for the past year made up to a date not more than three months before such meeting.

70. The statement so made shall show, arranged under the most convenient heads, the amount of gross income, distinguishing the several sources from which it has been derived, and the amount of gross expenditure, distinguishing the expense of the establishment, salaries, and other like matters ; every item of expenditure fairly chargeable against the year's income shall be brought into account, so that a just balance of profit and loss may be laid before the meeting ; and in cases where any item of expenditure which may in fairness be distributed over several years has been incurred in any one year, the whole amount of such item shall be stated, with the addition of the reasons why only a portion of such expenditure is charged against the income of the year.

71. A balance-sheet shall be made out in every year, and laid before the general meeting of the Company ; and such balance-sheet shall contain a summary of the property and liabilities of the Company arranged under the heads appearing in the form annexed to this table, or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

72. A printed copy of such balance-sheet shall, seven days previously to such meeting, be delivered at or sent by post to the registered address of every shareholder.

Audit.

73. The accounts of the Company shall be examined, and the correctness of the balance-sheet ascertained by one or more auditor or auditors to be elected by the Company in general meeting.

74. If not more than one auditor is appointed, all the provisions herein contained relating to auditors shall apply to him.

75. The auditors need not be shareholder in the Company ; no person is eligible as an auditor who is interested otherwise than as a shareholder in any transaction of the Company ; and no director or other officer of the Company is eligible during his continuance in office.

REGULATIONS FOR MANAGEMENT OF A COMPANY LIMITED BY SHARES.

Shares.

1. If several persons are registered as joint holders of any share, any one of such persons may give effectual receipts for any dividend payable in respect of such share.
2. Every member shall, on payment of eight annas or such less sum as the Company in general meeting may prescribe, be entitled to a certificate under the common seal of the Company, specifying the share or shares held by him, and the amount paid up thereon.
3. If such certificate is worn out or lost, it may be renewed on payment of eight annas or such less sum as the Company in general meeting may prescribe.

Calls on Shares.

4. The directors may from time to time make such calls upon the members in respect of all moneys unpaid on their shares as they think fit, provided that twenty-one days' notice at least is given of each call; and each member shall be liable to pay the amount of calls so made to the persons and at the times and places appointed by the directors.
5. A call shall be deemed to have been made at the time when the resolution of the directors authorising such call was passed.
6. If the call payable in respect of any share is not paid before or on the day appointed for payment thereof, the holder for the time being of such share shall be liable to pay interest for the same at the rate of five per cent. per annum from the day appointed for the payment thereof to the time of the actual payment.
7. The directors may, if they think fit, receive, from any member willing to advance the same, all or any part of the moneys due upon the shares held by him beyond the sums actually called for; and, upon the moneys so paid in advance, or so much thereof as from time to time exceeds the amount of the calls then made upon the shares in respect of which such advance has been made, the Company may pay interest at such rate as the member paying such sum in advance and the directors agree upon.

Transfers of Shares.

8. The instrument of transfer of any share in the Company shall be executed both by the transferor and transferee, and the transferor shall be deemed to remain a holder of such share until the name of the transferee is entered in the register book in respect thereof.

9. Shares in the Company shall be transferred in the following form :
 I, A. B., of _____, in consideration of the sum of rupees _____ paid to me by C. D. of _____ do hereby transfer to the said C. D., the share (or shares) numbered _____ standing in my name in the books of the _____ Company to hold unto the said C. D., his executors, administrators and assigns, subject to the several conditions on which I held the same at the time of the execution thereof; and I, the said C. D., do hereby agree to take the said share (or shares) subject to the same conditions. As witness our hands the _____ day of _____

10. The Company may decline to register any transfer of shares made by a member who is indebted to them.

11. The transfer books shall be closed during the fourteen days immediately preceding the ordinary general meeting in each year.

Transmission of Shares.

12. The executors or administrators of a deceased member shall be the only persons recognised by the Company as having any title to his share.

13. Any person becoming entitled to a share in consequence of the death, bankruptcy or insolvency of any member, or in consequence of the marriage of any female member, may be registered as a member upon such evidence being produced as may, from time to time, be required by the Company.

14. Any person who has become entitled to a share in consequence of the death, bankruptcy or insolvency of any member or in consequence of the marriage of any female member, may, instead of being registered himself, elect to have some person to be named by him registered as a transferee of such share.

15. The person so becoming entitled shall testify such election by executing to his nominee an instrument of transfer of such share.

16. The instrument of transfer shall be presented to the Company, together with such evidence as the directors may require to prove the title of the transferee, and thereupon the Company shall register the transferee as a member.

Forfeiture of Shares.

17. If any member fails to pay any call on the day appointed for payment thereof, the directors may, at any time thereafter, during such time as the call remains unpaid, serve a notice on him requiring him to pay such call together with interest and any expenses that may have accrued by reason of such non-payment.

LEG. REF.

* The Table is reproduced here as an Appendix for convenience of reference.

18. The notice shall name a further day on or before which such call and all interest and expenses that have accrued by reason of such non-payment are to be paid. It shall also name the place where payment is to be made, the place so named being either the registered office of the Company or some other place at which calls of the Company are usually made payable. The notice shall also state that, in the event of non-payment at or before the time and at the place appointed, the shares in respect of which such call was made will be liable to be forfeited.

19. If the requisitions of any such notice as aforesaid are not complied with, any share in respect of which such notice has been given may at any time thereafter, before payment of all calls, interest and expenses due in respect thereof has been made, be forfeited by a resolution of the directors to that effect.

20. Any share so forfeited shall be deemed to be the property of the Company and may be disposed of in such manner as the Company in general meeting thinks fit.

21. Any member whose shares have been forfeited shall notwithstanding be liable to pay to the Company all calls owing upon such shares at the time of the forfeiture.

22. A solemn declaration in writing, made before a Magistrate, that the call in respect of a share was made and notice thereof given, and that default in payment of the call was made and that the forfeiture of the share was made by a resolution of the directors to that effect, shall be sufficient evidence of the facts therein stated as against all persons entitled to such share and such declaration and the receipt of the Company for the price of such share shall constitute a good title to such share and a certificate of proprietorship shall be delivered to the purchaser, and thereupon he shall be deemed the holder of such share discharged from all calls due prior to such purchase, and he shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase money, nor shall his title to such share be affected by any irregularity in the proceedings in reference to such sale.

Conversion of Shares into Stock.

23. The directors may, with the sanction of the Company previously given in general meeting, convert any paid up shares into stock.

24. When any shares have been converted into stock, the several holders of such stock may thenceforth transfer their respective interests therein, or any part of such interest, in the same manner and subject to the same regulations as and subject to which any shares in the capital of the Company may be transferred, or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

25. The several holders of stock shall be entitled to participate in the dividends and profits of the Company according to the amount of their respective interests in such stock; and such interests shall, in proportion to the amount thereof, confer on the holders thereof, respectively, the same privileges and advantages for the purpose of voting at meetings of the Company and for other purposes as would have been conferred by shares of equal amount in the capital of the Company; but so that none of such privileges or advantages, except the participation in the dividends and profits of the Company, shall be conferred by any such aliquot part of the consolidated stock as would not, if existing in shares, have conferred such privileges or advantages.

Increase in Capital.

26. The directors may, with the sanction of a special resolution of the Company previously given in general meeting, increase its capital by the issue of new shares; such aggregate increase to be of such amount, and to be divided into shares of such respective amounts, as the Company in general meeting directs, or, if no direction is given, as the directors think expedient.

27. Subject to any direction to the contrary that may be given by the meeting that sanctions the increase of capital, all new shares shall be offered to the members in proportion to the existing shares held by them, and such offer shall be made by notice specifying the number of shares to which the member is entitled and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined; and after the expiration of such time, or on the receipt of an intimation from the member to whom such notice is given that he declines to accept the shares offered, the directors may dispose of the same in such manner as they think most beneficial to the Company.

28. Any capital raised by the creation of new shares shall be considered as part of the original capital, and shall be subject to the same provisions, with reference to the payment of calls, and the forfeiture of shares on non-payment of calls, or otherwise, as if it had been part of the original capital.

General Meetings.

29. The first general meeting shall be held at such time, not being more than six months after the registration of the Company, and at such place as the directors may determine.

30. Subsequent general meetings shall be held, once at the least in every year, at such time and place as may be prescribed by the Company in general meeting; and if no other time or place is prescribed, a general meeting shall be held on the first Monday in February in every year, at such place as may be determined by the directors.

31. The abovementioned general meetings shall be called ordinary meetings; all other general meetings shall be called extraordinary.

32. The directors may, whenever they think fit, and they shall, upon a requisition made in writing by not less than one-fifth in number of the members of the Company, convene an extraordinary general meeting.

33. Any requisition made by the members shall express the object of the meeting proposed to be called and shall be left at the registered office of the Company.

34. Upon the receipt of such requisition the directors shall forthwith proceed to convene an extraordinary general meeting. If they do not proceed to convene the same within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition, the requisitionists, or any other members amounting to the required number, may themselves convene an extraordinary general meeting.

Proceedings in General Meeting.

35. Seven days' notice at the least, specifying the place, the day and the hour of meeting, and, in case of special business, the general nature of such business, shall be given to the members in manner hereinafter mentioned, or in such other manner, if any, as may be prescribed by the Company in general meeting; but the non-receipt of such notice by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting.

36. All business shall be deemed special that is transacted at an extraordinary meeting, and all that is transacted at an ordinary meeting, with the exception of sanctioning a dividend, and the consideration of the accounts, balance-sheets, and the ordinary report of the directors.

37. No business shall be transacted at any general meeting except the declaration of a dividend, unless a quorum of members is present at the time when the meeting proceeds to business. Such quorum shall be ascertained as follows, that is to say :—If the persons who have taken shares in the Company at the time of the meeting do not exceed ten in number, the quorum shall be five; if they exceed ten, there shall be added to the above quorum one for every five additional members up to fifty, and one for every ten additional members after fifty, with this limitation that no quorum shall in any case exceed twenty.

38. If, within one hour from the time appointed for the meeting, a quorum is not present, the meeting, if convened upon the requisition of members, shall be dissolved. In any other case, it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week, at the same time and place; and if, at such adjourned meeting, a quorum is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

39. The chairman (if any) of the board of directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the Company.

40. If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present within fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman.

41. The chairman may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn any meeting from time to time and from place to place but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place.

42. At any general meeting, unless a poll is demanded by at least five members, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has been carried, and an entry to that effect in the book of proceedings of the Company, shall be sufficient evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against such resolution.

43. If a poll is demanded by five or more members, it shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of such poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the Company in general meeting. In the case of an equality of votes at any general meeting, the chairman shall be entitled to a second or casting vote.

Votes of Members.

44. Every member shall have one vote for every share up to ten. He shall have an additional vote for every five shares beyond the first ten shares up to one hundred, and an additional vote for every ten shares beyond the first hundred shares.

45. If any member is a lunatic or idiot, he may vote by his committee or other legal curator; and, if any member is a minor, he may vote by his guardian or any one of his guardians if more than one.

46. If one or more persons are jointly entitled to a share or shares, the member whose name stands first in the register of members as one of the holders of such share or shares, and no other, shall be entitled to vote in respect of the same.

47. No member shall be entitled to vote at any general meeting unless all calls due from him have been paid, and no member shall be entitled to vote in respect of any share that he has acquired by transfer, at any meeting held after the expiration of three months from the registration of the Company, unless he has been possessed of the share in respect of which he claims to vote for at least three months previously to the time of holding the meeting at which he proposes to vote.

48. Votes may be given either personally or by proxy.

49. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing, under the hand of the appointer, or, if such appointer is a corporation, under their common seal, and shall be attested by one or more witness or witnesses. No person shall be appointed a proxy who is not a member of the Company.

50. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be deposited at the registered office of the Company not less than seventy-two hours before the time for holding the meeting at which the person named in such instrument proposes to vote; but no instrument appointing a proxy shall be valid after the expiration of twelve months from the date of its execution.

51. Any instrument appointing a proxy shall be in the following form :—

Company, Limited.

I, _____, of _____, being a member of the Company, Limited, and entitled to _____ vote or _____ votes, hereby appoint _____, of _____, as my proxy to vote for me and on my behalf at the [ordinary or extraordinary as the case may be] general meeting of the Company to be held on the _____ day of _____ and at any adjournment thereof (or at any meeting of the Company that may be held in the year _____).
 As witness my hand, this _____ day of _____ Signed by the said _____ in the presence of _____ Directors.

52. The number of the directors, and the names of the first directors, shall be determined by the subscribers of the memorandum of association.

53. Until directors are appointed, the subscribers of the memorandum of association shall be deemed to be directors.

54. The future remuneration of the directors, and their remuneration for services performed previously to the first general meeting, shall be determined by the Company in general meeting.

Powers of Directors.

55. The business of the Company shall be managed by the directors, who may pay all expenses incurred in getting up and registering the Company and may exercise all such powers of the Company as are not by the foregoing Act, or by these articles, required to be exercised by the Company in general meeting, subject nevertheless to any regulations of these articles, to the provisions of the foregoing Act and to such regulations, being not inconsistent with the aforesaid regulations, or provisions, as may be prescribed by the Company in general meeting; but no regulation made by the Company in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if such regulation had not been made.

56. The continuing directors may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body.

Disqualification of Directors.

57. The office of director shall be vacated—

if he, or any partner of his, or the firm of which he is a member, holds any other office or place of profit under the Company;

if he becomes bankrupt or insolvent;

if he is punished under any of the penal provisions of the foregoing Act;

if he is concerned in or participates in the profits of any contract with the Company.

But the above rules shall be subject to the following exceptions:—that no director shall vacate his office by reason of his being a member of any Company which has entered into contracts with, or done any work for, the Company of which he is director; nevertheless, he shall not vote in respect of such contract or work, and, if he does so vote, his vote shall not be counted.

Rotation of Directors.

58. At the first ordinary meeting after the registration of the Company the whole of the directors shall retire from office; and at the first ordinary meeting in every subsequent year one-third of the directors for the time being, or, if their number is not a multiple of three, then the number nearest to one-third, shall retire from office.

59. The one third or other nearest number to retire during the first and second years ensuing the first ordinary meeting of the Company shall, unless the directors agree among themselves, be determined by ballot. In every subsequent year, the one-third or other nearest number who have been longest in office shall retire.

60. A retiring director shall be re-eligible.

61. The Company at the general meeting at which any directors retire in manner aforesaid shall fill up the vacated offices by electing a like number of persons.

62. If at any meeting at which an election of directors ought to take place the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the meeting shall stand adjourned till the same day in the next week, at the same time and place; and if at such adjourned meeting the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the vacating directors, or such of them as have not had their places filled up, shall continue in office until the ordinary meeting in the next year, and so on from time to time until their places are filled up.

63. The Company may from time to time, in general meeting, increase or reduce the number of directors, and may also determine in what rotation such increased or reduced number is to go out of office.

64. Any casual vacancy occurring in the board of directors may be filled up by the directors, but any person so chosen shall retain his office so long as only the vacating director would have retained the same if no vacancy had occurred.

65. The Company in general meeting may by a special resolution remove any director before the expiration of his period of office, and may by an ordinary resolution appoint another person in his stead. The person so appointed shall hold office during such time only as the director in whose place he is appointed would have held the same if he had not been removed.

Proceedings of Directors.

66. The directors may meet together for the despatch of business, adjourn and otherwise regulate their meetings as they think fit, and determine the quorum necessary for the transaction of business. Questions arising at any meeting shall be decided by a majority of votes. In case of an equality of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote. A director may at any time summon a meeting of the directors.

67. The directors may elect a chairman of their meetings, and determine the period for which he is to hold office; but, if no such chairman is elected or if at any meeting the chairman is not present at the time appointed for holding the same, the directors present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

68. The directors may delegate any of their powers to committees consisting of such member or members of their body as they think fit. Any committees so formed shall, in the exercise of the powers so delegated, conform to any regulations that may be imposed on it by the directors.

69. A committee may elect a chairman of its meetings. If no such chairman is elected, or if he is not present at the time appointed for holding the same, the members present shall choose one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

70. A committee may meet and adjourn as it thinks proper. Questions arising at any meeting shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present; and, in case of an equality of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

71. All acts done by any meeting of the directors, or of a committee of directors, or by any person acting as a director, shall notwithstanding that it be afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of any such directors or persons acting as aforesaid, or that they or any of them were disqualified, be as valid as if every such person had been duly appointed and was qualified to be a director.

Dividends.

72. The directors may, with the sanction of the Company in general meeting, declare a dividend to be paid to the members in proportion to their shares.

73. No dividend shall be payable except out of the profits arising from the business of the Company.

74. The directors may, before recommending any dividend, set aside out of the profits of the Company such sum as they think proper as a reserve fund to meet contingencies, or for equalizing dividends, or for repairing or maintaining the works connected with the business of the Company or any part thereof; and the directors may invest the sum so set apart as a reserved fund upon such securities as they may select.

75. The directors may deduct from the dividends payable to any member all such sums of money as may be due from him to the Company on account of calls or otherwise.

76. Notice of any dividend that may have been declared shall be given to each member in manner hereinafter mentioned; and all dividends unclaimed for three years after having been declared may be forfeited by the directors for the benefit of the Company.

77. No dividend shall bear interest as against the Company.

Accounts.

78. The directors shall cause true accounts to be kept—

- of the stock in trade of the Company;
- of the sums of money received and expended by the Company, and the matters in respect of which such receipt and expenditure take place; and
- of the credits and liabilities of the Company.

The books of account shall be kept at the registered office of the Company, and, subject to any reasonable restrictions as to the time and manner of inspecting the same that may be imposed by the Company in general meetings, shall be open to the inspection of the members during the hours of business.

79. Once at the least in every year the directors shall lay before the Company in general meeting a statement of the income and expenditure for the past year, made up to a date not more than three months before such meeting.

80. The statement so made shall show, arranged under the most convenient heads, the amount of gross income, distinguishing the several sources from which it has been derived, and the amount of gross expenditure, distinguishing the expenses of the establishment, salaries and other like matters. Every item of expenditure fairly chargeable against the year's income shall be brought into account, so that a just balance of profit and loss may be laid before the meeting, and, in cases where any item of expenditure which may in fairness be distributed over several years has been incurred in any one year, the whole amount of such item shall be stated, with the addition of the reasons why only a portion of such expenditure is charged against the income of the year.

81. A balance sheet shall be made out in every year and laid before the Company in general meeting, and such balance-sheet shall contain a summary of the property and liabilities of the Company arranged under the heads appearing in the form annexed to this table, or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

82. A printed copy of such balance-sheet shall, seven days previously to such meeting, be served on every member in the manner in which notices are hereinafter directed to be served.

Audit.

83. Once at the least in every year the accounts of the Company shall be examined, and the correctness of the balance-sheet ascertained by one or more auditor or auditors.

84. The first auditors shall be appointed by the directors ; subsequent auditors shall be appointed by the Company in general meeting.

85. If one auditor only is appointed, all the provisions herein contained relating to auditors shall apply to him.

86. The auditors may be members of the Company, but no person is eligible as an auditor who is interested otherwise than as a member in any transaction of the Company, and no director or other officer of the Company is eligible during his continuance in office.

87. The election of auditors shall be made by the Company at their ordinary meeting in each year.

88. The remuneration of the first auditors shall be fixed by the directors ; that of the subsequent auditors shall be fixed by the Company in general meeting.

89. Any auditor shall be re-eligible on his quitting office.

90. If any casual vacancy occurs in the office of any auditor appointed by the Company, the directors shall forthwith call an extraordinary general meeting for the purpose of supplying the same.

91. If no election of auditors is made in manner aforesaid the Local Government may, on the application of not less than five members of the Company, appoint an auditor for the current year and fix the remuneration to be paid to him by the Company for his services.

92. Every auditor shall be supplied with a copy of the balance-sheet, and it shall be his duty to examine the same with the accounts and vouchers relating thereto.

93. Every auditor shall have a list delivered to him of all books kept by the Company, and shall at all reasonable times have access to the books and accounts of the Company. He may, at the expense of the Company, employ accountants or other persons to assist him in investigating such accounts, and he may in relation to such accounts, examine the directors or any other officer of the Company.

94. The auditors shall make a report to the members upon the balance-sheet and accounts, and in such report they shall state whether, in their opinion, the balance-sheet is a full and fair balance-sheet, containing the particulars required by these regulations and properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the Company's affairs, and, in case they have called for explanations or information from the directors, whether such explanations or information have or has been given by the directors, and whether they or it have or has been satisfactory. Such report shall be read, together with the report of the directors, at the ordinary meeting.

Notices.

95. A notice may be served by the Company upon any member either personally or by ending it through the post in a letter addressed to such member at his registered place of abode.

96. All notices directed to be given to the members shall, with respect to any share to which persons are jointly entitled, be given to whichever of such persons is named first in the register of members ; and notice so given shall be sufficient notice to all the holders of such share.

97. Any notice, if served by post, shall be deemed to have been served at the time when the letter containing the same would be delivered in the ordinary course of the post ; and, in proving such service, it shall be sufficient to prove that the letter containing the notice was properly addressed and put into the post office.

THE COMPANIES (FOREIGN INTERESTS) ACT XX OF 1918

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following is the Statement of Objects and Reasons appended to the Bill (see Port St. George Gazette, Part III, 15th October, 1918, p. 589).

"It is considered desirable that companies which, during the war, have been reconstituted in India on lines approved by the Government of India and that new companies, whose business is of importance to the security of India and of the British Empire as a whole, should be restrained from altering their articles of association, in such a way as to bring them under the control of foreign interests. It is therefore proposed that the provisions in the articles of association of such companies, which are designed to restrict the shares or interests to be held or the powers to be exercised by persons other than British subjects, should not be altered without the consent of the Governor-General in Council. Similar legislation in the United Kingdom has resulted in the Companies (Foreign Interests) Act (7 and 8 Geo. 5, Ch. 18) which prohibits the alteration of restrictive articles of this nature without the permission of the Board of Trade. Clauses 3 and 4 (1) of the Bill are designed to give effect to this proposal, and the remaining sub-clauses of clause 4 have been inserted to prevent evasion of this provision by voluntary liquidation on the part of the companies concerned.

[26th September, 1918.

An Act to take power to prohibit the alteration, except with the sanction of the Governor-General in Council, of articles of association which restrict foreign interests in certain Companies, and to provide for other purposes connected therewith.

WHEREAS it is expedient to take power to prohibit the alteration, except with the sanction of the Governor-General in Council, of articles of association which restrict foreign interests in certain companies, and to provide for other purposes connected therewith ; it is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

(b) the expression "restrictive provision" means any provision in the articles of association of a company which, in the opinion of the Central Government is designed to restrict or limit or has the effect of restricting or limiting the share or shares or interests which may be held, or the rights, powers or authority which may be conferred upon or exercised by or on behalf of persons other than British subjects in the company, or in respect of the control, management or direction of the affairs thereof.

(2) All words and expressions used in this Act and defined in the Indian Companies Act, 1913, shall be deemed to have the meanings respectively attributed to them by that Act.

1926	XII	The Contempt of Courts Act, 1926.	Am. Act XII of 1937.

An Act to define and limit the powers of certain Courts in punishing contempts of Courts.

WHEREAS doubts have arisen as to the powers of a High Court of Judicature to punish contempts of ²[*] Courts ;

AND WHEREAS it is expedient to resolve these doubts and to define and limit the powers exercisable by High Courts and Chief Courts in punishing contempts of Court ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title, extent and commencement. 1. (1) This Act may be called THE CONTEMPT OF COURTS ACT, 1926.

SEC. 1: SCOPE OF ACT.—(Per Yorke, J.). Far from the enactment implying a recognition that no such power had in fact previously existed, the Contempt of Courts Act is an Act which creates no fresh powers at all but merely recognises the fact that such powers already do exist but seeks to define and limit them. 14 Luck. 492—A.I.R. 1939 O. 131 (F.B.). The proceedings for contempt of the High Court are in the exercise of the inherent jurisdiction of the Court and are of a criminal nature. When the matter is of a criminal nature, the Civil Procedure Code does not apply. 1941 O.W.N. 455—1941 O.A. (Supp.) 198—1941 A.W.R. (H.C.) 120. Proceedings for contempt of Court are of a summary nature. That being so such proceedings are not suitable for the decision of a hotly contested question of fact. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 196 (S.B.). Contempt of Court proceedings are summary and a very arbitrary method of dealing with an offence. That being so, contempt proceedings should be sparingly instituted and a person should not be convicted unless his conviction is essential in the interests of justice. There must be a substantial contempt, that is something which tends in a substantial manner to interfere with the course of justice or to prejudice the public against one of the parties to a proceedings. A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 329 (F.B.). While it is true that proceedings for contempt are in the nature of criminal proceedings, it is not quite correct that the position of the alleged contemner is that of an accused person who cannot file an affidavit or make a statement on oath. A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 329 (F.B.). The principle that the summary proceedings for contempt of Court should not be instituted in respect of what amounts to a technical contempt after the proceedings in the Court have been disposed of and there is no possibility of interference with the due course of justice applies only to applications for proceedings in contempt made by private parties and not to institution of proceedings by Court. The jurisdiction of the Court exists not only to prevent the mischief in the particular case but also to prevent similar mischief arising in other cases. Consequently, even when the proceedings before it have been disposed of, the Court can institute proceedings to see whether an article published in connexion with the proceedings before it was on the date of its publication calculated to interfere with the due course of justice and to prevent repetition of the same if it amounted to contempt. 45 Cr.L.J. 445=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 329 (F.B.). There is no rule of law which prevents the Court from proceeding against a person who has been guilty of contempt without first obtaining an affidavit from some person. If doubtful questions of fact are involved, the Court may refuse to issue notice to the person charged with contempt without satisfying itself by means of an affidavit that there is reasonable ground for thinking that an offence of contempt has been committed. 1944 O.W.N. (H.C.) 287=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 15=1945 O.A. (H.C.) 15=1945 All. 67=1945 A.L.J. 26. Proceedings for contempt of Court though not criminal, are of a quasi-criminal nature and therefore where there is any reasonable doubt, the persons charged with contempt are entitled to the benefit of such doubt. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 196 (S.B.).

- (2) It shall extend to the whole of British India.
 (3) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint.¹

CONTEMPT, WHAT IS.—Any act done or writing published calculated to bring a Court or a Judge of the Court into contempt or to lower his authority, is a contempt of Court. That is one class of contempt. Further any act done or writing published calculated to obstruct or interfere with the due course of justice or the lawful process of the Courts is another class of contempt. The former class belongs to the category which is characterised as 'scandalising a Court or a Judge'. That description of that class of contempt is to be taken subject to one and an important qualification. Judges and Courts are alike open to criticism, and if reasonable argument or expostulation is offered against any judicial act as contrary to law or the public good, no Court could or would treat that as contempt. 40 C.W.N. 801=38 Bom. L.R. 681=A.I.R. 1936 P.C. 141=71 M.L.J. 685 (P.C.). See also 44 Cr.L.J. 93. Where the writer had written an article on the inequality of sentence under text. "The Human Element", held, that he was perfectly justified in pointing out what is obvious, that sentences do vary in apparently similar circumstances with the habit of mind of the particular Judge. It is quite inevitable.

Some very conscientious Judges have thought it their duty to visit particular crimes with exemplary sentences; others equally conscientious have thought it their duty to view the same crimes with leniency. Hence, to say that the human element enters into the awarding of punishment is not contempt of Court. (Ibid.) Letter by manager of estate to Collector referring to decision of latter as District Magistrate dismissing a complaint and stating that opposite party had been emboldened by the view taken by the District Magistrate—Not contempt of Court. 38 Cr. L.J. 412=18 Pat.L.T. 113=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 124. The publication of comments on a pending case amounts to contempt, if the comments are such as are likely to prejudice the administration of justice in the case. In the absence of an express provision allowing him to do so, no person can contract out of a responsibility imposed upon him by law in the case of a contempt of Court for publication of prejudicial comments on case pending trial and a printer as well as a publisher cannot escape responsibility for matter printed and published. 6 R. 39=1928 R. 115; A.I.R. 1940 Sind 239 (F.B.) (Liable even if the article is written by another and he has dissociated from it and disapproved it). The question in all cases of comment on pending proceedings is not whether the publication does interfere, but whether it tends to interfere with the due course of justice, and on the same principle it is a contempt of Court to make a speech tending to influence the result of a pending trial whether civil or criminal. 188 I.C. 408=41 Cr. L.J. 584=1940 A.W.R. (O.C.) 238. One kind of contempt of Court is scandalising the Court itself. Any act done or writing published calculated to bring a Court or a Judge of the Court into contempt or to lower its authority is a contempt of Court. Further, any act done or writing published calculated to obstruct or interfere with the due course of justice or the lawful process of the Courts, is a contempt of Court. There may be likewise a contempt of the Court in abusing parties who are concerned in causes there or in prejudicing mankind against a party before the cause is heard. In the class of cases of contempt of Court where anything is done which is calculated to interfere with the due course of justice or is likely to prejudice the public for or against a party the essence of the matter is the tendency to interfere with the due course of justice. Any publication which is calculated to poison the minds of jurors, intimidate witnesses or parties or to create an atmosphere in which the administration of justice would be difficult or impossible, amounts to contempt. But before a Court will take notice of such a publication the Court must be satisfied that the matter published tended substantially to interfere with the due course of justice or was calculated substantially to create prejudice in the public mind. The Court will not take action where the offending matter amounts to what is sometimes referred to as a technical contempt, i.e., in a case involving a mere question of propriety where the tendency of the article to do harm is slight and the character and circumstances of the comment is otherwise such that it can properly be ignored. It is however of the very essence of the offence that proceedings should be pending when the offending publication appears. It is not necessary in the case of a criminal trial that the accused should have been committed for trial or even for him to have been brought before a Magistrate provided that he had been arrested and was in custody. Further, the offence of contempt may be committed even if there is no proceeding or cause actually pending provided that such a proceeding or cause is imminent and the writer of the offending publication either knew it to be imminent or should have known that it was imminent. It is sufficient if the effect of the article complained of is to create prejudice and to interfere with the due course of justice. A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 329 (F.B.). See also 56 L.W. 702=1943 P.C. 202=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 568 (P.C.); 1945 Nag. 33. In cases of contempt the question of motive is irrelevant; what the Court has to consider is the effect—the probable effect of the publication. Motive of the contemner cannot be considered in determining his guilt; it may, however, be a proper criterion for awarding punishment. 1942 O.W.N. 6; 1943 Lah. 329 (F.B.). See also 1945 N.L.J. 30; 1945 Nag. 33. Acts which are calculated to affect the dignity of the Court may constitute contempt. 47 C.W.N. 854. The fact that an act was done ignorantly or innocently would make no difference to the offence of contempt. It would only be relevant regarding the measure of punishment. 1945 N.L.J. 30=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 33. The truth of the allegations is no defence in proceedings for contempt. Nobody is allowed to scandalise a Court and make allegations against it even if they are true. Every attempt to justify must constitute a new offence of contempt committed in the very face of the Court. 1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 15=1944 O.W.N. (H.C.) 287=1944 A.L.W. 606. Where during the pendency of a suit for a declaration that certain land claimed by the defendant is a public pathway, a resolution is passed at a public meeting protesting against the attempts of the defendant to close the land in question which is being used by the general public from time immemorial, the effect and tendency of the resolution is to embarrass, and the passing of that resolution amounts to contempt. It is objectionable to put forward in the resolution of a public meeting a positive assertion of a public right of way, as it would predispose people to a belief, right or wrong, that the defendant is an invader of the public right. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 447=42 C.W.N. 952=A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 772. Where the publication of a plaint is the publication of a document reflecting severely on the conduct of the defendant, a contempt of scandalous and serious nature is committed. 165 I.C. 813=1936 Lah. 917. Where the editors of newspapers publish copies or summary of pleadings and other similar documents in pending cases, they do so at considerable risk. Where however the abstract of the plaint published in the newspaper only represented the defendant as the victim of the wickedness of others, it contained no attack upon her personal character and there was no attempt to prejudge the issue or prejudice her defence. Held, that the publication did not amount to contempt of Court. 152 I.C. 900=38 C.W.N. 330=1934 C. 606. See also 44 Bom.L.R. 95=1942 Bom. 86. The cases of contempt which consist of 'scandalising the Court itself' require to be treated with much discretion. Proceedings for this species of contempt are a weapon to be used sparingly. The test to be applied is to see whether the words complained of were in the circumstances calculated to obstruct or interfere with the course of justice and the due administration of the law. Where the printer and publisher and editor of a daily newspaper were charged in contempt proceedings for having published a news item and comment thereon, untrue alleging that the Chief Justice had committed an ill-advised act, namely, writing to the Subordinate Judges asking (as the news item said), enjoining (as the comment said) them to collect money for the war fund it was held that the words did not contain any criticism of any judicial act of the Chief Justice, or any imputation on him for anything done or omitted to be done by him in the administration of justice and that hence the proceedings in contempt were misconceived. 56 L.W. 702=1943 A.L.J. 527=48 C.W.N. 44=A.I.R. 1943 (P.C.) 202=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 568 (P.C.). Where the gravamen of an article published in a newspaper is that judgment after judgment is being given in the High Court arbitrarily and that neither law nor facts are discussed before judgment is delivered, and it further says that it is necessary 'to restore the confidence of the public that law is discussed and facts are digested before cases are disposed of', there can be no doubt that the article is as gross a contempt of Court and misrepresentation of proceedings in Court as it is possible to imagine and nothing could be more calculated to bring the High Court into contempt and to lower its authority with the general public. 16 L. 266=155 I.C. 695=1935 Lah. 212 (S.B.). See also 1942 O.W.N. 6. It is not possible to lay down an exhaustive catalogue of cases which would amount to contempt of Court, but interference with the administration of justice is one of the well-recognised heads of contempt of Court. A notice was issued to the defendant in a pending suit by the plaintiff's counsel after the plaintiff's evidence closed and the defendant's evidence begun, threatening him with drastic action in case he did not withdraw a plea which he had taken in the suit, and offering to desist from taking any action in case the plea was withdrawn within a certain time.

It was intended to put pressure on the defendant and to compel him to withdraw the plea. Held, that the action amounted to a direct interference with administration of justice and constituted contempt of Court. 57 A. 573=1935 A. 117=1935 A.L.J. 29. The editor of a newspaper, who was convicted of having published in his newspaper an obscene advertisement, published a leading article in his newspaper in the course of which he said: "The prosecution clearly stated that the case was filed as the result of 'correspondence from Government', but with the blessings of the magistrate, refused to produce the correspondence and the statement had to go uncontested. Without meaning any disrespect, we doubt whether in any case where opinions count and Subordinate Magistrate will give a judgment contrary to what he believes the Government of the day has decided. The fate of this case was sealed the minute the Police told the Magistrate that the Government was behind the prosecution". Held, that the passage suggested that there was not and there could not be any proper judicial trial, that the proceedings before the Magistrate were an empty formality, that the Magistrate had made up his mind to convict the accused even before the trial was over with a view to conform to what he believed to be the wishes of the Government; in other words, once the Magistrate knew that the Government had instituted the prosecution, there was bound to be a conviction, and the article amounted to a gross contempt of Court, and the contempt was so grave that the High Court could not allow attacks of this nature to be made against the subordinate Courts of the Province without taking serious action. 1942 M.W.N. 722=55 L.W. 799 (2)=A.I.B. 1942 Mad. 711 (1)=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 622 (S.B.)=I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 26; see also 1942 Bom. 331=44 Bom.L.R. 796. The editor of a newspaper is responsible for what is published in his newspaper. The usual presumption of the editor being aware of the contents of publication is not rebutted by a vague and general statement that the editor was on leave on the day that the article was published. 45 Cr.L.J. 445=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 329 (F.B.). In contempt of Court proceedings the fact that the item alleged to be contempt merely consists of quotations from other source would afford no defence if the article amounted to contempt because a person may be as much guilty of contempt by quoting from some source as writing the matter himself. 45 Cr.L.J. 445=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 329 (F.B.). See also 16 Luck. 758 (newspaper article likely to deter witness from giving evidence). Contempt of Court when committed by an Attorney in a private capacity can be of such a nature as to show professional unfitness. The fact that it is contained in a notice sent by the Attorney under sec. 80, C.P. Code, to a Judge in respect of certain remarks made by the Judge in a judgment in a case in which the Attorney was a witness is no ground for holding that no offence was committed. No one by merely filing or threatening to file a suit and calling his communication a notice under sec. 80, C.P. Code, can insult and vilify a Judge in that manner. The Attorney who makes such allegation renders himself liable to be dealt with under the disciplinary powers of the High Court. 43 Bom.L.R. 250. It is not uncommon to attack abuses and to attack persons in an election manifesto whether the abuses exist or not and whether the persons deserve the attack. But to slander the whole judiciary of a province in an attempt to secure votes at a Bar Council election is not only contemptible but almost criminal. An advocate indulging in such attacks is guilty of contempt of Court. 57 A. 573=1935 A.L.J. 46=1935 A. 38. An article in a newspaper contained a passage as follows: "In this connection it is amusing to note that when a comparatively undeserving lawyer is raised to the Bench, which is a fairly frequent occurrence in our judicial history, it is generally claimed, etc.". Held, the words 'a comparatively undeserving lawyer', were particularly offensive, connoting as they did lack of capacity or character or of both, and that the passage in question amounted to an unwarranted defamation of the High Court, likely to injure and lower its prestige in the eyes of the public and to shake their confidence in its capacity to administer justice, and that it constituted a contempt of Court of which the High Court is bound to take cognizance. 57 A. 573=1935 A.L.J. 125=1935 A. 1. To constitute contempt it is not necessary that the act or writing should be in respect of a case which has been heard or is pending. Judges and Courts are no doubt open to criticism and if reasonable argument or expostulation is offered against any judicial act as contrary to law or the public good, no Court would treat that as contempt of Court. A publication out of Court of a libel on one or more Judges of the Court will constitute contempt. 36 Cr.L.J. 1053=39 C.W.N. 770=1935 Cal. 419 (S.B.). An article published in a newspaper stated as follows: "It is so unfortunate and regrettable that at the present day the Chief Justice and the Judges find a peculiar delight in hobnobbing with the executive with the result the judiciary is robbed of its independence which at one time attracted the admiration of the whole country. The old order of things has vanished away. We wish the Chief Justice and the Judges appreciate the sentiments of the public. The generation that has gone by should be an ideal to them". Held, that it constituted contempt of the High Court. (Ibid.) Where the effect of certain newspaper articles was likely to be to deter witness from giving evidence in a pending case, it amounts to contempt of Court (though not of a serious nature). (1941 O.A. 429. Where a complainant in a defamation case writes an article a couple of days after the complaint is filed asserting the truth of the statements contained in his paper and challenges the accused to prove their falsity, the article does not amount to contempt of Court. 1941 O.A. 429.

HEADLINES AMOUNTING TO COMMENT ON A pending case are not permissible. Where a newspaper in publishing the proceedings of a pending case inserted headlines which in fact amounted to a criticism of the prosecution case under the guise of a summary of the day's proceedings and some of the headlines were mere arguments of the defence and it appeared that their publication might have an effect on the minds of witnesses to be examined or cross-examined and amounted to conduct calculated to produce an atmosphere of prejudice, held, that the publication of the headlines amounted to contempt. 37 C.W.N. 276=60 C. 603=1933 C. 118. Where a newspaper published with scare headlines portion of a complaint against the respondent in which gross allegations were made against him four months after the complainant had been filed, while proceedings were actually pending in the trial Court and also in the High Court for quashing the complaint, and further the paper published above the complaint its own comments. Held, that nothing could be more in the nature of contempt than action of that character. 40 P.L.R. 791=A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 815. Although the danger or absence of danger of actual prejudice is an important consideration it is not the only consideration. The jurisdiction of the Court exists not only to prevent mischief in the particular case but to prevent similar mischief arising in other cases. 37 C.W.N. 276=1933 C. 118=60 C. 603. The misuse of the process of the Court for obtaining a warrant against a person against whom the complainant has no intention of proceeding, merely to use it as a lever for blackmailing him, amounts to contempt of Court. 41 P.L.R. 130=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 143.

JURISDICTION.—A contempt of the High Court is an "act made punishable under a law for the time being in force" within the meaning of sec. 4 (c) of the Code of Criminal Procedure and such offence can be inquired into according to the provisions of the Code as set out in sec. 5 (2)—Hence where a contempt has been committed within the territorial jurisdiction of a High Court in India, such Court is competent to issue process to secure the attendance of the offender wherever he may be residing in British India as in the case of an offence under the Penal Code or under any other Act for the time being in force. 1944 A.L.J. 459=I.L.R. (1944) All. 665=1945 All. 1. See also 1945 O.W.N. 109; 1944 Bom. 127. There is no warrant for holding that a Court cannot commit for contempt if any other remedy exists. The fact that there is another remedy available is no doubt a matter for the Court to consider when exercising its discretion whether to commit or not to commit, but on the other hand, the desirability of speed and the necessity of ensuring that the orders of the Court should be obeyed are also matters of importance. 1945 A.L.J. 505=A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 147=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 356 (P.C.).

JURISDICTION TO PUNISH FOR CONTEMPT.—

The jurisdiction to punish for contempt of itself is inherently vested in every High Court in India including the non-Presidency High Court, which is also a superior Court of record. This inherent power of the High Courts has not been taken away or in anywise limited by Act XII of 1926. Consequently the High Courts in India continue to have power to deal with contempt of themselves in the same manner as a Court of record has under the common law of England. There is no limitation imposed on the High Courts in the matter of punishment of offenders for contempt. A sentence passed on an offender committing him to custody in jail until such time as he apologised to the Court and further purged his contempt by paying into the Court the sums of money received in defiance of the Court's injunction, is in accordance with law. 18 Lah. 69=38 Cr.L.J. 863=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 497 (S.B.); 40 C.W.N. 1285; 156 I.C. 1055=39 C.W.N. 770. See also I.L.R. (1944) Bom. 333=46 Bom.L.R. 94=1944 Bom. 127; 44 Bom.L.R. 249=1942 Bom. 154; 1943 Nag. 334=1943 N.L.J. 505; 1944 Bom. 127. The idea underlying the Act is that if a person can be sufficiently punished by some other tribunal, then the High Court should not entertain summary proceedings for contempt. 1943 Nag. 334=1943 N.L.J. 505. A Court subordinate to the High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain contempt proceedings if the contempt is not committed in its presence. 1943 Nag. 334=1943 N.L.J. 505. An order made by the Chief Judge of the Bombay Small Cause Court, directing a mutawalli of a wakf to furnish within a specified period a statement of accounts and particulars, is an order directing him to do a specific thing within a limited time. An order of such a nature, if disobeyed, can be enforced by proceedings for contempt by the High Court under the Contempt of Courts Act of 1926. 43 Cr.L.J. 667=44 Bom.L.R. 249=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 154 (1). Chief Court of Sind has power to punish for contempt. I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 396. Apart from the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court, such jurisdiction has been expressly conferred on the High Court by the Contempt of Courts Act of 1926, in all cases of contempt except those which amount to offences under the Indian Penal Code. 57 A. 573=1935 A. 117=1935 A.L.J. 29. The Judicial Commissioner's Court although it is the highest Court of Judicature in the Province and has general superintendence over other Subordinate Courts in the Province, cannot be held to derive its authority from the Court of King's Bench, nor has it been established by Royal Charter. The Judicial Commissioner's Court has no power either by statute or otherwise to punish contempt of Subordinate Courts either in civil or criminal cases. 1935 N. 46=81 N.L.R. 154=156 I.C. 666. But see also 18 Lah. 69=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 497=40 C.W.N. 1285; A.I.R. 1940 Sind 239; A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 131 (F.B.). If the Official Receiver considers that members of his staff have been obstructed to an extent which amounts to a contempt of Court, it is entirely within his discretion either to take proceedings for contempt or to initiate criminal proceedings. It is, however, a salutary principle that where the contempt is some form of physical violence or obstruction and is as such punishable by a Criminal Court, it should be dealt with there. 41 O.W.N. 1325. The High Court in insolvency has jurisdiction to commit to prison for contempt not only the insolvent, but other persons who deliberately aid the insolvent in defying an order of the Court. The Court's powers are not limited by sec. 58 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. 48 L. W. 462=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 609. The power to commit for contempt is not to be lightly used and should be reserved for cases where the contempt is deliberate and of such a nature that committal is called for. 49 L. W. 29=I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 466=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 257=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 843 (F. B.). The Court's jurisdiction in contempt is not to be invoked unless there is real prejudice which can be regarded as a substantial interference with the course of justice. Where in the course of a newspaper article it was suggested that a political party was in sympathy with a terrorist gang against whom criminal proceeding was pending, held, that the comments were improper but did not amount to contempt (Essentials for prosecution for contempt stated.) 58 C. 884=35 O.W.N. 189=1931 C. 257. The Chief Court of Sind has a right to punish in a summary way contempt of itself. A.I.R. 1940 Sind 239 (F.B.). It is a duty of a Court, not so much to itself but to the public in whose interest it administers justice, that it should preserve its proceedings from misrepresentation. There is no distinction between a misrepresentation of the action of a Chief Court when it exercises its undoubted powers of superintendence of Magisterial Courts under sec. 224, Government of India Act, 1935, and sec. 17, Sind Courts Act, 1926, and the misrepresentation of the action of the Court of a Judge in a judicial as distinct from an administrative capacity, provided always that that action relates to the administration of justice. A.I.R. 1940 Sind 239 (F.B.). See also A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 131 (F.B.).

CRITICISM OF EXECUTIVE OFFICER.—No doubt a criticism of an executive officer, no matter how severe, cannot amount to contempt of Court, but if such criticism contains matter which is calculated to interfere with the due course of justice it would amount to contempt. Proprietors and publishers of newspapers who set out to criticise the public administration in respect of matters which are sub judice or are about to be adjudicated upon, do so at their peril. A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 206. See also 212 I.C. 17=45 Cr.L.J. 415.

JURISDICTION OF COURT—RESIDENCE OF ACCUSED IF MATERIAL.—Contempt of Court conforms to the ordinary rule that the jurisdiction of the Court is determined by the place where the offence is committed and not by the place where the offender may happen to reside. If the offender removes himself beyond the territorial jurisdiction there might be difficulty in securing his appearance and executing the sentence but that would not deprive the Court of jurisdiction over the offence. This is especially so where the accused has appeared and has submitted to the Court's jurisdiction. 57 M. 831=1934 M. 423=66 M.L.J. 650. The High Court has jurisdiction to hear a notice of motion for contempt of Court against a party who, though not resident within the limits of its ordinary original jurisdiction, is yet a resident of British India, because as a subject of British India, he is governed by and bound to obey the laws of British India and to recognise the authority of Courts established by laws prevailing in British India. 36 Bom. L.R. 992=1934 B. 452=59 B. 10.

Where a person is restrained by a judicial order of one High Court from proceeding with certain action and the person commits contempt of that High Court by defying the order in the jurisdiction of other High Court, the former High Court has jurisdiction to commit the person for contempt. [I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 345. Foll.] A.J.R. 1937 Cal. 601. See also 40 O.W.N. 1285. As to jurisdiction of Oudh Chief Court in respect of contempt of subordinate Courts, see 1939 O. W.N. 296=A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 131 (F.B.).

COMPETENCY OF HIGH COURT TO SECURE ATTENDANCE OF OFFENDER BEYOND ITS JURISDICTION.—Where contempt has been committed within the territorial jurisdiction of a High Court in India, such a Court is competent to issue process to secure the attendance of the offender whoever he may be residing in British India, as in the case of an offence under the Penal Code or under any other law for the time being in force. 20 Luck. 442=1945 O.W. N. 169=A.I.R. 1945 Oudh 266.

INHERENT POWER TO PUNISH.—The power to punish for contempt of Court is a power inherent in superior Courts of Record, which in India are the High Courts. Each High Court has inherent power to punish contempt of itself; but no other Court has any power to deal with contempt of Court. If a High Court considers that a person has committed contempt of that Court although the contempt may have been committed outside the jurisdiction of that Court, it can deal with that person if he were within its jurisdiction. But there is no power in any High Court to arrest for contempt of Court a man outside the jurisdiction of that Court. 46 Bom.L.R. 94=A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 127. See also 1944 A.L.J. 459. The fact that criminal proceedings under sec. 194, Cr. P. Code, may be directed against a person who has defamed the Court generally is no bar to his being proceeded against for contempt of Court. 1935 A. 1=154 I.C. 955.

SOME ILLUSTRATIVE CASES—COMMENT ON PENDING CASES.—All proceedings in suits pending in a Court of Justice are privileged, and any comment on the subject-matter of the suits and any abuse of the parties or holding them up to ridicule and contempt in the eyes of the public, whilst the suit is pending are not allowed. The object of proceedings in contempt in such cases is not so much to vindicate the dignity of the Court or of the person of the Judge, as to ensure that every litigant in a Court of justice has a fair and unprejudiced hearing at the trial on the merits of his case. The Court has to read the article and see whether the article may tend to interfere with the proper course of justice. If it has that tendency it constitutes contempt of Court. 39 Bom.L.R. 471=38 Cr.L.J. 942=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 305. See also 1943 Lah. 329 (F.B.). A libel on the parties to a suit which does not amount to an interference with the course of administration of justice is not a matter for contempt proceedings. (Ibid.). Proceedings in contempt are not taken merely in respect of technical offences. To suggest in a newspaper article that evidence intended to be used in a prosecution which is either proceeding or is plainly contemplated, has been obtained by improper means and is unreliable or to suggest that admissions by the accused have been improperly obtained, amounts to contempt of Court. 40 Bom.L.R. 75. The offence of contempt may be committed if the writer of the offending publication either knows a proceeding or cause to be imminent or should have known that it was imminent. In criminal cases it is not necessary that the accused should have been brought before a Magistrate provided he has been arrested and is in custody. It would no doubt be going too far to say that even if it is found as a fact that the writer of the offending publication had no actual knowledge of the institution of the case it was his duty to make enquiries in this behalf but when the writer knew that a report had been made to the police and the police investigation had been followed by the attachment of property and arrest of the offenders, the writer must be taken to have known that a case was almost certain to be filed and therefore would be guilty of contempt of Court. 221 I.C. 195=A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 206. There is a special responsibility which rests on newspapers of seeing everything is excluded from their columns in reference to pending cases, whether civil or criminal, which might possibly have the effect of prejudicing or prepossessing the mind of any judicial officer, jurymen or potential witness who might be or become concerned with it. It is to check the tendency which newspaper references to pending cases have of reducing the Court concerned to impotence so far as the actual elimination of prejudice and prepossession is concerned, that the High Court exercises a strict supervision over such references. 1946 A.W.R. (H.C.) 62. It is of the very essence of contempt of Court that proceedings should be pending, when the article alleged to constitute contempt is published. It is not necessary that the accused in a criminal case which is the subject of comment should have been committed for trial or even for him to have been brought before a committing Magistrate provided he has been arrested and is in custody when the article is published. 21 Pat.L.T. 980.

As to what are pending proceedings, see 185 I.C. 86=41 Cr.L.J. 148. Any publication which tends to excite prejudice against the parties to a pending litigation or their litigation while it is pending constitutes contempt of Court. Attacks on or abuse of a party, his witnesses or solicitor constitute contempt, but a mere libel on a party, not amounting to an interference with the course of justice, does not, the party being left to his remedy by action. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 545=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 248=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 81. The comment on a case which is sub-judice or suggestion that the Court should take a certain course in respect of a matter before it constitutes contempt and honesty of motive is immaterial. Good intention is not the deciding factor in a matter of contempt, though the intention and bona fide nature of the action have a bearing on the question whether the Court should take action. To comment on a case which is about to come before the Court with knowledge of that fact is just as much contempt as comment on a case actually launched. This does not mean that reference cannot be made to pending cases or that items of news which are concerned with pending cases should not be published. What cannot be permitted is a discussion of the attitude which the Court should adopt when considering the case. 49 L.W. 29=I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 466=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 257=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 843 (F.B.). A pamphlet which assumes the truth of certain facts which are connected directly or indirectly with the matters under consideration and awaiting decision in a pending litigation, amounts to contempt of Court. So also a document containing reflections upon the conduct and the character of certain of the persons concerned in a pending proceeding and predicting that a certain party will win and thereby justice will be defeated. 1939 Cal. 672=43 C.W.N. 333=I.L.R. (1939) 1 Cal. 394. Where a member of the Legislative Assembly wrote a letter to a Magistrate making certain suggestions with reference to proceedings under S. 107, Cr.P. Code, pending before him, it was held that it grossly offended against the law of contempt of Court and that no member of the Legislative Assembly had any right to interfere in such a manner in the course of administration of criminal justice. 185 I.C. 754=A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 178; 1939 A.L.J. 99=1939 All. 427; 181 I.C. 714=1939 O.W.N. 525=A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 180. See also 14 Luck. 649; 14 Luck. 653. Every private communication to a Judge for the purpose of influencing his decision upon a pending matter, is contempt of Court as tending to interfere with the course of justice. 181 I.C. 466=1939 O.W.N. 522=A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 182. Where a party to a pending case wrote a letter to the Judge seized of the case containing the following statement "you have on your responsibility caused all these proceedings against law to be taken with a view to cause loss to me. In case I succeed in appeal, you yourself shall be responsible for the property or the value thereof due to the above-mentioned unlawful acts," it was held that it amounted to contempt of a serious nature and that it contained a threat and an imputation against the Judge's impartiality and that it was a serious matter which could not be treated lightly. 1940 N.L.J. 425=A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 407. Where the respondent, the editor of a newspaper, after reproducing an accurate statement of a criminal complaint lodged against the accused, added in big headlines that "thousands of rupees were missing" as a fact, instead of "as alleged," held, the respondent was guilty of contempt. 1931 M.W.N. 1058=34 L.W. 727=61 M.L.J. 848. Where during the pendency of a suit relating to the genuineness of a will the editor of a newspaper published a copy of the will in the paid advertisement column and it appeared that the publication was likely to prejudice the mind of the public, held, that the act of the persons responsible for the paper amounted to contempt of Court. 1931 A.L.J. 647=1931 A. 420. The special privilege of the press is a timeworn fallacy. No editor has a right to assume the role of investigator or try to prejudice the Court against any person. 15 Luck. 268=41 Cr.L.J. 169=1930 O.W.N. 1132=A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 137. See also A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 70=41 Cr.L.J. 445. Far from there being any special privilege of the press, there is on the other hand a special responsibility affecting the editor of a newspaper, namely that he is in duty bound always to bear in mind the danger of prejudicing the course of justice by the publication of articles in his newspaper which though innocent in appearance may easily be so read by members of the public as to prejudice the course of litigation. 1940 O.W.N. 1197. It is not possible to say that criticism of Court is protected and can be justified where there is no good faith, where there are misstatements and misrepresentations and where necessarily the Court is brought into contempt and disrepute. Where a person is restrained by a judicial order from proceeding with certain action, the person so ordered is not justified in disobeying the order merely because he is advised or thinks that the order is wrong in law. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 601. See also 44 Bom.L.R. 231=1942 Bom. 154. The words "opinion, advice or direction" in S. 34, Trusts Act, must be read together as meaning nothing more than guidance. Under S. 34 the Court exercises what may be called its consultative jurisdiction, giving guidance to a trustee who presumably asks for it, because he wants it and intends to follow it. S. 34 is intended to enable a trustee to obtain the Court's guidance in suitable matters for his protection. The advice, opinion or direction given under S. 34 is not an order binding on parties and disobedience to it does not involve committal for contempt though the trustee disobeying the direction would lose the protection given by S. 34. A.I.R. 1945 Sind 81 (F.B.). There are no doubt statutes which authorize the Court to give instructions which, when given have the full force of orders which must be obeyed and though it may be said that the dictionary definition of an order as something to be obeyed and a direction as something to be followed is a mere play upon words, a distinction without a difference, the distinction may in fact be very real. It depends upon the context in which the word "direction" is used. A.I.R. 1945 Sind 81 (F.B.). Where in the course of a series of newspaper articles the editor alleged that the Judges had convicted a person after having expressed a doubt of his guilt, that the conduct of cases before the Chief Justice was such that arguments and authorities were ignored and that the life and liberty of the subject brought before him was in peril, and further that the Chief Justice passed monstrous sentences and unjustifiably convicted persons on the uncorroborated testimony of an approver and accused the people of the province as habitual liars thus prostituting the position of a Judge. Held, that the articles were intended to lower the prestige of the High Court and the dignity of the Judge and that the editor could be punished for contempt. 8 P. 323=117 I.O. 180 (2)=30 Cr.L.J. 741 (F.B.). Where a party sends threatening letters to the opposite party and his advocate demanding the withdrawal of certain allegations in the pleadings it is calculated to interfere with and obstruct or divert the course of justice and hence the party sending such communications is therefore clearly guilty of contempt of Court. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 69=1939 N.L.J. 461. For words or action used in the face of the Court, or in the course of proceedings to be a contempt they must be such as would interfere or tend to interfere with the course of justice. An insult to counsel or opposing litigant is very different from an insult to the Court itself. 1945 M.W.N. 371=58 L.W. 347=47 Bom.L.R. 738=49 O.W.N. 733=A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 134=(1945) 2 M. L.J. 109 (P.C.). Where a person accused of an offence under secs. 420 and 406, I.P. Code, files a complaint for defamation against a witness in that case and during its pendency, in respect of certain statements made by that witness, it was held that inasmuch as the complaint was made more than 6 months after the examination of all the witnesses and not straightaway as soon as the particular witness was examined, it was a bona fide act intended for the protection of the complainant's own good name and not an act aimed at putting pressure to bear on witnesses and as such there was not even a technical offence of contempt committed. 181=I.C. 575=40 Cr.L.J. 569=A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 225. Where a person files a complaint for defamation in respect of various allegations against him contained in a petition to adjudicate him an insolvent and also says that he had told the other party that if insolvency proceedings are started, he would take counter proceedings, there is nothing done from which an inference could be drawn that if the allegations in the insolvency proceedings are withdrawn, the criminal proceedings for defamation would also be dropped. There is a distinction between a threat before proceedings are instituted and a threat after proceedings have been instituted. If when the earlier proceedings have been taken a threat is held out then to the person who institutes the proceedings by the opposite party to the effect that unless the proceedings are withdrawn drastic action would be taken, the holder of the threat would be guilty of contempt of Court; but where the threat is held out before the institution of the proceedings it amounts only to a warning so that an unguarded action may not be taken. There may well be action in the nature of a blackmail and it would be dangerous to hold that if the person attempted to be blackmailed were to hold out a counter threat, he would be guilty of contempt of Court. 1940 A.L.J. 798. Where during the course of a guardianship proceedings, one of the parties files an affidavit containing aspersions on the other party and he thereupon files an application under Sec. 476, Cr. P. Code, for enquiry into the falsity of the allegations in the affidavit and for necessary action and also files a complaint against the other under Sec. 500, I.P. Code, neither the application under S. 476, Cr. P. Code, nor the complaint under S. 500, I.P. Code, constitutes contempt of Court. 1940 A.L.J. 579=1940 All. 497. Where a person not a party to the suit sends a registered notice to the defendant, demanding the withdrawal of an abusive epithet used in the written statement with reference to him, and threatening to file a suit for damages, if it was not withdrawn, it is merely the formal preliminary notice for a suit for damages for libel and does not constitute contempt of Court. 187 I.C. 65=1939 A.L.J. 1157=1940 All. 114. See also I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 506=43 Cr.L.J. 98. Where A aids and abets B in his disobedience of an injunction, it is a wrong remedy to petition the Court to issue notice upon A to show cause why he should not be committed for contempt for disobedience of the injunction. The petition should ask the Court that A be committed for aiding and abetting B in his disobedience. 1938 P.W. N. 895=19 Pat.L.T. 867=1938 P.C. 295. The Government granted certain lease of quarrying rights to A, A took possession of the quarries. In a dispute concerning lease the Government and its servants were restrained by an injunction from disturbing possession of A. B, who was not a party to the injunction proceedings, but who derived his supposed interest from the Government, continued to work the quarries. A brought an action for contempt proceedings against the Government for disobedience of the injunction, and against B, for aiding and abetting the disobedience. Held, that Government could not be said to have disobeyed the injunction. It was for A, who had the immediate right to possession or was in possession under the order of the Court, and not for the Government, who was not in actual possession to eject B. The duty of the Government was to leave those who claimed entitled to the possession of the soil to take the appropriate measures. Held, further, as Government was not liable, B, who derived his interest through it, could also not be held liable for disobedience. Where attacks are made on the personal character of a Judge, or where base or improper motives in the decision of a case are attributed to Judge, the process of the Court should be used; but the process of contempt for scandalising the Court is one which should be sparingly used. A general expression of opinion hostile to the utility of Courts of Justice, without any attack on any particular Judge or comment on any particular case, is not likely to affect the public and does not amount to contempt of Court. I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 179=40 Bom. L.R. 75=1938 Bom. 197. The truth of the allegations is no defence in proceedings for contempt. Nobody is allowed to scandalise a Court and make allegations against it even if they are true. Every attempt to justify must constitute a new offence of contempt committed in the very face of the Court. I.L.R. (1945) All. 7=1944 O.W.N. (H. C.) 287=1945 A.L.J. 26=A.I.R. 1945 All. 67. Scandalizing the Court amounts to contempt of Court. It is immaterial whether the attack on the Judge is with reference to a case about to be tried or actually under trial or recently adjudged. And the offence is in no way mitigated when the attack is not upon a particular Judge but upon the Court as a whole, indeed, upon all the Judges. Contempt is not only committed when there is a detailed discussion of the facts and merits, but when, for instance, some presumptuous person states that the case of the party is sound in law and fact before such case is heard and decided. An article suggesting abuse by Chief Court of its powers a desire on the part of that Court to enter into a conflict with the executive Government and containing a plain invitation to Magistrates to disregard the authority of that Court and to subordinate themselves to the alleged wishes of the executive Government, is an article tending to embarrass the administration of justice and calculated to create in the minds of the general public grave apprehension that the Chief Court is not entitled to public confidence in its discharge of its duties. Such article amounts to contempt of Court. 1940 Sind 229 (F.B.). Before a person can be committed for contempt, the Court should be satisfied (a) that something has been published which either is clearly intended or at least is calculated to prejudice a trial which is pending; (b) that the offending matter was published with the knowledge of the pending cause or with the knowledge that the case was imminent; and (c) that the matter published tended substantially to interfere with the due course of justice or was calculated substantially to create prejudice in the public mind. It is a contempt of Court to prejudice mankind for or against the party to the cause before the cause is heard. The publication of a newspaper article which is deliberately designed to create an atmosphere of sympathy for the offenders and to mobilise public opinion in their favour and which is calculated to produce the impression that the offenders are not to blame and that they are being persecuted as they happen to belong to a particular community must, therefore, be treated as a contempt of Court. It is not necessary in the case of a criminal trial that the accused should have been committed for trial or even that he should have been brought before a Magistrate provided he has been arrested and is in custody. The offence of Contempt may be committed if the writer of the offending publication either knows a proceeding or cause to be imminent or should have known that it was imminent. It is true that a criticism of an executive officer, no matter how severe, cannot amount to contempt of Court, but if such criticism contains matter which is calculated to interfere with the due course of justice it would amount to contempt. Proprietors and publishers of newspapers who set out to criticise the public administration in respect of matters which are sub-judice or are about to be adjudicated upon do so at their peril. 47 P.L.R. 143 =221 C. 195=A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 206. Where a suit was concluded by a decree of Court embodying the terms settlement between the parties one of which was an undertaking given by the defendant not to dispose of his properties until the decree was fully satisfied, and the defendant mortgaged the properties before the satisfaction of the

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—Proceedings taken against the offender for the contempt of the High Court are of a criminal nature as the contempt of the High Court is certainly an offence. 20 Luck. 442=1945 O. W.N. 169=A.I.R. 1945 Oudh 266. Summary proceedings taken by the High Court for contempt of itself are proceedings derived from the Common Law of England. The power to punish for contempt is a power vis generis and not a power which is or can be exercised under the ordinary criminal jurisdiction of the Court. 39 C.W.N. 823. A rule for contempt can be issued by any single Judge or any number of Judges of a Court of record. It is not necessary that the rule should be issued by the High Court as an entire body after consultation with all its members. 8 P. 323=117 I.C. 180 (2)=30 Cr.L.J. 741 (F.B.). See also 7 R. 844=122 I.C. 282 =31 Cr.L.J. 397. Where an application is made to the High Court on behalf of the Legal Remembrancer for taking proceedings against a person for contempt of Court, it is not proper that the affidavit in support of the application should be that of a clerk. 21 Pat.L.T. 980=1940 P.W.N. 902. The Legal Remembrancer of Bihar is competent to represent the Government or the Governor in proceedings for contempt in Bihar and can move the Court to take proceedings. His functions and duties are wide enough to empower him to move on behalf of the Government or the Governor and to instruct the Advocate-General to carry on proceedings for contempt in the High Court. 1940 P.W.N. 902=21 Pat.L.T. 980. Summary jurisdiction in contempt is a powerful weapon in the hands of the Court and is to be used sparingly. But its use must in large part depend upon those who by their misconduct invite its application. 1940 Sind 239 (F.B.). The summary power of punishing for contempt should be used sparingly and only in serious cases. It is a power which a Court must of necessity possess; its usefulness depends on the wisdom and restraint with which it is exercised, and to use it to suppress methods of advocacy which are merely offensive, is to use it for a purpose for which it was never intended. The Bar can surely maintain its dignity and prestige without having to invoke this jurisdiction. Nor should tactless and intemperate statements by litigants in person be taken as contempt of Court. The appellant who had been an unsuccessful plaintiff in a suit in the High Court and ordered to pay costs, took out a summons objecting to the taxation of costs and seeking to review it and appeared in person in support of his objection. In the course of the hearing, counsel for the opposite party stated that the appellant was misleading the Court as to the nature of the issues raised in the action and insisted that he should read out a paragraph in the plaint. The appellant retorted: "I do not keep anything back at all. My fault is that I disclose everything, unlike members of the Bar who are in the habit of not doing so and misleading the Court." This led to a protest from the opposing counsel whereupon the appellant at once apologised and expressed regret. Later when dealing with the Taxing Master's statement in the order that he had considered all matters set out in the relevant rule, the appellant said: "It is customary for the Taxing Master to write what is written at the end of the paragraph, but is it considered at all?" No protest against, or comment on, this was made at the time either by counsel or by the Bench or when judgment was given. Subsequently the Court was moved to take action against the appellant and punish him for contempt in respect of his remark against the Bar and the Taxing Master, and in spite of the apology and expression of regret by the appellant the Court held the appellant guilty of contempt of Court in respect of the two remarks and sentenced him to imprisonment and fine. Held, on appeal to the Privy Council, (1) that the words used by the appellant respecting the Bar did not and could not amount to contempt of Court, and consequently there was no jurisdiction in the Court, to exercise its summary powers in respect of them; (2) that the words used by the appellant relating to the Taxing Master were no more than a tactless way of suggesting that Taxing Masters were apt to deal somewhat summarily with such matters as were there in question, and afforded no reasonable grounds for adjudging the appellant guilty of so grave an offence as contempt of Court, and that therefore the order of imprisonment and fine should be set aside. Words used in the course of argument, however irrelevant, would not amount to contempt when they relate to an opponent, whether counsel or litigant. 1945 M.W.N. 371=58 L.W. 347=47 Bom.L.R. 733=49 C.W.N. 733=A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 134=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 109 (P.C.). There can be no doubt that a Court need not and should not interfere in all cases of contempt. It is a very arbitrary method of dealing with an offence and contempt proceedings should be sparingly instituted, and a person should not be convicted unless it is essential in the interests of justice that he should be. A mere technical contempt of Court is not sufficient to warrant the High Court interfering and convicting the offender. There must be a substantial contempt. 1940 P.W.N. 902=21 Pat.L.T. 980.

COSTS.—Where the Crown appears to uphold a conviction in a criminal case, it is not the practice to award costs to the appellant in the event of the appeal succeeding. But a case of criminal contempt, is obviously in a different category from an ordinary criminal case. Where in spite of the opinion expressed by the Chief Justice and another Judge of the Court, of which the appellant was alleged to be in contempt, that no contempt had been committed, the executive deems it necessary not only to appear but to endeavour to uphold an order punishing the appellant for contempt, the successful appellant should have his costs of the appeal. 47 Bom.L.R. 733=49 C.W.N. 733=1945 A.L.J. 335=58 L.W. 347=A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 134=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 109 (P.C.).

DISCRETION OF COURT.—INTERFERENCE ON APPEAL.—The question of committal or non-committal for contempt is one for the exercise of the discretion of the Court before whom the application to commit is brought and unless there is found to be a serious disregard of the principles of natural justice, the Privy Council would be slow to interfere with that discretion. 1945 A.L.J. 505=1945 M.W.N. 564=A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 147=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 356 (P.C.).

INTENTION.—No intent to interfere with the due course of justice or to prejudice the public need be proved if the effect of the article or matter alleged to constitute contempt is to create prejudice or to interfere with the due course of justice. The writer of an article can be guilty of contempt without intending to interfere with the due course of justice. The test is not what the writer intends but what effect the words would have. The question of intention is irrelevant in considering whether the offence has been committed. 1940 P.W.N. 902=21 Pat.L.T. 980. See also 49 L.W. 29; 1943 Lah. 339 854; 1945 Nag. 33.

1945 N.L.J. 30. The fact that an act was done ignorantly or innocently would make no difference to the offence of contempt. It would only be relevant regarding the measure of punishment. 1945 N.L.J. 30=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 33. In contempt proceedings before the High Court it cannot be said that in every case the party if represented must appear though an advocate instructed by an attorney. person concerned to ask the High Court for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council. A Court of record is the sole judge of what constitutes a contempt. 39 C.W.N. 823.

Sec. 2.—The Chief Court of Sind is also a Court of Record and has power to punish in a summary way contempt of itself. I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 396. The words "Subordinate Court" in the Contempt of Courts Act are used in a wide sense as including any Court over which the High Court has superintendence for the purpose of sec. 35, Government of Burma Act, 1935, that is to say, all Courts subject for the time being to its appellate jurisdiction. Sub-Divisional Magistrate when holding an inquiry under sec. 176, Cr.P. Code, is acting as a Court subordinate to the High Court for the purposes of the Contempt of Courts Act. 1940 Rang.L.R. 188=41 Cr.L.J. 470=A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 68. The High Court of its own motion can issue a rule calling upon a person to show cause why he should not be committed for contempt of the High Court or for contempt of a Subordinate Court. The powers of the High Court with regard to contempt of Subordinate Courts are the same as its powers with regard to contempt of itself. Under sec. 2 (1) of the Contempt of Courts Act of 1926, the High Court can do in the case of contempt of a Subordinate Court whatever it can do in the case of contempt of the High Court itself. Therefore even if an application for taking proceedings is not competent, as being taken out by a person not competent to represent the Executive Government, the High Court can take notice of the contempt alleged of its own motion and issue a rule. 1940 P.W.N. 902=21 Pat. L.T. 980. Comment upon an Advocate which has reference to the conduct of his cases may amount to contempt of Court. 58 C. 884=35 C.W.N. 189=1931 C. 257.

ARREST OF COUNSEL PROCEEDING TO COURT.—The arrest of a counsel by the police in order to prevent him from filing an application the High Court under sec. 491, Cr. P. Code, for the release of a detainee and appearing on behalf of the detainee or to prevent other counsel from so appearing and to prevent the counsel from obtaining an order from the High Court for an interview with the detainee in jail amounts to interference with the due course of justice and constitutes contempt of Court. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 196 (S.B.).

WITHHOLDING HABEAS CORPUS PETITION FROM PERSON DETAINED IN JAIL.—Petitions addressed by detained persons to the High Court under section

491, Cr.P. Code, must be forwarded without any delay. Whether the petition has in the events that have happened become infructuous is a matter in every case for the High Court to decide and no one has the right to take upon himself that responsibility. It is no business at all of any official to form any conclusion about an application addressed to the High Court. In order to amount to a punishable or serious contempt of Court the withholding of the application must tend substantially to interfere with the due course of justice. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 196 (S.B.). See also 1945 Nag. 33. Where the jail Superintendent deliberately and intentionally withheld the application from the High Court and declined to forward it, held, he interfered with the administration of justice and was guilty of a criminal contempt. 1945 N.L.J. 30=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 33.

PERSON RELEASED BY COURT ON HABEAS CORPUS WRIT RE-ARRESTED UNDER REGULATION III OF 1818 WITHIN COURT PRECINCTS.—A person who is directed by Court to be released from illegal detention in habeas corpus proceedings or proceedings under sec. 491, Cr.P. Code, is only free from arrest on civil process until he reaches home from Court, but not free from arrest on criminal process. As a warrant of commitment under Regulation III of 1818 is akin to criminal process, the re-arrest of that person under such a warrant in the Court room when the Court is not sitting or within the precincts of the Court even when the Court is sitting will not amount to contempt unless it is a fraudulent proceeding for evading the order of the Court which is made in habeas corpus proceedings or proceedings under sec. 491, Cr. P. Code, or the arrest is made in the face of the Court so to create a disturbance of the Court's business. 48 C.W.N. 854. It would amount to contempt if the person holding the warrant says to the face of the Court that he would not release the person ordered to be released by it. Such a warrant issued by the Governor-General or by the Governor of a province does not amount to a decision of a Court but is only an executive act and as such it cannot be set up against the order of the Court directing the release. 47 C.W.N. 854. When an application addressed to the High Court has been written on the 22nd but is not handed over to the jail authorities till the 23rd, the latter figure should not be added. Such tampering with a document addressed to the High Court is improper and is in itself a contempt. The jail authorities can endorse the date of receipt by them separately if they so desire but they have no business to alter or add to or tamper with any portion of a document intended for and addressed to the High Court. It is most objectionable to add a figure to the date so as to make it appear that the document bears a different date to the one which it originally bore. 1945 N.L.J. 30=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 33. In cases of contempt of mofussil Courts the aggrieved person should make his application direct to the High Court. Where the alleged contempt is in the form of obstruction to the receiver appointed by the Court, the application may be made either by the party or by the receiver himself or by the Court which appointed him. In contempt applications the same procedure should be followed as in applications in contempt to the High Court on the original side. 35 C.W.N. 1265. See also 36 C.W.N. 645. The Court of Commissioners appointed under the Bengal Criminal Law Amendment Act is a subordinate Court and the High Court can entertain proceedings for contempt committed before the Commissioners. 37 C.W.N. 276=1933 C. 118=60 C. 603=34 Cr.L.J. 662. The expression "man in the street has lost confidence in the administration of justice in the province" used by a lawyer in a meeting of the Bar Association within the premises of the Court is contempt of Court. 144 I.C. 63=34 Cr.L.J. 726=1933 O. 118. During the course of a trial the counsel for the accused observed in reply to a suggestion that the accused was proposing to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, that he would not be appearing if that were so. The accused in fact left during the trial. Held, that the accused cannot be proceeded against for contempt. 35 C.W.N. 1082. A statement made by a counsel before the Judge of a Full Bench to the effect that his instructions are that his client does not wish the matter to be argued before the bench as constituted is a deliberate and intentional insult to the Court. It is highly improper on the part of the counsel to make such a statement and the statement amounts to a contempt of Court. 1932 L. 485 (F.B.). Where a contempt of Court committed by a counsel is due to his erroneous view of law and not to any improper intention on his part, the ends of justice can be met by the Judges of the Full Bench regarding grave disapproval of his action. 138 I.C. 878=33 Cr.L.J. 675=1932 L. 502 (F.B.). Where a leading advocate commits the offence of contempt of Court unconsciously and tenders a written apology to the Court, such apology can be accepted as sufficient amends. 1933 O. 118.8 Attempts to interfere with the possession of a receiver (appointed by Court) and to intercept the rents properly payable by the tenants to the receiver undoubtedly amount to contempt of Court. (20 Beav. 332 and 18 C.W.N. 289, Ref.) 140 I.C. 140=36 C.W.N. 645=1932 C. 705. See also 35 C.W.N. 1265; 159 I.C. 180=1935 O. 684. Any person, whether a party to the suit or proceeding or an outsider, who interferes with the possession of a receiver is guilty of a contempt of Court. No decree-holder or Receiver can proceed against property of which a Receiver has been appointed by the Court and of which he has taken possession, without leave of that Court. The levying of execution clearly disturbs and interferes with the possession of the Receiver, and if execution is levied without leave of the Court, the person responsible therefor would be guilty of contempt of Court. But where the Court is of opinion that those responsible for levying execution without leave of Court did not realise that the carrying out of execution proceedings would constitute contempt, the proper order would be to direct the status quo, to order restoration of possession to the Receiver of which he was dispossessed in execution, leaving the parties to take any action they deem fit with regard to the possession. No further action would be justified in such a case; but it would also be improper to make any order amounting to a condonation of the contempt. I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 396=A.I.R. 1945 Sind 75. The case of interference with or obstruction to a receiver appointed by the Court is treated as a contempt of a criminal nature. It is not necessary in such a case that the order appointing receiver should be served on the respondent. It is enough if the respondent was aware of the appointment of the receiver. The act of interference or obstruction is not a matter of infringement of any order, but amounts to interference with the administration of justice and with its officers. 36 Bom.L.R. 992=1934 Bom. 452; 44 C.W.N. 925=1940 Cal. 487; 59 B. 10=36 Bom.L.R. 992=1934 Bom. 452. (Person guilty need not be party to suit). But Court would act with caution and reluctance when outsiders are concerned. (Ibid.) The Court has no right to punish people merely because it might disapprove of what they do, if their conduct does not clearly bring them within the four walls of some offence known to law. Where the Court does not name any officer or individual as receiver, it is not a contempt of Court for a person who knows that that decision has been arrived at to collect and disburse moneys which it is intended are to fall within the powers of the Receiver. It cannot be said that for a party bound by a judgment to do anything which will make that judgment ineffective, is in itself a contempt of Court. 1941 Rang.L.R. 747. The publication of a proceeding in Chamber in the High Court is not permitted without the express leave of the Judge, and if a newspaper does so, it amounts to contempt of Court. Proceedings relating to the appointment of a guardian ad litem of a minor are proceedings relating to a ward of Court, and if they are published in a newspaper without the express leave of the Judge that would amount to contempt. I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 151=44 Bom.L.R. 95

=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 86. Obstruction offered to a public servant in the discharge of his public function is an offence by itself though the public servant may not be acting under the orders of a Court of justice so long as he was performing a legal function. But if that public servant is carrying out an order of a Court the offender commits another offence, namely, the offence of contempt of the Court whose order the public servant is carrying out. Sec. 186, I.P. Code, does not take note of this second offence which can be the subject of contempt proceedings. 12 P. 172=1933 P. 204=14 Pat.L.T. 77. Where the Sheriff's officer who, accompanied by the plaintiff's men, went to serve the defendant with a writ of summons was prevented because of the threats the defendant who made offensive remarks against him. Held, that the defendant was in contempt. 48 C.W. N. 825. A criticism of an executive officer, no matter how severe, cannot amount to contempt of Court unless such criticism contains a matter calculated substantially to interfere with the due course of justice. It is one thing to say during the pendency of proceedings that an executive officer should not have taken a certain course. It is quite a different thing to say that the course he took was wholly illegal. A.I.R. 1948 Lah. 329 (F.B.). In so far as criminal contempts are concerned, the offence is committed if among other things, the acts complained of either obstruct, or have a tendency to obstruct, the administration of justice. It is not necessary to establish an actual obstruction or interference. 1945 N.L.J. 30=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 33. The necessity for personal service of an order of the Court (appointing the receiver) does not exist when the contempt complained of is obstruction of the Court's officers. 140 I.O. 140=36 C.W.N. 645=1932 G. 705. Where the accused were convicted by the trial Court but were released on bail the same day by the Sessions Court which later on confirmed the conviction and issued warrants of arrest against them and the accused evaded those warrants of arrest and applied to the High Court, in revision, making it appear to the High Court that they were in jail, while in fact they were at no time in jail, it was held that both their evasion and misrepresentation amounted to contempt of Court. I.L.R. (1940) All. 507=1940 A.L.J. 309=A.I.R. 1940 All. 386. The widowed mother of a minor girl had re-married and her sister applied to the Court stating that the minor girl should be removed from the custody of the mother. The applicant was directed to take charge of the minor and she undertook not to marry the minor without the permission of the Court. Subsequently the mother under whose custody the minor continued got the minor married without the permission of the Court. Held, (1) that the mother was not guilty of an offence under sec. 228, I.P. Code; (2) that the accused might be proceeded against under the Contempt of Courts Act. 12 P. 1=1933 P. 142=34 Cr.L.J. 770. Contempt of Court is either (1) criminal contempt consisting of words or acts obstructing or intending to obstruct the administration of justice or (2) contempt in procedure, consisting of disobedience to the judgments, orders for other process of the Court and involving private injury. Ordinarily a party to an action who disobey a prohibitory order, such disobedience though wilful is contempt in procedure, whereas persons who aid and abet such disobedience and are not parties to the action are guilty of criminal contempt. Where in spite of an order of prohibition a father performs the marriage of his minor daughter he is guilty of contempt along with the person who married the girl knowing of the prohibition. 189 I.C. 813=A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 203. See also I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 45; 31 Bom.L.R. 1120. A Guzerati applied for restoration of his minor boy from an Anglo-Indian lady who looked after him for a long time with the father's concurrence. In previous proceedings the father was appointed as the guardian of the boy and the father was ordered to have the custody of his boy and was to arrange to take the child for a change. The father made the arrangement but the lady refused to deliver the child to its father in spite of many requests. Held, that the lady was guilty of contempt. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 38=174 I.O. 785. The meaning of sec. 2 (3) is that where under the I.P. Code there is already a provision for punishing a contempt of Court as a contempt of Court the Contempt of Courts Act itself shall have no application. It does not mean that when the act which has constituted the contempt of Court also constitutes an offence under the Penal Code it may not be punished under the Contempt of Courts Act. A single act may be both an offence under the Penal Code and may also be a contempt of Court and may be punishable in either or both capacities. 12 P. 1=1933 P. 142=144 I.O. 351. See also 159 I.C. 180=1935 C. 684; 1938 A.L.J. 480. Where an application under sec. 100, Cr.P. Code, has terminated, the filing of complaints under sec. 500, I.P. Code and sec. 195, Cr. P. Code, by the individual against whom the application was directed does not in any way affect the trial of any pending proceedings and hence an application under sec. 2 of the Contempt of Courts Act on the basis of such complaints would not be maintainable. 1942 O. 14=1943 O.W.N. 331=1943 O.A. SECS. 2 (2) AND (3): CHIEF COURT OF OUDH—JURISDICTION AS REGARDS CONTEMPT OF SUBORDINATE COURTS.—The Chief Court of Oudh is by virtue of the Oudh Courts Act and secs. 219 and 220 of the Government of same procedure and practice in respect of contempt of itself as a High Court referred to in sub-section (1).

India Act, the High Court of Oudh and the one and only Court of record and by virtue of its position akin to that of the Court of King's Bench. It has its power of superintendence over all inferior Civil and Criminal Courts and it has power to protect its subordinate Courts from improper interference in the administration of Justice. Its powers in that respect are defined and limited by the Contempt of Courts Act of 1926. The Act is silent as to the powers of the Chief Court to deal with contempts of Courts subordinate to it, but such power cannot be negatived by silence and is to be inferred from the wording of sub-cl. (2) of sec. 2 in which the words "subject to the provisions of sub-cl. (3)" would be otherwise meaningless and in fact unnecessary. 14 Luck. 492=A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 131 (F.B.). The Chief Court of Sind is also a Court of Record has power to punish in a summary way contempt of itself. I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 396=A.I.R. 1944 Sind 75.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—The fact that the rule for contempt is unsigned is by itself no ground for discharge of the rule. 37 C.W.N. 276=1933 G. 118=60 C. 603. When signing a petition for launching contempt proceedings a Secretary to Government should be presumed to be acting within the scope of the authority conferred on him until the contrary is shown (Ibid.) The legal remembrancer is ex officio public prosecutor on the Appellate Side of the High Court and as such has the power to instruct counsel, his authority to act for the local Government being in no way dependent on a vakalat-nama or warrant of attorney (Ibid.) Applications for contempt cannot be subject-matter of reference by the lower Court to the High Court. Such applications cannot be heard by a Bench of the High Court hearing criminal appeal unless they are specially referred by the Chief Justice. 35 C.W.N. 1265. When the contempt is committed in the face of a Court it is that Court which is the proper tribunal to decide the whole matter. 138 I.C. 878=1932 L. 502 (F.B.). In a case where a party is required to do something by order of Court, it is necessary before committing for disobedience of the Court's order, that he should have been personally served with notice of the order. Service upon his attorney is not sufficient nor is personal service after notice of motion for contempt. 34 Bom.L.R. 1416=1932 B. 633. The precise breach complained of should be set out in the notice of motion (Ibid.) In cases of contempt the parties charged with contempt cannot be called upon to answer to anything which is not set out specifically in the grounds used before the Court at the time when the rule was issued; where the grounds are insufficient the only course open to the Court is to discharge the rule. 35 C.W.N. 1267. There can be no justification of contempt of Court even if the writer or speaker believes all that he states to be true; and a person guilty of contempt is not entitled to lead evidence to establish the truth of his allegations. 36 Cr.L.J. 620=1935 A.L.J. 46=1935 All. 38. The general rule is a party in contempt is not entitled to be heard but the rule has never been applied to a case in which the order, for the breach of which contempt is alleged, is challenged on the ground of want of jurisdiction. 55 B. 303=33 Bom.L.R. 725=1931 B. 402. In an enquiry by the Court for contempt consisting of alleged disobedience of the order of Court, it is unnecessary to go into the previous history of the matters which led to the passing of the order. (7 B. 5, Ref.) 34 Bom.L.R. 1416=1932 B. 633. Where the breach of an order of Court complained of is a failure to pay a sum of money, the Court has no power to commit a private party for contempt. But a receiver is an officer of Court and on his failure to comply with an order of Court he may be committed for contempt. (19 B. 152, Dist.; 4 C. 655 Foll.) 34 Bom.L.R. 1416=1932 B. 633. Sec. 556, Cr.P. Code, does not apply to summary proceedings taken for punishing a contempt. In such a case the practice has been for the Judges who have been defamed to hear the case. While it is unpleasant for any Judge to have to sit in judgment in a case in which he has been personally attacked, it is his duty to do so where he has been the subject of a malicious publication containing imputations which are obviously false. In fact he has no alternative but to sit as it is impossible to vindicate the reputation of the Court which has been attacked by taking proceedings in any Court for libel or otherwise. I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 411=44 P.L.R. 206=1942 Lah. 105 (F.B.). In a proceeding for contempt of Court, it is not open to a contemner to show that the allegations are true. Any attempt to justify a libel on a Judge by attempting to show that the libel was justified would itself be a fresh contempt. I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 411=44 P.L.R. 206=1942 Lah. 105 (F.B.). The provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure are not applicable to summary proceedings taken for punishing a contempt. But even if sec. 344 of the Code be applicable, the Court will not be disposed to adjourn the proceedings in a case where the Court is scandalised and an attempt is made by a scurrilous publication to undermine and impair the authority of the Court, as immediate action is necessary with a view to vindicate the authority of the Court. I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 411=44 P.L.R. 206=1942 Lah. 105 (F.B.). See also 1944 A.L.J. 459.

(3) No High Court shall take cognizance of a contempt alleged to have been committed in respect of a Court subordinate to it where such contempt is an offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code.

3. Save as otherwise expressly provided by any law for the time being in force, a contempt of Court may be punished with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine, which may extend to two thousand rupees, or with both :

SEC. 2 (3).—The prohibition contained in sec. 2 (3) of the Act, refers to offences punishable as contempt of Court by the Indian Penal Code and not to offences punishable there otherwise than as contempt. 1940 N.L.J. 425=1940 Nag. 407. See also 1938 A.L.J. 430; 1935 Cal. 684. In so far as criminal contempts are concerned, the offence is committed if among other things, the acts complained of either obstruct, or have a tendency to obstruct, the administration of justice. It is not necessary to establish an actual obstruction or interference. It is enough to show that the acts have a tendency to interfere. 1945 N.L.J. 30=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 33. Where in answer to interrogatories, a party to a proceeding in a Magistrate's Court stated that the Chief Reader of that Court had friendly relations with and influence over the Court which acted dishonestly and imposed a fine, the statement is clearly defamatory of the presiding officer and a criminal offence under the Penal Code. But the appropriate procedure is for the officer to file a complaint under the Penal Code and the High Court will not take cognizance under the Contempt of Courts Act. 36 C.L.J. 967=1935 A.L.J. 950 (1)=1935 All. 896.

Sub-sec. (3), sec. 2, means that the contempt must be punishable as a contempt under the Penal Code and not punishable only because it otherwise is an offence. 165 I.C. 813=1936 Lah. 917. The true interpretation of cl. (3) to sec. 2 of the Contempt of Courts Act is that where there is already a provision in the Penal Code for publishing a contempt of Court as such the Contempt of Courts Act itself shall have no application. But where an act amounts to an offence under the Penal Code and also under the Contempt of Courts Act, it will be punishable under both Acts. I.L.R. (1938) All. 548=1938 A.L.J. 430=1938 All. 358. Failure to obey an order the Chief Judge of the Court of Small Causes at Bombay to furnish information as required by S. 3 of the Mussulman Wakf Act, 1923, as amended by the Bombay Amendment Act of 1935, though it is an offence under that Act, is not an offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code. The High Court is consequently not precluded from taking action in respect of it by the terms of S. 2 (3) of the Contempt of Courts Act. 1945 A.L.J. 505=A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 147=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 356 (P.C.).

SECS. 2 AND 3.—Where a leading advocate commits the offence of contempt of Court unconsciously and tenders a written apology to the Court, such apology can be accepted as sufficient amends. 144 I.C. 63 (2)=1933 O. 118.

SEC. 3.—An allegation that a Judge hearing a case has prejudiced on issue of fact, before any evidence whatever has been called is to charge the Judge with grossly improper conduct. When a solicitor makes such an allegation in a letter written by him to another solicitor, the inevitable result would be that public confidence in the judiciary would be shaken. That is always the basis of contempt proceedings of the nature known as scandalizing the Court. 44 Bom.L.R. 796=1942 Bom. 331. Threat used by Advocate to judge an offence. Where an Advocate wrote a letter to a Judge informing him that steps were being taken to put a certain decree in execution while a revision was pending in the High Court and further stated that in case further action in execution was taken his client would institute a suit for damages against him, held, that the intention of the Advocate was to influence the mind of the Judge by the threat held out to him. 147 I.C. 330=1934 A.L.J. 145=1934 A. 817. See also 1939 N.N.L.J. 461. But see 18 Lah. 69 noted under sec. 1, as regards the extent of punishment that can be given under inherent power of High Court. The Court has jurisdiction to direct the payment of costs of the Crown by the person punished under the Contempt of Courts Act. 36 Cr.L.J. 1365=1935 A.L.J. 1153=1935 All. 1013. Where the contempt is of a very grave nature, the party is contempt may be punished in spite of apology tendered. (1938) 2 M.L.J. 520=1938 Mad. 975. Suggestion that High Court Judge was influenced by remarks of Secretary of State amounts to contempt. I.L.R. (1945) All. 665=1944 A.L.J. 459=A.I.R. 1945 All. 1. The proviso to sec. 3 no doubt, seems to contemplate an apology at a late stage. Where instead of apologising at the earliest possible opportunity the person charged or his counsel contends that no contempt has been committed, his apology thereafter can only be regarded an afterthought put forward in the hope of avoiding the wrath to come. 1940 O.W.N. 1197. Except in scandalous and outrageous cases an unconditional apology is ordinarily considered to purge the contempt. Where, however, in spite of several opportunities instead of apologising the person persists in justifying his action the contempt is aggravated. 1945

Provided that the accused may be discharged or the punishment awarded may be remitted on apology being made to the satisfaction of the Court :

OF THE COMMUNICATION, ACCEPTANCE AND REVOCATION OF PROPOSALS.

¹Second Proviso inserted by Act XII of 1937.

N.L.J. 30=1945 Nag. 33. Where a contemner states that he is 'extremely sorry, it may amount to an expression of regret, but it is certainly not an apology—which is the word used in the Contempt of Courts Act. 1942 O.W.N. 6=1942 A.Cr.C. 28. See the same case reversed on appeal to P.C. (1943) 2 M.L.J. 568 (P.C.). An apology is not a weapon of defence forged to purge the guilty of their offences. Nor is it intended to operate as a universal panacea. It is intended to be evidence of real contriteness. Only then is it of any avail in a Court of Justice. It must be tendered at the earliest opportunity unreservedly and unconditionally. Everything depends on the circumstances as well as upon the nature of the apology and the manner in which it is tendered. 1940 N. L.J. 425=1940 Nag. 407. See also 1940 O. W.N. 1197=1940 O.A. 1137. It does not follow that because an apology is offered the Court must accept it and is disarmed. A Court can refuse to accept an apology which it does not believe is genuine; it can even when it accepts the apology, commit an offence to prison or otherwise punish him. Furthermore, there cannot be both justification and apology. The two things are incompatible. 1940 Sind 239 (F.B.). The principle underlying the case in which persons have been punished for attacks upon Courts and interferences with the due execution of their orders is not the protecting of either the Court as a whole or the individual Judges of the Court from a repetition of them, but the protecting of the public and especially those who either voluntarily or by compulsion are subject to its jurisdiction, from the mischief they will incur if the authority of the tribunal be undermined or impaired. An article in a newspaper containing comments on the finding of the Magistrate in an inquest under sec. 170, Cr.P. Code, into the death of a certain person amounts to contempt of Court if the comments impute deliberate perversity, incapability and partiality to the police on the part of the Magistrate in question. For the publication of this article, the publisher and editor are liable to be dealt with for contempt of Court and they cannot be allowed to go unpunished merely because they have tendered an apology. 187 I.C. 808=41 Cr. L.J. 445=(1940) 6 Rang. 70. See also 1933 Oudh 118.

THE INDIAN CONTRACT ACT (IX OF 1872).¹

[25th April, 1872.]

WHEREAS it is expedient to define and amend certain parts of the law relating to contracts; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called THE INDIAN CONTRACT ACT, 1872.

LEG. REF.

¹ For the Statement of Objects and Reasons for the Bill which was based on a report of Her Majesty's Commissioners appointed to prepare a body of substantive law for India, dated July 6th, 1866, see Gazette of India, 1867, Extraordinary, p. 34; for the Report of the Select Committee, see ibid., Extraordinary, dated 28th March, 1872; for discussions in Council, see ibid., 1867, Supplement, p. 1064; ibid., 1871, p. 313, and ibid., 1872, p. 527.

The chapters and sections of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (IV of 1882) which relate to contracts are, in places in which that Act is in force, to be taken as part of Act IX of 1872; See Act IV of 1882, sec. 4.

SEC. 1: CONTRACT ACT.—Act is not retrospective. 5 M.I.A. 109; 12 Bom.L.R. 451 (458, 472). It is an amending as well as a consolidating Act. 40 B. 630=31 M.L.J. 541 (P.C.). Act is not exhaustive. It does not purport to be a complete Code dealing with the law relating to contracts, but defines and amends certain parts of that law. 40 I.C. 194=19 Bom.L.R. 370; 35 M. 728=21 M.L.J. 600; 62 C. 612=39 C.W.N. 461. See also 31 Bom.L.R. 508; 40 Bom.L.R. 989=1939 B. 23. The Court must interpret the Act itself where it applies and the natural meaning of the words of the statute should be followed uninfluenced by the previous state of the law. But the Contract Act is not exhaustive and where the Act does not cover the case with which the Court has to deal, then the Court is bound to follow the principles of the English Common Law. 56 B. 101=34 Bom.L.R. 167=1932 B. 168;; 62 C. 612=39 C.W.N. 461. Sec. 1 saves from its operation all Statutes, Acts and Regulations not expressly repealed by this Act, and also special usages and trade and mercantile customs. 18 C. 620=18 I.A. 121 (P.C.). See also 1933 L. 183=145 I.C. 188; 1935 Sind 38 (Pakki adat); 1935 Sind 38. This Act does not affect the following usages and customs—Pre-emption. 18 C. 620. Arbitrator's lien; Attorney's lien. 6 C. 1. Mercantile custom as to Hindis, Common Carriers and Maritime Law, etc. 13 C. 620 (P.C.); 98 I.C. 759=1928 N. 89. Where both parties are engaged in business and articles are purchased by one party from the other party for business purposes, the transaction falls within the term 'mercantile transaction'. 16 Luck. 357=1940 Oudh 443. It is open to a party to plead a trade usage in conflict with the provisions of the Contract Act. If a party relies on a trade usage its incidents and details ought to be indicated with clearness and precision; and where there is an issue between the parties as to the existence of such usage the onus of proof lies upon the party propounding the same. 1931 A.L.J. 390=1931 A. 583. See also 1933 L. 183=145 I.C. 188; 1935 Sind 38; 33 P.L.R. 985=1932 L. 633. (Trade usage as to sale of khathis in shanli); 1933 L. 127 (Mercantile usage in Delhi Town Market). The Contract Act is not exhaustive so far as the law relating to common carriers is concerned. 9 I.C. 966=32 P.W.R. 1911. Where an agreement is approved and declared to be valid and binding on the parties by an Act of the Legislature, the effect of this statutory confirmation is to render every provision and stipulation of the agreement as obligatory and binding on the parties as if these provisions had been repeated in the form of statutory sections. 169 I.C. 562=1937 P.C. 214 (P.C.). Although the Contract Act purports to deal only with certain parts of the law relating to contracts, yet it should be regarded as exhaustive and binding on the Courts in India when it treats a subject in a way at variance with the English Law. 38 I.C. 915=12 N.L.R. 177. Applicability of Act to contracts regarding land. See 19 S.L.R. 337. Principle of the Act applicable to all transfers. 25 A.L.J. 708=1927 A. 693. A mercantile custom in contravention of the written terms of a contract can be of no avail in a suit under the contract, but evidence of custom not consistent with the contract can be admitted. 41 B. 518=18 Bom.L.R. 532; 1931 A.L.J. 390=1931 A.L.J. 583. Where there is reliance on custom there is necessarily a variation from the written contract, but the variation need not be in contradiction of or repugnant to it. 41 B. 518=18 Bom.L.R. 532. If, in a case of a contract in which there is an apparent inconsistency according to the literal construction of the words used, there is any other reasonably possible construction by which the apparent inconsistencies can be reconciled, that construction should be adopted. 52 L.W. 591=1940 A.L.J. 701=1940 P.C. 151 (P.C.). It is well settled that an illustration can in no event override an express provision in the contract. 1946 N.L.J. 128. English common law principles can be applied so far as they apply to Indian circumstances and are not inconsistent with this Act. See 4 I.A. 23. A stranger to a contract which reserves a benefit for him cannot sue upon it either in English or in Indian Law even though in India the consideration need not move from the promisee. There are two well-recognised exceptions to this doctrine: The first is where a contract between two parties is so framed as to make one of them a trustee for a third; in such cases the latter may sue to enforce the trust in his favour and no objection can be taken to his being a stranger to the contract. The other exception covers those cases where the promisor, between whom and the stranger no privity exists, creates privity by his conduct and by acknowledgment or otherwise constitutes himself an agent of the third party. Where the consideration for a sale of a property is that the purchaser would satisfy certain creditors of the vendor and release the latter from his liability in respect of the debts, and the property is not sold for a fixed consideration and the purchaser does not retain out of it a definite sum of money for payment to the creditors, the purchaser cannot be said to have constituted himself a trustee in respect of the property sold or the consideration money payable for it for the benefit of the creditors, and the latter cannot sue the purchaser for enforcement of his obligation under the contract of sale. 74 C. L.J. 327. See also 1937 Oudh 99=1937 O. W.N. 1021; 1937 M.W.N. 408. A stranger to a contract can sue upon it at any rate in the following circumstances, namely, (a) where a party to the contract agrees with the stranger to pay him direct or becomes estopped from denying his liability to pay him personally and (b) where the contract creates a trust in favour of the stranger. 1940 Rang. Atkinson* to Courts in India has been the subject of considerable discussion, opinions expressed have by no means been uniform. A general statement that where a person makes a contract with another for the benefit of a third person, that third person can sue on the contract apart from any reference to agency or trust, is a proposition not supported either by principle or authority. I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 698=66 C.L.J. 373. See also 114 I.C. 658; 1942 Pat. 460. A stranger is not entitled to sue on a covenant, in the performance of which he has only an indirect interest. 178 I.C. 322=1938 Cal. 578. It is well settled that a person who is not a party to the contract cannot sue on it. Such rights can be enforced by way of suit, as for example under a trust, or because of estoppel, or by way of charge, or under a family arrangement, but unless something over and beyond a mere contract can be inferred the suit will not lie. A trust does not arise simply because a party to a contract undertakes to confer a benefit on a stranger. A person who contracts to do a certain thing for consideration does not intend to create a trust. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 643=1943 N.L.J. 363=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 206. A person who is not a party can sue if he is claiming through a party to the contract or if he is in the position of a cestui que trust or of a principal suing through an agent, or if he claims under a family settlement. A person who merely takes a benefit under a contract to which he was not party cannot sue directly upon that contract without invoking the doctrine of trust or agency. 41 Bom.L.R. 538=1939 Bom. 309; 46 C.W.N. 371; 21 Pat. 377=1942 Pat. 460 (Sec. 23 (c) Specific Relief Act, which refers to a family settlement is a statutory exception to the general rule that only parties to contract can sue thereon). A stranger who renders services to an arbitrator as his legal adviser, and indirectly to the parties, not being a party to the award itself, and there being no privity of contract between him and the parties to the award, cannot sue for an amount agreed to be paid to him under the same; for the principles of justice, equity and good conscience cannot be extended to cover all cases where parties contract to confer benefit upon a stranger so as to enable him to sue upon the contract; but where it is clear on facts that some measure of privity is established between the third person and the contract, he may sue on it. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 422=1939 Sind 125. Where the plaintiff is a beneficiary under a deed of settlement, the rule of law that third parties to a contract cannot take the benefit of the contract does not apply. 153 I.C. 102=1935 M. 141; 165 I.C. 113=1936 O.W.N. 1021=1937 O. 99. See also notes under sec. 37, infra. A mortgagee is not entitled to rely on the terms of a sale-deed executed by the mortgagor in favour of a third person, as he is not a party to the sale-deed. 123 I.C. 42=1930 M. 567. But see also 134 I.C. 1011. A person who is not a party to a contract cannot ordinarily sue for specific performance of the contract but where a third person acquires some benefit under the contract he is entitled to enforce such benefit by way of equitable relief and what the Courts enforce in such circumstances is not the contract itself but equities arising under the contract. 121 I.C. 337; 141 I.C. 490=1933 L. 78. See also 138 I.C. 263=1932 L. 586; 940 A. 98; 131 I.C. 210; 134 I.C. 1011=1931 Luck. 292 (Vendee undertaking to discharge obligation of vendor can be sued on such undertaking); 131 I.O. 575=1931 A. J.J. 614. But see also 134 I.C. 100=32 P. J.R. 876; 55 M. 436=1932 M. 457=62 M. J.J. 533. The general rule in India is that although consideration for an agreement may proceed from a third party, a person not a party to an agreement cannot sue upon it. The rule, however, is subject to certain well-recognised exceptions, where it is clear on the facts that some measure of privity is established between the third person and the contract on which he sues and which would enable him to get judgment in his favour in a Court of equity. This rule also applies in insolvency and creditors of an insolvent who are not parties to an arrangement cannot take advantage of it. In an insolvency, therefore, creditors cannot claim benefits under a contract which benefits would not be available to them in action by suit. A petition for adjudicating a debtor cannot therefore be presented by a person who claims a benefit under an agreement made by the debtor but to which he is not a party and which agreement does not render the debtor personally liable in respect of any debt due to the applicant creditor. I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 238=A.I.R. 1943 Sind 190.

The only exception recognised to the general rule that a third person cannot sue upon a contract is where the third party is in the position of a cestui que trust, e.g., where a family arrangement makes provision for the maintenance or marriage of a minor or of a female member of the family. Where, in a family partition suit an arbitrator is appointed and an award is made under which, it is provided that the debts of the father who receives no property should be a charge on the immovable property allotted to and taken by one of the sons, it cannot be said that any trust is created in favour of the creditor to whom the debts are due by the father, so as to entitle him to sue the son for recovery of his debts on the basis of the award to which he has not been a party. It matters nothing that the parties to the contract are father and sons. The creditor has no right to sue upon this award and to obtain a charge. The creditor can only obtain a decree against the son limited to the assets of his deceased father in his hands. I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 338=A.I.R. 1943 Sind 221. A purchaser from a mortgagor who undertakes to discharge the mortgage debt and communicates to the mortgagee that he (the purchaser) held certain moneys for the mortgagee and asking the mortgagee not to press for payment of the mortgage amount is personally liable to pay the amount to the mortgagee in a suit by the latter. 41 L.W. 123=1935 M. 115=68 M.L.J. 159. Where a person transfers property to another and the deed of transfer contains a stipulation that the transferee should pay a certain sum of money to a creditor of the transferor, the creditor cannot enforce the stipulation as he is a stranger to the contract and the fact that the transferor also is impleaded as a party to the suit and is before the Court does not make any difference. 53 M. 270=68 M. L.J. 420 (F.B.) (43 M.L.J. 129; 47 M.L.J. 517; 25 L.W. 120, overruled). Compare however, 141 I.C. 490=1933 L. 178. See also 68 M.L.J. 159; 16 Lah. 113. 2. In this Act the following words and expressions are used in the following senses, unless a contrary intention appears from the context :—

(a) When one person signifies to another his willingness to do or to abstain from doing anything, with a view to obtaining the assent of that other to such act or abstinence, he is said to make a proposal :

(b) When the person to whom the proposal is made signifies his assent thereto, the proposal is said to be accepted. A proposal, when accepted, becomes a promise :

to the creditor or where the transferee is estopped owing to transactions between him and the creditor stand on a different footing, as also cases of family settlement. 53 M. 270=1930 M. 382=58 M.L.J. 420 (F.B.). It is competent to a tenant to invoke the benefit of a contract between the Government and settlement holder, even though he may not be a party thereto. 53 M. 210. Though a party to a contract can constitute himself a trustee for a third party, of a right under the contract, and thus confer such rights enforceable in equity on the third party, the intention to constitute the trust must be affirmatively proved. It cannot be inferred from the general words in a policy of insurance. 1933 A.C. 70=1933 P.C. 11=64 M.L.J. 133 (P.C.). The assignee of a party to a contract is bound by an arbitration clause in the contract where the subject-matter of the reference is capable of assignment. A submission clause can be incorporated into a contract by reference. 140 I.C. 626=1933 S. 75. If the parties to a building contract choose to agree to abide by the certificate of an architect whom they have named in the agreement, then they must accept the decision of the architect, however, wrong and erroneous it may be. A final certificate given by the architect can be challenged by the owner of the building only on three grounds, viz., fraud, collusion or misconduct on the part of the architect. If there is an arbitration clause in the contract and if there are pending disputes between the parties, then the power given to the architect under the terms of the contract to give a final certificate comes to an end, and the architect can only act under the arbitration clause as arbitrator and cannot act as a certifier. 1943 Bom. 334=44 Bom.L.R. 692. The total repudiation by a person of any liability under a contract to which he is a party operates as a bar to a plea by him that the contract is subject to an arbitration in a suit by the other party on the contract. It is not open to him to say that though he is not bound by the contract the other party is bound by the arbitration clause in it. By repudiating liability he loses all right to insist upon compliance with the arbitration clause. 44 Bom.L.R. 692=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 297.

SEC. (2) (a).—The definition of "contract" in sec. 2 appears to be built upon a succession of definitions of the elements which go to make a contract, that is to say, proposal, acceptance, promise, promisor, promisee, consideration and agreement. The expression "reciprocal promises" is explained and finally a contract is defined as an agreement enforceable by law. On the other hand an agreement not enforceable by law is said to be void; that is to say, it is not a contract at all. 161 I.C. 579=1936 P. 153. An offer must be distinguished from an invitation for an offer. 65 I.C. 282=1922 L. 100. Catalogue of goods is not offer, but only an invitation for offer. 12 O.C. 17; so also statement of lowest price in answer to enquiry. 8 I.C. 601. A letter from a prospective buyer asking for quotations from a merchant is an invitation for an offer. 65 I.C. 282=1922 L. 100. See also 1939 Oudh 249=14 Luck. 710. If the merchant sends his quotations and the buyer accepts them and orders goods, that constitutes the proposal which the seller may or may not accept. 65 I.C. 282. A quotation submitted by a trader as the basis of a possible order from customers is distinct from an offer to sell, which, if accepted, creates a contract for the breach of which damages may be recovered. 37 M.L.J. 712=54 I.C. 550. But see also 7 Bur.L. T. 136=23 I.C. 322. A letter communicating willingness to sell certain property for a certain sum in reply to a later inquiring whether the property is to be sold amounts to an offer or proposal within the meaning of sec. 2 and is not merely an invitation to an offer. 161 I.C. 224=63 C.L.J. 86=1936 C. 87. A bid at an auction is nothing more than an offer and can be withdrawn like all other offers before it is accepted by the fall of the hammer. 43 M.L.J. 132=45 M. 799; 19 I.C. 904=18 C.L.J. 53. An offer to sell and to keep the offer open tell a certain time is nudum pactum and can, at any time before acceptance, be re-called. 31 I.C. 890. Where there was a completed contract, reduction to writing is merely incidental to the completion of the contract. 21 M.L.J. 182=9 I.C. 104. Letter of request for a loan is only a proposal. 71 I.C. 698. See also 13 B. 669; 16 M. 263. It cannot be sued on as a promissory note. 71 I.C. 968. Where a boy runs away from home and the boy's father advertises reward to any one tracing him bringing him home, taking boy to Police Station, making report and sending telegram to boy's father are substantial performance of condition, for which reward may be claimed. See 23 A.L.J. 655=88 I.C. 908=1925 A. 539.

SEC. 2 (b).—As to when communication of acceptance becomes complete, see sec. 4, III. infra. As to contract by offer and acceptance, see 20 I.C. 282=277 P.L.R. 1913; 36 B. 357=14 Bom.L.R. 648. Offer by letter

(c) The person making the proposal is called the "promisor," and the person accepting the proposal is called the "promisee" :

(d) When, at the desire of the promisor, the promisee or any other person has done or abstained from doing, or does or abstains from doing, or promises to do or to abstain from doing, something, such act or abstinence or promise is called a consideration for the promise :

A promise need not be in writing. 23 M. 94. Silence to a letter does not amount to an acceptance of the terms proposed. When a contract of sale of goods has been embodied in a written deed the previous offers and acceptances lose all importance and the only contract between the parties is the written contract. The previous offers and acceptances are merely stages in the negotiations between the parties. A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 35; 1941 Rang. 270. What is proposal and promise in auction sales. 14 M. 235. Incomplete negotiation, not being complete contract cannot be sued upon. 39 B. 529. See also 39 C.W.N. 174. Reward offered for the search of a missing boy, for whose search a servant was already sent, cannot be claimed by the servant though he found the boy out; the servant did not undertake the search after the offer nor on its strength and hence the finding out by him does not amount to acceptance by conduct. 19 I.C. 576=11 A.L.J. 489. See also 23 A.L.J. 655=88 I.C. 908=1925 A. 539.

The relevant words of a letter signed by the plaintiff, and addressed to the defendants were as follows—"We hereby request you to supply or to instruct your friends abroad to buy and to ship, if possible, on our account and risk," and then the contract goods were set out with the terms. The defendants wrote to the plaintiff as follows—"We beg to inform you without any engagement on our part that your under-mentioned valued indent has been placed with thanks." Held, that the contract between the parties was one of sale and purchase, and that the defendants did not merely act as correspondents passing on the plaintiff's order to persons abroad. 47 C.W.N. 86.

SEC. 2 (c).—PROMISOR AND PROMISEE—MERGER.—No man can in his own right be under any obligation to himself. Hence when a hatchita is executed by a person in favour of himself and some others, such person cannot in law be said to be one of the promisees. In other words the promisees must be taken in law to be the person mentioned in hatchita other than such person. Even if all the promisees are assumed to be a person distinct from the promisor the position is not different because the debtor can make payment of such debt to the several creditors and get valid discharge in respect of the share of the creditor concerned. This being so, that portion of the debt of the promisor which is ascribable to himself as one of the promisees will stand discharged by the doctrine of merger or confusio. 1941 Cal. 395. Where an offer containing certain conditions has been made to a party and that party by adding to the conditions makes a counter-offer, the counter-offer amounts to rejection of the offer made to him. 175 I.C. 23=1938 Lah. 341. See also 1938 Cal. 343; 1938 Cal. 423; 50 L.W. 597=1940 M. 49.

SEC. 2 (d).—"Consideration" as defined in this section is wider than the meaning of the term in English law. 61 C. 841=38 C.W.N. 682=1934 C. 682; 165 I.C. 338=38 Bom.L.R. 610=1936 B. 344. There is nothing in sec. 2 to show that a promise to afford future personal service is not good consideration. In most cases where the personal services are promised on the one side specific performance cannot be enforced from the other. Neither the mere fact that specific performance of such a contract cannot be enforced nor the mere fact that in the nature of things one of the promisors is bound to perform his part of the agreement first, renders the contract bad. So long as there is a promise coming from each side and each side promises a thing which can be done, and can legally be done there is consideration. 1942 O.W.N. 652=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 349=1943 Oudh 99. Consideration may move from a third party. 6 M. 351; 136 I.C. 17=1932 L. 185; 134 I.C. 1011; 1940 Rang.L.R. 237=1940 Rang. 91; 1939 Pat. 477; 1937 A.M.L.J. 110 (Cancellation or closing of accounts of a third party). Benefit received by third party would be good consideration for a promise. 147 I.C. 443=1934 A. 271; 165 I.C. 338=38 Bom.L.R. 610=1936 B. 344. An agreement to pay debt due from a third person is good consideration in law. Where a son signs an acknowledgment in respect of money due from his deceased father to save the estate of his father from sale in execution of any decrees that may have been passed against such estate, there is consideration for the acknowledgment and for assumption of personal liability by the son. 38 P.L.R. 85. Thus brokers undertaking to pay the premium is good consideration in marine insurance contract. 27 Bom.L.R. 1310=1926 B. 82. Old debts would be good consideration for a mortgage or transfer of property. 50 I.C. 117; 12 A.L.J. 629=23 I.C. 900=36 A. 365. SEC. 2 (g).—Where a contract is illegal only in part, if such part is separable from the rest, the illegal portion alone is void; but, if it is not so separable, the whole is void, 9 B. 176.

SEC. 2 (g) AND (j) : RELATIVE SCOPE OF.—Not every unenforceable contract is declared void, but only those unenforceable by law, and those words mean not unenforceable by reason of some procedural regulation, but unenforceable by the substantive law. For example, a contract which was from its inception illegal such as a contract with an alien enemy, would be avoided by S. 2 (g) of the Contract Act and one which became illegal in the course of its performance, such as a contract with one who had been an alien friend but later became an alien enemy would be avoided by S. 2 (j). A mere failure to sue within the time specified by the statute of limitation or an inability to sue by reason of the provisions of one of the orders under the C. P. Code would not cause a contract to become void. 43 C.W. N. 641=41 Bom.L.R. 742=1939 A.L.J. 697=1939 P.C. 110=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 253 (P.C.). To say that the contract is void from its inception is a contradiction in terms. A contract void in its inception is not a contract at all; it has not passed from the stage of an agreement to the stage of a contract, but comes within the broad and general principle that a contract void from its inception is no contract at all but an agreement not enforceable at law and therefore void. 31 S.L.R. 170=171 I.C. 1005=1937 Sind 211.

SEC. 2 (h).—A representation as to a fact may be a term of the contract and the party misrepresenting is bound to make good the representation. 31 I.C. 708=17 Bom.L.R. 783.

ORAL AND WRITTEN CONTRACT.—An offer and acceptance may be oral, and yet the terms may be embodied in a document. In such a case the contract is in writing, and not oral. Equally the offer and acceptance may be in writing and yet the terms may be oral, and then the contract is an oral one, not a written one, for it is the terms of the contract which must be embodied in a written instrument before the contract can be considered a written one, and not merely the offer and the acceptance. So also the contract may actually be contained in several documents which, when read together, constitute the entire contract, and they are then regarded as one instrument in the eye of the law, even as they form but one contract. 171 I.C. 553=1937 Nag. 289.

ORAL AGREEMENT—PROOF REQUIRED.—An oral agreement must be proved by the clearest and most satisfactory evidence of credible witnesses, and it would be unwise to act upon oral evidence unless there is contemporaneous written evidence to corroborate it. 43 P.L.R. 97. In the case of joint contractors the death of one does not put an end to the relationship, but the surviving contractor still remains a joint contractor with the heirs of the deceased. 66 C.L.J. 104=42 C.W.N. 18. As to the effect of apparent inconsistency in contract, see 43 Bom.L.R. 403=1940 P.C. 151 (P.C.). As to effect of a contract on printed form, when there is a variation between the printed portion and type-written matter, see (1941) 2 M.L.J. 281. Where the terms of a contract are partly printed and partly written or typed, the position in law is that if the printed terms are inconsistent with what has been written or typed, the latter must prevail over what is printed. 45 Bom. L.R. 405=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 229. In case of conflict between printed and written portion of a contract, the latter prevails. 19 Bom.L.R. 845; but see 30 Bom. 1. Where when an agreement is reached as to the terms of a lease and sale the parties contemplate the execution of a formal deed of lease and sale, that would not per se make the agreement incomplete. 1941 A.L.J. 570=1941 All. 377. Where parties enter into an executory agreement which is to be carried out by a deed afterwards to be executed, the real completed contract is to be found in the deed. The contract is merged in the deed. The most common instance perhaps of this merger is a contract for the sale of land followed by conveyance on completion. All the provisions of the contract which the parties intend should be performed by the conveyance are merged in the conveyance, and all the rights of the purchaser in relation thereto are thereby satisfied. There may, no doubt, be provisions of the contract which, from their nature or from the terms of the contract, survive after completion. 173 I.C. 88 (P. C.). If a document relied upon as constituting a contract contemplates the execution of a further document between the parties, it is always a question of construction whether the execution of the further contract is a condition or term of the bargain or whether it is a mere expression of the desire of the parties as to the manner in which the transaction already agreed to will in fact go through. In the former case, there is no enforceable contract either because the condition is unfulfilled or because the law does not recognise a contract to enter into a contract. In the latter case there is a binding contract, and the reference to the mere formal document may be ignored. 47 Bom.L.R. 878; 1942 Pesh. 33. (The conduct of the parties in acting on the contract before the formal agreement was drawn up is clear evidence of the contract being binding.) In the case of a contract in which a draft agreement and engrossment are evidently contemplated by the parties, the contract cannot be said to be complete without the formal agreement being signed and executed, even though all the terms have been settled one by one and embodied in the draft. Once it is clear that the parties intended that the terms of their bargain are to be reduced to a formal contract, although that understanding is not in writing but is only a matter of oral agreement or of inference from the conduct of the parties, the consequence is that there must be a formal contract signed and executed by the parties before the contract can be said to be complete. I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 361=43 Bom.L.R. 293=1941 Bom. 247. In an action on an alleged contract the burden of proof is upon the plaintiff to show that a firm contract had been entered into between the parties and that something more than mere negotiations had taken place. The negotiations and correspondence must be looked at as a whole to see whether the parties have concluded a binding contract or not. Where only certain terms of the contract were settled and the other terms of the agreement were left open there is no concluded contract. Moreover, when a party to the contract has given the other party to the contract an option for renewal of the contract on terms which would be mutually agreed upon, this does not in any way imply that the terms of the prior contract, or any of them should be incorporated in the new one. In other words, the party does not bind himself in any way to renew the contract upon the old terms. 1939 Rang. 423.

CONTRACT BY GOVERNMENT OFFICERS.—It will be in the public interest and desirable from every point of view if the Government Officers, after an agreement is reached take the precaution of preparing a memorandum signed by both parties, setting out the terms which are reached. The practice of leaving the agreement in the form of correspondence and tenders in anticipation of a formal deed to be executed later on is irregular and has nothing to recommend it. The proper procedure should be that after an agreement is reached, a memorandum of the agreement should be contemporaneously prepared and signed by both parties as evidence of the agreement to be followed later on by a formal document drawn up by a Government conveyancer; but it cannot be said that the law requires that contemporaneously with an oral agreement a document should also be prepared and signed. It is permissible to record the agreement, arrived at orally, later on by correspondence. 1941 A.L.J. 570=1941 O.A. (Supp.) 776=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 891=4 F.L.J. (H.C.) 361=1941 All. 377=I.L.R. (1941) All. 741. Though the actual figure of the rent payable under a lease is not determined, if there is no uncertainty regarding the way in which it should be fixed, there being a definite fixation of rent on an agreed basis, namely, half the net proceeds, it cannot be said that the agreement of lease is bad for uncertainty and so unenforceable. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 518=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 131.

CHAPTER I.

OF THE COMMUNICATION, ACCEPTANCE AND REVOCATION OF PROPOSALS.

3. The communication of proposals, the acceptance of proposals, and the revocation of proposals and acceptances, respectively, are deemed to be made by any act or omission of the party proposing, accepting or revoking by which he intends to communicate such proposal, acceptance or revocation, or which has the effect of communicating it.

Communication when complete. 4. The communication of a proposal is complete when it comes to the knowledge of the person to whom it is made.

The communication of an acceptance is complete,— as against the proposer, when it is put in a course of transmission to him, so as to be out of the power of the acceptor ;

as against the acceptor, when it comes to the knowledge of the proposer.
The communication of a revocation is complete,— as against the person who makes it, when it is put into a course of transmission to the person to whom it is made, so as to be out of the power of the person who makes it ;

as against the person to whom it is made, when it comes to his knowledge.

tration under the Indian Arbitration Act of 1897 but the words used are simply. "Arbitration Act," and the overriding intention of the parties as can be gathered from the contract is that in the matters specified therein their differences should be settled by arbitration, that general intention is to be given effect by taking the words "Arbitration Act" to mean "statutory provisions relating to arbitration" in a case to which the Indian Arbitration Act has no application. This construction will include arbitration under Sch. II, C. P. Code. I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 181=70 C.L.J. 148=43 C.W.N. 879. See now the new Arbitration Act, 1940. As to construction of arbitration clause in a contract, see I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 606; 1940 Cal. 105. As to distinction between void and voidable contracts, see 1938 Nag. 335 (F.B.).

Else it is only a counter-offer. 24 B. 510; 37 I.C. 792. (See also notes under S. 7.) Though a contract implies two parties, a contract in writing does not require the signature of both parties. 22 C.L.J. 311=20 C.W.N. 408. A bond executed and delivered by one party which is accepted by another is a contract in writing. 20 C.W.N. 408. Revocation of contract requires concurrence of both parties. 1925 P.C. 232=23 L.W. 182 (P.C.) Evidence of completion of contract. See 16 I.C. 75 (P.C.). In the case of an ordinary member of public the contract to take shares in a company is completed when an application for shares has been submitted, and allotment on the foot of that application has been made and the notice of the allotment has been communicated to the applicant. In the case of directors, the company is under obligation to allot shares. In such cases it often happens that the company is regarded as making an offer to the directors to take shares; the director's subsequent application for shares is an acceptance of that offer and when the application is made the bargain is completed. 1929 L. 656.

Sec. 4.—An offer is made not at the place from which it is sent but at the place where it reaches the acceptor. 37 M.L.J. 712=54 I.C. 550. See also 1941 N.L.J. 37; 4 Bom. The communication of the acceptance is complete,—

The revocation is complete as against A when the telegram is despatched. It is complete as against B when B receives it.

B revokes his acceptance by telegram. B's revocation is complete as against B when the telegram is despatched, and as against A when it reaches him.

Revocation of proposals and acceptances.

5. A proposal may be revoked at any time before the communication of its acceptance is complete as against the proposer, but not afterwards.

An acceptance may be revoked at any time before the communication of the acceptance is complete as against the acceptor, but not afterwards.

A proposes, by a letter sent by post, to sell his house to B.

B accepts the proposal by a letter sent by post.

A may revoke his proposal at any time before or at the moment when B posts his letter of acceptance, but not afterwards.

B may revoke his acceptance at any time before or at the moment when the letter communicating it reaches A, but not afterwards.

Revocation how made.

6. A proposal is revoked—

(1) by the communication of notice of revocation by the proposer to the other party ;

(2) by the lapse of the time prescribed in such proposal for its acceptance or, if no time is so prescribed, by the lapse of a reasonable time, without communication of the acceptance ;

(3) by the failure of the acceptor to fulfil a condition precedent to acceptance ; or

(4) by the death or insanity of the proposer if the fact of his death or insanity comes to the knowledge of the acceptor before acceptance.

Acceptance must be absolute.

7. In order to convert a proposal into a promise, the acceptance must—

(1) be absolute and unqualified ;

Where allotment of shares was made more than five months after the application and it was not even communicated, held that the offer to take shares must be deemed to have been revoked. 1939 N.L.J. 305=I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 567=1939 Nag. 225.

SEC. 7.—Where a letter by an intending seller making an offer for the sale of certain property directs that the purchaser will have to write about the acceptance of the offer to a certain person at a particular address, the letter is to be read in a reasonable and a sensible manner and it does not exclude the case where the intending purchaser instead of writing to the person concerned puts himself into communication with him, and where the intending pur-

If the proposal prescribes a manner in which it is to be accepted, and the acceptance is not made in such manner, the proposer may, within a reasonable time after the acceptance is communicated to him, insist that his proposal shall be accepted in the prescribed manner, and not otherwise; but if he fails to do so, he accepts the acceptance.

When once a proposal is practically refused it does not hold good and no acceptance after the refusal could convert the proposal into a promise so as to create a contract. 1922 P. 24=80 I.C. 308. The acceptance of a proposal must be unqualified and proposer cannot impose on the party to whom it is addressed the obligation to refuse it under the penalty of imputed assent or attach to his silence the legal result that he must be deemed to have accepted it. 54 I.C. 437=18 A.L.J. 73. See also 37 I.C. 792=5 L.W. 149; 18 A.L.J. 73; 24 B. 510. Acceptance of a proposal may be made without express communication, by conduct of the acceptor. 54 I.C. 437=18 A.L.J. 73. See also 92 P.R. 1913=22 I.C. 811; 49 A. 674=25 A.L.J. 372=1927 A. 407; 113 I.C. 780=1928 L. 938. A written offer to take goods accompanied by a sum of money representing the price is acceptance, if the purchaser credits the money received to his account. 54 I.C. 437=18 A.L.J. 73. Acceptance of an offer with a variation is no acceptance at all; it is simply a counter-proposal which should be accepted by the original promisor before a contract can be made and such an acceptance need not be in writing. 92 P.R. 1913=22 I.C. 811; 120 I.C. 482=1930 L. 374. Mere failure to reply to a counter-proposal would not per se amount to an acceptance thereof. 120 I.C. 482=1930 L. 374. Acceptance is not conditional, merely by an immaterial addition, or by the mere fact that some other terms are discussed in subsequent letters. 5 Bom.L.R. 9=36 B. 110. A qualified acceptance of a proposal is but a counter-proposal, omission to reply to which would not be an acceptance of it. 5 L.W. 149=37 I.C. 792=1917 M.W.N. 91. Acceptance "subject to confirmation by mail" is only conditional acceptance. 1930 L. 325. See also 123 I.C. 838=1930 L. 114; 120 I.C. 482=1930 L. 374; 18 A.L.J. 73; 45 B. 8=57 I.C. 971=22 Bom.L.R. 872.

SECS. 7 AND 8.—A contract is concluded as soon as all the essential terms are settled, though the formal documents have yet to be executed. 54 I.C. 550=37 M.L.J. 712; 21 M.L.J. 182. See also 148 I.C. 522=1934 A.L.J. 719=1934 A. 298 (Acceptance and communication of the same in respect of contract of insurance). An acceptance must be absolute and unconditional and must correspond with the terms of the offer, without leaving any term open to future negotiation. If it contains a material variation of the terms of the offer there is no consensus ad idem or agreement upon which a contract can be founded. If it introduces terms not comprised in the offer, no contract is made; the original offer must be deemed to have been refused and a counter offer made. A qualified acceptance is equivalent to a new offer which may be either accepted or rejected. But the person making the counter-proposal cannot subsequently make a binding contract by accepting the original offer. 12 Mys. L. J. 81=39 Mys. H.C.R. 263. Mistake of telegraph officials in transmitting terms of proposal will prevent the proposal from maturing into a contract. 1910 M.W.N. 513. If a contract has to be made out from the correspondence between the parties, the whole of the correspondence is to be seen in order to determine whether there was a completed contract. 54 I.C. 550=37 M.L.J. 712. When the proposal and acceptance are made by means of letters the contract must be deemed to have been made at the place where the letter of acceptance is posted. 73 I.C. 205=1923 L. 427. See also 39 M. 509=31 M.L.J. 58=34 I.C. 921 (P.C.).

SEC. 8.—Prospectus of company in case of insurance policy, railway receipts, etc., are deemed part of the contract. 25 M. 183; 21 M. 172. Acceptance may be implied from conduct. 49 A. 674=1927 A. 407.

AUCTION SALES.—In the absence of any restriction to the contrary in the conditions of sale, a person may bid as benamidar for another and the fact that the bidder did not disclose his character of benamidar does

9. In so far as the proposal or acceptance of any promise is made in words, Promises, express and implied. the promise is said to be express. In so far as such proposal or acceptance is made otherwise than in words, the promise is said to be implied.

CHAPTER II.

OF CONTRACTS, VOIDABLE CONTRACTS AND VOID AGREEMENTS.

10. All agreements are contracts if they are made by the free consent of parties competent to contract, for a lawful consideration and with a lawful object, and are not hereby expressly declared to be void.

What agreements are contracts.

not entitle the principal to revoke the auction sale. 29 I.C. 12=28 M.L.J. 617. When an amin holding an auction sale accepts the highest bid on behalf of his principal subject to the principal giving his assent to it, there is a valid and enforceable contract when that assent has been given. 28 M.L.J. 617.

SEC. 9.—Implied contracts are as much binding as express contracts on the parties. 16 I.C. 609; 31 I.C. 783=29 M.L.J. 749; 49 A. 674=1927 A. 407. See also 9 M.I.A. 256 (Contract to pay interest implied from mercantile usage). S. 9 proclaims the existence of both express or implied promises. 1939 A.M.L.J. 137. Agreement to pay compound interest may be inferred from course of business for a long period. 38 M.L.J. 387=44 B. 474=47 I.A. 17 (P.C.). Agent's claim for extra remuneration on implied contract is enforceable. 31 I.C. 783=29 M.L.J. 749.

SEC. 10: CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACT.—Each contract must be construed with reference to its own terms, and not by reference to any other contract. 19 C.W.N. 623. Evidence of what took place after the contract is not good evidence as to construction of contract. 36 B. 387 (P.C.). As to construction of contracts, see also 1933 M. 322=64 M.L.J. 354=56 M. 433 (F.B.); 1931 M. 799=135 I.C. 540; 1931 L. 657=132 I.C. 489. If the documents or letters relied on as constituting a contract contemplate the execution of a further contract between the parties it is a question of construction whether the execution of the further contract was intended as a condition or term of the bargain or whether it was a mere expression of the desire of the parties for a formal agreement. In the former case there is no concluded or enforceable contract until the condition is fulfilled, i.e., until the former agreement has been executed. In the latter case there is a binding contract and the reference to the more formal document may be ignored. 1933 P.C. 29=37 C. W.N. 265=64 M.L.J. 103 (P.C.). If a party to an agreement embodied in a document is told that any stipulation in the agreement would not be enforced, he cannot be held to have assented to it. The document does not amount to real agreement between the parties and the other party cannot sue on it. 63 I.A. 126=59 M. 446=40 C.W.N. 353=70 M.L.J. 232 (P.C.). Where a written contract is doubtful in its meaning the surrounding circumstances existing at the creation of the contract and the subject-matter to which it is designed and intended to apply can be looked into. The Court may also look into the conduct of the parties to obtain a true meaning of the contract. 1932 A.L.J. 329=1932 A. 600. In case of conflict between printed portion of a contract and the written portion, the written portion prevails. 19 Bom.L.R. 845. But see 30 B. 1. A Barrister-at-Law practising as an Advocate in the High Court is not disentitled to sue his client for recover of fees due. 55 A. 570=1933 A. 417=1933 A.L.J. 451 (F.B.) [overruling 25 A. 509]. A Subordinate Judge is a person and is capable of entering into a contract. 52 A. 844=1931 A.L.J. 41=1931 A. 189 (F.B.). But there is no provision in the C. P. Code or any other statute empowering a Judge to enter into a contract on behalf of the Secretary of State. The Courts are given statutory power to pass decrees and orders and to perform certain acts but not enter into contracts. 52 A. 844. A bare promise to pay is not a contract enforceable at law unless it is supported by consideration. Where the original debt, which is the consideration, is not proved the contract is not legally enforceable. 8 O.W.N. 1210. A deed of sale supported by ample consideration and executed by persons who have attained majority and are otherwise competent to act and dispose of their property is binding upon them, in the absence of evidence that they were wrongfully induced so to act. 44 C.W.N. 1=1939 A.L.J. 844=1939 P.C. 219 (P.C.).

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—A mortgage without consideration is a nullity and inoperative. 35 I.C. 455. An agreement to give time to judgment-debtor like all other agreements must be supported by consideration. 24 I.C. 391. An entry by a broker embodying the terms of the contract signed by the broker is a written intimation by the broker to each party that a contract has been effected. 19 I.C. 925=6 S.L.R. 278. See also 39 B. 528=29 I.C. 943=17 Bom.L.R. 566.

Nothing herein contained shall affect any law in force in British India, and not hereby expressly repealed, by which any contract is required to be made in writing or in the presence of witnesses, or any law relating to the registration of documents.

11. Every person is competent to contract who is of the age of majority according to the law to which he is subject, and who is of sound mind, and is not disqualified from contracting by any law to which he is subject.

Who are competent to contract.

SEC. 11: CONTRACT BY MINOR.—A minor is not estopped from pleading his minority at the time of a contract and the minor is not liable on the contract. 21 C.W.N. 257 = 19 Bom.L.R. 157 = 43 I.A. 256 (P.C.). See also 54 I.C. 876 = 162 P.R. 1919; 1924 L. 294; 66 P.W.R. 1921. Minority at the time of contract must be proved beyond reasonable doubt by the party pleading the same. 89 I.C. 108 = 1925 O. 487. (As to duration of minority when guardian is appointed by Court, see 134 I.C. 293 = 1931 L. 394; Majority Act, S. 3.) A mortgage made by a minor is wholly void and the mortgagee is not entitled to enforce his security created under the mortgage. 162 P.R. 1919 = 54 I.C. 876. Where a partition is alleged to have taken place between a father and his minor children by an agreement, entered into between them, the partition is not valid. 1934 R. 2. A promissory note executed by a person for whom a guardian of person has been appointed by the Court before he attained eighteen years is a void contract if it was executed by him before he attained twenty-one years. 57 I.C. 678 = 11 L.W. 596 (30 C. 539, Ref. to). See also 134 I.C. 293 = 1931 L. 394; 152 I.C. 262 = 1934 M. 560 = 67 M.L.J. 257. (Fraudulent misrepresentation as to age makes no difference as regards the liability of the minor). Estoppel cannot overrule a plain provision of law or form the basis of a cause of action for a suit upon a contract when the contract itself is void. 57 I.C. 678 = 11 L.W. 596; 152 I.C. 262 = 67 M.L.J. 257. See also cases under heading Estoppel, infra. Where a person under the Court of Wards borrows money, a debt comes into existence though the person is not liable and a subsequent bond by his son for that debt is not merely ratification of a former void contract but is a fresh contract. 46 I.C. 974. A judgment-debtor to whom Sch. III, para. 11, C.P. Code, applies is a person disqualified within the meaning of S. 11 to the extent stated in the paragraph and any transaction entered with him in contravention thereof is a mere nullity incapable of subsequent ratification or of enforcement in equity. 42 I.C. 200 = 13 N.L.R. 130 (F.B.). See also 1941 N. L.J. 363; 171 I.C. 96 = 1937 O.W.N. 1034 = 1938 Oudh 14. Vakalatnama—Competency of minor to execute in favour of advocate to conduct criminal case—Minor—Competent. See 44 Mys.H.C.R. 119 = 18 Mys.L.J. 26.

MINOR BENEFICIARY.—A person competent to contract may validly create a trust by purchasing property in the name of a minor. If a minor is not a contracting party himself but is the beneficiary under a sale, the transaction will be upheld. 18 I.C. 963 = 24 M.L.J. 352. When a contract by the minor is not a necessary condition for upholding the rights of the minor in the property, his rights should be maintained; when it is a necessary condition preliminary to the transaction or contractual obligations flow from the transaction, the transaction is void. 18 I.C. 963 = 24 M.L.J. 352.

MINOR COPARCENER.—Minor member of a joint Hindu family of whose person a guardian is appointed cannot contract. 57 I.C. 678 = 11 L.W. 596.

MINOR PARTNER.—A minor coparcener cannot sue as partner for dissolution of a partnership. 38 I.C. 111. A minor in India cannot become a partner in his own rights, as he is incapable of contracting under S. 11. (Ibid.)

MINOR PROMISEE.—A contract of sale negotiated by a minor who settled the terms, paid consideration and got a sale-deed executed in his name is altogether void ab initio and no title passes thereby to the minor. 27 I.C. 733 = 13 A.L.J. 185; 10 I.C. 906. See also 32 I.C. 636. The subsequent ratification of a contract entered into by a minor cannot form a valid contract on which suit can be maintained. Hence nothing could be recovered on a pronote which is in novation of a prior pronote which is entirely void, by reason of its having been executed during minority. 1941 N.L.J. 363. See also 1937 O.W.N. 1034; 196 I.C. 785 = 1941 O.A. 1028 (P.C.). There is a fundamental difference between a contract of sale and a completed conveyance. 27 I.C. 733 = 13 A.L.J. 185; 10 I.C. 906; 32 I.C. 636 (39 C. 232; 33 M. 12; 33 A. 657; 31 A. 68, Ref. to). A sale in favour of a minor is valid. 33 A. 657 = 11 I.C. 20 = 8 A.L.J. 670; 18 O.C. 115 = 30 I.C. 200. See also 18 I.C. 451. Where a certificated guardian sells his property to his ward there is a presumption that the guardian accepts the sale on behalf of his ward. (Ibid.) A mortgage bond executed by a person of full age in favour of minors as a security for a loan is not void and is enforceable at their instance. 33 I.C. 994 = 22 C.W.N. 130. 4 P.L.J. 682 = 52 I.C. 338. See also 161 I.C. 579 = 1936 P. 153. An infant can purchase property. 39 I.C. 44 (33 A. 657; 38 A. 62; 38 A. 154; 18 I.C. 451; 30 I.C. 200; 24 M.

L.J. 352, Ref.; 33 M. 312, Disappr.). There is nothing in the Contract Act that prevents an infant from being a promisee. When consideration passes from a minor he can enforce the contract. 40 M. 308=31 M.L.J. 575=36 I.C. 921 (F.B.). A purchase of property for the benefit of a minor by his maternal uncle is valid and if the property is alienated by the minor's father the minor can recover. 26 I.C. 195=37 M. 390; 24 I.C. 927=1 L.W. 379. See also 59 B. 656=37 Bom.L.R. 461=1935 B. 353. A contract creating only rights in favour of a minor and not involving any contractual obligation on his part is valid. 18 I.C. 968=24 M.L.J. 363. A promote executed in favour of a minor is valid though he does not incur liability by endorsing it. 18 I.C. 968=24 M.L.J. 363. See also 76 I.C. 810=1924 R. 136. A lease in a minor's favour imposing a liability on him is null and void. 3 Pat.L.J. 518=46 I.C. 670.

MINOR PROMISOR.—Where a minor purports to contract, his alleged contract is void and not merely voidable; he is a person who is not competent to contract. 18 A.L.J. 335=22 Bom.L.R. 531=38 M.L.J. 353 (P.C.). Fresh bond executed by minor on attaining majority in lieu of one executed during minority is void and unenforceable. 1937 O.L.R. 522=1937 O.W.N. 1034. Where a minor on attaining majority records his approval of the action of his guardian in granting a lease of his land and strikes his own bargain with the lessee by executing a new patta, that patta and the corresponding kabuliyat alone record the bargain between the parties, and govern their respective rights and liabilities, and the terms of the lease granted by the guardian cannot be treated as incorporated in that patta. 196 I.C. 785=1941 O.A. 1028 (P.C.). A minor cannot make a valid contract of sale of land. He can sue for recovery of the property on attaining majority. 33 I.C. 133; 21 A.L.J. 596=45 A. 644=1924 A. 156. A contract by a minor is void, not merely voidable. 26 I.C. 195=37 M. 390. See also 33 I.C. 132. Execution of bond—Consideration—Suit for cancellation of bond—Duty to restore. 69 I.C. 888=25 O.C. 237.

MUTUALITY.—It is not within the competence of the guardian of a minor or the manager of his estate, to bind the minor or his estate by a contract for the purchase of immovable property. If the guardian or manager of the minor's estate enters into such a contract for the minor, there is no mutuality in the contract as the minor is not bound by it and the minor cannot, on attaining majority, obtain specific performance of the contract. 39 C. 232=39 I.A. 1=21 M.L.J. 1156 (P.C.). A contract for the minor's benefit may be specifically enforced against him. 13 I.C. 673=16 C.W.N. 297.

ESTOPPEL.—A deed executed by a minor is a nullity and incapable of founding a plea of estoppel. 47 C.L.J. 628=1928 P.C. 152

=55 M.L.J. 88 (P.C.); 1930 M.W.N. 891=1930 M. 945; 122 I.C. 266=25 N.L.R. 85=1929 N. 156. But see also 122 I.C. 466=11 L. 167; 31 Bom.L.R. 340; 30 Punj.L.R. 584=1929 L. 880. Mere misrepresentation as to age, in the absence of fraud, will not operate as an estoppel against the minor. 140 I.C. 325=1933 M. 94. See also 58 C. 224=132 I.C. 84=1931 C. 393; 55 B. 741=33 Bom.L.R. 1313=1931 B. 561 (F.B.) (55 M.L.J. 88 (P.C.), Rel. on.); 1937 Lah. 598 (failure of minor to reveal his age, if and when fraud). When granting relief to minor on ground of minority, Court can direct refund of money received and applied for benefit of the minor. 141 I.C. 152=1933 A. 372; 45 A. 644=1924 A. 156; 69 I.C. 888=25 O.C. 237.

RATIFICATION.—A contract by a minor is void and cannot be ratified by him after attaining majority. 46 I.C. 765; 53 I.C. 123; 99 I.C. 318=1927 L. 24; 130 I.C. 598=33 Bom.L.R. 111=1931 B. 178; 16 L. 546=1935 L. 561 (F.B.). But see 1937 Sind 310=31 S.L.R. 502. Fresh bond on attaining majority ratifying previous bond given while minor is unenforceable. 49 A. 137=25 A.L.J. 132=1927 A. 242. See also 1937 O. W.N. 1034; 51 I.C. 410; 31 Punj.L.R. 471; 33 Bom.L.R. 111. It is quite competent to a person emerging from a state of disability to take up and carry on transactions commenced while he was under disability in such a way as to bind himself as to the whole. Held, though the original agreement with a minor was void, if the relation was continued after the minor attained majority and the business was carried on jointly by the parties, and the minor had so acted as to bind himself by the contract, it would be grossly unjust if the minor, after quietly carrying out fresh dealings from day to day for a fairly long period and taken all the benefits, were allowed to turn round and disclaim everything he had done and refuse to render an account on the ground that when the dealings commenced at first his age was short of the age of majority by nine days. The new transactions made after minority had passed were not merely ratifying the void agreement, but fresh business conducted on terms which could be ascertained from that agreement. 45 Bom.L.R. 761=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 362. A contract of exchange made by a minor is void and as such cannot be ratified by him after attaining majority or by his mother. 51 I.C. 410=38 P.R. 1919 (30 C. 539, Ref.). A minor has no right to enforce a fraudulent contract of his guardian. 65 I.C. 459=11 L.B.R. 83.

REFUND OF CONSIDERATION RECEIVED BY MINOR.—Where a minor brings a suit to set aside a sale brought about by him by misrepresenting his age to the vendee, it is open to the Court under S. 41 of the Specific Relief Act, at the time of setting aside the sale, to direct the minor to refund the

12. A person is said to be of sound mind for the purpose of making a contract, if, at the time when he makes it, he is capable of understanding it and of forming a rational judgment as to its effect upon his interests.

What is a sound mind for the purposes of contracting.

A person who is usually of unsound mind, but occasionally of sound mind, may make a contract when he is of sound mind.

A person who is usually of sound mind, but occasionally of unsound mind, may not make a contract when he is of unsound mind.

(a) A patient in a lunatic asylum, who is at intervals of sound mind, may contract during those intervals.

(b) A sane man, who is delirious from fever or who is so drunk that he cannot understand the terms of a contract or form a rational judgment as to its effect on his interests, cannot contract whilst such delirium or drunkenness lasts.

BARRISTER-AT-LAW—RIGHT TO SUE FOR FEES.—A barrister-at-law practising as an advocate in the High Court is not disentitled to sue his client for recover of fees due. (25 A. 509, Overr.) 55 A. 570=1933 A.L.J. 451=1933 A. 417 (F.B.).

SEC. 12: SCOPE.—The contract of a lunatic is void. 17 M.L.J. 78. Original presumption is in favour of sanity. 1 M.H.C. R. 214. Test of soundness of mind. 68 I.C. 372=4 Pat.L.T. 7. See also 27 A. 1 (P.C.). For the purposes of S. 12, the test of unsoundness of mind is whether the person is incapable of understanding the business concerned and its implications and mere weakness of mind is not sufficient. Unsoundness of mind and undue influence are totally different things. 1927 C. 889.

BURDEN OF PROOF AND PRESUMPTION.—The question whether a contract is invalidated by unsoundness of mind does not depend merely on belief or unbelief of the witnesses before the Court, but depends largely upon inferences to be drawn from the evidence. (1927 C. 889, Foll.) 144 I.C. 741=34 P.L.R. 297=1933 L. 458. The onus of proving insanity or unsoundness of mind is in the first place on the person who alleges it, the normal presumption being of sanity. But where there is sufficient evidence to discharge that primary burden then the burden shifts to the person who alleges his sanity to prove that the contract was made during a lucid interval. I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 236=1941 N.L.J. 287=1941 Nag. 251. Where the fact of undue influence was not seriously disputed the burden lies on him who denies to show that no undue influence was used and the transaction was made in good faith. 1934 A.L.J. 817=1934 A. 507. Where mental incapacity is proved, such as senile dementia in the case of an old man, it is reasonable to presume its continuance, and the onus will be on person who wish the Court to uphold transactions entered into by the patient subsequent to the date when it was proved, to prove that the transactions were not vitiated on the ground of his incapacity. 1940 Mad. 73=50 L.W. 668=1939 M.W.N. 1023. Old age—Loss of vigour owing to old age is not sufficient to invalidate contract. 104 I.C. 527=1927 C. 889. Where a party executing a deed seeks to avoid the effect of the same by pleading insanity at the time of executing the same, it is of the utmost importance that the pleadings and evidence of parties on record are scrutinized with advertence to the law of contract as contained in S. 12. 177 I.C. 80=1938 Nag. 204.

LUCID INTERVAL—CONTRACT MADE DURING—VALIDITY.—When a person has been found lunatic by inquisition, so long as the inquisition has not been superseded, he cannot, even during a lucid interval, execute a valid deed dealing with or disposing of his property. The Court will not recognise such a deed even by directing proceedings to be taken to try the question of its validity or to perpetuate testimony as to the state of the lunatic's mind when it was executed but will treat the deed as entirely null and void. (Walker, In re, (1905) 1 Ch. 160, Foll.) 56 M. 904=1933 M. 624=65 M.L.J. 279.

SECS. 14 TO 17.—Fraud, undue influence and coercion are separate categories in law. Specific allegations and particulars must be given in respect of each. 39 B. 441=27 M.L.J. 34=42 I.A. 135 (P.C.).

“Free consent” defined. 14. Consent is said to be free when it is not caused by—

- (1) coercion, as defined in section 15, or
- (2) undue influence, as defined in section 16, or
- (3) fraud, as defined in section 17, or
- (4) misrepresentation, as defined in section 18, or
- (5) mistake, subject to the provisions of sections 20, 21 and 22.

Consent is said to be so caused when it would not have been given but for the existence of such coercion, undue influence, fraud, misrepresentation or mistake.

15. “Coercion” is the committing or threatening to commit, any act forbidden by the Indian Penal Code, or the unlawful detaining or threatening to detain, any property, to the prejudice of any person whatever, with the intention of causing any person to enter into an agreement.

Explanation.—It is immaterial whether the Indian Penal Code is or is not in force in the place where the coercion is employed.

Illustration.

A, on board an English ship on the high seas, causes B to enter into an agreement by an act amounting to criminal intimidation under the Indian Penal Code.

A afterwards sues B for breach of contract at Calcutta.

A has employed coercion, although his act is not an offence by the law of England, and although section 506 of the Indian Penal Code was not in force at the time when or place where the act was done.

SEC. 14.—Consent, when free. Per Pal, J.—Consent is free when the activity of man by which it is effected works without obstacles to impede its exercise. The obstacles are named in S. 14. 78 C.L.J. 129 =1945 Cal. 218.

SEC. 15.—Every conceivable form of improper pressure falls under S. 15. 25 B. 10; 4 A. 352; 22 A. 224 (as threat of suicide); 41 M. 33. S. 15 does not control S. 72 and coercion in S. 72 is not the same as defined in S. 15. 40 C. 598=40 I.A. 56 =25 M.L.J. 104 (P.C.). Coercion—Plea of, and proof. 39 B. 149=28 I.C. 921=17 Bom.L.R. 157. A suspicion or mere probability is not sufficient to support a plea of coercion. (Ibid.) The essence of contract is that the parties should be free to enter into the contract or not as they please and no penalty is attached to either for a refusal to do so. A transaction (to accept assessment offered) made and signed under duress, even when the duress is legal, cannot be termed a contract. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 180=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 201. A mortgagee who refuses to re-convey the mortgaged properties to the mortgagor except on certain terms is not guilty of coercion. 45 I.C. 738=27 C.L.J. 78. In dealing with a case of “coercion” as invalidating a contract, the Court should decide whether the alleged act of coercion amounts to an offence under the I.P. Code. 34 I.C. 578=3 L.W. 490. A threat to commit suicide to induce a document to be executed by a person is a threat to commit an act forbidden by the Indian Penal Code and amounts to a ‘coercion’ and the document executed in pursuance of that threat is invalid and inoperative. Though suicide itself is not punishable its attempt is. 41 M. 33=32 M.L.J. 494 (F.B.). The ‘coercion’ need not proceed from a party to the contract or be immediately directed against the party whom it is intended to coerce, to enter into the contract or specifically prejudice him or his property. 3 L. W. 490=34 I.C. 578. A threat even from a third person amounts to coercion. 16 I.C. 344=15 O.C. 192. The law of duress of English Common Law is not applicable in India, as the law laid down in S. 15 is other than that contained in English Law texts. 16 I.C. 344=15 O.C. 192. In order to establish coercion, a person must prove (1) the utterance of threat, (2) of an act forbidden by law, (3) with the intention of compelling the plaintiff to make the agreement complained of. 16 I.C. 344; 1927 M.W.N. 761. Mere threat of bringing a criminal charge does not amount to coercion as defined in the Act, as it is not per se forbidden by Penal Code. 1927 M.W.N. 761; 13 L. 356; 140 I.C. 220=1932 L. 541. But the case is different when the threat is bringing false charge. 1927 M.W.N. 761. As to threat of bringing a false suit, see 161 I.C. 347=38 P.L.R. 727=1936 L. 6. Coercion may consist in the unlawful detaining or threatening to detain property. 55 I. C. 741=12 Bur.L.T. 195; 1927 M.W.N. 761; 13 L. 356 =1932 L. 546. According to S. 15 ‘coercion’ among other things, includes the unlawful detention of another man’s property with the intention of causing him to enter into an agreement. Where in order to recover a fine imposed on a son the property belonging both to the father and son is attached and the father, to save the property from sale, pays the amount of the fine, his payment can in no sense be said to be voluntary. This amounts to coercion and the father can sue to recover it back. 1939 All.

ESSENTIALS OF UNDUE INFLUENCE.—Acts of undue influence range themselves under one or other of these heads—Coercion or fraud. Therefore a case of misrepresentation fails when its evidence falls under neither of these heads. 61 I.A. 224=9 Luck. 178=67 M.L.J. 7 (P.C.). The fact that a person accepted the terms of a compromise, as he had no other option, cannot be the test to determine whether compromise is liable to be attacked as vitiated by undue influence. 183 I.C. 855=1939 Pat. 477. S. 16 relates to transactions entered into by persons between whom there is fiduciary relationship. 165 I. C. 597=1936 O.W.N. 1106=1937 O. 56. Advice and persuasion in the case of a person who does not readily agree to do a thing would not be proof of undue influence. Persuasion, appeals to the affections or ties of kindred, to a gratitude of sentiment for past services, or pity for future destitution or the like,—these are all legitimate, and may be fairly pressed on a promisor. On the other hand, pressure of whatever character, whether acting on the fears or the hopes, if so exerted as to overpower the volition without convincing the judgment, is a species of restraint under which no valid contract or transaction can be made. Importunity or threats, such as the promisor has not the courage to resist, moral command asserted and yielded to for the sake of peace and quiet, or of escaping from distress of mind or social discomfort, these, if carried to a degree in which the free play of the promisor's judgment, discretion or wish is overborne, will constitute undue influence, though no force is either used or threatened. A party may be led but not driven; and his will must be the offspring of his own volition and not the record of someone else's. Where a party has entered into a transaction when he is surrounded and pressed by those whose interest clearly lies in his entering into it, without any independent advice or opportunity to acquaint himself as to his rights, S. 16 of the Contract Act will apply, and a Court of Equity will protect a young man of tender age who has entered into such a transaction at the instance of those who are in a position to dominate his will. The righteousness of the transaction is one of the factors to be considered, but it is not the only one. All the circumstances connected with it must be taken as a whole. 39 Bom.L.R. 1233=1938 Bom. 97. Under S. 16 of the Act contracts are not avoided simply because they are hard or harsh. They are avoided because there is no such consent on the part of the other party as, in principle, can be regarded as a contract by him. In order to establish undue influence, two things must be shown; the person in a position to dominate the other's will and using that position to obtain an unfair advantage. Where the transaction was finished through an attorney and the borrower had also other advice. Held, that undue influence was not proved. 61 C.L.J. 283. See also 160 I.C. 1073=1936 P. 78. The essentials to constitute undue influence are (1) that the transaction was not a righteous transaction, that is, that it was not a thing which a right-minded person might be expected to do; (2) that it was improvident, that is to say, that it showed so much improvidence as to suggest the idea that the donor was not master of himself and not in a state of mind to weigh what he was doing; (3) that it was a matter requiring a legal adviser. 118 I.C. 737. Under S. 16 (1) of the Contract Act, three things must be proved before a contract can be said to be induced by undue influence, namely (1) that the relations subsisting between the parties are such that one of the parties is in a position to dominate the will of the other; (2) that he used that position; and (3) that an unfair advantage over the other was obtained by the use of that position. 1937 O.L.R. 114=1937 O.W.N. 277=1937 Oudh 254; 1937 C. 492. To establish a plea of undue influence it must be shown that plaintiff (mortgagee) was in a position to dominate the will of the defendants (mortgagors) and secondly that he used that position to obtain unfair advantage. If the terms of the contract appear on the face of them to be unconscionable or are shown to be so, the second point may be presumed. 38 M.L.J. 349=43 M. 546=47 I.A. 1 (P.C.); 48 A. 666=96 I.C. 684=24 A.L.J. 822; (1937) I M.L.J. 719 (P.C.). In the category of cases of undue influence might be covered cases where the party to a transaction exercised that influence in conspiracy with or through the agency of others. 43 M. 546.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing principle, a person is deemed to be in a position to dominate the will of another—

(a) where he holds a real or apparent authority over the other, or where he stands in a fiduciary relation to the other; or

(b) where he makes a contract with a person whose mental capacity is temporarily or permanently affected by reason of age, illness, or mental or bodily distress.

(3) Where a person who is in a position to dominate the will of another, enters into a contract with him, and the transaction appears, on the face of it or on the evidence adduced, to be unconscionable, the burden of proving that such contract was not induced by undue influence shall lie upon the person in a position to dominate the will of the other.

Nothing in this sub-section shall affect the provisions of section 111 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872.

=47 I.A. 1=38 M.L.J. 340 (P.C.). To avoid contract for undue influence the promisee must have used his dominating position to obtain an unfair advantage. 24 I.C. 67=7 Bur.L.T. 90. See also 32 B. 37; 11 O.C. 295; 10 Lah.L.J. 27.

TRANSACTION UNCONSCIONABLE.—Even if a transaction of mortgage be unconscionable, that fact alone is not sufficient to shift the burden of proof to the mortgagees by raising a presumption of undue influence. 145 I.C. 432=1933 L. 682. The mere fact that a party to an agreement has very strong motive for executing it raises no presumption that he has been unduly influenced. 14 L. 827=144 I.C. 497=1933 L. 835; 10 Lah. 613=1929 Lah. 295 (Assignment by Hindu reversioner).

CONFIDENTIAL RELATIONS GIVING RISE TO UNDUCE INFLUENCE.—When a person obtains any benefit from another, whether under a contract or as a gift by exerting his influence which, in the opinion of Court, prevents the grantor from exercising an independent judgment in the matter in question, the latter can, in a Court of Equity, set aside the contract or recover the gift. The Court of Equity imposes on the grantee the burden, if he wishes to maintain the contract or gift, of proving that in fact he exerted no influence for the purpose of obtaining it. This rule of equity is not restricted to cases where strictly or technically fiduciary relationship is established. It extends to cases where the possibility of exercising influence exists from confidence created or established by the relation between the donor and donee. The principle has been established to cases of pardanashin ladies. The rule must apply to all variety of relations in which the court is satisfied that the possibility of exercise of dominion and influence exists; that is the relation of active confidence justifying the raising of the presumption of undue influence. The application of the rule of presumption must, however, depend not merely upon the circumstances attending the transaction but upon the relationship itself. The relation of paramour and mistress may be included in such cases if the party obtaining the benefit is in a position to dominate and influence the will of the other. When the power of influence and the influence itself are established, something more than a bare assertion of affection or a generous feeling of gratitude must be furnished to turn the scale. 40 Bom.L.R. 132=1938 Bom. 304.

(1) PARENT AND CHILD, 30 M. 169; see also 53 M.L.J. 842. The influence is to be inferred from the special relationship between the parties, quite apart from proof of actual fraud or unfair advantage. In English law a special relationship of confidence does exist between parent and child, notwithstanding that the child is actually of age at the time the transaction takes place. These principles are equally applicable to a case under S. 16. 1940 Rang. L. R. 35=1940 Rang. 278.

(8) EXPECTANT HEIRS.—In case of a sale of reversion by expectant heirs, of transfers by persons under pressure without adequate protection, the burden of showing the fairness of the transaction is thrown on the person who seeks to obtain the benefit of the contract. The Court protects expectant heirs against the consequences of their not being on equal terms with the buyer, or in a position fully to understand the value of their interest, and justly to estimate the proposals made to them. Inadequacy of price is not alone sufficient to authorise the vacating of a contract for the sale of a reversion, but inadequacy of price coupled with the inexperience and absence of any competent advice on the part of the seller are sufficient to set in motion the protective powers of the Court of Equity. 46 L.W. 429=1937 P.C. 14=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 87 (P.C.).

(9) HUSBAND AND WIFE do not necessarily and always stand in such relation. 33 C. 773 (P.C.). There is no presumption that a young wife is always in a position to dominate the will of her husband. 123 I.C. 369=1930 A. 169. A wife does not fall within the class of "protected" persons in respect of whom in certain relationships there is a presumption of undue influence, though in some cases it is easy for the wife to discharge the onus which lies on her as on every one else outside the protected class to show that a particular contract was, in fact, procured by the undue influence of her husband. 1934 A.L.J. 763=40 L.W. 400=1934 P.C. 210 (P.C.). Where a mortgage of her "stridhanam" property is executed by a wife as security for the debts of her husband who is shown to be heavily involved, and the circumstances show that the wife knew nothing of the nature of the transaction and simply did as she was told by her husband (who has been managing her property always) and signed whatever document she was asked to execute, a presumption that she is acting under the influence of her husband is justified. In order to establish the presumption, it is not necessary that the parties should stand in any particular category of relationship to each other; it will arise in any case in which the facts show that the circumstances are such that influence can fairly be inferred. It is not necessary to decide whether there was any actual fraud by the husband; it is enough to show that the wife was acting under the influence of her husband and not as a free agent. A third party benefitting by a transaction and having notice of the facts which raise the presumption is in no better position than the person who exercises in influence. 49 C.W.N. 55=57 L.W. 605=1944 M.W.N. 664=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 350=I.L.R. 1945 Bom. 189=47 Bom.L.R. 242 (P.C.).

(10) TRANSFER BY ELDERLY INVALID PERSON TO ONE NURSING HIM.—When people who are nursing an elderly invalid get a transfer of practically the whole of his remaining property in their favour to the complete exclusion of his heir, the transaction being made without the knowledge of his heir, it is for them to prove the bona fides of the transfer. 144 I.C. 673=1933 R. 90. Where the donor was a very old man whose vision was defective and whose sole companion in life was lying dangerously ill when the deed of gift was executed, it was held that the onus was on the donee to prove that the gift was not induced by undue influence inasmuch as the donee was in a position to dominate the will of the donor within the meaning of S. 16 (2) (b). 1942 A.L.W. 666.

(11) PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.—Release deed by principal to agent—Agent in possession of documents, account books and cash refusing to hand over the same to new agent till release was executed constitutes coercion and undue influence—Release deed not enforceable. 50 M. 786=1927 M. 852=53 M.L.J. 606.

(12) LANDLORD AND TENANT.—A presumption of undue influence is not warranted by the mere fact of the existence of the relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties to a transaction. Before such a presumption could arise there must be some positive evidence to show that the landlord exercised some undue influence on the tenant. 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 27=1942 A.L.J. (Supp.) 4.

(13) DEBTOR AND CREDITOR.—As to lending money to a profligate young man, see 90 I.C. 39=26 Punj.L.R. 506=1925 L. 430. See also 1931 M. W. N. 215; 166 I. C. 834=1937 P.C. 14. (Sale by reversionary expectant heir to his creditor); see also 1935 L. 479=158 I.C. 257. Defendants 1 and 2 were two Hindu brothers and 3rd defendant was their nephew. The latter had from his infancy been living with his uncles and under their protection. The brothers stood in a fiduciary relation to the 3rd defendant and they used their influence to obtain an undue advantage and got him to undertake on their behalf certain liabilities to their creditor, the plaintiff. The plaintiff gained a substantial advantage in that the 3rd defendant made himself jointly liable for the amounts advanced by him (plaintiff) to defendants 1 and 2. It was clear from the evidence that the plaintiff knew of the circumstances and that the 3rd defendant had only recently come of age and it was at the instance of his uncles that the 3rd defendant entered into the transaction. Held, that S. 16, Contract Act, did not apply. That section deals only with the exercise of undue influence by one party to the contract to another. But according to the principles of English law, as embodied in S. 89 of the Trusts Act, once it was shown that the plaintiff was aware of the existence of a fiduciary relationship between defendants 1 and 2 and the 3rd defendant, plaintiff would be under the same disability as the party who occupied the position of confidence; and consequently the 3rd defendant could not be held liable to the plaintiff under the undertaking. 58 M. 454=69 M. L.J. 104.

(14) HEAVY INTEREST is not by itself sufficient to bring a contract under S. 16. 101 I.C. 759=1927 A. 538; 100 I.C. 679=1927 A. 315; 1927 A. 44; 1928 O. 330=5 O.W. N. 435; 164 I.C. 325=1936 A.L.J. 919=1936 A. 611. Nor mere need of money by borrower. 31 C.W.N. 693=1927 P.C. 84 (P.C.); 123 I.C. 175; but see also 102 I.C. 707=1927 L. 536; 1930 P.C. 139; 1936 A.W. R. 84. The mere fact that the rate of interest charged was high, although the security was good, is not sufficient by itself to raise a presumption of undue influence. Where there is no great pressure upon the mortgagors at the time of executing the mortgage-deed, there is no reason to infer that the mortgagees would be in a position to dominate the will of the mortgagors. [3 P. 279 (P.C.), Ref.] 130 I.C. 817=1931 N. 91; 134 I.C. 489=32 P.L.R. 378. 25 per cent. per annum compound is prima facie an excessive rate of interest in a mortgage transaction. Where the agreement to pay interest at such a high rate was the result of the lender being in a position to dominate the will of the borrower and it is also clear that he used that position to exact unconscionable terms for the loan, the contractual rate of interest is liable to reduction by the Court and a rate of 12 per cent. per annum simple is fair. 153 I.C. 695=1934 A. 938.

(15) SISTERS AND BROTHERS-IN-LAW.—The onus of proving undue influence ordinarily rests on the party who sets up that plea, but the circumstances of a case may make it an exception to the general rule. The plaintiff was married to the eldest sister and it appeared from the circumstances that she was in a position to influence her younger sisters, who had lost, not only their father but also their mother, before they executed a promissory note in favour of the husband of the eldest sister, for a certain sum in consideration of certain services rendered by him to them. At the time of the execution both of them were sui juris, but the youngest had attained majority only a month or two before. The plaintiff was their agent managing their estate and stood to them in a position of active confidence. The plaintiff after getting a draft of the note prepared by a lawyer dictated it to the second sister, making all the executants jointly and severally liable. Held, that the plaintiff was in a position to dominate the will of each of the sisters and whether the case came within the purview of S. 111, Evidence Act, or S. 16, Contract Act, the onus in either case was upon him to prove the good faith of the transaction, and if he failed to discharge it, the claim on the basis of the promissory note should be dismissed as against them.

Held, further, that the above failure did not involve the dismissal of his alternative claim to recover remuneration for services rendered by him to them. 41 C.W.N. 677=1937 P.C. 50=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 719 (P.C.).

(16) BROTHERS.—Where a younger brother just come of age enters into a transaction of a mortgage at the instance and for the benefit of his elder brothers who till recently were his guardians and under whose influence he was living, and the effect of the transaction is to make him and his property liable as security for a heavy debt for which he was not in law liable at all, it is not necessary for him, to sustain his plea of undue influence, to prove by direct evidence that his elder brothers exercised undue influence. The exercise of undue influence may in the circumstances be fairly presumed, in view of the relationship of the parties and the nature of the transaction. 1940 Mad. 285=1939 M.W.N. 976. See also 1930 O. 34.

INDEPENDENT ADVICE GIVEN AFTER TRANSACTION—VALUE OF.—Where it is incumbent upon a party to a transaction to prove that the other contracting party had independent advice, such advice to be of any value must have been given before the transaction, for the question is as to the will of the party at the time of entering into the disputed transaction. Advice given after the event when the supposed contracting party is already bound is given under entirely different circumstances with a different position presented to the minds both of the adviser and his client. 151 I.C. 981=1934 P.C. 210 (P.C.).

SECS. 16 AND 19.—Where undue influence is alleged it is necessary to examine very closely all the circumstances of the case. 65 I.C. 380=8 O.L.J. 681; 56 M.L.J. 349 (P.C.).

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Blindness by itself, unaccompanied by other circumstances, will not lead to a presumption of undue influence. 11 I.C. 775=4 Bur.L.T. 157. But see 147 P.L.R. 1913=20 I.C. 8; 58 I.C. 13=24 C.W.N. 769=16 N.L.R. 94 (P.C.); see also 66 I.C. 642=8 O.L.J. 358. Where one of the parties to an agreement is under a criminal liability for which he is being prosecuted, it cannot be said from that that there was any undue influence or coercion. 1943 A.L.W. 329.

ILLITERACY.—If the contents of a written contract are not fully explained to or understood by a party who is an illiterate man, it is not binding on him. Reading audibly is not sufficient. 39 I.C. 177=21 C.W.N. 979. See also 18 C. 575; 83 I.C. 239=1925 N. 211 (Ignorant agriculturist).

FEAR OF PUNISHMENT.—Fear of punishment in a criminal case by itself does not constitute undue influence and the money cannot be refunded unless the circumstances disclose pressure or undue influence. 46 I.C. 424; 28 I.C. 434 (42 C. 286, Rel. on). The term "fraud" has a very wide meaning. 33 I.C. 396=18 Bom.L.R. 134.

THREAT OF PROSECUTION.—Undue influence may exist where a promise is extracted by a threat to prosecute certain person unless the promise is given. It is not necessary that there should be any direct threat. It may be enough if the undertaking is given owing to a desire to prevent a prosecution, and that desire is known to those to whom the undertaking is given. Undue influence usually arises in contracts made between relatives or persons in a fiduciary position. But even as between strangers between whom there exists no fiduciary relation certain forms of coercion, oppression, or compulsion may amount to undue influence invalidating a contract. Where the instrument of coercion is the doing or threatening of wilfully illegal act of any description, it retains the name of coercion in the Indian statute. But even though the instrument of coercion is not thus in itself illegal as in the case of a threat of prosecution, it may amount to undue influence and the enforcement of a contract so procured may nevertheless be held, in appropriate cases, to be contrary to public policy. 78 C.L.J. 129=1945 Cal. 218.

HARD TERMS.—[See also Notes under S. 74, infra.] Court's power to give relief from hard terms as to interest and compound interest when money-lender is not shown to have taken undue advantage of his position. 101 P.R. 1918=23 C.W.N. 130=48 I.C. 933 (P.C.); 29 O.C. 253=96 I.C. 413=1926 O. 408. See also 1925 P. 326. It is difficult for a Court of justice to give relief on grounds of simple hardship in the absence of any evidence to show that the money-lender had unduly taken advantage of his position even when the transaction appeared to be undoubtedly improvident. 23 C.W.N. 130 (P.C.). In a case of a mortgage bond the Court should not infer undue influence from the mere fact that the rate of interest stipulated for is heavy and there is a provision in the bond for capitalizing the interest in arrears. 47 I.C. 11; 10 I.C. 249; 54 I.C. 785; 54 I.C. 558. In the case of an agreement reduced to writing, a Court cannot, in the absence of fraud or undue influence, refuse to enforce its terms however unreasonable they may be. Under such circumstances, the Court has no discretion. 15 I.C. 377=1912 M.W.N. 416; see also 10 I.C. 249; 54 I.C. 985. [See now the Usurious Loans Act, 1918.] The fact that the borrower failed to realise what the rate of compound interest would work out in a few years would not entitle him to relief from a Court of justice on the ground of hardship. 54 I.C. 558. There is nothing inherently wrong or oppressive in an agreement to pay compound interest. 4 L. 76=72 I.C. 765; 1923 L. 634; 56 I.C. 74; 130 P.L.R. 1912=16 I.C. 119; 55 I.A. 85=1928 P.C. 64=54 M.L.J. 427 (P.C.). Inequitable and unconscionable conditions such as one providing for oppressive rate of interest, should not be enforced against the mortgagor, or his successor in title. 128 P. L.R. 1911=11 I.C. 519. See also 73 P. L.R. 1914=22 I.C. 528. Where a contract provides for a high rate of interest, Courts cannot interfere to cut down the same unless there is satisfactory evidence of the exercise of undue influence. 22 I.C. 769=36 M. 533. Neither prior indebtedness nor a high rate of interest would by itself be sufficient to prove undue influence by the mortgagee on the mortgagor. 77 I.C. 383=1924 O. 118 (2). It is not a universal proposition of law that wherever there is a security for the debt a rate of interest over ten per cent. per annum is penal. 74 I.C. 346=1923 O. 139. In cases where there is no proof of undue influence a Court has no power to reduce the contract rate of interest merely on the ground that it is very high. 69 I.C. 657=1923 O. 8. [Special powers have now been conferred on Courts by the Usurious Loans Act, 1918, to give relief in cases of very excessive rates of interest, apart from fraud or undue influence.] The Court disallowed costs on the ground that the interest decreed was high. 69 I.C. 657=1923 O. 8 (1). The rate of interest, however exorbitant, cannot be abrogated unless the agreement was tainted by undue influence, fraud or misrepresentation such as are mentioned in the Contract Act. 2 P. 488=4 Pat.L.T. 707=74 I.C. 695. See also 2 P.L.J. 212=39 I.C. 352; 95 I.C. 1019=1926 O. 273. (See now the Usurious Loans Act, 1918.) A high rate of interest cannot always be regarded objectionable as penalty within S. 74. But when the contract provides a special condition for a change in the rate or mode of calculation of interest as a punishment for some default, that special condition is a penalty. 39 I.C. 352=2 P.L.J. 212. But 2 per cent. compound interest was held unconscionable. 1925 A. 31.

LONG INDEBTEDNESS.—The mere fact that one of the parties to a contract was antecedently indebted to the other is not by itself sufficient proof of undue influence. 68 I. C. 597=1922 N. 212. But see 11 I.C. 198 & 213 P.L.R. 1911; 48 P.L.R. 1914=22 I.C. 406; 20 I.C. 47=20 C.L.J. 424. See also 83 I.C. 1019=27 O.C. 374=1924 O. 423; 89 I.C. 348=1925 O. 535.

FALSE INDUCEMENT.—See 1929 O. 44.

MENTAL DISTRESS.—It is not enough to prove undue influence that a vendor of property was in a distressed state of mind and anxious to dispose of his property at the time of sale. 72 I.C. 1032=1924 L. 334. As to mental distress, see also 22 A. 224; 28 B. 639; 10 A. 535; 11 B. 566; 13 M. 214.

OLD AGE.—Mere loss of vigour and infirmity on account of old age is not sufficient to invalidate a contract. 104 I.C. 527=1927 C. 889; nor the fact that an old man did not make provision in his settlement for his wife's maintenance. 1927 M. 255=52 M. L. J. 20. When people who are nursing an elderly invalid get a transfer of practically the whole of his remaining property in their favour to the complete exclusion of his heir, the transaction being made without the knowledge of his heir, it is for them to prove the bona fides of the transfer. 1933 R. 90. See also 1942 A.L.W. 666.

UNCONSCIONABLE BARGAIN—BURDEN OF PROOF.—Where an ignorant, illiterate and poor young man, on whom a right to the inheritance of his deceased relation had devolved, executes a sale-deed in favour of persons offering their help to recover the inheritance for him as volunteers and making the bargain with him which is entirely on their side, and wholly unconscionable, the conclusion is that the vendees were in a position to dominate the will of the vendor and exercised undue influence. 1 Luck. 144=95 I.C. 995; 1935 R. 174; 1935 P.C. 146=69 M.L.J. 335 (P.C.); 158 I.C. 973=18 N. L.J. 67; 1937 P.C. 50=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 719 (P.C.); 1938 Lah. 333; 1938 Nag. 470=1 L.R. (1938) Nag. 535; 1940 Mad. 285. Once this is established, sub-section (3) of this section will apply and the burden of proving that the contract was not induced by undue influence lies upon the person who was in a position to dominate the will of the other person. (Ibid.) 38 M.L.J. 349=43 M. 546=47 I.A. 1 (P.C.); 104 I.C. 527=1927 C. 889; 100 I.C. 679=1927 A. 315; 1927 A. 44. See also 11 O.C. 295. If such person does not discharge the onus, the sale must be set aside subject to payment of compensation to the vendee. 1 Luck. 144=13 O.L.J. 42=1927 O. 92; 35 M.L.J. 614=48 I.C. 1=21 Bom.L.R. 558 (P.C.). See also 65 I.C. 380=8 O.L.J. 681; 83 I.C. 239&1925 N. 211; 90 I.C. 463=29 C.W.N. 1029; 1927 A. 44. Question of undue influence depends on circumstances. 85 I.C. 169=1925 L. 196. When the contract is prima facie unconscionable, the party seeking to enforce it must prove that the contract was not induced by undue influence. 2 Pat.L.T. 663=41 I.C. 337; 1 Pat.L.J. 604=38 I.C. 235. The Courts have ample power under the amended Contract Act to go behind hard and unconscionable bargains on the ground that where there is ample security, the exaction of excessive and usurious interests in itself raises a presumption of undue influence which it requires very little evidence to substantiate. Where there is no security, no rate of interest can be considered excessive. 42 C. 690=19 C.W.N. 809. See also 45 I.C. 778=8 A.L.J. 407. There can be no standard rate on personal loans. 42 C. 690. Where the parties are reasonably on terms of equality a Judge cannot do better than adopt what they themselves have agreed upon. The dicta of English Judges under the English Money Lenders Act can safely be accepted in India since the Indians lean more in favour of the debtors. 42 C. 690. Extortionate and inequitable agreement is not enforceable. 56 I.C. 272=1 L. 124. Compound interest at 24 per cent. with half-yearly rests may be enforced in the absence of undue influence. 50 M. 614=1927 M. 620=52 M.L.J. 612. The actual value of the land in dispute at the time of agreement determines if it is extortionate and inequitable. 56 I.C. 272=1 L. 124. A Court of justice is not a blind and humble instrument of the creditor to plunder the debtor. 25 I.C. 719=149 P.L.R. 1914. A creditor who got securities at a very high rate of interest (30 per cent.) from an expectant heir, who was a very inefficient clerk in a Court, is guilty of undue influence. 25 I.C. 719. Champertous bargains, not having been held in the country contrary to public policy, stand on the same footing as any other contract. 65 I.C. 129=24 O.C. 313. Apart from the Usurious Loans Act, the mere fact that a bargain is unconscionable in the sense that the rate of interest charged is excessive, is not in itself a sufficient ground for interference. 48 I.C. 177=5 O.L.J. 579; 22 I.C. 132=16 O.C. 267.

URGENCY AND INADEQUACY OF CONSIDERATION.—Urgent need of money on the part of the borrower does not of itself place the lender in a position to dominate his will within S. 16. 29 C.L.J. 488=49 I.C. 794=23 C.W.N. 609; 29 O.C. 253=96 I.C. 413=1926 O. 408. See also 26 M.L.J. 315=1 L. W. 276; 1922 O. 268; 42 C. 652=21 C.L.J. 79; 18 I.C. 965=17 C.L.J. 221. The mere fact of the existence of an urgent necessity on the part of the borrower is not sufficient to raise the presumption that undue influence was exercised. Nor does the existence of urgent need accompanied by a high rate of interest establish such a presumption. In ordinary circumstances, the more pressing the necessity, the higher the rate of interest is likely to be, for the borrowers have no time to make such inquiries as will ensure that they are borrowing at the cheapest rate obtainable. 66 I.C. 687=8 O.L.J. 418 (34 C. 150; 8 O.C. 193, Rel.); 9 O.L.J. 439=69 I.C. 667; 48 I.C. 32=5 O.L.J. 572; 26 I.C. 26=1 O.L.J. 518; 69 I.C. 697=1 P. 263. Where the creditors are in a position to take advantage of the embarrassment of their debtors the bargain is unconscionable. 42 C. 652=21 C.L.J. 79. The mere fact that one party is in a position to dominate the will of another is not enough to avoid a contract between them in the absence of proof that the transaction is also unconscionable. 18 I.C. 965=17 C.L.J. 221. A transaction may be unconscionable in many ways and a Court should see in each case whether according to its sense of justice it is really so. 18 I.C. 965. Excess of interest and charges may, if unexplained, of itself be evidence of a harsh and unconscionable bargain. 18 I.C. 965. Inadequate consideration may lead to inference of fraud or undue influence. 96 I.C. 468=1926 P. 539. But the inadequacy of consideration must be apparent and must not be left to be spelled out by dexterous arguments as to value. 96 I.C. 468=1926 P. 539. The mere fact that properties had to be parted with for an unduly low price owing to pressure of necessity will not indicate undue influence. 26 M.L.J. 315=23 I.C. 72=1 L.W. 276. See also 47 L.W. 714=1938 Mad. 426=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 676; 1938 Nag. 391; 1938 Nag. 470=I.L.R. 1938 Nag. 535. Where the bargain is fair and reasonable the plea of undue influence collapses. 24 I.C. 67=7 Bur.L.T. 90; 1938 Nag. 391; 1938 Nag. 400.

PARDANASHIN WOMEN AND YOUNG PERSONS.—Where a deed of gift by a pardanashin lady is impeached on the ground of undue influence, the questions that arise are (1) was the transaction a righteous transaction? (2) was it an improvident act? (3) was it a matter requiring advice? (4) did the intention of making the act originate with the donor? 65 I.C. 380=8 O. L.J. 681. If a family settlement or the award of a panchayat is impeached by a pardanashin lady on the ground that her consent was obtained by fraud, practised by her kinsmen, whose interest conflicted with hers and who, therefore, misled her, and the woman is shown to be illiterate and lacking in business capacity, the Court has to consider not whether she knew what she was doing, had done or proposed to do, but how her intention to act was produced. Fraud cannot be condoned unless there is full knowledge of the facts and the rights arising therefrom and the parties are at arm's length. 35 M.L.J. 362=20 C.W.N. 957=14 A.L.J. 1236 (P.C.). See also 35 I.C. 395; 23 I.C. 401=18 C.W.N. 133. A pardanashin lady, in the true sense of that term, is a lady living in seclusion, that is the zenana, and having no communication with any male strangers except from behind a screen. But a lady with a certain amount of education, who subscribes to newspapers, manages her affairs and even appears in Courts is not a pardanashin lady. 1930 L. 985. See also 60 C.L.J. 25=1935 C. 234. There is no reason why a rule which is applicable to pardanashin ladies on the ground of their ignorance and illiteracy should be restricted to that class only and should not apply to the case of a poor woman who is equally ignorant and illiterate and is not pardanashin, simply because she does not belong to that class. If that view of the matter were adopted the effect clearly would be to confer an unfair advantage upon rich women as compared with the poor women. The object of the rule of law is to protect the weak and helpless and it should not be restricted to a particular class of the community. Consequently, even in a case of woman who is outside the regular pardanashin class, it is for those who deal with her to establish that she had the capacity of understanding that she entered into the transaction voluntarily and with full knowledge and import of what the transaction meant. 1930 C. 591=51 C.L.J. 465. The principles to be applied in testing the validity of documents executed by a pardanashin lady are not merely deductions from the law as to undue influence which finds a place in S. 16; they are founded upon the wider basis of equity and good conscience which have always been pillars of the administration of justice in India. 58 I.A. 450=11 P. 227=62 M.L.J. 60 (P.C.). The disposition made must be substantially understood and must really be the mental act, as the execution is the physical act, of the person who makes it. It is for the party setting up the deed of a pardanashin lady to satisfy the Court that it has been not only explained to, but understood by, her. If the explanation has been partial or erroneous, or has not been given at all, the question will then arise, as it arises, where there has been no independent legal advice, whether if proper information had been given, it would have affected the mind of the executant in completing the deed. And in order to ascertain whether the deed was the free and intelligent act of the executant, the Court must consider the whole history of the parties. 58 I.A. 450 (P.C.). Where the history of the parties disclosed that the respondent, in whose favour the pardanashin lady had executed a deed of mortgage, had purchased a speculative half of the lady's estate, launched, managed and financed the litigation on her behalf, supported the lady through ten years of poverty and anxiety, had the mortgages prepared and executed at his house and that the only man to whom the lady could turn for advice was in the service of the respondent, held, that the respondent was clearly the dominating personality, and that the burden of proof was on him to show that the lady understood the nature of the deeds executed by her. 58 I.A. 450=1931 P.C. 303=62 M.L.J. 60 (P.C.). It is for the person claiming the benefit from the disposition of property by the pardanashin lady to establish affirmatively that it was substantially understood by the lady and was really her free and intelligent act: if she is illiterate it must have been read over to her. If the terms are intricate they must have been adequately explained, and her degree of intelligence will be a material factor, but independent legal advice is not in itself essential. 33 C.W.N. 633=1931 P.C. 100=61 M.L.J. 94 (P.C.). See also 11 P. 50=1932 F. 105. The donee, a priest, worked on the religious feelings of a lady when she was in mental distress and illness. The lady was not rich but made a substantial gift to the priest. Held, the transaction should be set aside. 39 C. 933=16 C.W.N. 649. When a deed is executed by a pardanashin lady or a boy of tender years, mere reading over is not sufficient. The language should be thoroughly explained especially when it is vague and ambiguous. 38 I.C. 454=3 O.L.J. 746; 10 O.L.J. 86=74 I.C. 547. See also 29 C. 749 (P.C.); 24 C. 664; 31 B. 165; 13 I.A. 215; 39 I.A. 156; 18 I.A. 545; 3 C. 324; 28 C. 546; 16 Bom.L.R. 147=36 A. 81 (P.C.); 4 Bom.L.R. 146; 7 C. 245; 5 B. 453; 11 B. 636; 33 C. 773. The principles of law applicable to a pardanashin woman will not be extended to a person said to be old and not in robust health. 74 I.C. 517=1923 O. 254. A knowledge of letters and figures and a capacity of dealing at first hand to some extent with her tenants will not convert a pardanashin lady into a woman of the world so as to rebut the presumption. The burden of proving bona fides lies on the party affirming it. 35 I.C. 395. See also 10 Mys.L.J. 217. A pardanashin lady sued for a declaration that a darpatni lease of a jalkar executed by her in favour of her deceased husband's cousin was invalid, and inoperative, having been executed under undue influence. It was found that the lady who lived with her father and brother understood the transaction and knew its full nature and effect, that the lessee, though a relation of her husband, was not in a position to dominate her will, that his relationship was not such as to suggest that they were not on equal terms, that she was intelligent that she had her father, brother and intelligent neighbours to advise her, that the transaction was not unconscionable or unfair and that the lessee had not taken an undue advantage of the position of the lady, and further that the plaintiff was in distress and in urgent need of money. Held, that the transaction was valid and that there was nothing from which undue influence could be inferred. 60 C.L.J. 25=1935 C. 234.

PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.—In a case where an agent is the object of the bounty of his principal if the agent can show that a gift was made in his favour by a donor who was in a position to exercise a free and unfettered judgment with full knowledge of what he was doing, the gift will be upheld. 10 O.L.J. 86=74 I.C. 517. See also 1923 L. 634; 20 I.C. 812=195 P.W.R. 1913; 50 M. 786=1927 M. 852=53 M.L.J. 606.

POSITION OF PARTIES.—The fact that one party to a contract stands in the relation of a debtor to the other is not by itself sufficient to prove undue influence. 68 I.C. 597

=1922 N. 219; 42 A. 230=18 A.L.J. 100; 102 I.C. 707=1927 L. 536. See also 132 I.C. 452=1931 N. 63. A creditor can ask his debtor to execute documents in a particular form and where a creditor writes to his debtor's servant to get his master's signature to such a form, no inference that undue influence was used can arise. 42 A. 230=18 A.L.J. 100. A karinda who is a servant of very minor status cannot be presumed without very distinct evidence to be in a position to dominate the will of his employer. 48 I.C. 17=5 O.L.J. 579. When a Buddhist lady made a gift to her nephew who was also acting as her agent, held, that the relationship was not such a fiduciary one as would lead the Court to infer undue influence. 46 I.C. 738. See also 130 I.C. 119=1931 O. 34 (case of undue influence exercised by a brother over his weak-minded brother). Undue influence might proceed from a third person. 23 I.C. 401=18 C.W. N. 1133. There is no presumption of undue influence in India as well as in England in the case of a gift to a son, grandson or son-in-law during the donor's last illness. 26 I.C. 39=8 Bur.L.T. 75; 68 I.C. 372=4 Pat. L.T. 17 (33 C. 733, Foll.). As to presumption in cases of dealing with pardanashin woman, see 39 I.A. 156; 29 C. 749; 13 I.A. 215; 31 B. 165; 36 A. 81; 18 I.A. 545; 33 C. 773; 23 A. 137.

TRANSACTIONS IN FAVOUR OF THIRD PARTIES—WHEN CAN BE AVOIDED—CONDITIONS.—

Under S. 16 of the Contract Act, a transaction would be voidable against a third party if it is the result of undue influence and that party took the benefit either as a volunteer or with the knowledge of the exercise of undue influence by a person who was in a position to dominate, the will of the executant, as the third party's knowledge of the fiduciary relationship between the parties to a contract and the exercise of undue influence puts that party under the same liability as the other party who occupied the position of confidence. 39 Bom.L.R. 1233=1938 Bom. 97.

PLEADINGS—WHO CAN PLEAD UNDU INFLUENCE.—Plea of undue influence can be raised only by executant of document or his representative in estate, but not by a third party claiming adversely to such executant. 1931 S. 78. A man of mature age and of some intelligence and activity managing his affairs previous to a transaction, cannot resort to the plea of undue influence. 42 A. 422=24 C.W.N. 529=47 I.A. 116 (P.C.). See also 26 I.C. 67=7 Bur.L.T. 90 (petition writer). A speculator who purchases the equity of redemption on the chance of getting redemption on easy terms cannot be allowed to set up the plea, as his vendor might have done, that the bargain was brought about by the exercise of undue influence. 305 P.L.R. 1913=20 I.C. 812. See also 1923 L. 634. Nor does contest by aggrieved party disentitle other defendants to any relief. 84 I.C. 124=1925 C. 94.

17. "Fraud" means and includes any of the following acts committed by a party to a contract, or with his connivance or by his agent, with intent to deceive another party thereto or his agent, or to induce him to enter into the contract :—

PROOF.—A deed cannot be treated as void for undue influence merely because it is unreasonable or its terms are prejudicial to the donor. 44 I.C. 483=7 L.W. 339; 1 Luck. 144=1927 O. 92; 102 I.C. 707=1927 L. 536; 1927 A. 44. See also 112 I.C. 602; 56 M.L.J. 349 (P.C.). To establish a case of undue influence it is not sufficient to raise an atmosphere of suspicion, but there must be clear and definite evidence of the case propounded. (9 Luck. 178 (P.C.), Rel. on.) 40 P.L.R. 146=1938 Lah. 383. Undue influence is not a matter always capable of direct proof, and must depend in its very nature on the circumstances in which the transaction had its origin. 44 I.C. 483=7 L.W. 339. To establish undue influence it must appear that there was something unconscionable either in the original dealing or in the subsequent stages of the transaction. 52 I.C. 335; 42 C.W.N. 14. See also 40 P.L.R. 146; 39 Bom.L.R. 1233=1938 Bom. 97.

BURDEN OF PROOF.—See 1930 P.C. 139=59 M.L.J. 14; 56 M.L.J. 349; 1929 P.C. 3=33 C.W.N. 205 (P.C.). As to burden of proof in case of transactions with pardanashin ladies, see 58 I.A. 450=11 P. 227=62 M.L.J. 60=1931 P.C. 303 (P.C.); 58 I.A. 148=54 M. 440=61 M.L.J. 91=1931 P.C. 109. A document executed under undue influence is not void but only voidable and the onus is in the first instance on the person who raises that plea. Before the onus can shift on the other party to prove that the contract was not induced by undue influence, the person raising the plea of undue influence has to prove not only that the other party was in a position to dominate his will, but that the transaction appeared on the face of it or on the evidence adduced unconscionable. 1931 S. 78. See also 36 C.W.N. 994=1932 P.C. 202=63 M.L.J. 54 (P.C.); 171 I.C. 605=1937 O.W.N. 1123. Where any person deals with one who has just attained majority and is inexperienced, the burden of proving that the contract is made in good faith and for adequate consideration lies on the person who takes the benefit of the contract. (20 B. 367; 43 M. 739, Ref.) 132 I.C. 452=1931 N. 63. See also 1931 M.W.N. 215; 1937 Cal. 492. It is not every fiduciary relationship which can be deemed sufficient to lead to the inference that the person standing in such relation to another is in a position to dominate his will. Where a manager to a Nawab in very embarrassing circumstances and who is faced with a costly and expensive litigation before him, looks not only after the litigation but also finds the money for it as well as for the household expenses of the Nawab, it would not be improper to infer that the manager was a person standing in a fiduciary relationship to the Nawab and in a position to dominate his will. Where a perpetual and heritable lease of nearly a fourth share of the Nawab's taluka is granted in favour of such a manager and the terms of it are such as to place the lessee in the position of an owner of the share leased and there is no satisfactory proof of the passing of the consideration as recited in the lease deed, the transaction would amount to an unconscionable one within the meaning of S. 16. It would be for the party claiming under the transaction to prove absence of undue influence in the matter of the execution of the lease and if he fails to prove that, the transaction becomes a voidable one under S. 19. 1946 O.A. (C.C.) 12=1946 A.W.R. (C.C.) 12=1946 O.W.N. 1.

LACHES AND LIMITATION.—In the case of gift deed executed under undue influence, the fact that the party seeking to avoid it has been guilty of delay and laches will not be a bar to the grant of the equitable relief of avoidance of the deed. The plea of laches and delay cannot apply to the case of a gift as opposed to a contract. In any case the delay can only begin from the time when the plaintiff discovers the true nature of the deed. He has a period of three years in such a case under Art. 91 of the Limitation Act. So long therefore as the suit is not beyond three years, relief should not be denied to him on the ground of delay and laches. 39 Bom.L.R. 1233=1938 Bom. 97.

SEC. 17.—To prove a case of fraud, it must be proved that representations were made which were false to the knowledge of the party making them. 45 A. 624=21 A.L.J. 571=1924 A. 17. Mere silence is not fraud unless there is a duty to speak or unless it is equivalent to speech. 60 C. 262=1933 C. 366. See also 133 I.C. 372=1931 M. 603; 53 A. 374=1931 A.L.J. 153=1931 A. 154. The principle applies even in cases of transactions with pardanashin ladies. 60 C.L.J. 25=1935 C. 234. Equal means of knowledge is immaterial where there is an express representation or anything calculated to deceive or to lull suspicion upon a particular point. 133 I.C. 372=1931 M. 603 (2). It is a truth confirmed by all experience that in the great majority of cases fraud is not capable of being established by positive and tangible proof. It is by its very nature secret in its movements. It is therefore sufficient if the evidence given is such as may lead to the inference that fraud must have been committed. In the generality of cases circum-

- (1) the suggestion as a fact, of that which is not true by one who does not believe it to be true ;
- (2) the active concealment of a fact by one having knowledge or belief of the fact ;
- (3) a promise made without any intention of performing it ;
- (4) any other act fitted to deceive ;
- (5) any such act or omission as the law specially declares to be fraudulent.

Explanation.—Mere silence as to facts likely to affect the willingness of a person to enter into a contract is not fraud, unless the circumstances of the case are such that, regard being had to them, it is the duty of the person keeping silence to speak, or unless his silence is, in itself, equivalent to speech.

Illustrations.

- (a) A sells, by auction, to B, a horse which A knows to be unsound. A says nothing to B about the horse's unsoundness. This is not fraud in A.
- (b) B is A's daughter and has just come of age. Here, the relation between the parties would make it A's duty to tell B if the horse is unsound.
- (c) B says to A—"If you do not deny it, I shall assume that the horse is sound." A says nothing. Here, A's silence is equivalent to speech.
- (d) A and B, being traders, enter upon a contract. A has private information of a change in prices which would affect B's willingness to proceed with the contract. A is not bound to inform B.

stantial evidence is the only resource in dealing with questions of fraud. If this is not done the ends of justice would be constantly, if not invariably, defeated. 132 I.C. 51=1931 O. 333. The principal difference between fraud and misrepresentation is that in the one case the person making the suggestion does not believe it to be true and in the other he believes it to be true, though in both cases it is a mis-statement of fact which misleads the promisor. 53 A. 374=1931 A. L.J. 153=1931 A. 154. See also 3 B. 242. If a contract is obtained by fraud or cheating, it is voidable at the instance of the person defrauded or cheated. But where a performance has been obtained by fraud or cheating, the contract cannot be avoided. 23 Bom.L.R. 1144=46 B. 489. In order to avoid a contract fraud must be in the making of the contract and not in its performance. 15 Bom.L.R. 92=37 B. 158; and the fraud must be committed by a party to the contract or his agent or with his connivance 28 B. 639. A party cannot set up his own fraud to avoid the contract. 15 W.R. 273; 31 B. 405. Mere failure of a minor entering into a contract to reveal his age would not amount to fraud, see 168 I.C. 730=1937 Lah. 598=39 P.L.R. 508. A plea of fraud is not sustainable where there is no misleading on any question of fact or law. 20 I.C. 47=20 C.L.J. 424; 31 P.R. 1918=45 I. C. 101. Fraud in contract of service—Concealment of contract forbidding service elsewhere. 66 I.C. 441. Where the parties have made an agreement and one party records it erroneously, the other party, if he knows at the time that there is an error, acts fraudulently if he seeks to take advantage of that error, and cannot be allowed to enforce it. Where, therefore, the plaintiff agreed to accept service under the defendant company on a monthly salary of Rs. 500 and the agreement was drawn up for a salary of Rs. 600 owing to a mistake on the part of the latter and did not express the intention of the parties and the plaintiff, fully realising the mistake, deliberately sought to take advantage of it, his conduct was fraudulent and the Court would not enforce the contract as drawn up. 61 C. 548=38 C.W.N. 908=1934 C. 778. In a proposal for insurance the utmost degree of good faith is required. Where the insured in reply to the questions of the insurance company during the course of inquiry into his proposal withholds facts and deliberately gives false replies, such withholding of material information is wilful and in the nature of fraud and the company is entitled to avoid the contract. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 611=184 I.C. 575=1939 Sind 254. Where a person orders and obtains possession of goods with the deliberate intention of not paying for them, he commits fraud. He must then be considered to be the agent of the vendor and his possession as that of the vendor. If vendee tries to dispose of the goods before payment by transfer of the invoices to a third party's name, the third party gets no title to the goods. 14 P.L. R. 1917=39 I.C. 169. Seller selling property already sold by him to a third person is liable for fraud, and the buyer can recover back the price, in spite of agreement that seller could not be responsible for defect of title. 25 A.L.J. 708=1927 A. 693. Such conduct on the part of seller would amount to active concealment of a material fact 1927 A. 693. Mere failure to fulfil a promise is not fraud unless from the outset the promisee did not intend to fulfil it. 42 I.C. 113 (L.B.). The making of promises without the intention of keeping them is fraud under the section, though under the English rule such a thing is not fraud. 33 I.C. 396=18 Bom.L.R. 134. A plaintiff who relies upon fraud must both plead and prove it, and must give the particulars of the alleged fraud and can succeed upon proof of the fraud as alleged and not of any other kind of fraud. 10 I.C. 922=4 Bur.L.T. 18.

"Misrepresentation," defined.

18. "Misrepresentation" means and includes—

(1) the positive assertion, in a manner not warranted by the information of the person making it, of that which is not true, though he believes it to be true;

(2) any breach of duty which, without an intent to deceive, gains an advantage to the person committing it, or any one claiming under him, by misleading another to his prejudice or to the prejudice of any one claiming under him;

(3) causing however innocently, a party to an agreement to make a mistake as to the substance of the thing which is the subject of the agreement.

That a party misreads a document (the acceptance memo.) and believed it to be something different from what it was, would not vitiate the contract. 1923 S. 25. If a man who cannot read has a written contract read over to him and the contract written differs from that pretended to be read, the signature of the document is of no force because he never intended to sign and therefore in contemplation of law did not sign the document, as his mind did not accompany the signature. 56 B. 180=34 Bom.L.R. 26=1932 B. 151. Sec. 18 (3).—When the area (or any other similar particular) is set down as part of the description of the property sold, it must have been regarded as material by the parties. Where it is found to be inaccurate, the Court gives effect to the rule of proportionate compensation. Where the terms of the contract are self-contradictory, the contract will not be enforced. But if it appears that one of the two contradictory parts is true and the other part is false and the part that is true describes the subject of sale with sufficient legal certainty, the true part is adopted and the false rejected. Sec. 19.—Under S. 19 the right is given to a party, who has entered into a contract under fraud or misrepresentation, to avoid the contract or to insist on the contract being performed. S. 19 does not entitle a party to insist on an entirely different contract being performed. 25 N.L.R. 187=1929 N. 254 (F.B.). Where a party to a contract treats it as avoidable at his option and exercises his option, he cannot go back afterwards and seek to enforce the contract. When he not only states clearly that he treats the document incorporating the agreement in question as void but also proceeds on that footing to make his demands on the other party, though the latter does not admit that the former could do so, and the former party does not at any time give up the attitude taken by him, he cannot afterwards be permitted to enforce the agreement as a

A party to a contract, whose consent was caused by fraud or misrepresentation, may, if he thinks fit, insist that the contract shall be performed, and that he shall be put in the position in which he would have been if the representations made had been true.

Exception.—If such consent was caused by misrepresentation or by silence, fraudulent within the meaning of section 17, the contract, nevertheless, is not voidable, if the party whose consent was so caused had the means of discovering the truth with ordinary diligence.

Explanation.—A fraud or misrepresentation which did not cause the consent to a contract of the party on whom such fraud was practised, or to whom such misrepresentation was made, does not render a contract voidable.

Where a vendor sells property which he has previously leased out to a third party, and not only fails to disclose the lease but also makes a false and fraudulent representation that the vendee can take immediate possession, he cannot, in a suit by the vendee to set aside the conveyance, plead the Exception to S. 19, and contend that since the lease was a registered lease, the vendee could with ordinary diligence discover the lease by a search in the registration office. 51 L.W. 249=1940 Mad. 560=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 314. RELIEF OPEN TO AGGRIEVED PARTY.—Under S. 19 the party whose consent is obtained by fraud or misrepresentation may insist that the contract shall be performed and that he shall be put in the position in which he would have been if the representation made had been true. But it must be proved that the consent of the party who claims to avoid the contract is caused by fraud or misrepresentation and that he is actually deceived. RESCINDED CONTRACT.—A rescinded contract becomes a void contract and the person who has received any advantage under it, is bound to restore it to the other party. 27 I.C. 130.

Sec. 19-A.—Under S. 19-A of the Contract Act when consent to an agreement is caused by undue influence the contract is voidable at the option of the party whose consent was so caused. When the party so consenting has no opportunity to cancel the contract after removal of the undue influence, it is open to his representatives after his death to raise the defence of undue influence in an action to enforce the contract.

Further, such representatives may set up undue influence by way of defence to an action based on the contract by the other party. 1936 A.L.J. 1215=1936 A. 672. When a contract is procured by undue influence it is only a voidable one and consequently this only gives the person under undue influence a right of choice or election. Such a right, once exercised, is exhausted. So, if by notice expressly given or implied by conduct, the promisor deems to affirm, he can never afterwards claim to avoid; similarly if he has once elected to affirm, he can never afterwards be allowed to affirm in his own interests. There is no locus penitentie in either case. 46 C.W.N. 947=1943 Cal. 162. ARBITRATION.—A contract appointing arbitrators is a contract uberrima fide and unless there is complete confidence between the tribunal and the parties, it would be wrong to bind a party to his contract, when there is a probability that injustice would result from doing so. Where therefore both arbitrators have already adopted strong views in the case and this was unknown to the party who was made to join in the reference the effect and nature of which was also not explained to him, it would be manifestly unjust to bind a party to reference by his contract to appear before a tribunal from which he is scarcely likely to receive impartial justice. 1933 S. 347. See also 41 L.W. 130=1935 M. 356.

ONEROUS LIABILITY SUBSEQUENTLY CAST BY STATUTE.—Vendors who had agreed to supply a certain number of tins of matches at a particular rate refused to give delivery to vendee under the contract unless in addition to the contract price the vendee paid the sum equal to the proposed excise duty imposed on such goods by the Tariff Act which was published in the Gazette and which had come into force subsequently: Held, that the vendors were not entitled to refuse delivery as no excise duty had been imposed when they refused to give delivery and that S. 20, Contract Act, had no application to the case. 11 R. 201=1933 R. 79. BURDEN OF PROOF.—Is on the party alleging mistake. 61 C. 548=152 I.C. 117=1934 C. 778.

MISTAKE OF LAW.—A mistake as to the law in force does not make a contract voidable. A man cannot go back upon what he has deliberately done merely because he alleges that he acted under a misapprehension of the law. A subsequent mortgagee took a mortgage in his favour knowing of a previous but unregistered mortgage in favour of another mortgagee. This transaction was done under the impression that even if the prior mortgagee was also to obtain registration of his deed, yet the deed in favour of the subsequent mortgagee would take precedence as it was first registered. Held, that S. 21 applied to the case, and that the subsequent mortgage must be postponed till the period fixed in the prior mortgage has expired or the mortgage otherwise came to an end. 1933 Lah. 836.

SS. 20 AND 21.—SCOPE—MONEY PAID UNDER MISTAKE—LAW AS TO—ENGLISH LAW—APPLICATION OF.—The Indian Contract Act, though it deals with the effect of mistakes of fact and law upon a contract, has no express provision relating to the effect of payment made under such mistakes. The law relating to such matters is the same in India as in England. Money paid under a mistake of law cannot be recovered in an action for money had and received and neither can moneys so paid be set off against money due from the person who made the payments unless there is a special equity. 22 Pat. 220=A.I.B. 1943 Pat. 327=210 I.C. 426.

What considerations and objects are lawful, and what not.

23. The consideration or object of an agreement is lawful, unless—it is forbidden by law ; or is of such a nature that, if permitted, it would defeat the provisions of any law ; or is fraudulent ; or involves or implies injury to the person or property of another ; or the Court regards it as immoral, or opposed to public policy.

In each of these cases, the consideration or object of an agreement is said to be unlawful. Every agreement of which the object or consideration is unlawful is void.

Electricity Supply Co., under a mistake that the company had made rules after all necessary legal preliminaries had been gone through, this is not a mistake as to any law in force in British India. This is a mistake of fact and is covered by S. 72. Besides this, if the payment is made under protest after being warned that supply would be disconnected if the payment is not made, this is sufficient to constitute coercion in the general sense of the word and the consumer would be entitled to refund under S. 72. 181 I.C. 345=1939 Pesh. 8.

SEC. 22.—A contract entered into under a mistake of fact is only voidable and is binding until it is avoided. 10 I.C. 343; 58 I.C. 591=14 S.L.R. 22; 21 Bom.L.R. 986=44 B. 631. See also 16 B. 561; 3 R. 477. Mistake due to negligence of a party, if good ground for re-opening decree passed. See 33 C.W.N. 739=1929 C. 670. Contract cannot be avoided on the ground of its becoming more onerous than was originally supposed. See 86 I.C. 364=1925 Sind 80.

BURDEN OF PROOF.—When a written contract has been signed by the parties, the party alleging that it has been erroneously recorded and that he signed it under a mistake; must establish that fact beyond all doubt. 61 C. 548=38 C.W.N. 908=1934 C. 778.

REFUND OF MONEY PAID.—Where a contract is a result of a mistake on either side, there is no contract at all between the parties and the party who has advanced money thereunder is entitled to get refund of same. 41 L.W. 476=1935 M. 287.

SEC. 23. MEANING OF WORDS.—The words "consideration" and "object" of an agreement do not mean the same thing. 33 C. 702. Burden of proof. See 107 I.C. 903.

UNLAWFUL OBJECT.—A promissory note executed by a minor under the Court of Wards though void, is no unlawful consideration for a bond executed by his son after his death and after the estate had ceased to be under the Court of Wards. 21 A.L.J. 446; 73 I.C. 428=1923 A. 590. An agreement by a Parsi husband with his wife that they should live separately is lawful and a reference to arbitration on the question as to the amount of maintenance to be paid to the wife is quite legal. 45 C. 318=22 Bom.L.R. 1293 (23 B. 279, Foll.). Agreement between expectant heirs to divide property after the succession opened is legal and enforceable. 14 Pat.L.T. 27=1933 P. 165. Debt contracted by the father for trading purposes—Liability of sons. 17 Bom.L.R. 955=40 C. 126. Suit to recover money on a hundi drawn to cover betting losses. 27 C.W.N. 442=1923 C. 445. Where a pleader is appointed by Court in a suit as Commissioner the work done by the Commissioner is no work done for the party but for the Court. 27 C.W.N. 430=1923 C. 436. Consequently where a Commissioner who had been appointed at the instance of a party to a suit took a bond from that party for a certain sum of money and subsequently sued upon it, held, that the consideration for the bond was illegal and that it represented an improper advantage obtained by an officer of Court by abuse of his position as such. Consequently the bond was unenforceable. 27 C.W.N. 430. Alienation of service inam lands unlawful. 45 M. 620=42 M.L.J. 477=1922 M. 197 (F.B.). Where a mortgage of a tenancy holding is unlawful, the consideration paid at the time of its execution must be held to be also unlawful. Where, therefore, at the time of redeeming that mortgage, the mortgagor, instead of paying the mortgage-money in cash, executes a simple money bond for that amount there is no valid consideration either for that bond or for the bond executed by him in renewal of it. Accordingly, a suit to recover the amount due on the bond is not maintainable. 12 Luck. 679=1937 Oudh 150. S. 23, covers cases in which the consideration or object of an agreement is forbidden by law, at the time when the agreement is entered into or is of such a nature that, if permitted it would defeat the provisions of any existing statute. (a) A agrees to sell his house to B for 10,000 rupees. Here B's promise to pay the sum of 10,000 rupees is the consideration for A's promise to sell the house. and A's promise to sell the house is the consideration for B's promise to pay the 10,000 rupees. These are lawful considerations.

(b) A promises to pay B, 1,000 rupees at the end of six months, if C, who owes that sum to B, fails to pay it. B promises to grant time to C accordingly. Here the promise of each party is the consideration for the promise of the other party and they are lawful considerations.

(c) A promises, for a certain sum paid to him by B, to make good to B the value of his ship if it is wrecked on a certain voyage. Here A's promise is the consideration for B's payment, and B's payment is the consideration for A's promise, and these are lawful considerations.

(d) A promises to maintain B's child and B promises to pay A, 1,000 rupees yearly for the purpose. Here the promise of each party is the consideration for the promise of the other party. They are lawful considerations.

(e) A, B and C enter into an agreement for the division among them of gains acquired, or to be acquired, by them by fraud. The agreement is void, as its object is unlawful.

(f) A promises to obtain for B an employment in the public service, and B promises to pay 1,000 rupees to A. The agreement is void, as the consideration for it is unlawful.

(g) A, being agent for a landed proprietor, agrees for money, without the knowledge of his principal, to obtain for B a lease of land belonging to his principal. The agreement between A and B is void, as it implies a fraud by concealment by A, on his principal.

(h) A promises B to drop a prosecution which he has instituted against B for robbery, and B promises to restore the value of the things taken. The agreement is void, as its object is unlawful.

(i) A's estate is sold for arrears of revenue under the provisions of an Act of the Legislature, by which the defaulter is prohibited from purchasing the estate. B, upon an understanding with A, becomes the purchaser, and agrees to convey the estate to A upon receiving from him the price which B has paid. The agreement is void, as it renders the transaction, in effect, a purchase by the defaulter and would so defeat the object of the law.

(j) A, who is B's mukhtar, promises to exercise his influence, as such, with B in favour of C, and C promises to pay 1,000 rupees to A. The agreement is void, because it is immoral.

(k) A agrees to let her daughter to hire to B for concubinage. The agreement is void, because it is immoral, though the letting may not be punishable under the Indian Penal Code.

could not possibly be interpreted to render void an agreement which was perfectly lawful when it was entered into. A pronote in respect of arrears of rent the recovery of which was later on prohibited by U.P. Act XVIII of 1939 is not void. 1943 A.L.W. 87. When a transaction has been entered into for unlawful or immoral purpose and that purpose has been achieved, the Court would not interfere at the instance of a particeps criminalis to relieve him from the legal effect of the transaction. 44 M. 329 = 39 M.L.J. 525 = 59 I.C. 1003. A contract which is void because it is forbidden by law cannot become valid even if the parties act according to the contract. 119 I.C. 505 = 1929 A. 394. An agreement between two priests by which certain disciples were specifically allotted to each of them with the stipulation that that arrangement would be binding on them and their heirs and that if one of them would perform any religious service in the family allotted to the other priest, he would be liable to pay compensation, is invalid being opposed to public policy. Consequently a suit for damages for breach of that agreement is not maintainable. 42 C.W.N. 1038.

ILLEGALITY DISCLOSED IN EVIDENCE.—If the illegality of a transaction is brought to the notice of the Court, the Court should not assist the person who invokes its aid even though the defendant has not pleaded the illegality and does not wish to raise the objection. This is based on grounds of public policy. 145 I.C. 599 = 1933 M. 187. See also 53 I.C. 773 = 24 C.W.N. 306.

COLLATERAL CONTRACT.—An agreement by a Government tenant with plaintiff to the effect that if the plaintiff helped the former in bringing the land under cultivation the former would give to the plaintiff one-half of whatever rights he might acquire in the land is not opposed to public policy. 3 L. 92 = 64 I.C. 18 = 1922 L. 287. Where the defendant borrows moneys from the plaintiff with the clear intention of utilising the money for the purpose of gambling but there is nothing to indicate that the plaintiff was privy to this intention, there is nothing to preclude the plaintiff from recovering the amount from the defendant by suit. 131 I.C. 546 = 1931 A. 458 (1). bine's mother or her assignee can sue as benamidar and it cannot be treated as involving the enforcement of an immoral contract. 56 I.C. 616. The memorandum of association of the Bank prohibited the Bank from lending on mortgage. Held, that the Bank could sue to enforce the contract. 1930 M. 512—59 M.L.J. 28. Where a person applied to the municipal committee for sanction to build so as to encroach upon a street and the Municipality having sanctioned the same on condition of his paying certain rent he agreed to the same, held, that the contract was not illegal and that the Municipality was entitled to recover the rent reserved. 32 P.L.R. 607=1931 L. 634. Fraudulent perpetual lease by widow to defeat reversioners—If can confer ordinary tenancy rights at the least. See 1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 858. A promise to abstain from raising the plea of limitation in a suit is void as it defeats the provisions of Law of Limitation. 40 M. 701=35 I.C. 575=31 M.L.J. 231. The sale of palanquin bearing service inam is not opposed to public policy. 13 I.C. 190=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 588. Benami purchase by police officer while in service is not void as being opposed to public policy. 52 I.C. 153=16 N.L.R. 25. Where land which is not transferable under a special statute is transferred in contravention thereof a suit by the vendor for damages for breach of covenant for title is maintainable. 54 I.C. 669; 47 I.C. 32=14 N.L.R. 125. A purchase made benami by a Government servant in contravention of executive orders and rules governing the conduct of public servants is void on the ground of public policy and the real purchaser does not get a title under the purchase. 47 I.C. 694; 1930 A. 732. See also 19 Mys.L.J. 262. A pro-note payable to "so and so order or bearer" contravenes the provisions of S. 24 of the Paper Currency Acts and is therefore void. It is a contract forbidden by law and nothing can be recovered on the document. 24 I. C. 721=(1914) 11 U.B.R. 13.

ACTS PROHIBITED BY STATUTE.—Where a transaction consists of two separate considerations for two several objects consisting of legal and illegal parts in which the lawful is separable from unlawful, it is always possible to give effect to the lawful and reject unlawful; in fact that is what the Courts are bound to do unless the whole transaction is prohibited by statute or unless it involves serious moral turpitude or is otherwise against public policy. 177 I.C. 6=1938 Nag. 335 (F.B.). A transfer of property to Kanungo is not against public policy. 14 A.L.J. 969=36 I.C. 319=39 A. 58. Assignment of mortgage in the name of a patwari's mother is not against public policy, though the patwari cannot engage in trade or money-lending according to rules framed by Revenue Board. 14 A.L.J. 962=39 A. 51. A patwari acquiring land in his own circle is against public policy and illegal. 1927 L. 18=7 L. 463. A promissory note executed in the name of patwari who is prohibited by the patwari rules from carrying on money-lending business is not void under S. 23 of the Contract Act when the patwari is a mere benamidar for his wife who advanced the money and he did no more than lend his name to the transaction for her accommodation. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 645=1944 N.L.J. 448=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 325. It is an established principle that the Court will not lend its aid to enforce a contract entered into with a view to carry into effect anything which is prohibited by law. Prima facie, there is nothing illegal about trying to avoid, or successfully avoiding having one's property taken under the superintendence of the Court of Wards so long as the device adopted is not illegal in itself. There is nothing in the adoption of such a device which would make it invalid in law. The purpose is not an unlawful one. 196 I.C. 787=1941 Oudh 529. Where in a compromise, one of the parties agrees not to claim expropriary rights on a transfer by him, the agreement is neither forbidden by, nor defeats the provisions of S. 7-A (5) of the Oudh Rent Act and hence is neither unlawful nor would it defeat the provisions of any law. 1941 O.W.N. 1138=17 Luck. 249=1942 Oudh 1. Agreement not to apply for restoration of possession under S. 35, U. P. Encumbered Estates Act—Legality. See 1940 O.W.N. 1246. As to mortgage of occupancy holding forbidden by the Tenancy Act, see 157 I.C. 1096=1935 A.L.J. 339=1935 A. 256. A police officer who was forbidden from purchasing land under S. 33, Police Act, purchased land in the name of his mother.

After his death she sold a portion of it to her daughter. The son of the deceased officer sued to have the sale set aside alleging that his father was the true owner of the property. Held, that the contract under which the plaintiff's father obtained the property was void, that no claim could be made on the basis of such illegal agreement and that as the father had no title, the son was not entitled. 35 Bom.L.R. 404=1933 Bom. 262. Where money is advanced by a creditor for the purpose of defraying the expenses already incurred in celebrating a marriage of an infant in violation of the Child Marriage Restraint Act, the consideration is not rendered illegal under S. 23 of the Contract Act. 65 C.L.J. 557=41 C.W.N. 1176. See also (1940) 2 M.L.J. 353. An agreement for the payment of a monthly sum by the defendant to the plaintiff (the permanent Karnam) in consideration of the plaintiff recommending the defendant to the office of Karnam gumastha during the minority of the plaintiff's heir is opposed to public policy and unenforceable. 1933 M. 768=65 M.L.J. 532. The fact that a contract was made in breach of the Government Servants Conduct Rules, would not invalidate the contract. Those rules appear prima facie rules of conduct and would not render such a contract invalid but only render the person who commits a breach of the rules liable to departmental action. 1943 A.L.W. 537. An agreement to do an act which is prohibited by the Rules framed under the Motor Vehicles Act is illegal and void, though the parties did not know of the prohibition. 91 I.C. 1029=1926 N. 259. See also I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 347 (Omission in contract with corporation to comply with statutory requirements). Agreements which have been held to be void under this section include a sublease of an excise contract, a transfer of a share in an excise contract, a transfer of occupancy rights declared by statute to be non-transferable and a transfer by a disqualified proprietor and a transfer in contravention of S. 8 of the Punjab Tenants Act. 3 P.R. 1915 (Rev.)=31 I.C. 400. So also a contract for the possessory mortgage of occupancy holdings is void. 1931 A. 461. Municipal Council has no power to farm out the right to collect slaughtering fees. A lease of such a right is void. 36 M. 113=21 M.L.J. 790=11 I.C. 669. Agreement in contravention of S. 257-A, old C. P. Code, is not opposed to public policy. 21 M.L.J. 709=9 I.C. 875=35 M. 75. Pleadar advancing loan to a person not his client is not opposed to public policy. 39 I.C. 135=20 O.C. 67. See also 1930 S. 175=123 I.C. 299. There is no law or regulation laying down that an agreement between any two persons living in the Santhal parganas to pay compound interest on the amount borrowed is unlawful within the meaning of S. 23, Contract Act. All that the law provides is that compound interest will not be decreed by any Court. 1930 P. 442=10 P. 63. When the contract is void because prohibited by statute the Court has power to work out the equities and place the parties upon terms. No question of limitation arises in connexion with the Court's powers to place the parties upon terms if the suit is otherwise good. 177 I.C. 6=1938 Nag. 335 (F.B.). When a contract is void for illegality as opposed to being merely nugatory, money paid or goods delivered in pursuance of it cannot ordinarily be recovered unless it is still executory because of the maxim ex turpi causa non oritur actio; in fact the test of illegality is the applicability of maxim. But there are several exceptions to this rule, one of which is where the contract is made illegal by statute with the object of protecting a particular class of persons, in which case restitution can be ordered. The refusal to direct restitution is not founded on any section of the Contract Act but is because of the matters like public policy, ex turpi causa, in part delicto and the like. 177 I.C. 6=1938 Nag. 335 (F.B.).

SLAVERY BOND, or any other bond approaching this is void as forbidden by laws. 103 I.C. 96=1927 M. 818. See also 106 I.C. 803=1928 N. 89 (2); 1929 M. 267.

AGREEMENT TO ADOPT OR NOT TO ADOPT.—Where a Hindu widow having authority from her husband to adopt agrees in consideration of a pecuniary advantage to herself, not to adopt, the agreement is void as being opposed to public policy. The authority is given not for her but for her husband's benefit. 49 I.C. 929=1919 M.W. N. 52. Compromise in a suit providing that the plaintiff should adopt the son of one of the defendants and giving the plaintiff certain rights on condition of his so adopting was held to be a bona fide family settlement and not opposed to public policy. 1926 M. 1093=51 M.L.J. 366.

AGREEMENT TO PREVENT BIDDING.—An agreement by a person promising to pay money to another if the latter would not compete for the purchase of certain property with the former is legal. 10 I.C. 627; 10 M.L.T. 338. Partnership in respect of.—Legality.—Tender by one partner on behalf of partnership.—Licence in name of such partner only.—Suit for dissolution of partnership.—Maintainability. 1933 Mad. 295=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 97.

Quaere: Whether, when a partnership is entered into before the auction of toddy shops and one of the partners is deputed to bid for and obtain a license in his own name on behalf of the partnership, the partnership would be a lawful one? (1944) 1 M.L.J. 97, there was nothing in the Madras Abkari Act or in the rules thereunder with regard to the sale of Abkari privileges to prevent a firm from holding a license. I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 697=57 L.W. 93=1944 M.W.N. 81=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 295=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 97. An agreement to abstain from bidding at an excise auction is not void under S. 23 as being against public policy. 44 I.C. 223. (18 B. 342; 16 C. 194; 6 O.L.J. 111, Rel.) Agreement between two or more persons not to bid against one another at a public auction is not unlawful or against public policy. 56 I.C. 963=12 Bur.L.T. 241; 44 I.O. 223; 46 I.C. 755; 32 P.L.R. 879; 10 O.W. N. 1. But see 28 I.C. 40=8 S.L.R. 247, contra. An agreement between intending bidders at an auction to form a knock out ring and share the profits resulting therefrom is opposed to public policy and is unenforceable. I. L. R. (1943) Lah. 837=45 P.L.R. 119=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 100. There is no warrant for holding that a combination of persons not to bid against one another at a public sale or auction of Government tolls offends against public policy. The law will always encourage freedom to contract. "Public policy" is that principle under which freedom of contract or private dealing is restricted by law for the good of the community. It is a variable thing and must fluctuate with the circumstances of the time. But it is still an untrustworthy ground for legal decision and it must be resorted to within the prescribed limits. A partnership formed solely with a view to taking toll contracts at a public auction is in itself not illegal; such partners who agree to take tolls for the benefit of their firm would naturally agree not to bid against one another. The fact that in certain cases such a combination might result in possible loss to public revenue, would not make the act, which is perfectly legitimate, opposed to public policy so as to render it void and illegal. 42 Bom.L.R. 750=1940 Bom. 369=I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 71.

BENAMI TRANSACTION.—Plaintiff, to whom a railway company had refused to grant any contracts, entered into an agreement with the defendant that the defendant should put himself forward as the applicant for the contracts, and when the same was secured he would serve the plaintiff, the real contractor. The plaintiff sued for declaration that he was the real person who held the contract. Held, that the object of the agreement was to commit fraud on the railway company and therefore was void. 1930 A. 732. See also 1944 Nag. 325=1944 N.L.J. 448.

BRIBE FOR PERJURY.—See 1 L.W. 300=23 I.C. 540=1914 M.W.N. 322; 10 I.O. 801=4 Bur.L.T. 95. See also 146 I.C. 240=1933 R. 199.

BRIBE TO PUBLIC OFFICERS.—A Court will not assist a party who has entered into a contract involving moral turpitude. 43 O. 115=19 O.W.N. 919=29 I.C. 625. Money paid as bribe is not legally recoverable. 1931 R. 83. See also 146 I.C. 240=1933 R. 199. S. 23 is not concerned with motive. It is confined to the object of the transaction and not to the reasons or motives which prompted it. The law does not prevent even the most degraded of men from having their own friends and from receiving gifts from them whatever the motive of the donors may be, provided the object is not to induce or encourage the commission of an illegal or an immoral act. B, a Hindu, borrowed a certain amount from A in order to bribe a certain officer. After the bribing was done and completed B obtained a loan from C in order to pay off A and executed a mortgage in favour of C. Held, that the purpose of the mortgage loan was not to effect an illegal purpose. Such illegal purpose as had been effected had been effected. The mortgage loan was at worst a loan designed to enable the borrower to pay back a lender who could not have sued the borrower in a Court of law successfully and therefore it was no more contrary to public policy than would be a loan to a borrower to enable that borrower to make a gift. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 573 and 618=1940 Nag. 305.

CHAMPERTY AND MAINTENANCE.—An agreement to finance a litigation and to share the fruits thereof ought to be carefully watched and when found to be extortionate and unconscionable or made not with the bona fide object of assisting a claim believed to be just and of obtaining a reasonable recompense therefor, but for improper object so as to be contrary to public policy, effect ought not to be given to it. 43 I.C. 74. See also 1934 L. 1017; 14 R. 392=1936 R. 491; 15 Lah.L.T. 26; 1938 Lah. 23. Champerty is per se not illegal. But a champertous agreement if extortionate and unconscionable, should however be held to be contrary to public policy and cannot be enforced. 1933 R. 418 (2); 48 M. 230=1924 P.C. 162 (P.C.); 1925 O. 71; 89 I.C. 229; 131 I.C. 401=1931 P.C. 100=61 M. L.J. 94 (P.C.); 14 R. 392=1936 R. 491; 15 Lah.L.T. 26; 166 I.C. 194=1937 O. 82=39 P.L.R.J. & K. 33; 42 Bom.L.R. 165. An agreement to transfer property for financing a suit is valid provided that the agreement is fair and equitable and not extortionate or unconscionable or for an improper purpose. 33 A. 626=8 A.L.J. 652; 16 S.L.R. 278=1923 S. 50; 70 I.C. 904; 93 I.C. 959; 39 P.L.R. (J. & K.) 88. Champerty is not void in India unless the transaction is not a bona fide one for the acquisition of an interest in the subject of litigation, but an illegitimate transaction got up for the purpose merely of spell or litigation disturbing the peace of families and carried on from an improper and corrupt motive. 59 I.O. 10; 1 R. 565=77 I.C. 872

=1924 R. 48. Champertous transactions are in their essence speculative and the fairness or otherwise of a particular bargain is almost always open to some debate. The fairness of the agreement must be considered independently of unproved suggestions that it may have been improperly obtained. In applying the principle that "a fair agreement to supply funds to carry on a suit in consideration of having a share in the property, if recovered, ought not to be regarded as being per se opposed to public policy" it is essential to have regard not merely to the value of the property claimed but to the commercial value of the claim. This has to be estimated by the parties in advance of the result; and where they have weighed the probabilities in a manner which has not operated unfairly, it is more reasonable to regard this as confirming their shrewd estimate of the chances, than to condemn the agreement outright as unfair, by reason only of the possibility that a great gain to the claimant would have had to be shared with the financier. Though it is not conclusive, the proportion to be retained by the claimant is an important matter to be considered when judging the fairness of a bargain made at a time when the result of the litigation is problematical. The uncertainties of litigation are proverbial; and if the financier must needs risk losing his money he may well be allowed some chance of exceptional advantage. 61 I.A. 50=I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 1=51 L.W. 86=44 C.W.N. 345=1940 P.C. 19=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 278 (P.C.). There is no law in India prohibiting champertous agreements and such an agreement cannot be attacked on the ground that it is against public policy. 121 I.C. 295=1930 L. 392. The English Law of Champerty is not in force in India. 1 L. 124=56 I.C. 272. See also 1923 N. 214; 55 I.C. 635; 1 R. 565=2 Bur.L.J. 177; 1928 M.W.N. 5. Where a person contracts with the real claimant of an estate to litigate on his behalf for its recovery and agrees to share a portion of the net assets realised by him out of the estate, such agreement is not void as opposed to public policy; yet when it is extortionate, it should not be enforced in its entirety but the amount which he spent in litigation plus a reasonable amount for the trouble which he has taken should be awarded; where the agreement gave half the share in the net assets realised, the Court allowed the amount spent in litigation together with 12 per cent. interest on it. 1934 R. 346. A transfer of a right of a reversioner as illegal and opposed to public policy as stimulating gambling in litigation. 41 I.C. 347=135 P.L.R. 1917. There is nothing illegal in a plaintiff agreeing to sell the suit property to a third person if the suit prove successful. 98 P.L.R. 1913=18 I.C. 485. Champerty—Agreement to finance litigation—Suit for moneys advanced is maintainable. 47 I.C.

563. An agreement to obtain for a nominal sum the right to carry on a litigation with a very poor chance of success, is champertous and cannot be given effect to on principles of equity and good conscience. 63 I.C. 356; 61 I.C. 884. Purchase of interest in the property for the purpose of litigation for its realisation is unlawful. 55 I.C. 635. Champerty—Test of. See 52 C.L.J. 492=1931 C. 144; 61 M.L.J. 94=1931 P.C. 100 (P.C.).

BURDEN OF PROOF.—A party being unable to pay the Court-fees and other expenses for certain suits which he had to institute, the defendant undertook to raise the requisite amount by subscriptions on the understanding that in case the suits succeeded half the decretal amount should be paid to the subscribers. Plaintiff was one of the subscribers and paid amounts. The parties having fallen out, plaintiff sued the defendant for return of the amount of subscriptions paid by him. Held, that the burden of proving that the litigation proposed was a just one and that the agreement to finance it was just and equitable was on the plaintiff; that the terms of the agreement in question were on the face of them inconsistent with a proper motive, i.e., an intention to help a litigant unable to finance himself in the pursuit of a proper claim; and that the claim was one for the recovery of a gambling debt, and being opposed to public policy, must fail. 151 I.C. 969=1934 A. 1023. See also (1941) 1 M.L.J. 807.

CHEATING.—Certain persons were being tried for an offence. The accused representing that he could influence the Court in their favour received money from those persons. The accused was prosecuted for cheating. It was urged for the defence that the money having been paid for an illegal purpose a prosecution for cheating in regard to that money could not be maintained. Held, that the plea was untenable. 146 I.C. 240=1933 R. 199. See also 1931 R. 83. Compromise of suit dealing with property of minors, not parties to suit. See 61 C.L.J. 88.

Agreement interfering with service vital to public and involving deceit of Secretary of State. An agreement by which a person on failing to obtain a postal contract from the Secretary of State is to be the real owner of the lorries plying and receive the profits of the contract obtained by another, is entirely contrary to public policy and is void. Such an agreement is likely to lead to a condition of affairs which will seriously interfere with the proper maintenance of a service vital and necessary to the public. Further it involves deceit of the Secretary of State in respect of a matter in which the public as a whole are vitally interested. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 545=1943 N.L.J. 345=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 260.

COPYRIGHT—ASSIGNMENT OF—VALIDITY OF TERMS.—See 39 O.W.N. 224.

EVIDENCE.—An agreement by the parties to a suit, even apart from the Oaths Act, that they will abide by the statement of a witness, including one who is a party to the suit, is perfectly valid. There is nothing in the Contract Act which offends against such an agreement. It is only a waiver of the right to produce any other evidence. 1933 A.L.J. 1127=1933 A. 861 (F.B.).

EXCISE CONTRACT.—An agreement to sub-lease salt pan in contravention of terms of licence is not specifically enforceable. 24 Bom.L.R. 111=46 B. 651=1922 B. 79. Contract infringing Abkari laws is void. 18 S.L.R. 16=87 I.C. 353=1925 S. 55. See also 58 M. 727=1935 M. 440=68 M.L.J. 570 (F.B.); 69 M.L.J. 490; 1937 Nag. 250; 1941 Mad. 64=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 694. Abkari sale—Bidder entering into partnership with another after sale and before grant of licence in respect of running of business of sale of toddy not legal. 52 L.W. 530=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 694. See also 22 Pat. 334; (1944) 1 M.L.J. 97=1944 Mad. 295. A contract to sublet or assign a licence is one to evade the excise rules and is void and illegal. 9 I.C. 115=15 O.W.N. 169; 29 I.C. 480; 37 B. 390=19 I.C. 442=15 Bom.L.R. 227 (31 C. 798, Foll.); 8 L. 310=100 I.C. 846=1927 L. 333. The supply of intoxicating liquor on credit is forbidden under the Bombay Abkari Act and Rules thereunder; hence a contract for the supply of liquor on credit is illegal or void coming within the mischief of S. 23 of the Contract Act. The Abkari Act has a dual purpose. Its primary object might be fiscal or administrative, but it also has a social purpose. The prevention of the sale of intoxicating liquor on credit has a social or moral purpose, and any contract made in contravention of such a prohibition is clearly a contract which would defeat the provisions of the law within the meaning of S. 23, Contract Act. It makes no difference that the prohibition is contained in a statutory rule and not in the statute itself. I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 350=A.I.R. 1943 Sind 219. A lease to a person not licensed under the Madras Abkari Act for tanning toddy is not illegal and can be enforced. 61 I.C. 537=14 L.W. 226. The taking of a partner by an Abkari licensee is in effect a sale to him of a portion of the business and making him an agent for the sale of liquor contrary to the terms of the licence and the partnership is consequently illegal. 43 M. 141=38 M.L.J. 123; 68 M.L.J. 570=1935 M. 440=58 M. 727 (F.B.). But see 8 L. 310=100 I.C. 846=1927 L. 333, holding that though the state may refuse to recognise such partnership, the parties cannot wriggle out of it. An agreement subletting the right to vend ganja is illegal and unenforceable, where one of the conditions of an Abkari licence prohibits vending, transferring or subletting of the licence. 34 I.C. 927. A promissory note given in consideration of the transfer of a right to sell toddy prohibited under S. 22 of the Madras Abkari Act is unenforceable as being for an illegal consideration. 27 I.C. 919=1915 M.W.N. 25. The provisions of the Abkari and Opium Acts are not merely intended to guard the Government revenue, but they are based on public policy. No suit will lie to enforce rights that are inconsistent with the spirit of the Acts. 35 M. 582=21 M.L.J. 425. An agreement of partnership to start a business for the sale of drugs the lease for which was obtained in the plaintiff's name is not illegal. 25 I.C. 146=17 O.O. 193.

TOLLS COLLECTION—LEASE OF—SUB-LETTING.—A term in a Government kabuliyat dealing with the assignment by the lessee of tolls was to the effect that the "contractor, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns shall not sub-let, assign, transfer or mortgage the whole or any portion of the rights or property the subject of these presents without the written permission of the said Collector, previously obtained." It was also provided that for breach of the conditions, the Collector could impose a fine. Udd. that subletting or assignment was not absolutely prohibited and is not opposed to any provisions of law and since redress was provided by the imposition of a penalty under the kabuliyat, the clause against subletting or assignment except in a particular manner would not render an assignment void. I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 71=42 Bom.L.R. 750=1940 Bom. 369.

EXECUTION SALE.—An agreement between two persons not to bid against each other at an auction sale is perfectly lawful and cannot be considered to be opposed to public policy. Where however the transaction is entered into fraudulently in order to deprive a rival decree-holder of the fruits of his decree it is void because of S. 23. Fraud inferred on facts of the case. 8 Luck. 233=1933 O. 124. An agreement providing that one of the parties should assist the other in carrying on a litigation commenced by the other and help him to evade or delay the execution of a decree passed against him is contrary to public policy. 145 I.C. 756=1933 A.L.J. 85=1933 A. 303.

EXPECTANT HEIRS.—Where an agreement entered into between expectant heirs in 1868 provided for the division of the property after the succession opened. Held, that the agreement was not hit at by S. 6, T.P. Act or S. 23, Contract Act and was enforceable. 14 Pat.L.T. 27=1933 P. 165. See also 39 Bom.L.R. 1233=1938 Bom. 97. A charge created by a Mahomedan on the uncertain and undefined share of property of one of his heirs defeats the provisions of Mahomedan law and hence it is illegal and invalid and cannot be enforced. 1933 A. 934.

FRAUDULENT LEASE BY MORTGAGOR.—The owner of 58 bighas of lands hypothecated the holding. It appeared that 47 bighas were cultivable and 11 bighas uncultivable waste land. The mortgagor subsequently gave a lease of the cultivable lands to another at a certain rate. The effect of the lease was that during the period of the lease the property was not only absolutely valueless to the owner but also involved a net liability of a few rupees the amount by which the land revenue exceeded the rent payable. Held, that the lease was a fraudulent transfer as it deprived the mortgagee of his security and the Court could order the ejectment of the lessee as a trespasser. 18 R. D. 367=15 I.R. 445 (Rev.). See also 1941 A.W.R. (Rev.). 858.

FRAUDULENT TRANSFER.—Where a debtor transfers property to one creditor with a view to give a fraudulent preference to that creditor over others, there is nothing illegal though in the event of bankruptcy supervening, the transaction would be invalid as against the assignee in bankruptcy. When the object of the transaction is to defeat the equality of distribution among all the creditors, required by the bankruptcy law, it can be avoided in the event of a bankruptcy, but as between the parties to the transaction, they are bound by it. 1944 Mad. 403=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 371.

FORFEITURE.—Mortgage executed by accused in favour of surety for amount forfeited by latter not opposed to public policy. 1938 Lah. 732.

GOVERNMENT—CONTRACT WITH.—Where Government open a telegraph office at a particular place at the request of certain persons in that place, a contract with them for meeting the deficit in its working expense is a contract relating to a matter of amenity, which a modern State generally provides for, for advancing the material welfare of its subjects, but which it is not bound to do as a part of its fundamental constitutional obligations. There can, therefore, be no objection to such a contract on the ground of public policy. I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 463=42 C.W.N. 116=1938 Cal. 151.

INDEMNIFYING SURETY.—Where a bail bond is forfeited owing to the failure of the accused to appeal, the surety cannot sue a third person who had agreed to indemnify the surety for recovery of the amount forfeited, as such a contract is illegal. 56 I.C. 539=24 C.W.N. 368; 28 I.C. 560=19 C.W.N. 329; 65 I.C. 137; 1930 C. 546; 32 P.L.R. 739.

JURISDICTION OF COURT, OUSTING OF, BY AGREEMENT.—The jurisdiction of any Court is conferred by statute and it can only be taken away by statute. The parties can by mutual consent no more take away the jurisdiction vested by law in any Court than they can confer on it when it is not so vested by law. By a private agreement the parties cannot divest the Court of its inherent jurisdiction to try disputes arising out of the agreement. It would be against public policy if the parties by private agreement can oust the jurisdiction of the Courts. 1935 N. 48=157 I.C. 315. Where two Courts have jurisdiction to try a case, an agreement between the parties that it should be tried in one place rather than another is not opposed public policy. 20 N.L.J. 247=1937 Nag. 334.

MASTER AND SERVANT.—Agreement between parties that master may impose fine—Fine imposed—Suit claiming refund of fine is not barred. See 6 Pat.L.T. 762=87 I.C. 739.

MARRIAGE CONTRACT.—An ante-nuptial agreement whereby a suitable maintenance is provided for the wife in case the husband ill-treated or behaved improperly towards her, or capriciously turned her out, is not opposed to S. 23 and is enforceable. 19 A. L.J. 675=43 A. 650=63 I.C. 889. Receiving of consideration by those who arrange marriages in India when the money received is intended to benefit those persons and not for the expenses of the ceremony or for the benefit of the bride or bridegroom, is against public policy and falls within the mischief struck at by S. 23 of the Contract Act. I. L.R. (1944) Nag. 535=1944 N.L.J. 124=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 159. An agreement for separation and the payment of periodical maintenance to the wife is not contrary to public policy. 27 N.L.R. 281 (28 C. 751, Dist.) A contract that parent of either the boy or the girl who is a party to the marriage shall pay a certain sum of money if and when the marriage is celebrated is not void ab initio as being opposed to public policy. 51 I.C. 856. See also 5 P. 646=1926 P. 582; (1945) 1 M.L.J. 145 (Promissory note by Hindu to future bridegroom in consideration of marriage). Section 23 is not a bar for recovery of money paid in consideration of a marriage where there has been a breach. Where the defendant admitted execution of the promissory note in favour of the plaintiff but pleaded that it was executed for money due to the plaintiff and his sister in consideration of the latter's son marrying his daughter and it appeared that the agreement fell through, held, that the promissory note was all the same enforceable. 8 Mys.L.J. 247. See also 157 I.C. 736=1935 Pesh. 121. The Court would clearly not enforce a contract or a decree if the enforcement implied the approbation by the Court of an act which was contrary to law. But the Court should not refuse to enforce a payment under a decree because the object for which a payment is made is contrary to the law of British India, when that object was actually performed in a place or Native State where it was perfectly legal. When a decree has been passed against a person requiring him to pay a sum of money towards his share of the expenses of the marriage of his sister, which was performed in a Native State in order to evade the provisions of the Child Marriage Restraint Act, execution of the decree cannot be refused on the ground of public policy on the ground that the marriage if performed in British India would be opposed to the Child Marriage Restraint Act. 1940 Mad. 901=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 353. See also 41 C.W.N. 1176=65 C.L.J. 557. An agreement between a Mahomedan husband and his wife, providing for a certain maintenance to the wife in the event of a future separation between them, is void as being opposed to public policy. 37 B. 280=17 I. C. 946=14 Bom.L.R. 1178. See also 1939 Lah. 165. It is as much the policy of the Mahomedan Law as of the English Law that people who are married should live together and not apart. (Ibid.) Advancing money to compensate husband willing to divorce his wife—If legal. See 1925 N. 111. An agreement at time of marriage executed by husband providing that in case of strained relations between him and his wife, the wife would be entitled to her customary maintenance is not void under any provision of law. 184 I.C. 105=41 P.L.R. 711=1939 Lah. 165. See also 39 Bom. L.R. 458=1937 Bom. 358 (agreement between Hindu husband and wife to live separately and provision for wife's maintenance charged over specified property). A contract by a Hindu to maintain as wife a woman, who is not his lawfully wedded wife, is opposed to public policy and consequently unlawful. 16 I.C. 133=14 Bom. L.R. 547. Where a suit for maintenance by a wife against her husband is compromised and the parties agree to live together and in case of future disagreement between them, the husband agrees to pay a certain rate of maintenance to the wife, if, after living together for some time, the parties fall out and the wife begins to live separately owing to disagreement, she is entitled to enforce execution of the compromise decree. It cannot be said that the agreement or compromise is void as being opposed to public policy on the ground merely that it contains a provision for future separation. The agreement being one in furtherance of the husband and wife living together and for the purpose of effecting reconciliation between parties then living apart, it is valid and enforceable and not void. Nor can the plea that the compromise is opposed to public policy be raised in execution proceedings. The case is not one of inherent want of jurisdiction but one where the question of jurisdiction is to be decided by the Court itself. The decision, though wrong, is one which the Court is competent to give and will operate as res judicata. The Court recording the compromise having power to decide whether it was lawful, its decision is binding and competent and the executing Court cannot go behind it. 57 L.W. 485=1944 M.W.N. 573=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 210. See also 56 L. W. 536=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 359. An agreement whereby guardian, natural or appointed, consents to give his ward in marriage for his own pecuniary benefit is void under S. 23 and the fact that no injury resulted thereby to the ward is irrelevant. 9 I.C. 652=13 C.W.N. 447. Marriage contract—Money paid under—Suit for recovery—Contract not performed. See 106 I.C. 803=1928 N. 89 (2); 53 I.C. 406=113 P.R. 1919; 16 I.C. 1004=10 A.L.J. 169. A breach of betrothal agreement gives rise to a claim for damages. 27 I.C. 1008=27 P.L.R. 1915. A contract of betrothal made in regard to a girl not born at the time of the contract is null and void and cannot form a basis for damages. 125 I.C. 369=1930 L. 561. An agreement, by which the father binds himself to place his daughter at the disposal of another to be given away in marriage by him to anyone whom he likes is invalid and cannot be recognized by the Courts of law. 125 I.C. 369=1930 L. 561. An agreement for the purchase of a bride for the son of a person who had given his daughter in exchange for finding a wife for that person is void being against public policy. 125 I.C. 369=1930 L. 561. A contract by A to give his daughter in marriage to D's son and in case of breach to pay a certain sum as damages is unenforceable. 37 M. 393=24 M.L.J. 310=18 I.C. 515. An ante-nuptial agreement by a Mahomedan husband not to contract a second marriage is not illegal or invalid or immoral or opposed to public policy or in restraint of marriage. 10 L.B.R. 194=59 I.C. 804=13 Bur.L.T. 89. An agreement to pay a sum of money for persuading a woman to marry the person paying the sum is opposed to public policy and unenforceable. 50 I.C. 551=(1918) 3 U.B.R. 119. Contract of betrothal in marriage between parents of Hindu bride and bridegroom is valid—it is not marriage brokerage contract. See 1937 M.W.N. 1274. The plaintiff was anxious to have his son married. The defendants offered to procure a Jat girl for the boy, provided the plaintiff paid them Rs. 2,000. The plaintiff agreed and the defendants produced a girl who they represented was Jat. The plaintiff paid Rs. 2,000 in cash to the defendants and a date was fixed for the marriage. Before the ceremony, the girl informed the plaintiff that she was not a Jat but was a sweeper by caste and that the defendants had falsely stated that she was a Jat. On this the contemplated marriage did not come off. Held, that the agreement having remained unfulfilled the plaintiff was entitled to a refund of the money, even though the original agreement was void under S. 23. 1938 L. 849 (2). Public policy—Husband's promise to pay money for wife's personal ex-

MONOPOLY, GRANT OF.—A contract by a District Board granting a person a monopoly of lorry traffic on a particular road to the exclusion of all other members of the public is opposed to public policy and is therefore void. (28 M. 520, Foll.) 35 P.L.B. 511=1934 L. 474. See also 19 Mys.L.J. 262. A contract or licence under which the licensee is entitled exclusively to collect the hides of all dead animals within a particular area of the Zamindari or raj of the grantor of the license, and under which the chamars and owners of dead animals are bound to sell hides to the licensee and to none else, is one which purports to grant a monopoly and is unenforceable. 17 Pat. 255=1938 Pat. 473.

PARTITION.—See 39 C.W.N. 716.

PARTNERSHIP.—Where a person lends money to a partnership which is an illegal one or is forbidden by law, with the knowledge that it is going to be used for purposes forbidden by law, a suit by him to recover the amount so lent is not maintainable. 165 I.C. 765=1936 M. 603. See also 1937 R. 47.

PERJURY.—Where a litigant has agreed to give property to a certain person in consideration of latter's agreeing to give false evidence on behalf of the former the agreement is void as the consideration for it is opposed to public policy and is therefore illegal. 187 I.C. 269=1940 Rang. 73.

RESTRAINT OF TRADE.—(See also Notes under S. 27). An agreement to form a combination of ginning factories to fix rates and to divide the profits in a certain manner is not either in restraint of trade or opposed to public policy. 10 A.L.J. 117=16 I.C. 631=34 A. 587. A combination amongst the traders of a locality to do business only amongst their members, to pay part of their profits to a common fund, and levying of certain penalty for the breach of the conditions is not actionable per se merely because it brings profits to them and indirectly hurts a rival in trade. 53 A. 816=1931 A.L.J. 84. The action of the Government restricting, by the issue of licences, admission of brokers into a market allowed to be held on Government land is neither illegal nor opposed to public policy. 18 C.W.N. 1194=24 I.C. 387=19 C.L.J. 313. A person purchasing goods for himself cannot claim commission the claim being opposed to public policy. 50 I.C. 975=16 P.W.R. 1919.

STIFLING PROSECUTION.—In order to render a transaction illegal on the ground that the object of the transaction was to stifle a criminal prosecution, it must be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that it was entered into or brought about in pursuance of an agreement to stifle a criminal prosecution. The mere possibility or a talk of criminal prosecution at some stage or another will not make the transaction illegal.

The mere fact that the plaintiff did not prosecute the defendant as at one time he threatened to do will not warrant the Court in inferring an agreement to abstain from prosecuting, when there is very little basis for finding that the plaintiff could ever have thought seriously that the defendant had committed any criminal offence at all. If the fact of the actual commission of an offence is beyond doubt and the plaintiff knows of it, his abstaining from prosecuting would afford some foundation for the argument that the non-prosecution must have been the result of an agreement not to prosecute. Further a distinction must be made in the case of a transaction where there is a pre-existing civil liability, for that is not the case where the plaintiff wishes to gain some money not already due to him, as a result of an arrangement entered into on the threat of criminal proceedings. When what the plaintiff does is only by way of taking steps to secure payment of a portion of the money undoubtedly due to him from the defendant, the transaction cannot be rendered illegal, merely because there is a threat or talk of criminal prosecution. The circumstance that the defendant becomes the obligor under the contract to the plaintiff in respect of a pre-existing liability of another person will not detract from the validity of the contract, it is only a factor to be borne in mind in drawing the inference of fact as to whether the contract was entered into in pursuance of an agreement to stifle a prosecution. It is not a principle of law that wherever a third person undertakes the liability of another in circumstances in which there has at one time been a talk or threat of criminal prosecution, the third person's promise is either without consideration or vitiated by illegality. (1937) 1 M. L.J. 414=44 L.W. 572=1937 M. 223. See also 155 I.C. 341=1935 O.W.N. 553; 19 Pat. 715=1940 Pat. 683; 6 Cut.L.T. 70; 1939 Pat. 291; 19 Pat. 424=1940 Pat. 573; 1941 Pat. 349; 193 I.C. 187; 41 P.L.B. 144=1939 Lah. 187; 1937 O.W.N. 1123; 1941 O.W.N. 391=1941 Oudh 593; 1941 Pat. 349; 54 L.W. 571=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 827; 1942 Mad. 662=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 191=I. L.R. (1943) Mad. 183; 1943 A.L.W. 329. An agreement which consists of a promise to do some act directed towards the stifling of criminal proceedings in respect of a non-compoundable offence is against public policy and is therefore void and unenforceable in a Court of law. If the agreement is the outcome of an understanding that the promisee (complainant) should not object to the withdrawal of the prosecution in respect of a non-compoundable offence is against public policy. The fact that it is not within the power of the complainant to withdraw the prosecution or complaint himself makes no difference. To avoid an agreement as being against policy, it is not enough that the motive which impelled the party undertaking the liability under the agreement was that a pending criminal case should be withdrawn. The test is whether it was an express or implied term of the bargain between the parties that a non-compoundable criminal case should not be proceeded with. 46 Bom. L.R. 745=1945 Bom. 82=I.L.R. (1945) Bom. 208. A contract whereby a proposed or actual prosecutor agrees as part of the consideration received or to be received by him either not to bring or to discontinue criminal proceedings for some alleged offence is an agreement to stifle prosecution falling under S. 23 of the Contract Act. Proof that there has actually been a crime committed is obviously unnecessary. But it is of course necessary that each party should understand that the one is making his promise in exchange or part exchange for the promise of the other not to prosecute or continue prosecuting. Such agreements are from their very nature seldom set out on paper; like many other contracts they have to be inferred from the conduct of the parties after a survey of the whole circumstances. An agreement whereby a wife executes a mortgage bond of her property in discharge of debt due by her husband as part of the consideration for a promise by the husband's creditor to withdraw criminal proceedings against her husband is illegal and falls under S. 23 of the Contract Act, as there is an infringement of public policy. The fact that there was a debt really due by the husband is irrelevant when the agreement to abandon the prosecution is part of the consideration for payment of the debt. In most cases of this kind there is a debt or liability. Indeed if there were not a demand and receipt of money in consideration of refraining from or withholding a prosecution would apparently in itself be a crime. 46 C.W.N. 1=1941 P.C. 93= (1941) 2 M.L.J. 726 (P.C.). See also 19 Pat. 424=1940 P.W.N. 878=1940 Pat. 573; I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 49=1943 Sind 197. It is against public policy to make a trade of felony or attempt to secure benefit by stifling a prosecution or compounding an offence which is not compoundable in law. The principle is that no Court of law can countenance or give effect to an agreement which attempts to take the administration of law out of the hands of the Judges, and put it in the hands of private individuals. The test to be applied in all such cases is whether it was an express or implied term of the bargain between the parties that a non-compoundable criminal case should not be proceeded with. If the consideration for a bond in contract is the withdrawal of a criminal prosecution, obviously it is hit by S. 23. But the fact that prosecution was actually withdrawn as a result of the execution of the bond by the accused in favour of the prosecution does not necessarily show that the object or consideration of the bond was the stifling of the criminal case. A distinction has always been drawn between the motive to a transaction and its object or consideration and it is not enough that the motive which impelled the party who executed the bond was that the criminal case against him might be dropped. To bring a case within the purview of S. 23, it is necessary to show that the object or consideration of the agreement is unlawful. When there is a just and bona fide debt owing by the accused, against whom a non-compoundable criminal case is proceeding, and he gives a security to his creditor, the entire consideration for which is the pre-existing debt, and no part of it is referable to the withdrawal of the criminal case, the transaction would be a perfectly good transaction. There, as between the debtor and the creditor, there is no trading on felony, which public policy condemns and the law attempts at preventing. The creditor gets just what he was entitled to, and there is no advantage or emolument coming to him for withdrawing the prosecution against his debtor. When security is given by an outsider, who is under no existing obligation, the consideration could be nothing else but withdrawing of the criminal case, and as such the security is not enforceable in law. The position is that if the pre-existing liability of the debtor was the sole consideration for the security which he gives, the transaction will be protected, even if it were given under threat of criminal proceedings; but if the dropping of prosecution was also a matter of bargain between the parties, and constituted a part of the consideration apart from the pre-existing debt, the security cannot be enforced in law. 43 C.W.N. 147=1938 Cal. 840. Per Pal, J.—Embezzlement is a crime as also a tort and so far as the tortious liability involved in it is concerned, the remedy of the injured is an action for unliquidated damages. Embezzlement may also create a relation within the confines of what may be said to be quasi contract. When embezzlement takes place, the injured party may waive the tort and seek his remedy in an action based on quasi contract for "money had and received." No party is bound to sue in tort, when by converting the action into one of quasi contract he does not prejudice the tort-feasor. If the tort-feasor agrees to give the injured party a promissory note and a collateral security for the amounts embezzled by him and the consideration for the agreement is the undertaking given by the latter not to sue the former in damages or for money had and received, the agreement is valid and is for a perfectly valid consideration. If, however, the consideration for the agreement is the undertaking given by the latter not to prosecute the former criminally, the agreement is void as the consideration is illegal, the offence being non-compoundable and its composition being opposed to public policy. An undertaking not to prosecute cannot however be inferred from the mere fact that the injured party held out threats of prosecution. Where there is a debt actually due, the mere use of such threats, though followed by an abstaining from prosecution, will not vitiate the transaction. 78 C.L.J. 129=1945 Cal. 218. An act may involve a person in a civil as well as a criminal liability for a non-compoundable offence, the liability depending on proof. The mere fact that an agreement may be made with regard to the civil liability while a possibility of prosecution criminally is existing will not render the agreement void, but if that agreement is made and part of the consideration for it on the side of the aggrieved party is an agreement not to prosecute criminally, then the agreement is void. If the agreement as to the civil liability changes the nature or the extent of the original civil liability, for example if the guarantee of a surety is introduced or if the liability is changed from a personal one to a mortgage security; this will be a strong indication that the agreement is not merely in settlement of the original civil liability, but that it is one made under pressure and in return for an agreement not to prosecute. The additional advantage so conferred by the agreement cannot be enforced in law, though it would be open to a party to fall back upon the original civil liability and enforce it. In considering the question as to whether the consideration of the agreement is the withdrawal of the criminal proceedings, the Court is not confined to the terms of the agreement. It is open to a party to give evidence from which the inference necessarily arises that part of the consideration is unlawful. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 372=44 C.W.N. 304=1940 Cal. 337. See also 39 P.L.R. 536=1937 Lah. 686. It is only in the cases of certain serious offences against the State that no composition is allowed and it is only in such cases that a compromise to withdraw the case is an illegal consideration. But, where there is a criminal case in respect of an offence which is compoundable with the permission of Court, a compromise during the pendency of the case to refer the dispute to arbitration and incidentally to withdraw the prosecution is perfectly lawful. 182 I.C. 490=1939 Lah. 98. Where there is an existing debt or an obligation, a creditor is not precluded from taking any security therefor by threat of a criminal prosecution and the security is not vitiated by the fact that he was induced to abstain from prosecuting the debtor. But if it is a part of the bargain that the creditor should not prosecute the debtor, the security taken for the debt will be invalid. It need not be the sole bargain. Hence where a promissory note is executed pending a criminal prosecution and it is proved that the withdrawal of such prosecution forms part of the consideration for the promissory note, the promissory note is unenforceable. 1936 M. 656=I.L.R. 1937 M. 471=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 489. See also 40 P.L.R. (J. & K.) 11; 19 Pat. 424=1940 Pat. 573. An agreement, the consideration of which is the dropping of a prosecution for a non-compoundable offence, falls under S. 23, Contract Act, being opposed to public policy, and cannot be enforced in a Court of law. But in order to determine it, the object of the agreement or the consideration is to be considered. If the consideration for it is something separate and the motive for the agreement is the hope that the prosecution will be dropped, S. 23 will not apply. Where the agreement is in effect an admission of pre-existing liability, and the consideration for it has nothing to do with the criminal prosecution, the fact that the prosecution was an incentive for accelerating the settlement does not make the consideration for the agreement unlawful within the meaning of S. 23. 151 I.C. 1025=1934 Pesh. 105. In a suit for the recovery of money alleged to be due under a mortgage bond, held, that as the plaintiff was a party to a conspiracy for stifling prosecution he was not entitled to any relief. 56 C.L.J. 413. If it is an implied term of the reference to the arbitration of a civil dispute or an ekrarnama that the criminal complaint already filed would not be further proceeded with then the consideration of the reference or the ekrarnama as the case may be is unlawful and the award or the ekrarnama is invalid quite irrespective of the fact whether any prosecution in law had been started or not. 123 I.C. 187=1930 P.C. 100=59 M.L.J. 32 (P.C.). See also 117 I.C. 74=1929 L. 564. Agreement not to prosecute for non-compoundable offence is not enforceable. 41 I.C. 812=2 P.L.J. 630. A contract founded on the illegal consideration of compounding a non-compoundable offence is wholly void. 1 P.L.J. 48=33 I.C. 711=20 C.W.N. 760. A person standing bail for an accused in criminal case and forfeiting the bail bond on account of the laches of the accused is not entitled to recover from him the amount so paid on any express or implied contract, such an agreement being illegal as opposed to public policy. 1930 C. 596=57 C. 1093. Where a person in a position of trust embezzles sums of money belonging to his master, he exposes himself to the risk of a criminal prosecution, but he also remains under a civil liability to his master. The amount embezzled is a debt which he is responsible to pay, and if the man to whom such a civil debt is due, takes security for that amount from his debtor, even though the debt arises out of a criminal offence, the agreement to pay the amount is enforceable in law and is not obnoxious to the provisions of S. 23. 1930 A.L.J. 1297=1930 A. 326 (1). As to the case of sureties, see 1937 Lah. 686=39 P.L.R. 536; 1938 Cal. 840; 1940 Cal. 337; (1942) 2 M.L.J. 191.

INFLUENCING COURSE OF LITIGATION.—Agreement to perform puja for a consideration in order to help a person in obtaining success in a pending litigation is opposed to public policy and is unenforceable, as intended to exercise unauthorized influence on the proper course of litigation. 49 A. 705=25 A.L.J. 518=1927 A. 406. PROSTITUTION—PAST CO-HABITATION.—Where the past co-habitation is the consideration for a transfer of property, transfer, how far valid. 22 Bom.L.R. 762=57 I.C. 472=44 B. 542; 25 Bom.L.R. 253=1924 B. 135. See also 23 A.L.J. 376=47 A. 619=1935 A. 437; 23 A.L.J. 201=1925 A. 353; 35 Bom.L.R. 345=1933 B. 209. Past co-habitation is a good consideration. (13 M.L.J. 7, Appr.; 25 Bom.L.R. 252; 44 B. 542 and 1925 M.W.N. 828, Diss. from.) 59 M.L.J. 596; I.L.R. (1940) A. 371=1940 All. 385. The weight of authority in the Madras High Court is in favour of the view that past illicit co-habitation may validly support a promise to pay a sum of money. Such a consideration is not regarded as immoral though future illicit co-habitation will not support a promise, because it is immoral consideration. A promissory note executed in favour of a woman by a man in consideration of past illicit intercourse is not therefore void and unenforceable. 56 L.W. 24=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 253=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 56. See also 23 Mys.L.J. 283. Agreement to pay maintenance to mistress not illegal or immoral. 12 O.L.J. 510=89 I.C. 573=1925 O. 536. An agreement by a person to pay to his past mistress a sum of money every month for her maintenance so long as she remained unmarried and unmarried, there being nothing in the agreement with reference to future association cannot be regarded as void as being immoral or opposed to public policy. An agreement to become a mistress, which is doubtless void as being immoral should not be confused with an agreement to compensate a woman afterwards for an injury done to her and for the loss which she has sustained owing to an association, be it immoral or otherwise, with her protector. Past consideration under the Indian Law is good consideration and the fact that the woman has rendered service in the past whether immoral or otherwise and has suffered an injury of a kind and continues to suffer from that injury forms a perfectly good consideration for the contract to compensate her. 17 Pat. 308=19 Pat.L.T. 893=1938 Pat. 502. Where the consideration for a bond was future adulterous co-habitation, the agreement is void under S. 23. 45 M.L.J. 551=76 I.C. 306=1924 M. 15; 153 I.C. 323=1935 Oudh 71. Money lent for assisting the borrower to visit brothels and bring in prostitutes cannot be legally recovered. 39 I.C. 767. Where it is no part of the contract between the lender and the borrower that the money lent should be utilised for immoral purposes and the lender has no control over the application of the money, he is not prevented from recovering the money. 69 I.C. 939=43 M.L.J. 695=45 M. 778. If the object of a transfer of property is immoral, for example, where the transfer is for future co-habitation and as a reward for past co-habitation, the transfer is void and the transferor retains the title in himself and would ordinarily be entitled to recover the property on the ground that the title has not passed from him. But the principle of equity enunciated in Ayerst v. Jenkins, L.R. 16 Eq. 275, would prevent the Court from giving aid to a person guilty of immoral conduct to recover the property on the ground of public policy. 35 Bom.L.R. 345=1933 B. 209.

RELIGIOUS PURPOSES.—An agreement between the panda and pariwal of a temple to participate in the offerings made by pilgrims is not contrary to public policy. 70 I.C. 124=45 A. 79=1923 A. 56; 24 I.C. 86. Sale of a share in the offerings made to a shrine and to a participant therein, is not opposed to public policy. 34 P.L.R. 254=141 I.C. 427=1933 L. 223. Agreement to perform pūja for obtaining success in litigation being intended to exercise unauthorized influence on Court is opposed to public policy and unenforceable. 49 A. 705=25 A.L.J. 518=1927 A. 406. But see 53 Mad. 29=57 M.L.J. 154. Contract to propitiate deity to avert malign influence is valid in law. 31 N.L.B. 229=1935 N. 119. An agreement to pay bribe to procure the adoption of a boy is one against public policy, and cannot be enforced. 26 I.C. 779=27 M.L.J. 416=1 L.W. 926. Religious purposes—Agreement by a Gayawal to pay part of his earnings from certain ceremonies to an Acharya—Validity of the agreement. 1 Pat.L.J. 539=38 I.C. 116. Agreement between two temples restricting and regulating each others' rights to take out procession is void. 24 L.W. 58=24 A.L.J. 801=1926 P.C. 64 (P.C.). The doctrine of public policy will not be extended beyond the classes of cases already covered by it and the Courts cannot invest new hands of public policy. The appointment of an officer, Mutwalli or Manager or Superintendent, by whatever name he may be called, for a term of three years and subject to dismissal on three months' notice is quite within the competence of the Committee appointed under S. 7, of the Religious Endowments Act, 1863, and such an agreement is not opposed to public policy, merely on the ground that the terms of appointment are not in accord with the position and powers of mutawalli, properly so called, and appointed under the general Mahomedan law. 61 C. 80=38 O.W.N. 214=1934 C. 328. Suicide is not an offence in India and is not against public policy by reason of its being a crime. Hence a policy of life insurance which covers such a risk is not on that ground opposed to public policy. 20 Luck. 194=1945 O.W.N. 8=A.I.R. 1945 Oudh 152.

PARTIAL ILLEGALITY.—It is settled that if one of the several distinct promises is illegal it will not prevent the rest from being enforced. 10 I.C. 465. In an illegal contract even though a part of the consideration may be legal yet if the legal part cannot be severed from the illegal, the whole contract is vitiated. 20 C.W.N. 760=1 Pat. L.J. 48=33 I.C. 711; 3 Pat.L.T. 386=67 I.C. 49; 15 I.C. 836. Where the law has imposed a personal disability of an absolute character, as in the case of a minor or a person of unsound mind, every contract made by him is void. Where the disability is partial, as in the case of a judgment-debtor to whom Sec. 3, C.P. Code, applies, an alienation made by him is invalid; but any agreement to pay money recoverable from his person and other property, moveable or immovable, is unaffected by the partial disability imposed by para. 11. Such agreement is enforceable in law and is as valid as any other contract. The executant admitted in a deed that a sum of Rs. 20,000 had been advanced to him and he undertook to repay it on demand. This covenant was quite distinct and separate from the other part of the agreement under which the debtor gave security for the payment of the amount due from him. The debtor was incompetent to mortgage the property by virtue of Sec. 3 para. 11, C.P. Code. Held, that the creditor was entitled to enforce his remedy under the first part of the agreement. 144 I.C. 373=1933 A.L.J.

SEC. 23, ILL. (j).—Plaintiff, agent of a lady for selling her lands and occupying a fiduciary position, entered into an agreement with the defendants that the lands should be sold cheaply to the defendants at the then market price, and should not be sold to strangers even if better prices were offered by such strangers. The plaintiff was to be paid a commission of five per cent. on the sale price for trouble he was taking for the defendants. The sale having been completed, the plaintiff sued the defendants for his commission. Held, that the consideration for the agreement or the object of the agreement between the plaintiff and the defendants was fraudulent and also immoral, and that contract was unenforceable. 1936 M. 541=70 M.L.J. 724.

AGREEMENT BY AGENT EXCEEDING HIS POWERS.—Where a statute prescribes no penalties an agreement in breach of a condition imposed under powers given by it does not fall under sec. 23, Contract Act and where a condition is imposed under statute purely for administrative purposes an agreement in violation thereof is not void. Hence where a Cantonment Board agrees to confer on a person 'old grant' rights in land in the Cantonment area, there is nothing unlawful about it, but only a doubt as to whether the Board had the power to do so. It is really a case of an agent exceeding his authority and the principal not repudiating his action. Even if there is ground for considering whether S. 23 is applicable on the view that the agent's powers were circumscribed by law and that he acted ultra vires, the section would not be applicable because the consideration or object of the agreement is neither forbidden by any statute nor is of such a nature that, if permitted, it would defeat the provisions of any statute. 1942 A.W.R. the agreement, but failed to pay the amounts agreed upon to the plaintiff. The plaintiff therefore sued, to enforce the agreements but the defendant pleaded that it was opposed to public policy and was also in restraint of trade. Held, that the agreement was not opposed to public policy, that it was impossible to treat the obtaining of the license from the Government as in the nature of a trade or calling and that the agreement was not invalid either under S. 23 or under S. 27. 59 L.W. 136=1946 M.W.N. 119=(1946) 1 M.L.J. 187.

SEC. 24: DISTINCT COVENANTS—SEVERABILITY OF.—If a contract contains distinct covenants some of which are legal and others illegal, the Court can enforce the legal ones; but if the covenants are not severable the whole contract is void for illegality; also if there is one promise made upon several considerations some of which are legal and others illegal. Again if several distinct promises are made for one and the same lawful consideration, and one or more of them be such as the law will not enforce that will not of itself prevent the rest from being enforced. The test will be whether a distinct consideration which is wholly lawful can be found for the promise called in question. 144 I.C. 373=1933 A.L.J. 1522=1933 A. 468. See also 57 B. 278=143 I.C. 331=35 Bom. Thus where one sum is to be paid for the doing of a legal and an illegal act, the whole contract is void. And if a contract or promise be founded upon a legal and an illegal consideration and the illegal consideration cannot be separated from the legal consideration and rejected, the illegality of part vitiates the whole. 1939 Rang.L.R. 711=1940 Rang. 45. In such a case the rule applicable is contained in S. 58. 1931 A. 589 (2)=1931 A.L.J. 295. S. 24 has not been made applicable to transfers of immovable property and the language of S. 15, Tenancy Act, does not justify the inference that a relinquishment under S. 15 is forbidden by law. 1934 A.L.J. 1193=1934 A. 346. Where a usufructuary mortgage of an occupancy holding is void, a personal covenant to that effect is also void and unenforceable. 20 A.L.J. 318=44 A. 486=67 I.C. 792. But see 27 A.L.J. 479=116 I.C. 17, contra. See also 13 O.L.J. 449=

1926 Oudh 270; 5 Bur.L.J. 86=1926 R. 186. Where the deeds are mortgages of occupancy land which is forbidden by the Tenancy Act they come under S. 23 as agreements where the consideration or object was forbidden by law. The deeds cannot be enforced in any manner, even as simple money bonds and therefore the plaintiff cannot sue for the promises of payment of principal and interest in the bond, nor can he rely on the covenant in the bonds that if possession is not given, then the plaintiff should receive back the money. But the plaintiff has a right under S. 65 to the return of any money which he has been able to prove that he has advanced to the defendant under these void bonds. 1935 A.L.J. 339=1935 A. 256. See also 39 Bom. L.R. 1124. Where the mortgage consideration constitutes an independent transaction of loan, the mortgagee would be entitled to the return of the money. 3 O.W.N. 217=93 I.C. 310=1926 O. 270. For a case where it was held that the entire agreement was invalid and that it was not permissible for the Court to split the consideration, see 34 Bom. L.R. 404. Section does not apply to an out-and-out transfer. 85 I.C. 459=1925 A. 474. S. 24 does not apply to a case where the plaintiff is seeking to enforce an equity in respect of a perfectly valid security. 39 A. 539=39 I.C. 785=15 A.L.J. 544. S. 24 has not been made applicable to transfer of immovable property. There is therefore no justification for stating broadly that even if the transfer of several items of properties can be split up and separated, the whole transaction is void because one part of it may be vitiated. Of course where the object of the consideration of the transfer is unlawful, as that word is defined in S. 23, the transfer is not effective. 1930 A.L.J. 45=122 I.C. 872=1930 A. 1 (F.B.). Contract may be invalidated either by the illegality of the object of the consideration itself or by the incapacity of the promisor to enter into such contract. In cases of inherent illegality, it is sometimes impossible to say whether the legal or the illegal portion of the consideration affected the mind of the promisor most. But in cases of contract only partly beyond the competence of the promisor, there is no good ground why the promisee who has paid good consideration should not be allowed to enforce that part of the promise which the promisor was competent to make. 1930 A.L.J. 45=52 A. 338=1930 A. 1 (F.B.). The word "debt" in sec. 25 is used in its ordinary meaning of a sum payable in respect of a loan recoverable by action. 40 M. 31=82 M.L.J. 422=39 I.C. 220 (F.B.); 13 L. 448. Acknowledgment can form basis of suit. 1925 N. 9. An unconditional acknowledgment imports a promise to pay and can form the basis of a suit but an acknowledgment of time-barred debts which does not contain distinct promise to pay does not fulfil the requirements of sec. 25 (3) of the Contract Act and a suit is not maintainable thereon. 141 I.C. 617=1933 L. 200; 141 I.C. 425=1933 L. 47. See also 1934 L. 835. Mere implied promise to pay is not sufficient for the purposes of sec. 25. More than three years from the last item of account the balance was struck and signed by the debtor. The entry however contained no words which could amount to a promise to pay. On a suit being brought on the basis of such entry, held, that the entry did not fulfil the requirements of sec. 25. 175 I.C. 446=1938 Lah. 155. See also 40 Bom.L.R. 1010=1938 Bom. 460. A promise to pay the amount which might be found due by the arbitrator on taking the accounts is not a promise to pay a "debt" within sec. 25 of the Act. 1925 N. 9. An account stated in the form of an acknowledgment of a debt amounts to a promise and implies the existence of a debt, but it may be rebutted by showing that there is no debt at all. But in the case of a "real account stated", with entries on both sides in which the parties agree that the items on one side may be set-off against those on the other side, and that the balance only should be paid, there is a promise for good consideration to pay the balance arising from the fact that items on the smaller side are set-off against those on the larger side and decreed to be paid in that way. 38 C.W.N. 813=1934 P.C. 144=67 M.L.J. 103 (P.C.). Adequacy of consideration is not a matter to be taken into consideration in deciding whether an agreement is valid. 45 A. 590=21 A.L.J. 446=1923 A. 590. An agreement to take less than what is really due and also to give time for payment is not valid unless supported by consideration. 6 R. 191. The forbearance to enforce in a Court of law a claim bona fide believed to exist and to be enforceable, would be a good consideration for a contract. 44 A. 422=20 A.L.J. 285=1922 A. 260; 26 N.L.R. 320. 118 I.C. 646=1922 L. 689. Promise to defend a suit would be a good consideration. 99 I.C. 752. Simply acknowledging indebtedness without any promise to pay is not an agreement under sec. 25. 17 I.C. 722=14 Bom.L.R. 1020. But see 1929 L. 59. There is a difference between acknowledgment sufficient for Limitation Act, sec. 19 and Contract Act, sec. 25. As to difference between English and Indian Law, see 10 Pat. L.T. 169. A letter constituting an acknowledgment of liability cannot amount to a new contract within the meaning of sec. 25 (3) of the Contract Act unless it contains any definite promise to pay. 7 O.W.N. 420

(1) it is expressed in writing and registered under the law for the time being in force for the registration of ¹[documents], and is made on account of natural love and affection between parties standing in a near relation to each other, or unless or is a promise to compensate for something done, or is a promise to pay a debt barred by limitation law.

(2) it is a promise to compensate, wholly or in part, a person who has already voluntarily done something for the promisor, or something which the promisor was legally compellable to do, or unless

(3) it is a promise, made in writing and signed by the person to be charged therewith, or by his agent, generally or specially authorized in that behalf, to pay wholly or in part a debt of which the creditor might have enforced payment but for the law for the limitation of suits.

SEC. 25, CL. (1): "PARTIES STANDING IN NEAR RELATION" must not be narrowed down to mean only near relatives. Wife's parents of a Mahomedan would come under the expression. 100 I.C. 350=4 O.W.N. 195=1927 O. 146. Where a person settles an annuity upon his alleged wife the settlement cannot be construed to be a contract for consideration of love and affection, but is a gift pure and simple, and no consideration is necessary. 36 C.W.N. 392=1932 P. C. 34=62 M.L.J. 292 (P.C.). The words 'near relation' used in sec. 25, Contract Act cannot be construed as the same thing as 'a near relative'. The words 'near relation' must be taken in their ordinary and natural sense and it would be a question of fact to be decided in each case as to whether a particular relationship would satisfy the statute or not. The law does not insist either on the relationship being a blood relationship or the relationship of love and affection being mentioned in the document in question. 1943 A.L.W. 78. Where an agreement not supported by consideration but in writing registered provided for payment of Rs. 100 every year as maintenance to the plaintiff who was the defendant's father-in-law's divided brother's wife, as it was impossible for her to maintain herself decently otherwise, and she sought to enforce the same: Held, that the parties could not be said to stand in a near relation to each other within the meaning of sec. 25 (1), and the agreement could not therefore be enforced. 56 L.W. 311=1943 M.W.N. 107=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 591=(1943) 1 M. BENAMI TRANSACTION.—Purchaser under a sham transaction gets no interest in the property. 1928 M. 541=111 I.C. 690.

CL. (2).—An agreement by a person of full age to compensate a promisee for something voluntarily done for the promisor at the time when the promisor was a minor, falls within sec. 25 cl. (2) and is enforceable. But no interest can be recovered upon such an agreement. 2 L. 263=64 I.C. 121; 54 I.C. 436=20 P.L.R. 1920; 31 P. R. 1911=11 I.C. 321.

CL. (3).—Sec. 25 of the Contract Act only applies to contracts which are wholly without consideration and not to contracts which may be for inadequate consideration.

In any of these cases, such an agreement is a contract.

Explanation 1.—Nothing in this section shall affect the validity, as between the donor and donee, of any gift actually made.

Explanation 2.—An agreement to which the consent of the promisor is freely given is not void merely because the consideration is inadequate; but the inadequacy of the consideration may be taken into account by the Court in determining the question whether the consent of the promisor was freely given.

Illustrations.

- (a) A promises, for no consideration, to give to B Rs. 1,000. This is a void agreement.
- (b) A, for natural love and affection, promises to give his son, B, Rs. 1,000. A puts his promise to B into writing and registers it. This is a contract.
- (c) A finds B's purse and gives it to him. B promises to give A Rs. 50. This is a contract.
- (d) A supports B's infant son. B promises to pay A's expenses in so doing. This is a contract.
- (e) A owes B Rs. 1,000, but the debt is barred by the Limitation Act. A signs a written promise to pay B Rs. 500 on account of the debt. This is a contract.
- (f) A agrees to sell a horse worth Rs. 1,000 for Rs. 10. A's consent to the agreement was freely given. The agreement is a contract notwithstanding the inadequacy of the consideration.
- (g) A agrees to sell a horse worth Rs. 1,000 for Rs. 10. A denies that his consent to the agreement was freely given.

The inadequacy of the consideration is a fact which the Court should take into account in considering whether or not A's consent was freely given deed under Explan. (2) of sec. 25, inadequacy of consideration is not relevant unless it affects the question of free consent to contract. It is true that under sec. 25 (3), Contract Act an agreement to pay a time-barred debt is regarded as one without consideration but this sub-section only applies when a wholly gratuitous promise is made to pay a time-barred debt and not to those cases when a promise to pay a time-barred debt is made for some consideration though the consideration might be inadequate. When a new contract is made for a fresh consideration superseding the previous contract which had become barred by time but including it as a part consideration in the new contract, an action could be founded upon the new contract and it can be enforced in its terms without raising any question about the acknowledgment of a time-barred debt. An express promise to pay is not necessary in the case of an agreement to pay a time-barred debt and an implied promise would satisfy the requirements of sec. 25 (3). An express promise to pay interest on the debt acknowledged would reasonably include a promise for payment of principal also. 1942 A.W.R. (H. C.) 382=1942 A.L.J. 656=I.L.R. (1943) All. 171=(1943) All. 63. Though a barred debt may not be recoverable in a Court of law, yet, if by a fresh contract that debt is promised to be paid, then it would be a good consideration, and the contract would be valid under sec. 25 (3) of the Contract Act. It is not necessary for the creditor in order to get the benefit of sec. 25 (3), to show that the debtor knew when he promised to pay that the debt for the payment of which he was making a promise had become time-barred; nor is it necessary that the promise or contract itself must show that it was made for a past debt. There is nothing in the wording of sec. 25 (3) to this effect, although of course, the promise made in writing must be to pay a debt for which the creditor might have enforced payment but for the law of limitation. Sec. 25 (3) does not require that in the writing itself the consideration should be described as past debt, when in fact it was such past debt and known to the debtor as such. The conditions necessary to make it a promise within sec. 25 (3) are that it should be in writing; be signed by the person to be charged therewith; and be a promise to pay wholly or in part a debt, of which the creditor might have enforced payment but for the law for the limitation of suits. The writing itself need not purport to pay such a debt, if in fact the writing was passed for the payment of such debt. 45 Bom.L.R. 837=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 447. Unless a promise to pay is in writing it cannot fall within the purview of sec. 25 (3). The implied promise to pay which is contained in all acknowledgments does not attract the provisions of sec. 25 (3) because the promise to pay is not in writing. Consequently, the words "after making old accounts into consideration there remains to be paid a balance of Rs. 3,200" in an acknowledgment do not amount to a promise to pay within the meaning of sec. 25 (3). I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 141=1941 Nag. 100. See also 1937 Lah. 865. In order to keep alive a time-barred debt, the promise to pay must be expressed in unequivocal terms. 1939 Lah. 406. When a promise to pay falls under sec. 25 (3) it constitutes a valid agreement for the purpose of suing, whether there is a fresh consideration for the promise or not, and it is immaterial whether the debts covered thereby are within limitation or not. 40 P.L.R. 689=1938 Lah. 757. See also 1940 N.L.J. 607; 1939 A.M. L.J. 147. Sec. 25 (3) requires that the person reviewing time-barred debt must be either the person himself or his agent generally or specially authorised in that behalf. A de facto guardian of a minor is not generally or specially authorised to renew a time-barred debt and has therefore no power to renew a time-barred debt. 41 Bom.L.R. 896=1939 Bom. 464. See also (1940) 1 M.L.J. 682. Sec. 25 (3) makes a debt recoverable only when a certain form of acknowledgement is made as regards a time-expired debt. It does not allow the institution of a subsequent suit, where a debt was held irrecoverable in an earlier suit owing to the minority of the debtor. 1940 A.M.L.J. 72. See also 1937 O.W.N. 1034. Sec. 25 (3) applies only to a case in which there is an express promise to pay and has no application to a case where an implied promise is inferred from a mere acknowledgment. 1931 A.L.J. 56; 1932 A.L.J. 279. In order to comply with the terms of sec. 25 (3) there must be an express promise to pay a time-barred debt. If there are two debts, one barred and the other not, the promise to pay the latter cannot be interpreted as a promise to pay the former. Nor can a promise to pay an imaginary debt be interpreted as a promise to pay a barred debt. Where in lieu of the time-barred remittances of money a mortgage is executed, a promise in writing in the mortgage-deed to repay the consideration money cannot be said to be a compliance with sec. 25 (3), when there was in fact no consideration for the mortgage and the transaction is found to be benami. 1941 Cal. 419. The mere mention of a debt in the schedule of creditors cannot amount to anything more than a mere acknowledgment. It cannot be held to contain in itself a promise to pay. 18 Lah. 562=39 P.L.R. 678=1937 Lah. 382. See also 1938 Bom. 460=40 Bom.L.R. 1010; 171 I.C. 96; 51 L.W. 520=1940 Mad. 678=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 682. But see 1939 A.M.L.J. 137. The promise referred to in sec. 25 (3) must be an express one and cannot be held to be sufficient if the intention to pay is unexpressed and has to be gathered from a number of circumstances. There must be a distinct promise to pay. 51 L.W. 520=1940 Mad. 678=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 682. But see 1939 A.M.L.J. 137; 1939 Lah. 486. Where the debtor proposes in a letter to pay a time-barred debt by monthly instalments and remits some of the instalments as proposed, the acceptance of the instalments by the creditor constitutes acceptance of the proposal by conduct so as to convert the proposal into a promise within the meaning of sec. 25 (3). 1940 Rang.L.R. 377=1940 Rang. 159. Sec. 25 (3) of the Contract Act is based on an agreement, but when there is no agreement, the section will not apply. Hence an offer by the debtor before the Debt Conciliation Board, undertaking to pay a creditor seven annas in the rupee of the debt due to him, which the creditor does not accept, cannot be utilised to found a claim based on sec. 25 (3). 1945 M.W.N. 713=53 L.W. 618=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 405. Where a newly admitted partner along with the existing partners acknowledges that on a particular day a particular amount is due from the partnership to their creditor, there is sufficient consideration for the newly admitted partner's undertaking to pay the acknowledged debt. The acknowledgment thus creates a new contract as the admitted partner obtains the promise of a partnership as the condition of his liability. 48 C.W.N. 36=A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 147=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 417 (P.C.). Where a claim is barred by statute nothing short of an express promise can provide a fresh period of limitation. 161 I.C. 703=1936 L. 164. But for a promise to pay a time-barred debt to be a good consideration, it is not necessary that the debtor must expressly state that he was renewing a barred debt. 1936 L. 1016. See also 1937 Lah. 642. It is not necessary that an agreement to pay a debt barred by the law of limitation should refer in terms to the barred debt. 1938 Rang.L.R. 6=1938 Rang. 134. Unless a promise to pay is in writing it cannot fall within the purview of sec. 25 (3). 174 I.C. 374=1938 Nag. 180. See also 18 Lah. 562=1937 Lah. 382; 1941 Nag. 100. Wherever there is a balance struck and interest has been fixed or agreed to be paid, the words have always been construed to mean a promise to pay within the meaning of sec. 25 (3). I.L.R. 1938 Lah. 193=1938 Lah. 234 (F.B.). But see 1938 Bom. 460=40 Bom.L.R. 1010. Where a balance is struck in the account book of a creditor and is followed by the words "bagi chahi hain" signed by the debtor, the document is an "agreement" and not a mere "acknowledgment", as it contains a promise to pay. 41 P.L.R. 194=1939 Lah. 486. But see 40 Bom.L.R. 4; (1940) 1 M.L.J. 682. Sec. 25, cl. (3) should be liberally construed. 129 I.C. 545=1931 A. 154. Construction of cl. (3). 57 C. 394=33 C.W.N. 965=1929 C. 444; 112 I.C. 740. Scope of cl. (3). See 27 A.L.J. 901=119 I.C. 109=1929 A. 586. An express promise to pay a portion of a debt is not sufficient and cannot provide a good cause of action in regard to the portion for which there is no express promise. If a person promises to pay a portion of a barred debt he can only be sued for that portion and not for the whole debt. 51 L.W. 520=1940 Mad. 678=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 682. The words "by the person to be charged therewith" in sec. 25 (3) are wide enough to cover the case of a person who agrees to become liable for the payment of a debt due by another and need not be limited to the person who was indebted from the beginning. 51 L.W. 520=1940 Mad. 678=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 682. See also 40 Bom.L.R. 896. Sec. 25 (3) of the Contract Act requires that in the case of a time-barred debt there should be a promise in writing to pay the barred debt. An acknowledgment of the debt in a sale-deed is not sufficient for that purpose. 1930 L. 985. A contract entered into by a minor, being null and void, its subsequent ratification by the minor on attaining the age of majority cannot form a valid contract on which a suit can be maintained. The consideration which passed under the earlier contract cannot be imported into the contract into which the minor entered on attaining majority. Sec. 25 has no application to the contract of this kind. 177 I.C. 388=1938 Lah. 159. See also 1937 O.W.N. 341=1937 Oudh 300. Where the debtor writes to the creditor ackknowledging his liability to pay a debt which is time-barred but the letter does not contain promise to pay the writing cannot form the basis of a suit as it does not amount to a new contract. 124 I.C. 245=1930 N. 236. An acknowledgment even when it is not made to any creditor may if unconditional amount to a promise. It is however highly necessary to examine the circumstances of each case to see whether there is anything in conflict with such an inference. Where the debtor makes an arrangement for the payment of a debt by somebody else it cannot be held that the debtor promised to pay the debt himself and a fresh contract cannot be inferred. 1932 M.W.N. 52=1932 M. 219. "Limitation" in sec. 25, cl. (3) means limitation of time as prescribed by the law of limitation. 129 I.C. 545=1932 A. 154. But where an acknowledgment is proved to have been made by inadvertence or mistake, it cannot be treated as implying a promise to pay even though it may be ostensibly unconditional. 1933 A.L.J. 170=1933 A. 175=144 I.C. 175. An unconditional acknowledgment imports a promise to pay and can form the basis of a suit but an acknowledgment of time-barred debts which does not contain distinct promise to pay does not fulfil the requirements of sec. 25 (3) of the Contract Act and a suit is not maintainable thereon. 141 I.C. 617=1933 L. 209. A promissory note executed in renewal of a former note which is barred by limitation is a promise in writing to pay a debt of which the creditor might have enforced payment but for the law of limitation within the meaning of sec. 25 (3) of Contract Act. The maker's knowledge or want of knowledge that the claim under the prior note has become barred has nothing to do with the matter and does not affect his liability, under the fresh note. To make the knowledge of the promisor a condition of his liability under sec. 25 (3) would be to read into the words of the statute something which is not there. 40 C.W.N. 130. A promise to pay a barred debt by a manager of a Hindu family who is not the father of a junior member of a joint Hindu family, is not binding on such junior member. The question lies within the region of the Hindu Law and not of the Contract Act. Sec. 25 (3), Contract Act, does not apply to such a case. 1927 Nag. 327. Sec. 27.—It is settled law that a bare agreement in restraint of competition cannot be upheld. Such an agreement can only be sustained when it is ancillary to some main transaction and is reasonably necessary in the interests of both parties in order to render that transaction effective and is consistent with the interests of the public. Agreements of service, containing a negative covenant preventing the employee from working elsewhere during the term covered by the agreement, are not void under sec. 27, Contract Act, on the ground that they are in restraint of trade. Such agreements are enforceable. Whether a particular covenant in a particular agreement is unreasonably wide has to be decided by the nature of the agreement, the qualifications of the employee and the service he has to render, along with the place where the employee can get alternative service of the same nature. 43 Bom.L. R. 90. Where a person enters into a covenant to the effect that "he will not directly or indirectly engage in any other sardine business whatever in the Dominion of Canada," it cannot be said that a shareholder in a company carrying on such business or being a partner therein is necessarily a breach of the covenant. The phrase "directly or indirectly" is not void for uncertainty. It is to the advantage of the public to allow a trader who has established a lucrative business to dispose of it to a successor by whom it may be efficiently carried on. In cases where the purchaser, for his own protection, obtains an obligation restraining the seller from competing with him within bounds, which, having regard to the nature of the business, are reasonable and are limited in respect of space, the obligation is not obnoxious to public policy. This principle is applicable even in the case of an important public company where the covenant is entered into by a managing director holding shares in the company. The same result may well follow in a case where, instead of selling the undertaking, the shares or stock of the company or a large interest therein is being sold, and one or more of the directors or managers of the company, being interested in the sale, are willing, in order to enable the transaction to go through, or to obtain a better price, to enter into restrictive covenants with the purchaser. Where there is a good will to be protected, a covenant in restraint of trade, even when imposed as a condition of employment, may be so framed as to give adequate protection not only to the covenantee himself but also to his successors in the business, although it may be necessary for that purpose to impose a restriction upon the covenantor for the remainder of his life. The onus of establishing that such a covenant is injurious to the public in the sense that it is calculated to produce a pernicious monopoly is upon the party who attacks the covenant. When the Court is satisfied that the restraint is reasonable as between the parties, and that there are no reasonable grounds for holding that the restriction is

CONTRACT IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE—TEST OF VALIDITY—ONUS.—A contract which is in restraint of trade cannot be enforced unless (a) it is reasonable as between the parties; (b) it is consistent with the interests of the public. When a covenant in restraint of trade is called in question the burden of justifying it is laid on the party seeking to uphold it. 150 I.C. 232=1934 P.C. 101=66 M.L.J. 510 (P.C.).

There is nothing in the wording of sec. 27 of the Contract Act to suggest that the principle stated therein does not apply when the restraint of trade or business is for a limited period only or is confined to a particular area. Such matters of partial restriction have effect only when the facts fall within the exception to the section. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 25=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 114.

AGREEMENT BETWEEN TRADERS FOR MUTUAL BENEFIT.—Two owners of factories entered into a partnership to avoid competition. It was mutually agreed that only one factory namely, that of the defendant should be worked at first and that after deducting the cost of making, the balance should be distributed between the parties in certain proportions. It was also provided that if there was a larger demand, the second factory should also be worked by mutual agreement. One of the parties having instituted a suit for ac-

PURCHASE OF PROTECTION AGAINST MERE COMPETITION—LEGALITY OF.—Covenants restrictive of competition are sustained when they are ancillary to some main transaction, contract or arrangement and necessary to render it effective. But a bare covenant not to compete cannot be upheld. Where the agreement between the parties was, in substance, nothing more or less than a contract whereby in consideration of a sum of money the appellants undertook for a period of fifteen years not to engage in the business of brewing beer and to confine themselves solely to the business of brewing sake. Held, that the agreement was open to the objection that it constituted a purchase of protection "against mere competition"; further, the restrictions on manufacture not being confined to any particular place, the covenants could not be held to be reasonable. Where one of two rival cooly-suppliers agreed not to supply coolies in consideration of the latter paying Rs. 50 monthly to the former, the agreement was void as being in restraint of trade. 21 I.C. 768=1914 M.W.N. 108; 70 I.C. 881=1 Bur.L.J. 72; 33 I.C. 238. Sec. 28.—Agreements ousting jurisdiction of Courts are not valid. 1 A. 267. See also 1935 Nag. 48. No man can exclude himself from the protection of Courts by a contract entered into with another. 42 B. 350=22 C. W.N. 601=35 M.L.J. 262=45 I.A. 61 (P. C.). See also 1935 N. 48. Compromise of doubtful rights arising out of a previous contract is valid. 94 I.C. 371=1926 S. 202. Sec. 28 of the Contract Act makes void only those agreements which absolutely restrict a party to a contract from enforcing the rights under that contract in ordinary tribunals. It has no application when a party only agrees to a selection of one of those ordinary tribunals in which ordinarily a suit would be tried. Accordingly, an agreement between the parties to a contract, where a suit can be tried within the territorial limits of several Courts to the effect that it will only be tried in one of the Courts having territorial jurisdiction and that the parties will be limited to have recourse to only one of the several competent Courts, is not within the mischief of the section and is valid and enforceable. I.L.R. (1945) Lah. 291=47 P.L.R. 378 (F.B.): 20 Luck. 105=1944 Oudh 275; 40 C.W.N. 58; 40 C.W.N. 123; (1943) 2 M.L.J. 375. An agreement that all payments and other transactions should be deemed to have been effected at a particular place, does not vest jurisdiction solely in the Court at that place. Its only effect is to introduce a sort of fiction as to the place of accrual of cause of action, and the ordinary law as to jurisdiction is thereupon to operate 49 C. W.N. 123. Where two Courts, A & B, have jurisdiction to try a suit, an agreement between the parties that any legal action resulting from their contract should be taken in Court A has the effect of preventing them absolutely from filing a suit in Court B, which they have a right to do, and it is, therefore, within the mischief of sec. 28 of the Contract Act. Even if the agreement is not void, it is putting the matter too high to say that it has taken away the jurisdiction from the Court B, although the fact that the parties willingly made the agreement may afford a good ground for transfer. 221 I.C. 633. Where in spite of the fact, that, under the ordinary provisions of law, a particular Court would have jurisdiction, the parties provide by their agreement that another Court to the exclusion of the former Court shall have jurisdiction to adjudicate upon the disputes arising under the agreement of the parties, such an agreement is illegal. But, if such an agreement specifies the place where the terms of the contract have to be carried out, in other words where, according to the facts stated in the agreement, the cause of action is deemed to arise, the agreement is legal. 122 I.C. 488 (2)=1930 L. 611. See also 32 Bom.L.R. 43. But see 11 C. 282

Where in a contract entered into between two parties the cause of action partly arises in one place and partly in another, and the parties agree in terms of the contract that in case of any dispute arising out of the contract it shall be litigated only within the jurisdiction of one particular Court, and here the Courts in both places have jurisdiction, such an agreement is a valid one and enforceable under the law and the parties are bound by it. But this principle has no application when the particular Court has no pecuniary jurisdiction to entertain the suit. In such a case the agreement will in effect amount to divesting the only competent Court of its jurisdiction and vesting it in another which has no pecuniary jurisdiction, and it is, therefore, invalid. 49 C.W.N. 123. It is not unnatural that a big company which has agents all over the country should enter into agreements with its agents that disputes should be tried in a place where it has its head office, and if the agents agree that disputes should be tried by one out of two competent tribunals, they should be held to this agreement. Nor does sec. 28, Contract Act, prohibit an agreement which restricts a litigant to one Court out of two. 20 N.L.J. 247=1937 Nag. 334. A clause in a mercantile contract to the effect that all suits arising out of it should be filed only in the Courts in a specified place which is the place of business of one of the parties to the contract, is not illegal and does not offend against sec. 28. 56 L.W. 580=1943 M.W.N. 703=A.L.R. 1944 Mad. 47=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 375. The appellant's assignor and the respondents had dealings in mica in 1930, and in 1933 the respondent undertook under a document to pay to the appellant's purchaser after two years the sum of Rs. 12,600 with a certain interest "after deductions as would be agreed upon". The appellant became the assignee of the claim based on the document with its original cause of action in 1938 and he filed a suit in 1938 to enforce the claim. The parties were in dispute as regards the deductions. Held, that the expression "after deductions as would be agreed upon" rendered the document vague and the claim was therefore unenforceable by reason of sec. 29 of the Contract Act.

Held, further, that the acknowledgment contained in the document of 1933 extended the period of limitation only for three years from that date, and the suit to enforce the claim based on the original cause of action was barred. 57 L.W. 499=(1944) 2 M. upon a future event, which at the time of the agreement is of an uncertain nature, that is, that if the future event turns out one way the plaintiff is to win, and if it turns out the other way he is to lose. 1923 N. 291; 1922 P. 220. In order to constitute a wagering contract, neither party should intend to perform the contract itself, but only to pay the differences. The common intention of both parties at the time of entering into the contract must be not call for or give delivery from or to each other. But mere speculation is quite different from wager and there is no law against speculation as there is against gambling or wager. Speculative transactions have therefore to be carefully distinguished from agreements by way of wager. 39 Bom.L.R. 1083. The essence of a bet is that both parties agree that they will pay and receive respectively on the happening of an event in which they have no material interest. The transaction may be cloaked behind the forms of genuine commercial transactions; but to establish the bet it is necessary to prove that the documents are but a cloak and that neither party intended them to have any effective legal operation. Where the documents show an ordinary commercial transaction, and in conformity with them one of the parties incurs personal obligations on a genuine transaction with third parties so that he himself is not a winner or loser by the alteration of price, but can only benefit by his commission, the inference of betting is irresistibly destroyed. In such cases the fact that no delivery is required or tendered is of practically no value. 1943 A. L.J. 258=55 L.W. 332=A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 19 (P.C.). To make a contract a wagering contract, there must be, from the outset, a common intention of the parties to the contract to make and accept no delivery and to deal only in differences. A subsequent agreement to the effect that buyer has no longer right to demand delivery and the seller is no longer obliged to give delivery does not make the contract a wagering one. 26 N.L.R. 125=1930 N. 111. See also 60 C. 856=1933 C. 759; 27 A.L.J. 1140=1929 A. 890=51 A. 1027; 1929 B. 241; 1940 A.L.J. 48=1940 All. 182; (1940) 2 M.L.J. 997; 1929 A. 134=1929 A.L.J. 262; 7 B. 200; 188 I.C. 548=1932 L. 273; 39 Bom.L.R. 1083; 13 L. 766=1932 L. 356; 1934 L. 85.

Where according to the rules of an Association when jute is bought and sold under those rules, the buyer can insist on delivery, the transaction cannot be of a wagering nature. 1943 A.M.L.J. 18. See also 1944 A.L.W. 291 (Nazarana contracts, being in the nature of Tejmandi transactions are wagering contracts). See also 1936 L. 215. 'Mandi' contracts cannot be held to be wagers merely on their apparent nature and characteristic, without proof of the facts that the common intention of the contracting parties at the time of entering into the particular contract in question was to deal only in differences and in no circumstances to call for, or give, delivery. 1938 Lah. 825. Whether a contract is a wagering one depends upon the intention of the parties at the time when the contract is entered into. The mere fact that contracts are highly speculative is insufficient to render them void as wagering contracts. 124 I.C. 453. As to the meaning of the word, see also 9 B. 353; 7 Bom.L.R. 154; 94 I.C. 371=1926 S. 202; 51 A. 1027=1929 A. 890. Speculation does not necessarily involve a contract by way of wager, and to constitute such a contract a common intention to wager is essential. Even if one party to a contract were a speculator who never intended to give delivery, and that fact was known to the other party, yet in the absence of any bargain or understanding express or implied, that the goods were not to be delivered, that would not convert a contract into a wager; nor would the mere fact that as to the greater part of the goods there was no delivery but an adjustment of claims, vitiate the transaction. 1933 Lah. 781. The distinction between contracts which are legitimate and genuine trading transactions of a speculative character and contracts which are simply gaming and wagering transactions is frequently a narrow one and difficult of determination even after the examination of the parties concerned, the course of the business and the nature of the contracts. It certainly is not a question which can safely be left to the decision of a local Commissioner. 58 I.A. 173=1931 P.C. 136=61 M.L.J. 665 (P.C.).

WAGERING CONTRACTS AND SPECULATION—DIFFERENCE BETWEEN.—There is nothing illegal in speculating. It is a common place of the Stock Exchange. This method of doing business is by no means confined to stocks and shares, but is of every day occurrence in almost all commodities. As far as the distinction between speculation and gaming is concerned, it makes but little difference whether the commodities are actually paid for, and held with a view of selling again at a profit, or whether the matter is arranged by a re-sale before the time for delivery. Such dealings are perfectly legitimate. Gaming and wagering contracts, on the other hand, are not real dealings at all; they may take the form of purchases and sales, but they are, in fact, mere bets on the market price of commodities at a future date. For a contract to be a gaming and wagering contract there must not only be no intention on the part of either party to deliver, or to take delivery of the commodities, but also no obligation on either to do so; there must be an agreement or understanding that all the buyer has to do is to receive from, or pay to, the seller the difference between the price of the bargain and the price at some future date. The essence of gaming and wagering is that one party is to win and the other to lose upon a future event, which at the time of the contract is of an uncertain nature. Thus the difference between the two is to be found in seeing whether the transaction in question is a real transaction or whether it is merely a peg to hang a bet upon. Whether it is a real transaction depends upon whether in law the parties could be compelled to carry out the contract of sale. And it is often necessary to look behind the contracts for its proper understanding, but in so doing, one must always bear in mind the fact that there is nothing wrong in different contracts so long as the parties are not absolved in any event from delivering the commodity or paying if the other party calls for delivery or payment. 1937 Nag. 345. See also 58 I.A. 173=53 A. 190=61 M.L.J. 665 (P.C.); 1927 B. 125=29 Bom.L.R. 147; 1924 O. 186. There must be proof that the contract was entered into upon the terms that the performance of the contract should not be demanded, but that differences only should become payable. It is not enough that the parties contemplated that delivery would not be likely to be demanded. 47 C. I. J. 144=1928 F.C. 30=54 M.L.J. 130 (P.C.).

FORWARD CONTRACTS, for the purchase and sale of goods are recognised forms of commercial transaction. They may be perfectly legitimate and genuine transactions, though of a speculative character, or simply gambling or wagering contracts. To be a wagering contract there must be a bargain for differences. It would be still regarded a wagering contract even if a party thereto had an option under the contract to demand delivery. Where a contract on the face of it appears to be a contract for the sale of goods for a price, extrinsic evidence may establish that there was a common intention to wager, that is, the intention of both the parties to the contract was that the title to the goods would not pass (i.e.) there is to be no delivery, but the intention was only to take differences according to the rise and fall of the market on the date of delivery, mentioned in the contract. If such an intention is established, the contract is a wagering one. If such an intention on the part of one of the contracting parties is established and the other party, though intending a trading transaction, is shown to have been aware of the other's intention at the time of the formation of the contract, it would be regarded as a wagering contract. The common intention to wager can be established by direct evidence or from surrounding circumstances. But when it is found that all or a substantial part of goods were actually taken delivery of, such a forward contract must necessarily be taken to represent a genuine commercial transaction, as the fact of delivery destroys the inference of a common intention to wager. 45 C.W.N. 478=1941 Cal. 341. Where the effect of the clauses in a series of 'Forward' contracts with a 'pacca arhati' is that the 'pucca arhati' was to be in a position to choose whether he delivered or not and was, if he so liked to be able to settle the matter by paying or receiving, as the case might be, a mere difference, and where in not one of such contracts is there any delivery except in one small instance, the contracts are based upon terms which are singularity appropriate to mere gambling transactions. The Court is entitled if not bound, to regard the course of dealing between the parties in such case as a reliable indication of what their real intentions were. Such a transaction is a wagering contract. I.L.R. (1942) All. 289=1942 A.L.J. 131=A.I.R. 1942 All. 170. As to forward contracts, see also 39 Bom. 1=16 Bom. L.R. 213. The question whether the contract between the parties is of a wagering nature is really a question of fact, that is to say, the party disputing that he was liable under the contracts would have to show that at the time the contracts were entered into, the parties did not intend to carry on the contracts but agreed to abide by the prices at the due dates, when difference would be received. 25 Bom.L.R. 520=1923 B. 458; 36 A. 426=12 A.L.J. 817; 43 A. 585=19 A.L.J. 522; 21 A.L.J. 153=1923 A. 273. In order to determine whether a contract is a wagering contract, the Court will not only look at the terms of the written contract, but also probe among the surrounding circumstance to find out the true intention of the parties. CHAPTER IV.

OF THE PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACTS.

Contracts which must be performed.

37. The parties to a contract must either perform, or offer to perform their respective promises, unless such performance is dispensed with or excused under the provisions of this Act, or of any other law.

Promises bind the representatives of the promisors in case of the death of such promisors before performance, unless a contrary intention appears from the contract.

SEC. 37.—It is clear that there is no obligation laid down by the legislature in S. 37 to make a decree in terms of the contract and of no other terms. The section itself provides for a possible dispensation to the parties to the contract, as appears from the latter part of the section. For example, in cases in which the facts come within the provisions of the Usurious Loans Act, the strict performance is excused. 18 Pat. 13=20 P. L.T. 1=1939 Pat. 55 (F.B.). Where there is a contract to deliver goods in instalments spread over a number of months, the sellers cannot postpone the delivery of the whole until the last month as the buyers have the right to demand delivery in instalments. 42 C. 305=23 C.L.J. 62=20 C.W.N. 240. If a person reaps the benefit of a contract without being party to it he must pay the money due under it. The doctrine that no stranger can enforce a contract though made for his benefit does not universally apply in India. 41 M. 488=34 M.L.J. 193. See also 121 I.C. 337; 141 I.C. 490=1933 L. 178; 138 I.C. 263=1932 L. 566; 131 I.C. 210; 131 I.C. 1011; 131 I.C. 575; 134 I.C. 100; 55 M. 436=62 M. L.J. 533. A tender of performance must satisfy all the requirements of the contract. 46 I.C. 497=11 Bur.L.T. 9. Vendor is not bound to see that purchaser takes delivery within time. Where it is necessary for vendee to take samples before delivery, the vendor is bound to deliver goods some time before the specified date so as to give him time to satisfy himself. 32 I.C. 720=9 S. L.R. 160. In the absence of evidence of contrary intention of parties, legal representatives can require specific performance of the contract. 49 B. 862=91 I.C. 360=1926 B. 97. A universal legatee is liable for debts of testator to the extent of testator's property in his hands. 157 I.C. 956=1935 O.W. N. 1031. An annuity for the life of a person may be created either by will or by deed. Where after the death of the promisor there is a default in the payment of the annuity, the annuitant can recover it by a suit against the legal representative of the promisor, limited of course to the extent of the assets of the deceased in the hands of the legal representative. Actions against the executor or administrator do not exhaust the remedy open to the annuitant in India. 1943 A.L. W. 78. (a) A promises to deliver goods to B on a certain day on payment of Rs. 1,000. A dies before that day. A's representatives are bound to deliver the goods to B, and B is bound to pay the Rs. 1,000 to A's representatives.

(b) A promises to paint a picture for B by a certain day, at a certain price. A dies before the day. The contract cannot be enforced either by A's representative or by B.

38. Where a promisor has made an offer of performance to the promisee, and the offer has not been accepted, the promisor is not responsible for non-performance, nor does he thereby lose his rights under the contract.

Effect of refusal to accept offer of performance.

SEC. 38.—Section applies to an offer which has been accepted as well as to an offer which has been refused. 73 I.C. 682. As to obligation of the other party after breach of contract, see 3 M.L.J. 197. Seller must give buyer opportunity to examine goods. 1927 M. 62. S. 38 only requires a reasonable opportunity to be given to the buyer to examine the goods sold. 42 I.C. 382; 97 I.C. 866 (M.). As to proper place of inspection of goods see 59 C. 928=1932 O. 879. A valid tender improperly refused stops further interest. 12 I.C. 502=34 M. 320; 34 L.W. 843=55 M. 458=63 M.L.J. 266. In the case of ordinary money claims not based on mortgage, a tender before suit of the amount due must be followed by payment into Court in order to stop the running of interest. 1932 M. 109=55 M. 458=62 M.L.J. 266; (38 M. 959; 16 B. 141; 34 C. 305, Rel.) In the case of mortgages, the rule is different and a tender alone has the effect, under S. 84, T. P. Act. of stopping interest from the date of tender. 1932 M. 109=55 M. 458=62 M.L.J. 266. An assignee of a promise may be able to claim what his transferor could claim, but he would not become a promisee by reason of the assignment so far as the original promisor is concerned. The power of a co-mortgagee for giving a valid discharge of the whole mortgage debt is based largely on a consideration of S. 38, but that section is confined to promisees as defined by the Act and not to the heirs or assignees of a promisee. On a devolution of a mortgagee's interest either on his legal representatives or on his assignees, the latter would be, at least amongst themselves, entitled to recover their own shares and be able to give an acquittance to that extent only and not for the shares of the others. If a co-assignee therefore is found to have realised his own share of the mortgage debt, he cannot be said to have been acting in the capacity of an agent, much less of a constructive trustee, and any receipt by him cannot be considered to be a receipt on behalf of the others. 50 L.W. 193=1939 Mad. 818=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 214. Person pleading tender must always be ready and willing to pay the amount. Plea of tender before suit must be followed by payment into Court after suit. 16 B. 141. See also 39 M. 959. A tender to be valid must be a tender of the whole amount due and not of a part only and there is nothing to prevent this general law as to tenders applying to payments decreed in respect of a mortgage. 26 O.C. 59=1923 O. 241; 130 I.C. 817=1931 N. 91. An offer which a promisor must make to the legal representatives or heirs of a deceased promisee in order to take the benefit of S. 38, should be subject to exactly the same conditions as those which it would have had to fulfil, had it been made to the original promisee. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 387=42 C.W.N. 1023. The heirs of a single promisee are for the purpose of an unaccepted tender in the same position as joint promisees, that is, a tender to one of them is a valid tender. 43 C.W.N. 423. Tender with condition is not valid. 27 C.W.N. 299=44 M.L.J. 728=1922 P.C. 347; 41 C. 493=40 I.A. 223=26 M.L.J. 25 (P.C.). Tender of a portion of the debt with conditions attached to tender vitiates tender. 25 Bom.L.R. 830=1924 B. 264; 130 I.C. 817=1931 N. 91. A conditional tender of rent demanding a receipt that the tenant paying the rent was a kaimi raiyat is not a good tender. 51 I.C. 793. Where a bond recited that if three instalments fall in arrears the whole principal becomes payable, a tender by the debtor of principal only without interest on overdue instalments when the latter is stipulated expressly in the bond, is not a proper tender and interest on overdue instalments is recoverable. 31 I.C. 304. A tender is not valid pro tanto if a large sum is in fact due and if the tender is accompanied by a demand for cancellation, and delivery of the mortgage deed. 20 I.C. 184=16 M. L. T. 365. A mere offer by post is not a legal tender. 26 I.C. 121=27 M.L.J. 482. The mere expression by letter of a willingness to execute a release deed without having a document ready to be delivered is not valid tender. 38 M. 959=26 M.L.J. 381=23 I.C. 581. Tender of money locked up in a box or of goods enclosed in a case which the other party is not allowed to open is not sufficient tender, and the tender as a plea in an action is incomplete unless accompanied by a tender in Court. 38 M. 959. Contract of sale with condition of re-purchase—Actual production of cash only is strict compliance, but conduct of vendee may dispense with strict compliance. 89 I.C. 434=1925 O. 533. On this section, see also 48 M.L.J. 522=90 I.C. 206=1925 M. 538. The section seems to treat each joint promisee as a partner or agent of the other joint pro-

Every such offer must fulfil the following conditions :—

- (1) it must be unconditional :
- (2) it must be made at a proper time and place, and under such circumstances that the person to whom it is made may have a reasonable opportunity of ascertaining that the person by whom it is made is able and willing there and then to do the whole of what he is bound by his promise to do :
- (3) if the offer is an offer to deliver anything to the promisee the promisee must have a reasonable opportunity of seeing that the thing offered is the thing which the promisor is bound by his promise to deliver.

An offer to one of several joint promisees has the same legal consequences as an offer to all of them.

A contracts to deliver to B at his warehouse, on the first March, 1873, 100 bales of cotton of a particular quality. In order to make an offer of a performance with the effect stated in this section, A must bring the cotton to B's warehouse, on the appointed day, under such circumstances that B may have a reasonable opportunity of satisfying himself that the thing offered is cotton of the quality contracted for, and that there are 100 bales.

promisee to accept tender and payment. So payment to one has the legal effect of payment to all. 36 M. 544=24 M.L.J. 333=19 I.C. 12 (F.B.). The section does not deal with the legal consequences of an accepted tender. 36 M. 544. A valid tender must be an unconditional offer to pay a specific and ascertained sum. An offer to pay the amount found due on a settlement of accounts if the payee undertook to execute an indemnity bond, is not valid tender. 12 I.C. 502=34 M. 320; 35 M. 685=21 M.L.J. 508=10 I. C. 874. An offer by a promisor through his solicitor to pay a debt with interest due at the date of the offer, does not of itself afford a reasonable opportunity to the promisee of ascertaining that the promisor is able and willing there and then to perform his promise, and does not satisfy S. 38 of the Contract Act. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 327 =42 C.W.N. 1023. Where there is an obligation to pay a foreign unit of account, the form in which such payment is to be made must be regulated by the Municipal law of the country whose unit of account is in question. What would or would not be a legal tender or currency must depend upon the law on that subject at the time when the tender should have been made. [(1923) 2 Ch. 466. Rel. on.] 1939 A.C. 145=180 I.C. 985=1929 P.C. 74 (P.C.). The currency in any particular country must be determined by the law of that country and that law is naturally in terms limited to defining what is legal tender in that country. But when that is fixed by the local law, it determines what is the legal tender of that country for purposes of transactions in any other country, so that a foreign Court will, when such questions come before it, give effect to the proper law of legal tender so determined. 172 I.C. 786 =1938 P.C. 26 (P.C.). SECS. 39, 64 AND 65.—Under S. 39 of the Contract Act, a contract which is wrongfully repudiated by one of the parties to it does not thereby become voidable at the option of the other party so as to attract the operation of S. 64 of the Act. If the other party does not act upon the repudiation, the contract is enforceable by both the parties and continues to be so enforceable until the repudiation is acted upon by him. 44 C.W.N. 11. Mere repudiation of a contract by a party is nothing but an offer to rescind. The party not in default must act upon the repudiation so as to accept this offer. Otherwise the contract remains in force and continues to be enforceable by both the parties. Termination of the contract by the promisee is the acceptance of the repudiation. On such acceptance the contract is at an end. At no stage, therefore, the contract is voidable as defined in the Contract Act. In the absence of any clear indication in S. 39, it cannot be held that the legislature intended to include cases under S. 39, within S. 64 of the Contract Act. 44 C.W.N. 11. When one party to a contract has refused to perform his obligation thereunder so as to give rise to a right in the other party "to put an end to" the contract under S. 39 of the Contract Act, the latter is a person at whose option the contract is 'voidable' under S. 64 of the Act, and if he does put an end to the contract, he rescinds a voidable contract. When he has so rescinded, the contract becomes 'void' under S. 65 of the Contract Act. A party who has "put an end to" a contract under S. 39 is, therefore, liable to restore any benefit received by him under the contract from the other party. He is, however, entitled to damages for the defaulting party's breach under S. 75 of the Act. 70 I.A. 35=1943 A.L.J. 387=56 L.W. 283=47 C.W.N. 497=A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 34=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 369 (P.C.).

SEC. 43: SCOPE.—S. 43 takes away the right of a joint-debtor to be sued jointly. 27 I.C. 94=107 P.B. 1914. Right of contribution can only arise when there was admittedly a joint liability which has been discharged by one of the two persons jointly liable. 43 P.W.B. (J. & K.) 149. Under the English Law accord and satisfaction made by one of several parties jointly liable or jointly and severally liable to the same creditor for the same debt discharges the claim of the creditor against all. There is no reason why this principle would not apply to cases of joint and several liability under S. 43. I.L.E. (1941) 2 Cal. 237=45 C.W.N. 830. On this subject, see also 85 I.C. 788=1925 A. 425; 15 Mys.L.J. 292; 89 I.C. 977. See also 78 C.L.J. 514=1942 Cal. 87. As to when payment to a joint mortgagee operates as discharge, see 48 M. 693=47 M.L.J. 840.

APPLICABILITY.—S. 43 applies only where two or more persons have made a joint promise and not where two or more persons have become jointly interested by inheritance in a contract made by a single person. 119 I.C. 419 (2)=1929 L. 783. See also 1932 M.W.N. 1111; 1934 P. 411 (2)=148 I.C. 434; 48 L.W. 383=(1938) 2 M. L. J. 287. There is nothing in the Contract Act which says that before contribution can be claimed there must be a compulsory payment. S. 43 permits any joint promisor performing the promise to claim contribution. It makes no distinction between voluntary or compulsory performance. 45 C.W.N. 357. It is not necessary for application of S. 43 that the contract must arise out of a negotiable instrument. S. 43 applies to all actions on contract express or implied, enables a creditor to sue one of several joint promisors, without impleading the others and operates to convert a joint contract into a joint and several contract to which O. 1, R. 6, C.P. Code, must apply. 1934 Pesh. 94. Contract by one partner on behalf of partnership—Right of promisee to sue one of the partners. See 30 Punj.L.R. 149. Under S. 43, each joint promisor is entitled to insist upon an equal performance by all the joint promisors of the promise. If the promisee remits the performance of part of the promise in favour of one or some of the joint promisors, such remission cannot destroy the right of the other joint promisors to demand that all the joint promisors, should contribute equally to the performance of the remaining portion of the promise. 45 C.W.N. 357. A joint promisor is entitled to claim contribution from the others regarding the costs paid by him to the promisee, when the payment of such costs is part of the joint promise. 45 C.W.N. 357. A joint promisor cannot claim contribution from the others regarding the costs incurred by him in the legal proceedings between him and the promisee, (i.e.), the costs which he has had to pay to his own attorney. 45 C.W.N. 357. Joint promisor is bound to contribute debt kept alive by acknowledgment—Cause of action arises from date of payment. 116 I.C. 129=1929 M. 309. Under S. 43 a suit to recover the balance on an account can be maintained against some of the partners because their liability is joint and several. 53 B. 652=31 Bom.L.R. 1187. See also (1938) 2 M.L.J. 287.

But in execution of the decree, the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtors only can be sold. 5 P. 233=94 I.C. 28=1926 P. 504. A judgment without satisfaction recovered against one of two joint debtors is not a bar to an action against the other, where the debt is joint and several. 147 I.C. 702 (2)=1934 P. 52 (2). Contract by one partner on behalf of the partnership—Promisee can sue any one of the partners for performance of the whole promise. 104 I.C. 700. One of two joint promisors cannot plead the minority and the consequent immunity of the other from liability as a bar to the promisee's claim against himself. 39 M. 409=43 I.A. 99=31 M.L.J. 18 (P.C.). A contract of sale entered into by a major and minor vendee is a joint one and can be enforced against the major vendee. 4 L. 334=1924 L. 146. Where joint debtors (who were joint tort-feasors in the suit) have under a compromise in Court contracted to pay a sum of money to the plaintiff and some of them pay the sum and sue the rest for contribution, their claim cannot be resisted on the ground that all of them were joint tort-feasors before the compromise. 38 A. 237=38 I.C. 165. See also 11 Beng.L.R. 76. The right to contribution as between

Each of two or more joint promisors may compel every other joint promisor to contribute equally with himself to the performance of the promise, unless a contrary intention appears from the contract.

Each promisor may compel contribution.

Sharing of loss by default in contribution.

If any one of two or more joint promisors makes default in such contribution, the remaining joint promisors must bear the loss arising from such default in equal shares.

partners is not essentially different from the right to contribution as between persons who are jointly liable in respect of a debt. But a partner's action for contribution is conditioned by the special law of partnership. So long as the partnership continues or subsists, no separate action for contribution will lie, because the right of contribution is subject to the special rights and obligations created by the contract of partnership and the right to contribution can be enforced only as a part of the general suit for accounts of the partnership. Where, however, the partnership relation no longer exists and there is no likelihood of any restitution being necessary, there is no reason to apply the rule prohibiting actions for contribution as between persons who were once partners but have ceased to be such. The right to sue for contribution as between co-judgment-debtors arises out of equity, an equity all the more stringent in view of the provisions of S. 43 of the Contract Act. That is part of the general equity which requires that one shall not bear the whole burden in case of the rest and it comes into existence only when the common burden is discharged and not before. 48 L.W. 383 = 1938 M.W.N. 1041 = (1938) 2 M.L.J. 287. The doctrine of English Law that there is no contribution between joint tort-feasors cannot safely be extended to India. 38 A. 237 = 33 I.C. 165. See also 7 C. 702; 25 M. 599. A suit against the firm in the firm's name bars a separate suit against the representatives of a deceased partner. 43 I.C. 815 = 19 Bom.L.R. 837. The effect of S. 43 is to enable plaintiff to get a decree against any of the co-contractors though plaintiff cannot get a decree against both. 40 I.C. 194 = 19 Bom.L.R. 370. A release granted to one of several judgment-debtors without any intention to release the others will discharge the others only pro tanto and not in respect of the entire debt. 51 I.C. 98 = 29 C. Where one of several joint tenants is liable for the whole rent, on his death leaving several heirs, all the co-parceners constitute in law one heir. 50 C. 737 = 1924 C. 165. A landlord cannot maintain such a suit without joining the other heirs. 45 I.C. 732; 27 C.W.N. 521 = 1923 C. 615; 36 I.C. 243. In order that one co-promisor can resist a suit on the ground that the co-promisors have not been impleaded, he must show that there was a definite contract that each promisor should not be separately liable. 105 I.C. 484. When the contract is by a single person as a tenant and he dies, the liability of his heirs is a joint liability, for co-heirs form a single person. The liability of joint tenants for rent is a joint and several liability. 44 I.C. 80 = 22 C.W.N. 289. Suit for arrears of rent not falling due, in the lifetime of the deceased tenant can be maintained against some of his heirs. The suit is not bad though all heirs are not joined. 36 I.C. 243. Where the parties are interested jointly by law in a contract by a single person, S. 43 cannot be applied. 35 I.C. 563 = 24 C.L.J. 371. Joint contract is not terminated by the death of one of the joint contractors. 16 I.C. 852 = 17 C.L.J. 201. 44. Where two or more persons have made a joint promise, a release of one of such joint promisors by the promisee does not discharge the other joint promisor or joint promisors; neither does it free the joint promisor so released from responsibility to the other joint promisor or joint promisors.

45. When a person has made a promise to two or more persons jointly, then, unless a contrary intention appears from the contract, the right to claim performance rests, as between him and them, with them during their joint lives, and, after the death of any of them, with the representative of such deceased person jointly with the survivor or survivors, and, after the death of the last survivor, with the representatives of all jointly.

Co-heirs—Liability for rent—Claim barred against some of them—Others cannot be made liable for entire rent. 48 I.C. 536. Under the Indian Law a release by the creditor of one of the mortgagors, jointly and severally liable without expressly reserving his remedies against the other mortgagors, has not the effect of releasing the others. 44 C. 162=21 C.W.N. 740. See also 4 C. 336; 39 M. 548; 6 C.L.R. 212; 13 Pat. L.T. 619. (Joint decree for costs). The position as regards joint judgment-debtors is the same in principle as that as regards joint promisors under S. 44, Contract Act. Hence a release granted to one of them without the consent of others does not absolve the latter from liability. 144 I.C. 981=1933 L. 505. (39 M. 548, Rel. on.) The English Law doctrine that the release of one of several joint debtors releases all from liability, has no application to India as evidenced by S. 44. 44 C. 162. The release of a joint judgment-debtor does not operate as a release of the others but they can claim the benefit of the amount actually paid by the released judgment-debtor. 39 M. 548=29 I.C. 303. Where on a insolvency of a firm, the creditor brought a suit against the members of a joint family firm alleged to be a partner in the insolvent firm and by the terms of a compromise in the suit, the creditor received a smaller amount than due and released one of the partners and the whole of the asset, the release operates as an absolute release in favour of the whole firm insolvent and the creditor is not entitled to prove in the insolvency for the balance. 129 I.C. 890=32 Bom.L.R. 1656=1931 B. 123.

S. 44 of the Contract Act applies not only to the case of a complete discharge but also to one of a partial discharge of some of the joint promisors by the promisee. A partial discharge of some of the joint promisors by the promisee does not release them from their liability to contribute equally with others to the performance of the promise. 46 C.W.N. 234. The fact that the decree-holder may have released some of the joint judgment-debtors from some part of their share of the judgment-debt does not affect the liability of the others to contribute, and under S. 44 of the Contract Act it does not discharge the other APPLICABILITY.—Section applies to all joint promisors (as) partners, co-heirs, etc. 10 B. 32. See also 17 B. 6; 17 B. 29; 21 B. 12; as also joint family members carrying on partnership business. 6 C. 815; 7 B. 217; 18 M. 33; 18 C. 86; 33 A. 382 (P.C.). It is doubtful whether S. 45 applies to a claim for possession of land. Where, however, the suit is really for specific performance of a contract, the defendant may plead S. 45 as a bar. 57 P.R. 1911=12 I.C. 850. See also 155 I.C. 610=1935 L. 478. EFFECT OF SECTION is to extend English law as to trading partnership to all partnership cases. 9 A. 486.

SPECIAL CASES—CO-HEIRS.—One debt creates a single and indivisible liability which gives rise to one single cause of action. One of several heirs of a deceased obligee cannot sue for his share in the money due under the bond. 33 A. 327=9 I.C. 127. (7 A. 313, Foll.) See also 1941 Cal. 595. See also 197 I.C. 321. Payment to one of the co-heirs of a promisee under a bond would not discharge the promisor from his liability. So also are payments made to a junior member of a Hindu family during the lifetime of its manager in whose favour bond was executed. 41 M. 637=34 M.L.J. 315=45 I.C. 419; 29 I.C. 586. See also 30 I.C. 371; 7 Mys.L.J. 379. Where there are several mortgagees and there is no specification in the mortgage deed in regard to who advanced the money, the presumption is that the money was advanced in equal shares and payment whether by bond or otherwise to one of them without consent of or reference to the others does not discharge the mortgage debt due to others. 1930 A.L.J. 290=1930 A. 98=126 I.C. 364.

CO-MORTGAGEES.—Where property is mortgaged to two persons as tenants-in-common and there is no covenant to repay each separately a moiety of the amount, the right of either mortgagee, who desires to realize failing the consent of his co-mortgagee, is to sue making co-mortgagee a defendant. 46 I. A. 272=37 M.L.J. 483=24 C.W.N. 297 (P.C.). See also 31 C.W.N. 374. Where on the death of one of two joint mortgagees, the survivor alone sued on the mortgage Held, that the suit was defective owing to the non-joinder of the legal representatives of the joint promisee. 1937 A.M.L.J. 118. Where there are two mortgagees and a suit is filed on the mortgage by only one of them, the absence of the other as a party becomes immaterial when during the course of the suit he dies. The person suing though he had no right to sue alone on the day on which he sued, acquired that right during the course of the suit by the death of the other. 1 L.R. (1939) Nag. 515=1939 Nag. 242. As to whether one of several joint promisees can sue for his share of the debt only, see 51 M. 100=100 I.C. 648=1927 M. 84; 105 I.C. 544 (suit by one broker for his share of brokerage fees). A mortgagor who paid the whole to one of the mortgagees in disregard of a notice by the other not to pay and who is compelled to pay again, the share of the other cannot claim a refund from the mortgagee whom he has paid in full. 24 I.C. 88. One of several co-mortgagees cannot maintain a suit for sale of the entire mortgaged property to recover his share of the debt only. 24 I.C. 88. Co-mortgagees—Suit by one for his share on allocation that others had received their shares is maintainable. 25 I.C. 440=19 C.L.J. 327. So also one of the joint promisees cannot sue for share of the debt. 51 M. 100=100 I.C. 648. Co-mortgagees are presumed in equity to be tenants-in-common of the mortgage debt and their interests are severable or partible among themselves. Each of them can sue joining the unwilling co-obligors as defendants. 27 C.L.J. 453=45 I.C. 986; 46 I.A. 272=37 M.L.J. 483 (P.C.). Similarly if some of the co-mortgagees are estopped from suing, the Court can sever the debt and give decree to the others for their share. 27 C.L.J. 453=22 C.W.N. 641. A payment of the mortgage debt by the mortgagor to one of the several mortgagees is not a valid payment as against the other mortgagees. 29 I.C. 956=21 C.L.J. 570; 29 I.C. 139; 4 Lah. L.J. 23=1922 L. 64=63 I.C. 744; 3 Lah.L.J. 502. But it operates as a valid discharge of the entire mortgage if the person to whom payment is made was the manager and the agent of all the mortgagees. 105 I.C. 751. CO-PARCENER.—The manager of a joint Hindu family can enforce a contract made with the family, and the junior members are not necessary parties. 33 A. 272=38 I.A. 45=21 M.L.J. 378 (P.C.); 14 I.C. 35=9 A. performance of the promise rests with them jointly. Where, therefore, a promissory note is executed in favour of two brothers forming a joint Hindu family, only one of them who is not the karta of the family is not entitled to bring a suit on basis of the note without joining the other. He is not bound by payments beyond their share unless they were made bona fide in which case he is entitled to maintain a suit for his own share of the rent without making his co-sharers parties. 28 I.C. 141=28 M.L.J. 197.

FIRM.—O. 30, B. 4, C.P. Code, contains a modification of S. 45 of the Contract Act and a suit by firm could continue without the legal representative of a deceased partner being brought on record as co-plaintiff. 21 I.C. 509=17 C.L.J. 648. Debts due to trading partnerships stand on a different footing from debts due under ordinary contracts and when one of the partners in a firm dies, the surviving partners can sue for the recovery of the debts due to the firm without making the legal representatives of the deceased partner parties. 4 L. 122=1923 L. 197; 24 I.C. 268. SEC. 46.—In a contract where the dates of delivery in instalments are not indicated, the instalments must be deemed to have been distributed rateably over the period appointed for delivery of the whole quantity of goods. It is unreasonable for a person who has borrowed ornaments for use in a ceremony to detain them after the ceremony has been completed and the owner has demanded their return. 126 I.C. 682=1930 O. 395; 43 C. 305=20 C.W.N. 240. The nature of the property is one of the matters which has to be taken into consideration in determining whether time should be treated as of the essence of the contract. 57 B. 292=1933 B. 71=34 Bom. 48. When a promise is to be performed on a certain day, and the promisor has not undertaken to perform it without application by the promisee, it is the duty of the promisee to apply for performance at a proper place and within the usual hours of business.

Application for performance on certain day to be at proper time and place.

Explanation.—The question “what is a proper time and place” is, in each particular case, a question of fact.

49. When a promise is to be performed without application by the promisee, and no place is fixed for the performance of it, it is the duty of the promisor to apply to the promisee to appoint a reasonable place for the performance of the promise, and to perform it at such place.

Place for performance of promise where no application to be made and no place fixed for performance.

EXPLANATION.—To determine what is reasonable time, usage of the business is also to be considered. 24 B. 97; 23 M. 441. Where the day for performance is fixed, the promisor would have to perform it at any time during the usual business hours on the day and place fixed, even if it be a Sunday. 15 B. 399.

SEC. 48.—See 40 B. 517 under S. 47.

SEC. 49.—Section does not apply where the money is payable in demand and not without application by the promisee. 15 I.C. 885=16 C.L.J. 279. There is no warrant for holding that S. 49 gets rid of inferences that should justly be drawn from the terms of the contract itself or from the necessities of the case, involving in the obligation to pay the creditor the further obligation of finding the creditor so as to pay him. 63 C. 726=40 C.W.N. 392=1936 C. 97 See also 163 I.C. 397=1936 R. 25. The rule contained in S. 49 applies to promises for payment of money as well as to promises for delivery of goods. In the case of a lease, it is the duty of the lessee to apply to the lessor for a reasonable place being named for the payment of the premium. When this is not done there is an implied promise on the part of the lessee to make the payment at the place where the lessor resides according to the rule that the debtor must pay where the creditor is. 1933 A. 147. S. 49 has no application to a case where, by manifest implication or necessary import, a place is fixed by the contract for the performance of the obligation. The rule in S. 49 accordingly does not apply where there is an obligation to pay the creditor, and an inference can legitimately be drawn, either from the terms of the contract itself or from the necessities of the case, that there is a further obligation on the debtor of finding the creditor so as to pay him. Quære.—Whether the English Common Law rule that if no place is named, it is the duty of the debtor to make the payment where the creditor is, has been superseded by S. 49. In such a case the Common Law rule applies and it is necessary for the debtor to seek out his creditor and pay him. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 323=44 C.W.N. 609=1940 Cal. 443. A promissory note payable on demand does not imply that a demand must be made. The words “on demand” only mean that the note is payable immediately, or at sight, and the words “on demand” do not by themselves take the note out of S. 49, Contract Act. S. 49 of the Contract Act does not, however, apply to negotiable instruments. S. 49 deals with a contract between a promisor and a promisee, and has no application to matters governed by the law merchant contained in the Negotiable Instruments Act. I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 620=44 Bom.L.R. 495=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 251. S. 49 does not preclude the Court from finding out what the implied intention of the parties was in regard to the performance of the contract. 22 Pat.L.T. 282. Where there is an obligation to pay money and either from the terms of the contract or from the necessities of the case a further obligation is implied to find the creditor so as to pay him, S. 49 does not apply. (5 Rang. 451 (P.C.). Reld. on.) 1940 Lah. 85. The question as to what is reasonable time, is a question of fact in each case. 22 M.L.J. 207=10 I.C. 320. Choice of reasonable place lies with the buyer. 24 C. 8. Ordinarily the debtor is to see the creditor to ascertain the amount of the debt and pay it. 31 I.C. 880=11 N.L.R. 189; 121 I.C. 668=1930 N. 207. S. 49 is in accordance with the rule of English Law, that in the absence of any specification of the place of payment, the debtor must seek out the creditor. The section leaves it to the creditor to appoint a reasonable place of payment. 20 I.C. 683=5 Bur.L.T. 143. (a) B owes A 2,000 rupees. A desires B to pay the amount to A's account with C, a banker. B who also banks with C, orders the amount to be transferred from his account to A's credit, and this is done by C. Afterwards, and before A knows of the transfer, C fails. There has been a good payment by B.

(b) A and B are mutually indebted. A and B settle an account by setting off one item against another, and B pays A the balance found to be due from him upon such settlement. This amounts to a payment by A and B respectively, of the sums which they owed to each other.

(c) A owes B 2,000 rupees. B accepts some of A's goods in deduction of the debt. The delivery of the goods operates as a part payment.

(d) A desires B, who owes him Rs. 100, to send him a note for Rs. 100 by post. The debt is discharged as soon as B puts into the post a letter containing the note duly addressed to A.

PLACE OF PERFORMANCE—BREACH OF CONTRACT—JURISDICTION.—Where the plaintiff at T gave orders to the defendant firm in M to send certain goods for which he sent an advance and instructed them not to send the goods per V.P.P., and when the goods were sent by V.P.P. in contravention of his order he refused to receive them and claimed the refund of the advance paid by him by a suit in the Court at T. Held, that owing to breach of contract, the amount which the plaintiff was seeking to recover became a debt, and that under S. 49 of the Contract Act where no place was fixed for the performance of the promise, it was the duty of the debtor to apply to the creditor to appoint a reasonable place and if the debtor failed to apply, the principle that the debtor must find his creditor would be applicable and that the place of performance was in T and the Court at T had jurisdiction. 40 L.W. 498=1934 M. 581=67 M.L.J. 296. Where no application has been made by the debtor to appoint a place for the performance of the promise the place of performance is to be determined with reference to the intention of the parties, and in doing so regard should be had to the fact that the obligation to pay the creditor involves the further obligation of finding the creditor so as to pay him. On an urgent request of defendant for a loan the plaintiff deposited Rs. 500 with the Kothi at Hyderabad to be paid to the defendant through the branch of that Kothi in Karachi. The plaintiff in his plaint averred that the loan had to be returned at Hyderabad. The plaintiff brought the present suit at Hyderabad. Held, that even if there was no promise to return the money at Hyderabad and the agreement between the parties was silent on that point the defendant who had promised to return the loan must be presumed to have promised to return it at Hyderabad. (b) A contracts with B to execute certain builder's work for a fixed price, B supplying the scaffolding and timber necessary for the work. B refuses to furnish any scaffolding or timber, and the work cannot be executed. A need not execute the work, and B is bound to make compensation to A for any loss caused to him by the non-performance of the contract.

PRINCIPLE OF SECTION.—See 1927 S. 49. As to when time is essence of contract, see 88 I.C. 89; 39 Bom.L.R. 835. Time is not ordinarily of the essence of the contract for sale of land, but the parties can make it so by express agreement in the contract itself or subsequently by giving reasonable notice to complete on a certain day, or if the nature of the property intended to be sold requires it, as for instance, if the contract is for the sale of a life-interest or a mining lease given for a fixed period of time. Time is not of the essence of contract simply because a period of completion is mentioned in the contract. 63 C. 804=1936 C. 51. See also 1937 Bom. 417; 16 Luck. 357. In cases other than commercial contracts the ordinary presumption is that time is not of the essence of the contract; there is no such presumption in the case of commercial contracts. If time is originally the essence of the contract, it does not cease to be so because one of the parties had agreed to grant a short extension. 190 I.C. 554=1940 Oudh 443. Under S. 55, Contract Act, the right of the promisee to avoid the contract after breach is not circumscribed by any chronological limitations. Nor is the element of time introduced into S. 63. In a case where after several agreements for extension of time there is an ultimate agreement that time should be extended to a particular date, it matters not that there are gaps between the intervening agreements. What is vital is the final agreement to extend time. 48 Bom.L.

R. 274. The question whether or not time is of the essence of a contract is a question of the intention of the parties to be gathered from the terms of the contract. Where there is an express provision that time is of the essence of the contract and at the same time provision for extension of time in certain contingencies, and for the payment of a fine or penalty if the contract remains unfinished on the expiry of the time provided in the contract, such provision is inconsistent with time being of the essence of a contract. This principle applies to P. W.D. contracts. 189 I.C. 785=1940 Sind 1.

CONTRACT TO SELL.—Even where time is not of the essence of contract, the purchaser must show his readiness and willingness to perform his part of the contract within a reasonable time after the agreed date. 37 I.C. 776; 69 I.C. 41=1922 M.W.N. 47. See also 2 I.C. 460 (P.C.). The rule in Kuri transactions being that the amount which is payable to the bidder is to be paid to him only on his furnishing security for future instalments, time is of the very essence of the contract and unless the security is furnished within the prescribed period the bidder loses his right to the amount payable to him. 52 I.C. 938; 1919 M.W.N. 805. The question whether time was of the essence of the contract embodied in the consent decree would depend on the facts of each case. Where a consent decree in a suit for specific performance directed the plaintiff to execute a conveyance within a week from the date thereof and the defendant to pay the price within four months therefrom, held, the term did not make time of the essence of the agreement and that the defendant was bound to pay even though the conveyance was executed only two weeks later. 1930 P. 234; 11 L. 699=131 I.C. 371=1931 L. 205; see 49 B. 289 (P.C.). Where time is of the essence of the contract, failure to comply by specified time entitles a promise to immediately rescind. Where time is not of the essence of the contract, he has a right to damages only. But whether time is of the essence of a contract or not, in any case a contract must be performed within a reasonable time. 33 I.C. 668=9 S.L.R. 137; 50 I.C. 41=12 S.L.R. 144; 19 I.C. 48=6 Bur.L.T. 53. See also 25 N.L.R. 110=1929 N. 164. SALE OF LAND.—S. 55 does not lay down any principle which differs from the law of England as to contracts for sale of land. In such cases, equity looks at the substance and not at the letter of the agreement in order to ascertain whether the parties, notwithstanding that they named a specific time within which the sale was to be completed, really and in substance intended more than that it should take place within a reasonable time. Prima facie equity treats the importance of such time limits as being subordinate to the main purpose of the parties. 40 B. 289=43 I.A. 26=30 M.L.J. 186 (P.C.) (38 B. 77, Reversed); 69 I.C. 13=1922 Bom. 14; 38 I.C. 123; 97 I.C. 269=19 S.L.R. 41. See also 63 C. 804=161 I.C. 166=1936 C. 51. Specific performance of a contract to sell land will be granted although there has been a failure to keep the dates assigned to it, if justice can be done between the parties and if nothing in the express stipulations of the parties, the nature of the property or the surrounding circumstances, make it inequitable to grant relief. 40 B. 289. An intention to make time of the essence of the contract must be expressed in unmistakable language; it may be inferred from what passed between the parties before but not after the contract is made. 40

TEST OF TIME BEING ESSENCE OF CONTRACT.—The question whether time is of the essence of the contract depends on the intention of the parties. 47 B. 607=25 Bom. L.R. 328; 38 B. 77=15 Bom.L.R. 405; 28 C. W.N. 104=1924 C. 427; 33 I.C. 347=22 C. L.J. 566; see also 39 Bom.L.R. 835; 11 L. 699=131 I.C. 871=1931 L. 205. The question whether time is or is not of the essence of the contract has to be decided on the facts of each case. The Court has to look at the substance and not merely at the letter of the contract and ascertain whether the parties really and in substance intended more than that the act should be performed within a reasonable time. 11 L. 699. Where time is of the essence of a contract to pay money, the party must see that money payable reaches the other party in time. Mere remittance when time is of the essence of contract is not sufficient. 11 L. 699.

WAIVER.—Consent decree—Time not always essence of contract—Waiver may be inferred from conduct. 36 I.C. 598=18 Bom.L.R. 803; 2 Pat.L.J. 520=42 I.C. 408. Acceptance of payment after the expiry of the time fixed operates as a waiver of the limitation as to time in the contract. 2 Pat. L.J. 520=42 I.C. 408. S. 55 puts an agreement after the original date on the same footing as an agreement just before the original date. But it must be an agreement. Mere forbearance from suing or giving a formal notice is not enough. Mere forbearance to institute proceedings or to give notice of rescission cannot be an extension of time for the performance of a contract within the meaning of S. 63 of the Act. Time for the performance of a contract can be extended only by an agreement arrived at between the promisor and the promisee. 47 Bom.L.R. 719=A.I.R. 1946 Bom. 1. A party to a contract may at the request of the other party forbear from insisting upon delivery at the contract time and may allow time to be extended, without binding himself to do so, or may expressly contract for an extension of time, and then he may claim damages for non-performance at the extended time. 45 Bom.L.R. 405=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 229.

SEC. 56: SCOPE.—The question whether compensation is payable or not depends not merely on (i) whether it can, in an abstract manner, be said that the act agreed to be done is impossible in itself or unlawful, but upon, (ii) the knowledge as to the act being impossible or unlawful, as well as the promisor using reasonable diligence in obtaining that knowledge; but this knowledge, or absence of diligence must be coupled with, (iii) the want of knowledge on the part of the promisee, and finally it depends also upon, (iv) whether the promisor could have prevented that event which renders the act unlawful. 105 I.C. 319. See also 130 I.C. 772; 1931 L. 347. Courts cannot read into a contract of sale an implied term that the enforceability of the contract is to be dependant upon the ability of the vendee to find customers for the goods to be purchased by him. 58 L.W. 255; 1945 M.W.N. 465=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 291=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 24. Where a party to a contract agrees to transport goods for the other party by means of his motor trucks and the trucks are requisitional under R. 75-A of the Defence of India Rules, the contract becomes impossible of performance. There is a frustration of the contract on account of the circumstances beyond the control of the party. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 475=1945 N.L.J. 267=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 192.

CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—There are two matters which are dealt with by paragraph 2 of S. 56 of the Contract Act, viz., an act which becomes impossible and an act which becomes unlawful. In the case of an act which has become unlawful the promisor is exonerated from performing if he is not responsible for the act having become unlawful. The first part of the paragraph does not speak of the act having become impossible by reason of the act of the promisor. Though it is not clear what exactly is meant by speaking of an act having become impossible in the sense referred in the section, there is no reason to hold that the Legislature intended to depart from the general common law rule which is that where a party has not qualified his obligation, he is liable to make compensation in damages for non-performance although the performance has been rendered impracticable by some unforeseen cause over which he has no control. 192 I.C. 768=1941 Pat. 429.

A clear line of distinction must be made between physical impossibility and mere difficulty in carrying out a contract. 130 I.C. 772=1931 L. 347. ASSIGNMENT OF CONTRACTUAL RIGHTS—BREACH OF THIRD PARTY—LIABILITY OF ASSIGNOR.—It is too broad a statement to assert that whenever a person enters into a contract, he must get his money or its equivalent in goods irrespective of the terms agreed upon. Where a person transfers his right under a contract for purchase of goods from a third person in favour of the plaintiff without in any way undertaking to procure delivery, the breach by the vendor of his contract to deliver does not make the contract void or impossible for failure of consideration. In such a case, the consideration for the contract is not the delivery of the goods but the right to call for delivery. That was what the plaintiff bargained for and that he has obtained. 8 Mys.L.J. 361.

doctrine of frustration of contracts depends upon the particular circumstances of the case in which it is sought to be invoked. Where it has not become impossible for a party to discharge his obligation under the contract, but merely burdensome to him to do, the doctrine cannot be invoked. Before the doctrine can be invoked it must be shown that the event which produced frustration was one which the parties to the contract did not foresee and could not, with reasonable diligence have foreseen. 24 Pat. 197 = (1945) P.W.N. 106 = A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 300. See also 1942 Cal. 291. The doctrine of frustration is to the effect that when the performance or further performance of a contract has been rendered impossible or has been indefinitely postponed in consequence of the happening of an event which was not and could not have been contemplated by the parties to the contract when they made it, a court will consider what, as fair and reasonable men, the parties would have agreed upon if they had in fact foreseen and provided for the particular event, and if, in its opinion, they would have decided that the contract should be regarded as at an end, would discharge the party who would otherwise be liable to pay damages for non-performance. 24 Pat. 197 = (1945) P.W.N. 106 = A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 300. The word frustration used with reference to a contract has to be regarded as used in a technical legal sense. It is a sort of shorthand. It means that a contract has ceased to bind the parties because the common basis, on which by mutual undertaking it was based has failed. It would be more accurate to say not that the contract has been frustrated but that there has been a failure of what in the contemplation of both parties would be the essential condition or purpose of the performance. Whether frustration occurs or not depends on the nature of the contract and on the events which have occurred. Modern English law has recognised how beneficial the doctrine of frustration is when the whole circumstances justify it, but to apply it calls for circumspection. The doctrine may apply to a contract for unascertained goods. 58 L.W. 315 = 1945 A.L.J. 272 = 1945 P.C. 144 = (1945) 1 M.L.J. 417 (P.C.). See also 1945 Nag. 192 = I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 475.

SUIT FOR RENTALS OF TOLL—DEFENCE OF FRUSTRATION.—In a suit by the District

Board to recover the balance of the annual rentals from toll-gate contractors, the defendants pleaded that the contracts came to an end because they became impossible to be performed by reason of an unforeseen accident. The monsoon that year was very severe; the bridges adjoining the toll-gates had been washed away and for nearly 3½ months traffic had to be suspended to a greater or smaller extent. Cl. 6 of the sale (of tolls) provided: "sales subject to all risks. Claims for compensation will not be entertained." Held, (i) that the doctrine of impossibility of performance or "frustration" proceeded on the assumption that the parties at the time of contract did not have a contingency in their mind; if they had it they would have provided for it; in a particular way that doctrine was inapplicable to the present case for the reason that the destruction of bridges by floods was one of the risks contemplated by the parties; (ii) that the interruption to the traffic for 3½ months was nothing exceptional or unreasonable; (iii) as the defendants in spite of the monsoon continued to discharge the functions and collect as much as they could, the contract did not in fact cease to be executable. The defence therefore failed. 1934 M. 85 = 66 M.L.J. 108.

Reciprocal promises to do things legal and also other things illegal.

A and B agree that A shall sell B a house for 10,000 rupees, but that, if B uses it as a gambling house, he shall pay A 50,000 rupees for it.

The first set of reciprocal promises, namely, to sell the house and to pay 10,000 rupees for it, is a contract.

The second set is for an unlawful object, namely, that B may use the house as a gambling house, and is a void agreement.

Appropriation of Payments.

ence between the contract price and the price fixed by Government: Held, (i) that the contract became void when the order under the Defence of India Act was passed making it unlawful to charge a price exceeding the price fixed by the order; (ii) that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover the difference between the contract price and the price fixed by the order by invoking the aid of S. 65 of the Contract Act, as that section applied only if the advantage was received before the contract ceased to be a contract by becoming void, and not where it was received after, as in this case; (iii) that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover the sum claimed under S. 72 of the Contract Act, as the difference between the contract price and the maximum price fixed by the Government order could not be said to represent a payment made by the plaintiff by mistake. If the plaintiff paid the contractual sum in ignorance of the fact, that the contract had become void, he could recover the entire amount paid and return the goods. But he could not be permitted to split up the payment made in the way he sought to do and to treat a part only of such payment as being a payment made by mistake refundable under S. 72. To do so would be to permit the plaintiff to enforce a new contract on the defendant. The Government order merely prohibited the sale above a certain maximum price but did not compel sale at that price. 80 C.L.J. 170. A contract to do an act which, after the contract was made, has become impossible, becomes void when the act becomes impossible. When a contract becomes void, any person who has received any advantage under such contract

APPROPRIATION OF PAYMENTS.—RULE AS TO.
—Reading Ss. 59, 60 and 61 together it is clear that so far as the right of the debtor to make the appropriation under S. 59 is concerned, it can be exercised only when a debtor makes the payment with the express or implied intimation that the payment is to be applied to the discharge of a particular debt. It would follow that this intimation, express or implied, must be made at the time when the payment is made. On the other hand, under S. 60 it is only when the debtor has omitted to intimate and there are no other circumstances indicating to which debt the payment is to be applied that the creditor may apply it at his discretion to any lawful debt. The creditor need not exercise this right at once, but he can at his discretion exercise it even later. There is nothing in the section, particularly as a past perfect tense "has omitted" has been used, to indicate that the creditor loses this right if he does not exercise it at the very time when the payment is received. In many cases it may be impossible to make the appropriation there and then, for instance, when the payment is made at a time when the amounts due under the various loans are not known and the account books are not easily accessible. When neither the debtor nor the creditor has made any appropriation, then under S. 61, it is duty of the Court to apply the payment in discharge of the debts in order of time, and if the debts are of equal standing, in discharge of each proportionately. 57 A. 605=1935 A. 221=1935 A.L.J. 177 (F.B.). On paying money to his creditor the debtor may at the time of payment, appropriate it to any particular debt, even though the creditor says he takes it in payment of another debt. If the debtor makes no appropriation to particular items, the creditor has the right of appropriation. If no express appropriation be made by either the debtor or the creditor, it may be implied or presumed that payments to and drawings against a running account are to be attributed to the earliest items on the opposite side of the account. 61 C. 711. Decree debt, payable by instalments—S. 59 not applicable. 29 Bom.L.R. 950. As to appropriation in case of payment by joint-debtor, see 1925 R. 4; 95 I.C. 175=1926 O. 514. If a series of separate debts exist between a creditor and a debtor, the debtor may pay any one of them as he may deem fit and if he specifically appropriates the payment to a later debt, the creditor is not entitled to accept the payment otherwise than in respect of the debt to which it is so appropriated by the debtor. This doctrine, however, has no application when the parties enter into an agreement regulating the order of payment of instalments in respect of a debt. 173 I.C. 133=1938 Pat. 8. (a) A owes money to B under a contract. It is agreed between A, B and C that B shall thenceforth accept C as his debtor, instead of A. The old debt of A to B is at an end, a new debt from C to B has been contracted.

(c) A owes B 1,000 rupees under a contract. B owes C 1,000 rupees. B orders A to credit C with 1,000 rupees in his books, but C does not assent to the arrangement. B still owes C 1,000 rupees, and no new contract has been entered into.

Where there had been successive advances by the creditor and successive payments by the debtor, the legal position is that each item of debt if unpaid becomes time barred on the expiry of three years from the date on which it is incurred; but the balance outstanding in favour of a creditor is not generally considered to consist of the oldest items of debt. Under S. 61, each payment ought to be appropriated to the satisfaction of the oldest then outstanding debt. 186 I.C. 855=1940 Pat. 52. Where the creditor has not appropriated, in taking accounts a debt which did not carry interest should rank last. 18 I.C. 535=17 C.W.N. 25 (P. C.). SEC. 62: ESSENTIALS OF NOVATION AND EFFECT.—It is doubtful how far the provisions of S. 62 will apply to cases of transfer of property. I.L.R. (1938) All. 714=1938 A.L.J. 746=1938 All. 418 (F.B.). Under S. 62 there must be a present substitution of another contract for the original contract and not a mere agreement to substitute one in future. S. 62 presupposes that the original contract is still capable of performance. 1939 Rang. 413. Where the debtors execute a promote in favour of the creditors and subsequently they execute a bond for the same consideration, but there is a condition precedent to the validity of the bond which is not fulfilled, there is no novation of contract and the suit on the promote is maintain-able. 162 I.C. 882=1936 L. 51. See also 1935 L. 897. "Agree to substitute", meaning of. See 27 A.L.J. 526=1929 A. 503=51 A. 799; 1931 O. 97=8 O.W.N. 126. See also 1923 N. 213. A novation requires that the new contracting party has consented to assume liability for the contract and that the person on whom the correlative right resides has agreed to accept the new party's liability in substitution of the original liability. A novation requires that the rights against the original contractor shall be relinquished and the liability of the new contracting party accepted in their place. A mere agreement to deliver would not operate to make the deliverer under a delivery order from the vendor contractually liable to the purchaser. Even though the deliver agrees to make delivery of the goods to the purchaser, this in itself would not operate as an acceptance by him of all the vendor's contractual liabilities. I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 208=A.I.R. 1944 Sind 205. The question whether the parties intended to substitute a new contract for the old one is a question of fact in each case depending for its decision upon the circumstances of the particular cases. Where a mortgage has become irredeemable and the mortgagee has become the owner of the property there is no mortgage in existence. 1943 A.W.R. (C.C.) 179=1943 A.L.W. 577=1943 O.W.N. 476. Novation may in India as in England constitute a good consideration for a fresh promise. A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 147=(1943) 2 M. L.J. 417 (P.C.). If there is a proposal to discharge a debt by executing a mortgage but the right of reverting to original position is reserved unless the new transaction is complete, there is no true novation and there is no bar to a suit on the original cause of action. 40 P.L.R. 689=1938 Lah. 757. Whatever difficulties there might be in applying the provisions of S. 62, where the agreement to substitute a new contract for the original one is made after the breach of the original contract, it is beyond all controversy that where a breach of contract has taken place, the cause of action that arises from the breach may be discharged by accord and satisfaction. I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 237=45 C.W.N. 830=1942 Cal. 87. If the parties to a handnote agree to substitute for the liability under it a new contract under which the debtor has to pay a certain amount down and to execute and register a mortgage-deed for the balance, but subsequently neither the debtor carries out his part of the promise relating to the payment of cash nor the creditor accepts the mortgage-bond the execution of which is a unilateral act of the debtor, there is no novation of contract within the meaning of S. 62 and the creditor is therefore entitled to sue on the original handnote. 184 I.C. 705=1940 Pat. 121. See also 1937 Lah. 816. Execution of second promissory note in substitution for first—Liability under original loan—Effect on. See 40 C.W.N. 37. "Parties to contract", meaning of. See 63 C. 194. Parties to a contract may stipulate that one or both of them shall have the power to rescind the contract on the happening of some specified contingency. Such a stipulation is to be construed according to its natural meaning, subject to the principle of law that a party shall not take advantage of his own wrong. 24 Bom.L.R. 877=75 I.C. 233 [(1919) A.C. 1, Ref.]. See also 5 Bom.L.R. 617; 41 C. 137; 1925 M. 919; 1925 N. 66; 1925 N. 26; 1925 P. 228. A contract need not be rescinded by an express agreement. If the parties make a new and independent agreement concerning the same matter, the latter may be said to discharge the former especially when the latter is inconsistent with the former. 38 I.C. 278=20 C.W.N. 708; 46 C. 534=23 C.W.N. 704; 43 C. 790=20 C.W.N. 370; 41 C. 35=21 I.C. 217; 17 I.C. 227=16 C. L.J. 271. The expression "parties to a contract" ordinarily signifies parties to an existing contract rather than parties to a contract that has already been discharged by breach. It has no doubt been held that the provisions of S. 62 of the Contract Act do not apply after there has been a breach of the original contract and that if the promisor does not satisfy the promisee under the terms of the new agreement, the promisee is relegated to his rights under the old contract and is entitled to sue on the basis of the old obligation. But it is difficult to apply this principle to a debt, for it is strange if the mere failure to pay an outstanding debt on demand brings the case out of the scope of S. 62. Release from an existing obligation is unquestionably good consideration for a promise to undertake a fresh obligation; and it makes no difference whether the original obligation is an obligation to do something in futuro, or is an obligation to pay a debt already due, or is an obligation to pay compensation for the breach of a contract. Whether the failure to carry out the substituted promise revives the original promise depends on the intention of the parties. It is always open to the parties to make an express stipulation of this nature. The law, however, does not imply any such term. 63 C. 194=40 C.W.N. 808. A composition between a debtor and his creditors operates as satisfaction of the debts and affords an answer to an action by the creditors upon the original liability. 114 I.C. 109=1929 S. 49. A party who relies on a new contract in substitution for the old must prove that it was supported by consideration. 19 I.C. 981=4 P. R. 1914. Creditor taking renewed bill for old debt does not necessarily wipe off the old debt. See 31 C.W.N. 773=102 I.C. 871=1927 C. 538. An agreement to give time for the payment of money due under a pro-note is operative in India; this principle is recognised in Art. 73, Limitation Act. 39 M. 129=30 M.L.J. 51 (F.B.). See also 145 I.C. 476=38 L.W. 533=1933 M. 704; 49 A. 599=1927 A. 451. This is a departure from the English law. 39 M. 129=30 M.L.J. 51 (F.B.). In the case of mere contracts, a repudiation by one party assented to by the other might put an end to the contract. But this principle is, not applicable to rights of property. 20 I.C. 908=1914 M.W.N. 144. Where the contract subsisted and had failed, the cause of action would be the failure of the contract. The settlement that a certain amount of money was payable for the failure is not a new contract. 75 I.C. 440=1923 N. 332. A pro-note containing a promise to pay the debt due under a former pro-note wipes out the old debt and creates a new liability. The Court need not take up the old transaction except where express rules of law make it necessary to do so, e.g., where the debt acknowledged is barred by time so as to exclude the application of S. 19, Limitation Act. 52 A. 169=1929 A. 980. Where a Hindu father executed a promissory note partly in renewal of an obligation incurred before partition and partly because of new advances made after partition, and the promissory note contained a more onerous obligation in respect of interest than what was originally agreed on, held, that the promissory note represented a novation by which there was new liability in the place of the old one. 1930 M. W. N. 658. Mortgage-deed by husband and wife jointly—Second deed by husband alone may constitute novation of the first. 192 I.C. 388=1936 R. 396. If a contract is clear and unambiguous, its true effect cannot be changed merely by the course of conduct adopted by the parties in acting under it. Such conduct, if it is clear and unambiguous, may in certain events raise the inference that the parties have agreed to modify their contract, but short of that, such conduct cannot have the effect of changing the operation of an unambiguous agreement, though it might possibly in special cases support, along with other appropriate evidence, a claim for rectification. 172 I.C. 786=1938 P.C. 26 (P.C.). Where the original schedule of rates, payable to the contractor fixed under a contract between the Railway and the contractor was abandoned with the consent of both the parties and the new enhanced rates proposed to be substituted by the Railway for those rates were not accepted by the contractor, but the contract employing the contractor remained in operation and the contractor did the work for the Railway, which the latter accepted, the amount which the contractor is entitled to recover from the Railway for the work done should be determined on the basis of fair and reasonable rates. 65 I.A. 66=I.L.R. A contract by the purchaser of a property to pay the whole or part of the consideration retained by him for payment to the vendor's creditors can be enforced by the latter, though they were not parties to the contract. 22 C.W.N. 279=36 I.C. 792. The basis of the purchaser's liability is not novation or a substituted contract, but because of the fact that the purchaser is a trustee of the vendor's creditors for the money in his hands to be used for their benefit. 22 C.W.N. 279. Sometimes an agreement may be enforced by a stranger to the contract, that is, in cases of trust, quasi-contracts or near relationship. 22 C.W.N. 279. See also notes under S. 37, supra. Where a debtor has disabled himself from performing his promise under a later contract which had been intended to be a substitute for an earlier one, it is open to the creditor to enforce the earlier contract rescinding the later, and S. 62 is no bar. 66 I.C. 47=2 L. 323. When the terms of a mortgage by conditional sale are altered by mutual consent, there is novation of contract and the original sale clause cannot be enforced. 24 I.C. 684=189 P.L.R. 1914; 29 M.L.J. 125=1915 M.W.N. 408. Where an insufficiently stamped hundi was given in renewal of a prior hundi, the plaintiff could fall back on the prior hundi, 67 I.C. 856=1922 L. 56; 1934 L. 128. Where the contemplated substituted security itself fails the parties could not be taken to have intended that the liability under the original contract would also cease. 10 L.W. 466=54 I.C. 318; 13 I.C. 858=14 Bom.L.R. 26; 26 I.C. 393=16 M.L.T. 489. A pro-note accepted in full satisfaction of a claim debars the plaintiff from bringing a suit on the original claim. 9 I.C. 896; 112 I.C. 719. But see 52 M. 465.

DISPUTE AS TO MONEY DUE—SETTLEMENT OUT OF COURT—CONSIDERATION.—Where there is a dispute between the parties as to the amount really due from the defendants, held, that the settlement of such a dispute without the necessity of going to a Court might form a valid consideration in law. 147 I.C. 1175=1934 L. 163 (1).

ALTERATION OF CONTRACT—LIABILITY OF ORIGINAL PARTY—BURDEN OF PROOF.—Where a contract note relating to the sale and purchase of certain shares was originally drawn up by the appellant who was a sharebroker, in the name of the respondent, but at the latter's request his name was deleted and the name of one H was substituted therefor in the note. Held, that the onus was on the appellant, and it would require very strong evidence, to show that notwithstanding such alteration in the contract note, the respondent remained liable to the appellant in respect of the transactions in the shares. 154 I.C. 1090=68 M.L.J. 530 (P.C.).

SECS. 62 AND 63.—No fresh consideration is necessary for an agreement which falls under the purview of S. 63 of the Contract Act and for the purpose of enforcing it, it is hardly necessary to invoke the aid of S. 62. 123 I.C. 225 (2). See also 131 I.C. 510=1931 R. 189; 146 I.C. 562=1933 L. 464.

SEC. 63.—S. 63 of the Contract Act has nothing to do with the interpretation of S. 92 of the Evidence Act. 1930 A.L.J. 1193=1930 A. 721 (F.B.). The section is intended to apply not to cases where the whole contract has been supplanted by a new one but to cases where the old contract subsists, but there is a voluntary remission of performance of some promise in it, for example, a remission of part of the debt at the time when it becomes payable. S. 63 will not cover a case of a binding promise to dispense with or remit performance in the future unless that waiver is made the subject of a fresh contract, because then S. 92 of the Evidence Act will stand in the way. 54 M. 889=1931 M. 636=61 M.L.J. 556. S. 63 makes a wide departure from the English Law inasmuch as it does not refer to any agreement and valuable consideration. It should not, therefore, be enlarged by any implication of English doctrine. 1. L. R. (1941) 2 Cal. 237=45 C.W.N. 830; 76 C.L.J. 514. For an agreement to remit consideration is necessary; but if the creditor has actually remitted a portion of the debt due to him and not merely promised to remit it, no consideration is necessary. But actual remission is not completed until the creditor accepts the part payment in full satisfaction. 49 L.W. 684=1939 Mad. 688. lation altogether. It is therefore, open to the promisee to remit a portion of the obligation under the section, even though the obligation on the part of the promisor to perform the unremitted part still continues. The section deals with actual remission, as distinguished from an agreement to remit, and in order to produce the legal effect such a remission does not require any support either in the shape of a consideration or of any prior agreement. A future liability can be remitted in praesenti and a remission of such liability will not necessarily require an agreement to remit. 1943 Cal. 181.

Per Pal, J.—(1) An agreement to remit to be enforceable must be supported by consideration. (2) The answer to the question whether the remission or the agreement to remit need be expressed in any particular form in order that it may have the intended legal effect, depends upon the facts of any particular case. The remission of the performance of a promise to pay interest on a promissory note is not required by law to be put in any particular form. I.L.R. Acceptance of performance—Cheque for smaller amount accepted and cashed—Effect of. 20 A.L.J. 717=44 A. 718, S. 63 not applicable where parties stand in the position of decree-holder and judgment-debtor and not in that of promisor and promisee. 24 I.C. 391. No consideration is needed for relinquishment of debt but free assent must be established. If the debt is enforceable, it can also be released under S. 63. It is doubtful, however, whether a lower debt could be discharged by verbal relinquishment. 47 C. 537=24 C.W.N. 335. English law requires consideration to support a release or relinquishment of debt. See 19 M. 398; 20 B. 636; 15 C. 319; 9 M.L.J. 270. See also 34 M. 156. S. 63 does not entitle a promisee for his own purposes and without the consent of the promisor to extend time to his own advantage. There must be an agreement or mutual understanding to waive. 68 I.C. 912=1923 L. 117. See also 30 L.W. 293=1929 M. 794; 116 I.C. 646=1929 N. 137. A promisee is not bound to accept part performance of a contract. 59 I.C. 971=3 L.L.J. 141. A promise to remit rent coupled with conditions is not an absolute promise of remission and the landlord is not estopped from enforcing his rights in full. 26 I.C. 958. This section would include what would be a conditional release in English law. 34 M. 156. See also 1942 Cal. 87. Under S. 63 no consideration is necessary to forego a portion of the rent or debt payable. 25 I.C. 741=16 M.L.T. 184; 122 I.C. 641=53 M. 127=58 M.L.J. 503; 23 S.L.R. 294=114 I.C. 97=1929 S. 153. There is nothing in law to prevent a discharge by acceptance of something in lieu of the performance of the contract. 64 I.C. 461. An agreement to discharge a previous debt in consideration of the prompt receipt of a shorter sum is a valid agreement. 20 I.C. 544. ARRANGEMENT WITH CREDITORS—EFFECT OF.—Under an arrangement with creditors including the plaintiff, to pay them a composition of six annas in the rupee the defendant offered the amount due to the plaintiff firm, but the agent of the plaintiff firm refused to accept believing that the defendant had some other property which he was concealing. It was also proved that several other creditors of the defendant were paid according to the settlement. Held, that the case was fully covered by Ill. (e), S. 63 and that the plaintiff could not be allowed to resile from the agreement made with the defendant. 145 I.C. 801=1933 O. 361. Under S. 63, it is no doubt open to a promisee to remit his claim in whole or in part even without consideration. But when a person who is on the verge of insolvency purports to make a remission the validity of that transaction as against

64. When a person at whose option a contract is voidable rescinds it, the other party thereto need not perform any promise therein contained in which he is promisor. The party rescinding a voidable contract shall, if he have received any benefit thereunder from another party to such contract, restore such benefit, so far as may be, to the person from whom it was received.

the Official Receiver cannot be determined merely with reference to S. 63 of the Contract Act. Where the remission is without consideration it would obviously be inoperative as against the Official Receiver in view of S. 53 of the Provincial Insolvency Act. Standing surety for the debtor in connection with certain loans and joining him in executing a mortgage to his creditor cannot in law amount to consideration so as to validate a remission by a debtor on the verge of insolvency as against the Official Receiver. 1940 M.W.N. 495=1940 Mad. 737. SEC. 64: SCOPE OF SECTION.—See 11 Bom. L.R. 693. Section does not apply to contracts originally known to be void or illegal, 9 B. 358; 15 C.W.N. 408. See also 49 B. 576=88 I.C. 643; 44 L.W. 722=1936 M. 978; 44 C.W.N. 11. The word 'rescinds' as used in S. 64, implies an "express and unequivocal cancellation of the contract". Where a domestic servant employed as sweeper of the house leaves his master without any notice and the master does nothing except engaging another person for doing the work the contract with the former servant is not necessarily rescinded by the master and hence the servant is not entitled to get the pay for the work done. 176 I.C. 526=1938 Rang. 207. The term 'benefits under the contract' extends only to the money paid as consideration and not to the improvements effected by a usufructuary mortgagee, 124 I.C. 731. See also 8 P. 1. "Benefit or advantage"—Meaning of—Money received by a party in partial discharge of the consideration, though it may have been employed for the purpose of carrying out the receiving party's obligation under the contract, is nevertheless a "benefit" refundable under S. 64 on rescission. If a guardian sells his ward's property for purposes not binding and the price is utilized for the purchase of other lands for the ward not contemplated at the time of the sale, the lands so purchased do not constitute the benefit within S. 64 and need not be conveyed to the vendee from the guardian when the ward avoids the sale by the guardian. 42 M. 36=35 M.L.J. 652. SECS. 64 AND 65.—Ss. 64 and 65 do not refer by the words "benefit" and "advantage" to any question of "profit" or "clear profit". Money received by a party under a contract is a benefit or advantage to him even though it has been spent to enable him to perform his part of the contract. 70 I.A. 35=56 L.W. 283=47 C.W.N. 497=A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 34=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 369 (P.C.).

The transfer of Property Act does not provide expressly for the return of a portion of the purchase money paid in pursuance of a contract of sale, when the buyer fails to complete the payment and the sale in consequence falls through. The provisions of the Contract Act, however, apply generally to contracts of sale of immovable property. In cases not falling under S. 74 of the Contract Act, where there is no stipulation that a certain payment shall be “earnest” or penalty, the right of the seller to damages on the failure of the buyer to complete payment would arise under S. 73 or 75 of the Contract Act, and is something quite independent of the amount of any part payment made. Under S. 64, the party rescinding a voidable contract must restore such benefit as he may have received from the other party. If the buyer fails to complete payment, and the seller avoids the contract, he must pay back the buyer the payments made by the buyer, &c., restore the benefit. I.L.R. SEC. 65: SCOPE OF SECTION.—Section is also applicable to contracts under local or special laws. 1929 L. 742=11 L. 121; I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 553. But see 137 I.C. 574=1932 O. 193 (F.B.). S. 65 covers the case of a contract void from its inception as much as one subsequently discovered to be void. 137 I.C. 574=1932 O. 193 (F.B.). I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 294=1944 Nag. 159=1944 N. L.J. 124; 44 L.W. 722=1936 M. 798; I.L.R. (1937) N. 111. See also 39 Bom.L.R. 1124; 1941 Nag. 273; 1941 Pat. 510 also cases under “Discovered to be void”. S. 65 applies also to a case where there is a transfer of property and not a mere agreement. 70 I.A. 1=18 Luck. 130=I.L.R. (1943) Kar. (P.C.) 19=47 C.W.N. 509=A.I.R. 1943 P. C. 29=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 508 (P.C.). S. 65 deals with two matters: (a) an agreement which is discovered to be void and (b) a contract which becomes void. The first matter is concerned with an agreement which never amounted to a contract because it was void ab initio, the fact of its being void being discovered at a later stage. The word used is “agreement” and not contract. The word “discovered” in the first part of the section is used in contradistinction to the word “becomes” in the second part. The word “discovered” connotes the pre-existence of that which is discovered. The second matter deals with a contract (i.e., with an agreement enforceable at law) which was good at its inception and which becomes void at some later stage by reason of some supervening circumstance. What the section says is that if any body receives any advantage under such a contract he is bound to restore it or make compensation for it when the contract becomes void. The advantage must have been received under the contract. As a contract is an agreement enforceable at law, see S. 2 (h), the advantage must have been received under an agreement enforceable at law. If the advantage is received after the agreement ceases to be enforceable at law (i.e.) ceased to be a contract, it cannot be said that it is an advantage received under the contract. The section applies only if the advantage is received before the contract ceases to be a contract by becoming void. If it is received after, the section does not apply. 80 C.L.J. 170. Leases granted by a Municipality, which do not comply with the requirements of S. 69 of the Madras District Municipalities Act are merely agreements which are void ab initio, to which S. 65 of the Contract Act is applicable. The Municipality can therefore maintain a suit against the lessees for damages for use and occupation, though the leases themselves are not enforceable at law. 43 L.W. 39=1936 M. 98. See also 162 I.C. 362=1936 O. 280; 164 I.C. 945=1936 O. 1033; I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 928=1939 Mad. 957=50 L.W. 440. Where a contract of suretyship entered into with a Local Board by a person standing surety for a contractor of lease of fisheries is discovered to be void on account of non-compliance with the formalities of the statute, S. 65 of the Contract Act would apply, where advantage has been received by one or other of the parties and the Court can act on the principle of quantum meruit. But when no advantage has been received, this cannot be done. I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 347=1940 Sind 199. See also 47 L.W. 668; (1942) 2 M.L.J. 364. The criterion which causes the Court to say that it will or will not assist the parties to recover the moneys paid under an unlawful agreement is not whether they have had locus penitentiae before carrying out the purpose of the fraud, but whether it would be contrary to morality and public policy to give the parties assistance in a Court of Law, where the purpose of the fraud has actually been wholly or partially successfully carried

Illustrations.

(a) A pays B 1,000 rupees in consideration of B's promising to marry C, A's daughter. C is dead at the time of the promise. The agreement is void, but B must repay A the 1,000 rupees.

(b) A contracts with B to deliver to him 250 maunds of rice before the first of May. A delivers 130 maunds only before that day, and none after. B retains the 130 maunds after the first of May. He is bound to pay A for them.

(c) A, a singer, contracts with B, the manager of a theatre, to sing at his theatre for two nights in every week during the next two months, and B engages to pay her a hundred rupees for each night's performance. On the sixth night, A wilfully absents herself from the theatre, and B, in consequence, rescinds the contract. B must pay A for the five nights on which she had sung.

(d) A contracts to sing for B at a concert for 1000 rupees, which are paid in advance. A is too ill to sing. A is not bound to make compensation to B for the loss of the profits which B would have made if A had been able to sing, but must refund to B the 1000 rupees paid in advance.

Code, the lender is not obliged to proceed on the personal covenant. He can repudiate or rescind the contract of loan and claim his money back by way of restitution under S. 65 of the Act, if such claim is not barred by limitation. He cannot however claim at one and the same time both under the covenant to repay and also under S. 65 of the Contract Act. The lender cannot be said to have elected to affirm the personal covenant merely by reason of any arguments addressed by him hypothetically or by way of alternative to his main contention in his suit that para. 11 did not touch the transaction. Election to affirm must, if it is to be gathered from action, be gathered from unequivocal acts. 70 I.A. 1=18 Luck. 130=206 I.C. 457=1943 O.W.N. 214=1943 A.L.W. 381=9 B.R. 353=15 R.P.C. 94=1943 A.L.J. 421=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 508 (P.C.). Where the assignee of the mortgagee rights in regard to a mortgage of an occupancy holding, which is prohibited by the Agra Tenancy Act, is ejected, and sues for the recovery of the consideration paid by him, he must be taken to have known that the mortgage was void at the date of the assignment itself and he could not be heard to say that he came to know that the transaction was void at the date of the ejectment. 1944 A.L.W. 244. Where a transfer is set aside under S. 53, T. P. Act, the case is governed by S. 65, Contract Act, and the transferor is bound under S. 65 to restore to the transferee the price that he has received in respect of the transfer. The transferee is not however entitled to recover the money spent in suing the creditors of the transferor, where he himself was a party to the conspiracy to defeat the creditors and was aware of all the facts. 1936 N. 268. See also 44 L.W. 722=1936 M. 978; 11 Mys.L.J. 81; 22 Pat. 334. The words "when a contract becomes void" are sufficient to cover the case of a voidable contract which had been avoided. 59 I.A. 147=62 M.L.J. 451 (P.C.). Where the defendant got possession in pursuance of a contract procured by undue influence and fraud voidable by the plaintiff, if there is no proof of undue delay in bringing his suit, and no difficulty in putting the parties back in status quo ante, the plaintiff is entitled to an account of the rents and profits of the immovable properties—not merely from the date of the institution of the suit—but from the date when defendant got possession, the latter being entitled to credit for all payments made by him to the plaintiff. 59 I.A. 147=7 Luck. 64=1932 P.C. 89=62 M.L.J. 451 (P.C.). When a contract becomes void under S. 65, any person who has received any advantage under the contract is bound to restore it. Where the landlord arranged for the surrender of a holding by a tenant and executed a lease to a third person and made a profit by the transaction, he is bound to restore it to that lessee when he loses possession by reason of the mother of the original tenant moving the Revenue Court and getting placed in possession on the ground that the transaction was in violation of the C. P. Tenancy Act. 1942 N.L.J. 324. See also 1942 All. 409=1942 A. L. J. 390. Where in a suit for recovery of balance, in respect of transactions by the plaintiff with a third person, arrived at after appropriating to the losses arising out of such transactions the defendant's remittances, the defendant counter-claims the amount so appropriated on the ground that the transactions entered by the plaintiff are void, the counter-claim falls to be dealt with as a claim for the restoration of an advantage under S. 65. But as the plaintiff has applied the amount or has become legally liable to meet losses arising from the carrying out of the defendant's instructions, the plaintiff cannot be said to have received an advantage within the meaning of S. 65. The fact, that there was no privity of contract between the defendant and the third person makes no difference, if the plaintiff has incurred the liability to the third person in carrying out the defendant's instructions. 1938 A.L.J. 77=1938 P.C. 4 (P.C.). The principle of restitution embodied in S. 65, in case of a contract found to be invalid, is that of giving relief upon quantum meruit. That, however, is the general rule which does not apply to a case governed by special law. 137 I.C. 574=1932 O. 193 (F.B.). But see also 1929 L. 742=11 L. 121. The maxim in pari delicto, potior est conditio possidentis is not applicable to a case where the parties did not know of the illegality at the time they entered into the contract. So, where the parties effected a lease without the sanction of the Deputy Commissioner without knowing that such sanction was necessary, the lessee is entitled to get back the consideration paid by him. (16 N.L.R. 129 and 32 N.L.R. 136, Dist.; 20 N.L.R. 87, Foll.) 134 I.C. 281=1931 N. 137. See also 1935 L. 401. Where a contract is held to be void a party is not entitled to claim the penalty under the contract. The right to claim relief however on the quantum meruit basis is not necessarily based on an agreement between the parties and if a party is otherwise entitled he should be given the relief. 39 L.W. 508=149 I.C. 503=1934 M. 335. Where in a case of supply of goods the contract is found to be void and S. 65, Contract Act, is found to be applicable, it is the doctrine of "quantum valebat" and not that of "quantum meruit" that must be applied; and where the actual goods cannot be returned, restitution must be fixed at the price at which they were sold by the vendors. 37 L. W. 429=1933 M. 332. See also 45 I.C. 412=1933 M. 105; 152 I.C. 135=1934 N. 248. Where the recitals in a mortgage deed suggest that money is likely to have been applied to pay off business debts and is applied to pay off business debts and not applied in any manner for the benefit of defendants there is no right to relief against the defendants, under S. 65. 44 L.W. 725=1936 M. 495. The Madras District Municipalities Act (IV of 1884) makes provisions in Ss. 45 and 46 concerning only with contracts, but it is silent with regard to any agreement entered into by a Municipal Council. Therefore if a Municipal Council makes an agreement and it is found that such an agreement is not enforceable by law as not having been properly executed the agreement becomes void; but when an agreement is discovered to be void the Municipal Council which is a person in law, who has received any advantage under such an agreement is, under S. 65, Contract Act, bound to restore it. 1934 M. 480=67 M.L.J. 38. See also 1940 A.W.R. VOIDABLE CONTRACT.—A mortgagor who sues for the cancellation of a mortgage must refund the amount paid by the mortgagees under the mortgage. 27 I.C. 130. A rescinded contract becomes a void contract and the person who has received any advantage under it is bound to restore it to the other party. 27 I.C. 130. See also 1933 M. 145.

Where a contract has become unenforceable by reason of the fact that the claim to enforce the contract has become barred by limitation it does not become void so as to attract the provisions of S. 65. A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 171=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 158. S. 65 applies even though the contract was not void ab initio but becomes void subsequently and a suit

S. 65 does not apply to contracts known to be void ab initio by reason of the illegality of the consideration. 27 P.L.R. 1915=27 I.C. 1008; 51 I.C. 412=42 P.R. 1919; 21 I.C. 517; 37 I.C. 285; 27 A.L.J. 801=1929 A. 659. The words "when a contract becomes void" in S. 65 are sufficient to cover the case of a voidable contract which has been avoided. Where, therefore, an occupation tenant has alienated the occupancy tenancy without the consent in writing of the landlord and the alienation has been set aside at the instance of the landlord in a suit brought under S. 60 of the Punjab Tenancy Act, the mortgagee is entitled to sue the mortgagor for refund of the mortgage-money. (59 I.A. 147, Foll.) 36 P.L.R. 233=1934 L. 853 (2) (F. B.). See also 1935 A. 256; 18 Mys.L.J. 246=45 Mys.H.C.R. 132. A contract of sale in contravention of the provisions of the Punjab Alienation of Land Act is not void ab initio, because the vendee can have the defect in his title removed by securing the sanction of the Deputy Commissioner. If he fails to apply for such sanction, or if such sanction is applied for and is refused, the so-called permanent alienation takes effect as a usufructuary mortgage in form (a) permitted by S. 6 for such term as the Deputy Commissioner considers to be reasonable. Where a vendee alleged himself to be a member of an agricultural tribe but was found by the Courts to be a non-agriculturist, the case is covered by S. 65 of the Contract Act, and the vendee can recover the price paid by him to the vendor. 151 I.C. 172=1934 L. 979. Where a lease is void because the term of the lease exceeds the statutory term there is no actual illegal purpose intended or carried into effect and as such the maxim in pari delicto potior est conditio possidentis will not apply, but S. 65 will apply with the result that the lessor will be entitled to get back possession on the lease becoming void at the expiry of the statutory period on payment of compensation to the lessee. 1935 N. 58. as there was no guarantee in the contract against an act of the legislature the plaintiff could not recover the consideration paid. I.L.R. (1943) All. 745=1943 A.L.J. 317=A. I.R. 1943 All. 27. The second part of S. 65, namely "or to make compensation for it" only comes into play when the advantage cannot be restored. Moreover interest on the money paid under void contract would only be payable after the advantage has been refused to be restored. Where therefore a contract of sale by District Board is found to be void for want of sanction of the Commissioner and the money paid under it is repaid to the vendee after the Commissioner had refused his sanction and it is not proved that this money had earned any interest in the hands of the District Board, the vendee is not entitled to any interest from the date when the money had been paid by the vendee to the District Board to the date of institution of suit for damages. Moreover the claim for interest cannot be granted on the ground of negligence on the part of the Board in overlooking the provisions of the law as it is equally the duty of the vendee to know the law. 1939 Lah. 564. S. 65 does not apply where the object of the agreement was illegal to the knowledge of both the parties at the time it was made. It cannot be said that such an agreement is an agreement discovered to be void within the meaning of that section. 43 C.W.N. 260. See also 1938 Nag. 335 (F.B.); 1938 Lah. 721; 1938 Nag. 451; 39 Bom.L.R. 1124; (1940) 1 M.L.J. 547. Where a mortgage is found to be void and unenforceable for want of proper attestation, the mortgagee is entitled to a money-decree for the amount advanced by him. 43 I.C. 266=20 O.C. 306. Although normally the time at which an agreement is discovered to be void within the meaning of S. 65 of the Contract Act is the date of the agreement, there may be special circumstances in which it is so discovered at a later date. Where in a suit to enforce a mortgage hit by the provisions of para. 11, Sch. III, C. P. Code, it was found to be an honest transaction and its invalidity was at the time of its execution obscured by the difficulty in applying the paragraph correctly to the particular facts of the execution proceeding and to the terms of the orders as recorded; and payments of interest were made and received thereunder for ten years. Held, that in the special circumstances of the case, the mortgage was not discovered to be void until after the suit to enforce it was instituted. 70 I.A. 1=18 Luck. 130=I.L.R. (1943) Kar. See 152 I.C. 644=1934 N. 248.

LIMITATION.—In a suit to recover money paid under a void agreement the terminus a quo for purposes of limitation is the date of the agreement that being the time at which (in the absence of special circumstances) the agreement was discovered to be void within the meaning of S. 65 of the Act. 60 I.A. 13=54 A. 1067=64 M.L.J. 403 (P.C.). See also I.L.R. (1942) All. 817=1943 A.L.W. 360=197 I.C. 498. A suit to recover money advanced under S. 65 in respect of a void mortgage has to be brought within some period beginning from the execution of the agreement of mortgage. 1942 A.L.J. 390=A.I.R. 1942 All. 409. When a transfer is void owing to a provision of law, so that a cause of action to recover the consideration under S. 65, arises, time runs, ordinarily, from the date of the agreement. 1938 N.L.J. 409.

ILLEGAL CONTRACT.—The obligation to do justice rests upon all persons natural and artificial and where a corporation receives money or property under an agreement which turns out to be ultra vires or illegal, it cannot retain it. It must either return it or make compensation for it. 43 C. 790=35 I.C. 305=20 C.W.N. 370; 43 C. 115=19 C.W.N. 919; 38 B. 249=23 I.C. 602; 42 A.

MONEY ADVANCED TO PERSON WHOSE ESTATE IS UNDER COURT OF WARDS.—The question whether a contract is void or voidable presupposes the existence of a contract and cannot arise in the case of a person who is disqualified from contracting by any law to which he is subject. S. 65 has no application to such a case in which there never could have been any contract. Where therefore the consideration for a promissory note consists of advances made to a person whose estate is under the superintendence of the Court of Wards and who is consequently incompetent by S. 31, C. P. Court of Wards Act, to enter into any such contract, the contract is an absolute nullity and the creditor is not entitled to recover the advance under S. 65. The fact that a Government ward is incompetent to enter into any contract, rules out any action founded on S. 65. 31 N.L.R. (Supp.) 62=1936 N. 15.

MINOR'S CONTRACT.—S. 65 is not inapplicable to minors; and minors are not excluded from the persons who have to restore benefits in accordance with the section. It is the duty of Courts to protect the interests of minors; but it is no part of their duty to stretch the law to do injustice on behalf of minors nor to let them escape responsibilities which properly and fairly fall upon them. 18 Mys. L. J. 246=45 Mys.H. C.R. 132. Vendee, who was minor at the date of purchase, can recover consideration money, if he is subsequently dispossessed of the property purchased. 35 A. 370=19 I. C. 610. Where persons, who are, in fact, under age by false and fraudulent misrepresentation as to their age, induce others to purchase property from them, they are liable in equity to make restitution to the purchasers of the benefit they had obtained before they could recover possession of the property sold. 1933 A. 371. See also 1937 O.W.N. 1012. S. 65 has no application to a case where there never was or could have been any contract between competent parties, as for instance, where one of the parties to a contract is a minor. 45 B. 225=59 I.C. 245; 35 A. 370=19 I.C. 610; 40 A. 558=48 I.C. 478; 10 L.W. 225=53 I.C. 14; 23 N.L.R. 8=98 I.C. 650=1927 N. 116; 100 I.C. 860=1927 N. 168; 103 I.C. 209=1927 N. 200; I.L. R. (1939) All. 860=1937 A.L.J. 688=1937 All. 610 (F.B.). But see next case. A minor who seeks to recover the property sold by him after cancellation of the sale, must restore the benefit he had received. 24 O.C. 348=64 I.C. 771; 53 I.C. 65=15 N.L. R. 149 (11 O.C. 1, Foll.); 40 A. 558; 8 O.L. J. 287, Ref.). See also 4 Bur.L.J. 197=1926 R. 7; 1937 A.L.J. 688=1937 All. 610; 18 A. 373; 44 B. 175; 45 B. 225. It cannot be said that in every case in which relief is granted to a minor he should be made to return the benefit derived by him from the contract. Nor could it be said that in no case can any person who seeks to avoid a contract entered into by him in his minority be made to pay compensation to the other party. The absence of fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the minor coupled with the fact that the vendee was cognizant of the minority of the person concerned was held to disentitle the vendee in such a case from claiming compensation. 15 Luck. 265=1940 Oudh 119. See also 194 I.C. 824=1941 Pesh. 38. In a suit on a bond, the defendant pleaded and the Court found that the executant was a minor at the time he executed the bond and got the money from the plaintiff. It was also proved that there had been no fraudulent misrepresentation by the defendant as to his age. Held, that plaintiff could not claim restitution under S. 65 of the Contract Act; nor could he get any compensation under S. 41, Specific Relief Act. 61 C. 1075=1935 C. 198. (See Notes under S. 11, supra.) S. 65 cannot be availed of and does not apply to a case in which there never was and never could have been a contract. Nor can the transaction be upheld under S. 43, T. P. Act. S. 43, which is based on the principle of estoppel cannot apply to the case, as estoppel cannot be pleaded against a statute so as to prejudice a minor who enjoys the protection of the law. I.L.R. (1937) All. 860=1937 A.L.J. 688=1937 All. 610 (F.B.).

ABKARI LICENCE.—Some persons entered into a contract under which each of them was to advance a certain sum of money to the first defendant, who was to bid at an abkari sale to be held, and as consideration for the money paid by them they were to share in the business which the first defendant was to bid for. The first defendant did bid and obtained the business and it was alleged he also made profits. The plaintiffs brought a suit for the dissolution of partnership and accounts. Held, that on no ground could the plaintiffs, to any extent, succeed, as the contract was illegal and could not be sued upon. It makes no difference if the contract had been entered into before the auction and not subsequently. 57 L.W. 325=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 415=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 434.

MONEY PAID IN CONSIDERATION OF MARRIAGE.—Money paid in consideration of a marriage between a bride and a bridegroom of disparate ages, and not on account of expenses can be recovered under S. 65 if the marriage does not in fact take place, although the agreement under which the money is paid is void under S. 23 of the Act. S. 65 makes no distinction between agreement void ab initio and subsequently discovered to be void. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 535=1944 N.L.J. 124=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 159.

CONTRACT WITH LUNATIC.—S. 65 cannot bind a party to a contract with a person of unsound mind. Such contract being void, no refund of money paid to unsound person can be claimed. 41 P.R. 1912=15 I.C. 404; 32 I.C. 804. (See Notes under S. 12.)

TRUST PROPERTY.—Where an alienation made by the shehais of a deity is held to be void, and the alienee has spent large sums of money in carrying on litigation against those persons who were in illegal occupation of the debutler estate, and spent money for repairs of the temples and for carrying on deb-sheha which was neglected by the shehais, the plaintiff before he can recover the properties on behalf of the deity must compensate the alienee for all the expenses which he has legitimately incurred. 45 C.W.N. 665.

INSOLVENTS.—Where a mortgage effected by the receiver of the insolvent's property is set aside by the District Judge, and the adjudication is annulled, the mortgagee, in a suit by the mortgagor for possession, is entitled to remain in possession until he is repaid by the mortgagor the sum advanced on the security of the land. 1935 L. 112. See also 44 L.W. 722=1936 M. 798. (Fraudulent preference). 58 M. 702=69 M.L.J. 360.

SECS. 65 AND 70.—S. 65 proceeds on the basis of there having been a contract. S. 70 on the other hand does not require a contract to exist for its application. I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 782=39 Bom.L.R. 835=1937 Bom. 417. Where a lessee under an instrument not satisfying the requirements of S. 107, T. P. Act, spent money on putting up a shed and chabutra without giving notice to the lessor or obtaining her consent as he should have done under Cls. (f) and (p) of S. 108, T. P. Act, it was held that he was not entitled to reimbursement as S. 65 of Contract Act would not apply to the agreement since it was not void and that S. 70, Contract Act, also would not apply as the requirements of Cls. (f) and (p) of S. 108, T. P. Act, were not complied with. 1941 O.A. 1050=17 Luck. 530=1941 O.W.N. 1395=1942 Oudh 231.

Sec. 65, ILL. (d) is a departure from the English law. See 44 C.W.N. 11.

Sec. 66.—Where one party shows by acts and conduct amounting to a clear renunciation or absolute refusal to perform the contract, the other party will be justified in regarding himself as discharged from all continued liability under the contract. 43 C. 790=20 C.W.N. 370. See also notes under Ss. 3 and 5 supra.

Effect of neglect of promisee to afford promisor reasonable facilities for performance.

OF CERTAIN RELATIONS RESEMBLING THOSE CREATED BY CONTRACT.

168. If a person incapable of entering into a contract, or any one whom he is legally bound to support is supplied by another person with necessaries suited to his condition in life, the person who has furnished such supplies is entitled to be reimbursed from the property of such incapable person.

SEC. 67.—Where the defendants had practically repudiated the terms of the contract it is not necessary that any actual tender of money should have been made to them and it is sufficient for the plaintiffs to show their readiness to pay the money. 1923 L. 56.

SEC. 68.—See 156 I.C. 710. Supply of excessively costly articles though of real use, and objects of mere luxury are not necessaries. 36 C. 768. The term 'necessaries' is not confined to goods. It can include other things such as good teaching and instruction whereby the minor may profit himself afterwards, and also money to enable him to obtain these necessaries. For example, the term includes costs incurred in defending a suit to save the minor's property and to defend him in a criminal prosecution; so also reasonable marriage expenses of a minor himself or a sister or other co-parceners and such religious ceremonies as the minor would have had to perform if he had been an adult. (Case-law referred). 175 I.C. 149=1938 Nag. 65. See also 45 Mys.H.C.R. 403. Word "necessaries" in S. 68 includes money urgently needed for the requirements of a minor and cannot be restricted to what is necessary for elementary requirements of minors such as food and clothing. 1930 A.L.J. 347=123 I.C. 827=1930 A. 128. To a claim under S. 68 for the price of necessaries supplied to a Ward of Court. S. 37 of the Court of Wards Act is no bar. But a supplier of goods which are necessaries must take care to see that he is really protected by S. 68. A claim for an amount in respect of necessaries, very disproportionate to the allowance granted to the ward could not be recovered. 204 I.C. 38=1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 343 (2)=1942 O.W.N.

560=1942 O.A. 507=1943 Oudh 119. Cloth supplied to a minor and cash lent to him to effect necessary repairs in his house are "necessaries" within the meaning of S. 68. 1936 N. 12. S. 68 refers to a person who supplies a minor with necessaries suited to his condition in life. It does not validate a mortgage executed by a guardian of the ward's properties. 11 R. 193=146 I.C. 922=1933 R. 83. If a loan is taken by a guardian on behalf of a minor for the purpose of some necessity or for the benefit of the minor's estate, the minor's estate is liable. (49 A. 52, followed.) 1936 A. L. J. 155=1936 A. 172. Where the de facto guardian of a minor executed simple money bonds and borrowed money to meet the expenses of the marriage of the minor's sister, whom the minor was under his personal law bound to maintain. Held, that the minor's estate was not liable on the contract executed by the guardian but that the amount may be recovered from the minor's estate as money expended on necessaries under S. 68 of the Act. (32 A. 325, Foll.; 42 M. 185, Ref.; 18 N.L.R. 119, Doubtful.) 145 I.C. 350=1933 N. 285. Where the properties of a minor are threatened to be attached and there is imminent danger of the same being sold for revenue, if a creditor realising the difficulties the minor was in, advances money which is utilised to avert the danger the creditor advancing money is entitled to be reimbursed from the property of minor. 1930 A.L.J. 347=1930 A. 128. As to proof of necessities, see 101 I.C. 702=1927 L. 414. A guardian cannot impose a personal liability on his ward and a minor cannot be bound by a personal covenant in a contract by his guardian. The minor's personal law may, however, affect the position. S. 68 of the Contract Act allows a person who has supplied a minor with necessaries such as maintenance and litigation expenses to reimburse himself from the minor's property; and he can also claim interest on equitable grounds; and a fair rate would be the Court rate of 6 per cent. per annum. 1940 Mad. 106=I. case where a creditor seeks to make the estate of the minor liable for advance made for necessaries, mere bona fide enquiry by the creditor into the existence of the necessity and advance in good faith thereafter will not suffice, but the creditor should not be required to prove actual application of the money. To require this of the creditor is to ask him to do the impossible. The creditor is required to prove the circumstances of the minor's estate, the absence of any other source from which the necessity could be met at the time of transaction and the suitability of the necessity having regard to the social status and the condition in life of the minor. 175 I. C. 494=1938 Nag. 68. During the lifetime of his father, money borrowed by a person incapable of entering into a contract, to pay for the Sradh of his mother, is not necessity. 32 I.C. 937. Money spent on the obsequies of the father of the minor cannot be deemed to be necessaries supplied to the minor within the meaning of S. 68 of the Act and an acknowledgment by the mother, as the guardian, of a debt borrowed for the above purposes is not binding on the minor. 10 O.W.N. 188=1933 O. 132. Discharge of decree-debt by stranger as owner of property of the deceased, while deceased's minor sons were living would not avail the stranger. 1925 A. 213. Costs of defending minor in civil and criminal cases are necessaries. 21 C. 872; 7 C. 140; 17 M. 257. It is one thing to lay down set of rules with respect to a transaction which denudes a minor of his property, or a part of it, and quite another to determine whether money and articles supplied to him which add to his property or to his convenience and comfort are necessaries or benefits within the meaning of S. 68. The test of 'fair and proper' can be applied in both cases, but the standard must necessarily differ for what is fair and proper in the shape of benefits conferred or comforts supplied, may not be fair and proper in the case of an alienation. One important point of distinction between the two classes of cases is this: in the case of an alienation where necessity is alleged, enquiries made in good faith protect the transferee, whereas in the case of necessaries such considerations are irrelevant. Then again an alienation by a minor would be void whatever the purpose for which it was made, but in the case of necessaries supplied to him it is immaterial whether the order comes from him or from his guardian, in both the cases the test is precisely the same: the suitability of the goods supplied, or the benefits conferred, having regard to the social status and condition in life of the minor, and to his actual requirements at the time of the transaction. 175 I.C. 149=1938 Nag. 65. Neither the property nor the person of a ward under Court of Wards is liable for necessaries. 61 I.C. 563=17 N.L.R. 20. When a guardian borrows money for the necessaries of a minor in such circumstances as to give him a right to be reimbursed from the latter's estate, his creditor may be subrogated to the guardian's rights. 56 I.C. 740. See also 31 Punj.L.R. 471. Under Hindu Law a minor is under an obligation to provide for the marriage expenses of his sister and such a provision is necessary within the meaning of S. 68, but the money cannot be recovered unless the money is spent and constitutes a 'debt'. 61 I.C. 278=8 O.L.J. 94. See also 145 I.C. 350=1933 N. 285. A covenant by the guardian of a Hindu minor to sell immovable property of the minor cannot be enforced against him, although if a conveyance had been executed by the guardian the vendee would have obtained a valid title to the property on account of pressing necessity for such a sale. Earnest money paid by the vendee to the guardian is not recoverable from the minor or his estate. Such money is paid as a guarantee or security for the performance of the contract which in law is no contract at all. It cannot be regarded as having been paid to the guardian for necessaries or benefit of the minor. S. 68 of the Contract Act does not apply, and the vendee cannot therefore recover it under S. 68 or under Hindu Law as having been paid for the benefit of the minor's estate. I.L.R. B holds land in Bengal, on a lease granted by A, the zamindar. The revenue payable by A to the Government being in arrear, his land is advertised for sale by the Government. Under the revenue law, the consequence of such sale will be the annulment of B's lease. B, to prevent the sale and the consequent annulment of his own lease, pays to the Government the sum due from A. A is bound to make good to B the amount so paid.

CLAIM ARISING UNDER S. 68—REIMBURSEMENT—EXTENT OF RIGHT.—Where a claim does not arise out of contract at all but under the special provisions of S. 68, the plaintiff is only entitled to reimbursement out of the minor's estate and nothing more and he cannot claim any interest on the amount claimed. 1936 N. 12.

BURDEN OF PROOF.—To succeed in a suit for reimbursement for 'necessaries' supplied to a minor, not only must it be shown that the articles supplied are necessaries in the sense they are things ordinarily required by the minor in question but that they were actually necessary at the date when they were supplied. There is a prima facie burden upon the plaintiff to show this much at least that he did make inquiries in order to ascertain whether the minor, had an actual necessity of being supplied with the goods at the time when they were supplied. 1943 A.L.W. 303. In the case of necessities supplied to an infant, the onus of proof lies on the creditor. He has to show first that goods or the money which represents them are suitable to the condition in life of the infant and secondly that they are suitable to his actual requirements at the time; or in other words that the infant has not got a supply from other sources. 175 I.C. 149=1938 Nag. 65. Under S. 68, it must be shown not only that the moneys were to be expended on goods suitable to the condition in life of the infant but also that they were suitable to her actual requirements at the time of sale and delivery. As any one who supplied necessities to an infant is in the position of a legal creditor, so any one who advances money to an infant for the purpose of procuring necessities is entitled to stand in the position of a legal creditor. 1938 Rang. 359.

SEC. 69: APPLICABILITY.—S. 69 applies where a person has paid money which another is bound by law to pay. It is obvious that the section cannot apply unless the obligation of the other to pay was in existence at the date when the payment in respect of which the suit is laid was made. It is further necessary that the plaintiff must be interested in the payment of money, and this interest must be in order to avert some loss or to protect some interest which would otherwise be lost to him. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 820=1945 N.L.J. 563. Under S. 69, two elements must exist in order to entitle a person to claim reimbursement, viz., (1) he must on the date, on which he made the payment, have been interested in the payment of the money; (2) the person from whom reimbursement is sought must have been bound by law to pay it. The law of India does not recognise equitable estates. Unless the conditions are satisfied, S. 69 cannot apply. Unless the party making the payment has a contract to pay, or interest present, future or contingent a payment by him can only be regarded as a voluntary payment. 46 Bom. L. R. 822=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 187.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—Contribution means payment by each of the parties interested, of his share in any common liability. 24 I.C. 259=18 C.W.N. 1308. See also 1933 Oudh 478; 61 C. 510=59 C.L.J. 423=1934 C. 709. "Interested" does not mean only persons with real interest. 1925 P. 201; 1925 P. 737=1925 P.H.C.C. 236; 26 A.L.J. 435; 113 I.C. 441. See also 1927 M. 1060. There is no reason why a person legally bound to pay should be held to be not a person who is interested in the payment. As between a defaulting landholder and his mortgagee, the former is personally bound to pay and this initial liability does not cease because to protect his security, the mortgagee pays off the arrears. 178 I.C. 485=1938 Nag. 459. Mortgagee paying Government revenue on mortgaged land can recover it from the mortgagor. 144 I.C. 392=1933 R. 112. See also 1936 Rang. 47; 16 Mys.L.J. 399=43 Mys.H.C.R. 557 (Hindu reversioner paying Government Revenue for protection of estate). The words "interested in the payment of money which another is bound by law to pay" might include the apprehension of any kind of loss or inconvenience or any detriment at any rate capable of being assessed in money. Thus where an insolvent fraudulently transfers his land and during annulment proceedings by the receiver, the creditor pays the land revenue to avoid sale, the creditor is a person interested in payment of such money. (1914 Cal. 338, Foll.) 1937 Rang. 350. The words "a person who is interested" do not mean that the person who makes the payment must prove that he had such an interest as would stand the test of a judicial trial. All that is necessary for a person making a payment to recover it is that he should really and honestly believe that he must make the payment in his own interest. 54 A. 140=136 I.C. 66=1932 A.L.J. 63=1932 A. 332. Where a person in possession of an estate, in good faith, pending litigation makes the necessary payments for the preservation of the estate in dispute and the estate is afterwards adjudged to his opponent, he should be recouped what he has so paid by the person who ultimately benefits by the payment, if he has failed through no fault of his own to reimburse himself out of the rents. The case of Government revenue would stand on quite a different footing from other outgoings incurred by the person in possession of an estate without title and it would be open to him to maintain an action for the recovery of the amount paid. It may also be open to him to set-off the amount in a suit for damages or mesne profits against him; what could be set off can always be claimed in an independent suit, and the fact that a set-off was not claimed against a demand in a prior suit would not preclude the claim being agitated in an independent action. 54 L.W. 286=1941 Mad. 847=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 866. A person asserting claim may pay to avert sale in execution and may get reimbursed by the true owner though he could not make good his claim. 29 C.W.N. 1052=43 C.L.J. 83=1925 C. 1097. As to right of benamidar setting aside Court sale in assertion of adverse title, see 85 I.C. 855=1925 M. 95=47 M.L.J. 622. A suit for contribution is a suit brought by one of several co-sharers who has discharged the liability to compel others to make good their shares. Mutuality is the test of contribution. 24 I.C. 259=18 C.W.N. 1308 (17 I.C. 45; 13 I.C. 144, Rel. on). Where a person on whom there was no longer any obligation to pay as surety, as subsequently discovered, had been erroneously made to pay in execution, by coercive process, the decretal debt due by another a claim by the former against the latter under S. 69 of the Contract Act for reimbursement would be quite legal and valid. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 638=1944 N.L.J. 433=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 282. Where a rent suit filed against two defendants is dismissed as against one and decreed as against the other, and another person interested in the payment of the decretal amount satisfies the decree, such person is not disentitled by the mere fact of the dismissal of the suit against one of the defendant from claiming reimbursement from him also, if he is otherwise entitled. 48 C.W.N. 454=A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 272. Where in execution of a mortgage decree against two persons, the properties belonging to them were sold and one of the judgment-debtors deposited the entire decretal amount under O. 21, R. 89, C. P. Code, to set aside the sale, he is entitled to contribution from the other in respect of the latter's share of the properties. 10 P. 528=134 I.C. 139=1931 P. 394. He is not entitled to contribution in respect of the compensation to the auction-purchaser under O. 21, R. 89, C. P. Code. 10 P. 528; 53 L.W. 644=1941 Mad. 635=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 793. S. 69 only applies to cases in which the person who makes the payment of money is himself not liable to pay. 17 I.C. 45=16 C.L.J. 143; 9 I.C. 489=15 C.W.N. 404; 15 C.W.N. 332=9 I.C. 219; 31 C.W.N. 630=103 I.C. 120=1927 C. 518. A purchaser of property subject to a charge, is alone liable to pay it and hence he is not entitled under S. 69 to recover the amount paid by him from the person who might originally have been liable in respect thereof, either alone or along with the person who has made the payment. Purchaser in execution of property subject to mortgage paying off mortgage—Real owner of property establishing his title and recovering property from the auction-purchaser—Right of the latter to recover money paid to the mortgagee either from him or from the real owner. 56 L.W. 596=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 513. Ss. 69 and 70 of the Contract Act do not apply to claims for contribution under S. 82 of the T. P. Act. 32 M.L.J. 347=39 I.C. 405. Where crops on a portion of the land in the possession of a tenant are attached by Government for rent due by him for another plot and both the plots are in one patta, the tenant is entitled to pay off the dues and claim to be reimbursed from the landlord notwithstanding the illegality of the attachment. 33 I.C. 234=1915 M.W.N. 643; 39 M. 965=30 M.L.J. 369. A person who owns one of two lands on both of which Government revenue was jointly assessed and pays the whole revenue is entitled to claim contribution for the proportionate sum due from the other land. Neither S. 69 nor S. 70 is applicable. 28 I.C. 456; 33 I.C. 234=1915 M.W.N. 643. See also 144 I.C. 392=1933 R. 112; 223 I.C. 282. The section contemplates only a personal liability and does not refer to any lien or charge on any property. 26 M.L.J. 74=22 I.C. 253; 18 I.C. 247=25 M.L.J. 312. See also 54 A. 140=136 I.C. 69=1933 A. 332. S. 69 is intended to include the cases not only of personal liability, but all liabilities to payments for which owners of lands are indirectly liable, those liabilities being imposed upon the land held by them. It is not a correct view to take that the section is restricted only to a case of personal liability. 1940 All. 104=1939 A. W.R. (H.C.) 885. A Hindu reversioner who pays off a mortgage decree against the estate in the hands of a widow is entitled under S. 69 to be reimbursed by the widow in respect of the money which the latter was bound by law to pay. 35 M. 426=22 M.L.J. 364. See also 1928 M.W.N. 398. Where trustee of a temple borrowed money for the temple, he must be indemnified from the trust estate. 12 I.C. 335. S. 69 contemplates cases where one person is bound to pay money to a third person and another person is interested in such payment; it has no application where the person is bound to pay directly to the person who has incurred the expenses. This interest referred to in S. 69 is a pecuniary one. 35 M. 738=21 M.L.J. 600. See also 1923 N. 53; 63 C.L.J. 287=40 C.W.N. 1037. BONA FIDES.—Payment by a person without title and without possession but expecting to get title in a pending litigation does not entitle him to take advantage of Ss. 69 and 70. 2 Pat.L.J. 676=42 I.C. 839. (1930) 2 Cal. 226=43 C.W.N. 831. The phrase "bound by law to pay" in S. 69 of the Contract Act not only includes personal liability of the "other" but also liability on his property even when he was under no personal liability to pay. 48 C.W.N. 454=A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 272. See also 223 I.C. 282. The liability for which payment may be made under S. 69, need not be statutory. A contractual liability by the defendant to pay the amount which the plaintiff with a view to protect his own interest has to pay would entitle the plaintiff to be reimbursed by defendant for the amount paid by him. Any person substituted to the position of the defendant would also be equally liable. 1940 A.L.J. 320=1940 All. 214. The section includes cases not only of personal liability but all liabilities to payment of which owners of land are indirectly held liable. 138 I.C. 137=1932 O. 222. The section does not authorize a person who made a payment to protect his own interest from recovering it from the person on whose behalf he ostensibly paid it, unless the latter was bound in law to pay the money. 3 Pat. INTERESTED IN PAYMENT.—The words "interested in the payment of money" used in S. 69 do not mean that the interest should be such as would stand the test of a judicial trial. It is sufficient if the person who makes the payment honestly believes that his own interest requires that it should be made, even though that belief is not quite sound in law. I.L.R. SECS. 69 AND 70.—Ss. 69 and 70 of the Contract Act are applicable even as between co-owners and the fact that plaintiff also benefits by the payment made by him is no bar to his claiming reimbursement. 71 M. L.J. 1 (Supp.)=44 L.W. 214=1936 M. 752. Ss. 69 and 70 deal with entirely different conditions and they cannot both apply to the same set of facts. If one applies, the other cannot. Further more, they deal not with contribution but with reimbursement. If a plaintiff can make out a case under either of these sections, he is entitled to recover the whole of the money spent and not merely a part of it. Neither of these sections can have any application when a man pays a debt for which he himself is personally liable. 49 C.W.N. 711. A payment made by a person who puts forward a bona fide claim to property in dispute is entitled to the protection afforded by S. 69, even though it ultimately transpires as a result of litigation that he had not in law or in fact the interest for the protection of which the payment was made by him. A payment in satisfaction of a decree by a person who is a party to a decree is a payment lawfully made within the meaning of S. 70. The principle underlying these sections would also apply to the case of a person who advances money to the person making the payment in such circumstances. The basis of the doctrine is that if a person has received some property or benefit from another, it is just that he should make restitution as otherwise he would be unjustly enriched at the expense of the other. This is, however, always subject to the limitation that a man cannot make another liable for a benefit done officiously. 48 Mys. H. C. R. 534=22 Mys. L. J. 150. Where a person, not personally bound by a maintenance decree, is only impleaded because he held a mortgage upon the property charged by the decree, he is not legally bound to pay the decretal amount within the meaning of S. 69. Other judgment-debtors are however legally bound under the decree. By the payment therefore of the decretal amount, such person obtains a right under S. 69 to be reimbursed by the other judgment-debtors. Even if he may not acquire a right under S. 69 he acquires a right under S. 70. The judgment-debtors are therefore liable to the mortgagee's claim for contribution under Ss. 69 and 70. A person's right under Ss. 69 and 70 can be kept separate from his rights of subrogation under S. 92 and the right of contribution which is a personal one. 30 N.L.R. 148=148 I.C. 815=1934 Nag. 84. See also 1935 L. 981. S. 69 of the Act applies to suits for contribution where both the plaintiff and the defendant are equally liable for the money paid by the plaintiff, and the fact that a decree for costs against the plaintiff, and defendant makes them jointly and severally liable does not render S. 69 inapplicable to a suit by the plaintiff for contribution in respect of payment made by him under the decree. Even if a matter does not come under S. 69, it can come under the wider language of S. 70 of the Act; there is no distinction between a case where execution is proceeded with by attachment and sale of the properties of the plaintiffs and one where execution has been arrested because the plaintiffs have paid the money. If the defendants have got the benefit of the payment made by the plaintiffs they are liable to contribute. 61 C. 864=38 C.W.N. 758=1934 C. 609. The plaintiff who had purchased some Zamindari shares of the defendant paid revenue for a period dating prior to the sale and terminating after that date. SEC. 70: SCOPE OF SECTION.—Section 70 of the Contract Act must be interpreted according to its clear and explicit terms and not in reference to the provisions of the English law relating to the matter. The section is much wider than the English Law and goes far beyond it. 33 Cal. 377; 120 I.C. 615=1930 L. 364. See also 1936 M. 930. Where there is an express contract S. 70 does not apply. 62 C. 612=39 C.W.N. 461; 32 I.C. 511. See also 13 L. 561=140 I.C. 621. J. 155. S. 70 provides for a case where (1) a person lawfully does anything for another person or delivers anything to him, (2) the lawful act or delivery is not intended to be done gratuitously, and (3) the other person enjoys the benefit thereof. If these three conditions are fulfilled, the section applies and the latter person is bound to make compensation to the former in respect of, or to restore, the thing so done or delivered. The compensation to be made is in respect of the benefit enjoyed by the second person. I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 782=39 Bom.L.R. 835=1937 Bom. 417. The question whether compensation (remuneration for services rendered) should or should not be awarded must depend upon the intention of the person at the time of his doing the thing for which he demands the compensation. He is obviously the person to state what his intention was. Where it is clear that he was under the impression that he would receive remuneration for the services, it cannot be predicated that he intended to act gratuitously and so he is entitled to claim reasonable compensation. 45 L.W. 355=41 C.W.N. 672=39 Bom.L.R. 720=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 719 (P.C.). Compensation for use and occupation which is described sometimes as fair rent or occupation rent which in English Law is looked upon as based on implied contract cannot be so viewed in India inasmuch as the Contract Act does not speak of it in Ch. It is not necessary under the section that the defendant must have an option before the benefit is conferred of accepting or declining it. 38 M. 235=25

ENJOYING BENEFIT.—Plaintiff is not entitled to compensation under sec. 70, where payment was not made by him for defendant's benefit or with his knowledge or consent. 40 B. 646=35 I.C. 794; 75 I.C. 624=1923 A. 404 (2); 62 I.C. 615=25 C.W.N. 813; 53 I.C. 90=30 O.L.J. 34; 1931 M. 51; 141 I.C. 68=1933 L. 95; 58 L.W. 338=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 155. The word "enjoys" should not be construed as meaning "accepts and enjoys." Two conditions are essential for establishing a liability to contribution under sec. 70: (i) The work must have been done in part at least for the benefit of the defendant. It is not enough that it has in fact resulted in benefit to the defendant. (ii) The defendant should have had after the execution of the work an opportunity or option of accepting or rejecting the benefit. 1931 M.W.N. 1231=34 L.W. 859; 1936 M.W.N. 761=44 L.W. 518=1936 M. 930; 16 Pat.L.T. 649=158 I.C. 25; 148 I.C. 1052=1934 O. 307. To sustain a claim under sec. 70, the person benefited should have had an opportunity of accepting or rejecting a benefit. So, where a co-owner, whose interest was the same as that of the co-owner defendants, produced evidence, engaged counsel and succeeded in defeating the plaintiff and, incidentally and without any special effort on his part, the other defendants derived advantage, it cannot be said that the contesting co-owner had done something for the benefit of the others for which they would be bound in law or equity to make a proportionate reimbursement. 141 I.C. 68=34 P.L.R. 28=1933 L. 95. See also 34 I.C. 54. It is not in every case in which a man has benefited by the money of another, that an obligation to repay that money arises. The question is not to be determined by nice considerations of what may be fair or proper according to the highest morality. To support such a suit there must be an obligation, express or implied, to repay. (2 I.A. 131, Ref.) 11 O.W.N. 606=

1934 O. 307. In a suit for compensation where the sole or dominant motive for the payment is not to save another man's property, the payment cannot be said to have been made for such other man and compensation under sec. 70 cannot be given. Purchaser of the share of one co-sharer is a person benefited by payment of the amount of the decree for arrears of rent, he obtained against all the co-sharers, though the rent sued for relates to a period prior to the purchase. 30 C.W.N. 366=94 I.C. 159=1926 C. 657. See also 148 I.C. 1052=1934 O. 307. Where a person is bound to do an act or would do an act, whether another consents to it, or not, the former cannot claim contribution even though the latter derives benefit in consequence of the act. 43 M.L.J. 271=1923 M. 64 (45 I.C. 786; 21 C. 496; 33 M. 15; 16 M.L.T. 375 Foll.). Under sec. 70 it is sufficient if the payment is lawful and not intended to be gratuitous, i.e., it should be a bona fide payment. It is not necessary that the payer should be interested in paying the money as in sec. 69. 51 I.C. 857=9 L.W. 435. See also 38 C.W.N. 554=1934 C. 667. A person who claims compensation under sec. 70 need not have acted from purely disinterested motives because the very expression "not intending to do so gratuitously" suggests that there must be an element of self-interest also in the act performed by him. 10 P. 528=134 I.C. 139=1931 P. 394. Where a creditor lends money to an executor even if it be for a purpose sanctioned by the will, he has no right in a suit to recover the debt to enforce his claim against the estate itself and sec. 70 cannot be invoked for that purpose. 35 C.W.N. 850=59 C. 216. Where the plaintiff and the defendant were co-sharers in the properties sold in execution and the plaintiff deposited the entire decree amount to redeem the properties, he must be deemed to have acted 'for' the defendant also so as to be entitled to contribution. 10 P. 528=1931 P. 394. Where the Government effects repairs to an irrigation tank owned by the Government jointly with a shrotriendiar and sues the latter (co-owner) for contribution in respect of the expenses incurred for the repairs, it must be held that the Government in carrying out the repairs has acted lawfully and has not intended to carry them out gratuitously, and that the defendant co-owner, who has enjoyed the benefit of the repairs which were necessary and but for which his lands would have suffered is liable to pay contribution to the Government. All the conditions of sec. 70 of the Contract Act having been fulfilled, the Government would be entitled to recover contribution. Though under the English law, the defendant would not be liable, the provisions of sec. 70 of the Indian Contract Act are wider than the English law, and therefore the defendant is liable under sec. 70. 1943 M. W.N. 6=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 800 (F.B.)=1943 Mad. 85.

COMPENSATION—BASIS OF.—The basis of compensation under sec. 70 would plainly not be the same as on contractual rights. Under sec. 70, it would be in proportion to the benefit enjoyed by the party bound, and appropriate compensation is to be awarded mainly from that aspect. I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 782=39 Bom.L.R. 835=1937 Bom. 417.

MINOR—LIABILITY OF.—Sec. 73 of the Contract Act does not apply to a minor. In the circumstances set out in sec. 70, the law implies a promise to pay. A minor who is incompetent to contract, cannot be made liable on such a contract. An implied contract is nothing more than a promise which is inferred from certain circumstances. The basis of a suit under sec. 70 is a contractual one and consequently a minor cannot be sued under sec. 70. A liability which cannot be imposed by an express contract cannot be imposed under an implied contract. 19 Pat. 739=21 P.L.T. 587=1940 Pat. 324 (F.B.).

CONTRACT WITH MUNICIPALITY.—contract for delivery of goods was made with the plaintiff by or on behalf of the Municipal Committee which not being in writing under seal was not binding on the Municipal Committee under sec. 47, Punjab Municipal Act. Plaintiff who delivered the goods to the Committee claimed the price thereof and the committee resisted the claim on the ground that the plaintiff was entitled to the return of the goods only and not its price. The Municipal Committee also resisted the plaintiff's claim for amendment of the plaint by inserting a relief for the return of goods under sec. 70, Contract Act. Held, that as the Committee resisted the plaintiff's claim to amend the plaint by inserting a relief for the return of the goods, it was not open to the Committee to say that the plaintiff was entitled to a return of the goods only and not for recovery of its price. 145 I.C. 687=1933 L. 14. See also 13 L. 54=140 I.C. 621. Sec. 70 contains a provision for finding a person to make compensation under conditions which do not postulate a contract. The applicability of the section cannot be excluded by the fact that there is no enforceable contract, e.g., that there is no contract binding on a Municipality by reason of the requirements of the Municipal Boroughs Act not having been followed. Sec. 70 does not depend upon the existence of a contract binding on the parties and does not provide for contractual liabilities. I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 782=39 Bom. L.R. 385=1937 Bom. 417. He is obviously the person to state what his intention was. Where it is clear that he was under the impression that he would receive remuneration for the services, it cannot be predicated that he intended to act gratuitously and so he is entitled to claim reasonable compensation. 167 I.C. 5=45 L. Where by the terms of a contract, the person agrees that he is not entitled to any remuneration unless the work has been check-measured, he cannot claim for any work which has not been check-measured. There is no room for any implied contract, where there is an express contract in existence, and in such a case the principle of quantum meruit cannot be applied. 54 L.W. 342=1941 Mad. 887=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 469. 'LAWFULLY'.—The word 'lawfully' means merely 'bona fide.' 9 Mys.L.J. 364. The word 'lawfully' as used in sec. 70 of the Contract Act is of the very essence of the section, and in every case we have to find out whether the person making a payment of money had any lawful interest in making it at the time when the payment was made. If a person holding a charge on a property makes a payment in order to save it from being sold bona fide believing that it is necessary to do so in order that it may remain intact for satisfaction of his debt the payment is made 'lawfully' within the meaning of the section. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 247=1945 N.L.J. 98=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 179.

Sec. 70 of the Contract Act applies when a person lawfully does something for another, not intending to do so gratuitously. The section must not be read so as to justify the officious interference of one man with the affairs or property of another man, or to impose obligations in respect of services which the person sought to be charged did not wish to have rendered. The word 'lawful' in the section contemplates cases in which a person holds such a relation to another as either directly to create, or by implication reasonably to justify an inference that by some act done for another person the party doing the act is entitled to look for compensation for it to the person for whom it is done. It is impossible to hold that when a person divests himself of all interest in property and gifts it to another and agrees that he shall no longer have any right to the management of that property and vests the sole rights of management in another, he can be said to stand in the relationship contemplated above. In ascertaining whether an act is lawfully done within the meaning of the section, it must be ascertained whether the person so acting held such a position to the other as either directly to create, or by implication reasonably to justify, the inference that by the act done for the other person, he was entitled to look for compensation. MISTAKE.—Sec. 72 is unambiguous, and under that section, if money is paid to a person by mistake, he is bound to repay it. There is nothing to sec. 72 to suggest that it should only be applied when there is privity between the payer and the payee. I.L.R. (1942) Mad. 669=55 L.W. 233=1942 M.W.N. 335=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 590=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 441. Sec. 72 does not apply to a case where a person has been required by an order of a Court of competent jurisdiction to pay the money and the validity of the order has been challenged. Moreover the section relates to questions of fact and not questions of law. 171 I.C. 401=1937 Rang. 234. As the section lays down that a person to whom money is paid by mistake or coercion must repay or return it, it implies that the money was not really due to the person to whom it was paid. 43 A. 272=60 I.C. 881; 45 M.L.J. 497=4 L. 284=50 I.A. 162 (P.C.); 42 B. 161=42 I.C. 869. A mistake as to the construction and meaning of a contract is not a mistake of fact but a mistake of law. If a party acts on a mistaken view of his rights under a contract, he is not entitled to any relief under the heading mistake and if money is paid, it is money paid under a mistake of law and not a mistake of fact and is not recoverable. 22 Pat. 220=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 327=210 I.C. 426. The fact that a person pays a tax such as octroi to a local body without a protest at the time does not lead to the inference that the payment is voluntary so as to disentitle him from suing for refund of the tax paid on the ground that the tax has been illegally levied. Where the consequences of not paying the tax would be that the articles on which tax is claimed would be seized and detained, the payment of tax to avoid such consequence is a payment under duress and not a voluntary payment and can be recovered under sec. 72. 18 Mys.L.J. 477. A person who has paid taxes and licence fees to a panchayat Board under the mistaken belief that the properties or business in respect of which the taxes or fees were paid were situate within the jurisdiction of that Board, must be held to have done so under a mistake of fact and is entitled to recover them as money had and received under sec. 72. 51 L.W. 437=1940 Mad. 660=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 582. CHAPTER VI.

OF THE CONSEQUENCES OF BREACH OF CONTRACT.

73. When a contract has been broken, the party who suffers by such breach is entitled to receive, from the party who has broken the contract, compensation for any loss or damage caused to him thereby, which naturally arose in the usual course of things from such breach, or which the parties knew, when they made the contract, to be likely to result from the breach of it.

Compensation for loss or damage caused by breach of contract.

Such compensation is not to be given for any remote and indirect loss or damage sustained by reason of the breach.

When an obligation resembling those created by contract has been incurred and has not been discharged, any person injured by the failure to discharge it is entitled to receive the same compensation from the party in default, as if such person had contracted to discharge it and had broken his contract.

Compensation for failure to discharge obligation resembling those created by contract.

Explanation.—In estimating the loss or damage arising from a breach of contract, the means which existed of remedying the inconvenience caused by the non-performance of the contract must be taken into account.

The word "coercion" in sec. 72 is used in its general and ordinary sense and not in the sense in which it is defined in sec. 15. 40 C. 598=40 I.A. 56 (P.O.). Where a municipality, erroneously conceiving itself justified, makes a demand in the common form requiring the assessee to either pay or show cause for not paying the same and in default warning him that distraint will be made, payment in pursuance of such notice is not sufficient to take it out of the category of voluntary payments. Payment made without any expression of objection or unwillingness, under the erroneous belief that it was unobjectionable, cannot be recovered. 39 L.W. 660=1934 M. 420=47 M.L.J. 566. See also 1934 P. 605; 1933 L. 523. Money paid under legal process—Recoverability. 43 C. 269=20 C.W.N. 188; 53 I.C. 553. Money paid by a person under arrest in a non-compoundable case with a view to stifle a prosecution amounts to payment under coercion. 40 M. 285=31 M.L.J. 264. A landlord collected water-cess from plaintiffs at a penal rate and paid it to the Government. He was not liable to be sued by the plaintiffs for the recovery of the water-cess so paid by them. 29 M.L.J. 597=30 I. C. 178. A payment of water-cess made under fear of coercive process is not a voluntary payment. 37 M. 322=24 M.L.J. 365. Personal decree against Hindu widow—Estate attached in execution—Owner paying decretal amount to avoid sale—Money could be recovered. The fact that the person paying could have been made liable for the amount paid, had suitable proceedings been taken, was held to make no difference. I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 382=1938 Nag. 225. Money paid under compulsion of a legal process cannot be recovered as money had and received unless it was realized by fraud or some unconscionable dealing or by a grave mistake which a Court of equity will relieve against. 46 I.C. 534=3 P.L.J. 465. On this section, see also 32 Bom.L.R. 424; 44 L.W. 722=1936 Mad. 978. Money paid to official assignee under garnishee order cannot be recovered back. 171 I.C. 401=1937 Rang. 234. Landlord and tenant—Tenant leaving rent in arrears—Part of arrears barred by time—Landlord locking up premises preventing tenant from carrying on business therein—Payment by tenant to get rid of improper re-entry of landlord—Right to recover back amount of barred arrears paid by him. 49 Mys.H.C.R. 522. Sec. 72 uses the word 'mistake' without any qualification, and it contemplates not only a mistake of fact but also a mistake of law. There is no conflict between this section and sec. 21 of the Act. Sec. 21 speaks not of a payment made, under a mistake of law but of "a contract caused by a mistake of law". Sec. 72 does not speak of a contract at all but merely of a payment made under a mistake. If therefore a payment made under a mistake of law is not the origin of a contract such payment would be refundable under sec. 72. The English Common Law rule that a payment made under a mistake of law is not recoverable can have no application. 80 C. L.J. 170.

Sec. 73: SCOPE.—See 18 N.L.J. 313. Section merely prescribes method of assessing damages. It does not take away right of seller to sue for price when property in the goods has passed to buyer. 34 B. 192; 36 C. 736. The buyer has no right without the consent of the seller to extend the time and claim damages at the rate prevailing on the deferred date. 97 I.C. 269=19 S.L.R. 41; 37 Mad. 321. Section applies only when contract has been broken. See 4 Bom.L.R. 874. The party to be entitled to compensation must have done something to his own prejudice in the performance of his part of

(a) A contracts to sell and deliver 50 maunds of saltpetre to B, at a certain price to be paid on delivery. A breaks his promise. B is entitled to receive from A, by way of compensation, the sum, if any, by which the contract price falls short of the price for which B might have obtained 50 maunds of saltpetre of like quality at the time when the saltpetre ought to have been delivered.

(b) A hires B's ship to go to Bombay, and there take on board, on the first of January, a cargo which A is to provide and to bring it to Calcutta, the freight to be paid when earned. B's ship does not go to Bombay, but A has opportunities of procuring suitable conveyance for the cargo upon terms as advantageous as those on which he had chartered the ship. A avails himself of those opportunities, but is put to trouble and expense in doing so. A is entitled to receive compensation from B in respect of such trouble and expense.

(c) A contracts to buy of B, at a stated price 50 maunds of rice, no time being fixed for delivery. A afterwards informs B that he will not accept the price if tendered to him. B is entitled to receive from A, by way of compensation, the amount, if any, by which the contract price exceeds that which B can obtain for the rice at the time when A informs B that he will not accept it.

(d) A contracts to buy B's ship for 60,000 rupees, but breaks his promise. A must pay to B, by way of compensation, the excess, if any, of the contract price over the price which B can obtain for the ship at the time of the breach of promise.

(e) A, the owner of a boat, contracts with B to take a cargo of jute to Mirzapur, for sale at that place, starting on a specified day. The boat, owing to some avoidable cause does not start at the time appointed, whereby the arrival of the cargo at Mirzapur is delayed beyond the time when it would have arrived if the boat had sailed according to the contract. After that date, and before the arrival of the cargo, the price of jute falls. The measure of the compensation payable to B by A is the difference between the price which B could have obtained for the cargo at Mirzapur at the time when it would have arrived if forwarded in due course, and its market price at the time when it actually arrived.

the contract. Where therefore the vendors have no goods to deliver they suffered no injury by the vendee's breach not to take delivery and the vendors are not entitled to any damages. 151 I.C. 56=1934 N. 129. When a person is guilty of a breach of contract then ordinarily, the other party to the contract has open to him two remedies, one by a suit for damages and the other by a suit for specific performance of the contract. Of course, some kinds of contracts cannot be specifically performed, but in every case there is a right of action for damages, and in India that applies to contracts for the sale of immovable property just as much as to contracts for the sale of movable property. 189 I.C. 23=1940 Rang. 146. What is a reasonable time must always be a question of fact. 44 C.W.N. 1069. Where a person is not prepared to wait even a short time before giving final instructions for the cancellation of his contract to purchase goods to see whether the injunction prohibiting importation of his contracted goods was to be continued as to future importations, nor does he care on its discharge to cancel his letter of cancellation which he could easily have done by cable, in spite of the fact that the vendors were still prepared to keep the contract open, the cancellation is not due to the granting of the injunction but is a voluntary act on the part of the person for which the person obtaining injunction is not liable. 1929 P.C. 222=57 M.L.J. 558 (P.C.). Under the terms of sec. 73, the compensation is only for loss actually suffered, and such compensation is not to be given for any remote and indirect loss or damage sustained by the breach of contract. The section would give no cause of action in respect of a mere contingent liability, unless and until the damage is actually suffered. 222 I.C. 315. Where a contract is entered into between two Hindus that the daughter of the one should be given in marriage to the son of the other, the agreement is between or on behalf of the respective families of the parties to the marriage. When it is broken, damages of two kinds may naturally result: (1) the pecuniary loss, if any, and injury to the feelings and prospects to the bride or bridegroom personally; (2) the pecuniary loss and the loss to the credit and reputation of the family of the injured party. A suit by the father of the bride for damages suffered by him as head of the family and as father of the bride is not strictly an action for breach of promise of marriage as known to English law. Sec. 73 of the Contract Act which prescribes the general measure of damages for all contracts must be applied to the case. A claim to recover amounts by way of increased expenditure on the bride's subsequent marriage alleged to be due to her having been discarded cannot be al-

(f) A contracts to repair B's house in certain manner, and receives payment in advance. A repairs the house, but not according to contract. B is entitled to recover from A the cost of making the repairs conform to the contract.

(g) A contracts to let his ship to B for a year, from the first of January, for a certain price. Freight rises and on the first of January the hire obtainable for the ship is higher than the contract price. A breaks his promise. He must pay to B, by way of compensation, a sum equal to the difference between the contract price and the price for which B could hire a similar ship for a year on and from the first of January.

(h) A contracts to supply B with a certain quantity of iron at a fixed price, being a higher price than that for which A could procure and deliver the iron. B wrongfully refuses to receive the iron. B must pay to A, by way of compensation, the difference between the contract price of the iron and the sum for which A could have obtained and delivered it.

(i) A delivers to B, a common carrier, a machine, to be conveyed, without delay, to A's mill, informing B that his mill is stopped for want of the machine. B unreasonably delays the delivery of the machine, and A, in consequence, loses a profitable contract with the Government. A is entitled to receive from B, by way of compensation, the average amount of profit which would have been made, by the working of the mill during the time that delivery of it was delayed, but not the loss sustained through the loss of the Government contract.

(j) A, having contracted with B to supply B with 1000 tons of iron at 100 rupees a ton, to be delivered at a stated time, contracts with C for the purchase of 1000 tons of iron at 80 rupees a ton, telling C that he does so for the purpose of performing his contract with B. C fails to perform his contract with A, who cannot procure other iron, and B, in consequence, rescinds the contract. C must pay to A 20,000 rupees, being the profit which A would have made by the performance of his contract with B.

(k) A contracts with B to make and deliver to B, by a fixed day, for a specified price, a certain piece of machinery. A does not deliver the piece of machinery at the time specified, and, in consequence of this, B is obliged to procure another at a higher price than that which he was to have paid to A, and is prevented from performing a contract which B had made with a third person at the time of his contract with A (but which had not been then communicated to A), and is compelled to make compensation for breach of that contract. A must pay to B, by way of compensation, the difference between the contract price of the piece of machinery and the sum paid by B for another, but not the sum paid by B to the third person by way of compensation.

(l) A, a builder, contracts to erect and finish a house by the first of January, in order that B may give possession of it at that time to C, to whom B has contracted to let it. A is informed of the contract between B and C. A builds the house so badly that, before the first of January, it falls down and has to be re-built by B, who, in consequence loses the rent which he was to have received from C, and is obliged to make compensation to C for the breach of his contract. A must make compensation to B for the cost of re-building the house for the rent lost, and for the compensation made to C.

(m) A sells certain merchandise to B, warranting it to B of a particular quality, and B, in reliance upon this warranty, sells it to C with a similar warranty. The goods prove to be not according to the warranty, and B becomes liable to pay C a sum of money by way of compensation. B is entitled to be reimbursed this sum by A.

SET-OFF.—Where a contract for the sale of goods falls through by the default of the purchaser, the latter is entitled to recover the purchase-money paid by him (excluding the earnest or deposit), and the seller can only resist the claim by seeking to set-off against the said sum any damages which he might have incurred by reason of the pur-

(n) A contracts to pay a sum of money to B on a day specified. A does not pay the money on that day. B in consequence of not receiving the money on that day is unable to pay his debts, and is totally ruined. A is not liable to make good to B anything except the principal sum he contracted to pay, together with interest up to the day of payment.

(o) A contracts to deliver 50 maunds of saltpetre to B on the first of January, at a certain price. B afterwards, before the first of January, contracts to sell the saltpetre to C at a price higher than the market price of the first of January. A breaks his promise. In estimating the compensation payable by A to B, the market price of the first of January, and not the profit which would have arisen to B from the sale to C, is to be taken into account.

(p) A contracts to sell and deliver 500 bales of cotton to B on a fixed day. A knows nothing of B's mode of conducting his business. A breaks his promise, and B, having no cotton, is obliged to close his mill. A is not responsible to B for the loss caused to B by the closing of the mills.

(q) A contracts to sell and deliver to B, on the first of January, certain cloth which B intends to manufacture into caps of a particular kind, for which there is no demand, except at that season. The cloth is not delivered till after the appointed time, and too late to be used that year in making caps. B is entitled to receive from A by way of compensation, the difference between the contract price of the cloth and its market price at the time of delivery but not the profits which he expected to obtain by making caps, nor the expenses which he has been put to in making preparation for the manufacture.

(r) A, a ship-owner, contracts with B to convey him from Calcutta to Sydney in A's ship, sailing on the first of January, and B pays to A, by way of deposit, one-half of his passage-money. The ship does not sail on the first of January, and B after being, in consequence, detained in Calcutta for some time, and thereby put to some expense, proceeds to Sydney in another vessel, and, in consequence, arriving too late in Sydney, loses a sum of money. A is liable to repay to B, his deposit, with interest, and the expense to which he is put by his detention in Calcutta, and the excess, if any, of the passage-money paid for the second ship over that agreed upon for the first, but not the sum of money which B lost by arriving in Sydney too late.

A mortgage-deed provided that the mortgagee should pay the peishkush and the cess due on the land. The mortgagee defaulted and the mortgagor who was compelled to pay the amount sued for the recovery of the amount and claimed interest thereon. held, that (i) the case was not governed by the Interest Act, (ii) apart from the Act, in the absence of proof of special loss or damage, interest cannot be awarded under sec. 73 of the Contract Act, as damages for the mere wrongful detention of money. 145 I.C. 721=1933 M. 729=65 M. INTEREST—AWARD OF.—The Illus. (n) to sec. 73 does not confer upon a creditor a right to recover interest upon a debt which is due to him when he is not entitled to such interest under any provision of the law. 65 I.A. 66=I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 72=42 C.W.N. 985=1938 P.C. 67=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 640 (P.C.). Sec. 73 is merely declaratory of the common law as to damages. Interest cannot be allowed at common law by way of damages for wrongful detention of debt. 65 I.A. 66=I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 72=1938 A.L.J. 169=1938 P.C. 67=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 640 (P.C.). The rule of law is that, in the absence of special circumstances, interest cannot be allowed on damages for breach of contract for sale of goods. 40 P.L.R. 531. Interest cannot be recovered as damages under sec. 73 where it is not recoverable under the Interest Act. As interest can be recovered under the Interest Act only on debts of sums certain payable at a certain time no interest can be allowed on compensation decreed for use and occupation of land because it cannot be said that it relates to sums payable at a certain time. 1942 A.L.W. 659. Though where payment of money is claimed on a contract interest cannot be allowed except under the provisions of the Interest Act, the position is different where interest is claimed as part of the damages for breach of the contract and it can be allowed. 1945 O.W.N. Where under an improvement lease it was provided that the lessee was to pay rent when the land was assessed by Government and the lessor later on instituted a suit to recover the arrears of rent with interest, held, that interest could not be allowed under sec. 73, III. Difference in prices represents the full amount of compensation to be given under sec. 73, Contract Act, on account of loss sustained by fall of market prices and decree for interest on such amount should not be given. But plaintiff is entitled to interest on account of delay in payment of amount due to him as loss and it can be awarded as compensation calculated on basis of interest. 1930 A.L.J. 674=1939 A. 132. See also 27 A.L.J. 674=1929 A. 801; 12 P. 216. RIGHT TO DAMAGES.—Sec. 73 is general and can equally apply to contracts for sale of immovable property. But the damage alleged to have been caused must have arisen "naturally in the usual course of things from such breach". Damages recoverable for consequential expenses are limited by the test of what a prudent man might have reasonably done under the circumstances. 23 Mys.L.J. 105=49 Mys.H.C.R. 509. The remedy in a suit for damages for breach of a contract need not be one of the terms of the contract, but becomes available under law in case of a breach of a contract without any express stipulation. 23 Pat.L.T. 11. Where a person contracts to indemnify another in respect of any liability which the Damages in such way must be awarded to purchaser, if vendor fails to make good title to property sold by him. 85 I.C. 421=1925 L. 262. See also 19 S.L.R. 337=1927 S. 120. INTEREST.—Whether can be awarded by way of damages. 12 P. 216. Compensation can only be claimed under sec. 73 of the Contract Act when loss or damage has been caused, and it is doubtful whether it could be held that the mere passing of a decree in favour of a third party in respect of property sold actually causes any loss or damage to the purchaser before the decree is executed. 1936 O.W.N. 143=1936 O. 141. The doctrine of frustration of contract only applies if the disturbing cause goes to the extent of substantially preventing the performance of the whole contract: Interference leaving a considerable part capable of performance will not be an excuse. Impossibility arising from the promisor's own act or default is not in any case an excuse for non-performance of his contract. 19 Pat. 1=1940 Pat. 204. The doctrine of "frustration of venture" is based not upon the existence of any actual impossibility in fact but upon the existence, in the circumstances of the case, of an implied condition. In order to justify such an inference, the implied condition must be absolutely necessary to give effect to the transaction which the parties must have intended. I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 78=45 C.W.N. 660=73 C.L.J. 294. See also 19 Pat. 1=1940 Pat. 204.

DUTY TO MINIMISE DAMAGES.—Every person who has a right to damages for breach of contract must take all reasonable steps to mitigate the loss arising from such breach. Where a tenant who promised to pay Government revenue and cess has failed to pay it, but the landlord who has notice of the intended sale takes no steps to avoid the sale by paying necessary dues and the property is ultimately sold, the landlord in a suit by him for damages for breach of contract cannot claim as damages any loss which he could have mitigated by taking necessary steps. 186 I.C. 852=1940 Pat. 88. See also 49 Mys.H.C.R. 509. If a contracting party has suffered damages through breach of contract by the other contracting party, it is his duty to minimise that damage and if he fails to do so when it was in his power he cannot recover in respect of the damage which he could have avoided. 1933 A.L.J. 670=1933 A. 511. The duty on the part of the plaintiff to minimise damages arises only after breach has occurred. 83 I.C. 260=1924 C. 427. See also (1938) 1 M.L.J. 857; 1940 Pat. 88; 49 B. 25=86 I.C.

521. Sec. 73 lays down the general principle of law where there is no provision in the deed of contract regarding re-sale. The re-sale in such circumstances must take place within a reasonable time. The purchasers can, regarding the time of the re-sale to the sellers, however, agree to give uncontrolled discretion and they can also agree that they will not raise any objection regarding a re-sale taking place after an unreasonable lapse of time. Such a clause though harsh is not unconscionable or illegal in mercantile contracts. There can be no question in a mercantile contract of one party being able to dominate the will of the other party or to overreach it. In such circumstances the Court cannot relieve the purchaser on equitable grounds of the effect of a harsh or onerous term to which he has agreed by means of a solemn written contract. A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 35.

MEASURE OF DAMAGES.—The theory of damages is that they are a compensation and satisfaction for the injury sustained, that is, that the sum of money to be given for reparation of the damages suffered should, as nearly as possible, be the sum which will put the injured party in the same position as he would have been if he had not sustained the wrong for which he is getting damages. 196 I.C. 529=14 R.S. 70=1941 Sind 146. See also 19 Pat. 1=1940 Pat. 204. Measure of damages to which a promisee is entitled in a case of a breach of contract is the difference between the contract rate and the market rate on the date of breach of contract. 43 C. 493=43 I.A. 6; 36 C. 617; 41 M. 409; 22 M.L.J. 413. See also 38 C. 458; 5 Bur.L.J. 198; 102 I.C. 628; 97 I.C. 871; 1926 M. 162=57 M.L.J. 243; 116 I.C. 551; 1930 M.W.N. 195=1930 M. 748 and 1933 N. 263 (Immovable property); I.L.R. The use of the word 'deposit' in contract implies an agreement that the sum deposited may be forfeited in case of breach by the depositor. 1937 Lah. 847. In the case of mercantile contracts, even in respect of sale of goods, it has been customary in India to receive sums of money by way of deposit or earnest and such sums can be forfeited by the vendor when default is committed by the vendee in the performance of his part of the contract. Where the vendee after paying a deposit and taking delivery of the sale-deed from the vendor returns it to the vendor being unable to find the purchase money and allows the period of four months' time for registration to pass without making any further payment, he is not entitled to claim back the deposit paid by him and plead that the vendor has treated the contract as at an end. An agreement between the Government and a person was entered into by which the latter was to be responsible for the loss of public money which was caused otherwise than by act of God or the King's enemies. While the agent of such person was going to the Bank to deposit public money, he was attacked, stabbed and robbed of the money. Held, that he was liable to make good the loss as the loss which had been suffered was neither by an act of God nor the King's enemies. 200 I.C. 429=A.I.R. 1942 Pesh. 33.

PENALTY.—The stipulation in a post-decree agreement to pay the amount of the decree in instalments and that if one instalment is not paid the whole amount shall be paid forthwith is not a penal provision. 25 S. SEC. 74: SCOPE.—The section as it originally stood was intended to do away with the distinction between penalty and liquidated damages. 9 C. 689 (692); 3 M. 224; 11 C. 545; 5 A. 238; 27 C. 421; 3 C.W.N. 43 (45); 17 B. 106 (111). S. 74 boldly cuts the most troublesome knot in the common law doctrine of damages. Whether actual damage or loss is proved or not, the Court is entitled to award reasonable damages not exceeding the stipulated amount. 189 I.C. 785=1940 Sind 1. The right of a party complaining of a breach of contract to reasonable compensation under S. 74 is not dependent on proof of actual loss or damage. Even when no actual damage or loss is proved to have been caused by the breach the party is entitled to compensation. 1937 A.L.J. 1385=(1938) A. W.R. (H.C.) 11; 1943 Mad. 598=(1943) 1 M. L. J. 297. result of a 'genuine pre-estimate of damages'. They do not include a sum fixed in terrorem covering breaches of contract of many varying degrees of importance, the possible damages from which bear no relation to the fixed sum, and which obviously have at no time been estimated by the contracting parties. 1941 O.A. 618=1941 P.C. 101 (P.C.). S. 74 applies to cases in which there is a breach of contract and is inapplicable to a case of breach of warranty. 1930 L. 843. Section does not apply to covenants in a lease of which the breach involves forfeiture. 43 M. 654. An agreement that the pledge should become irredeemable if not redeemed after a certain period, although it may be an unfair agreement, would not in itself constitute an agreement by way of penalty unless the value of the thing pledged is so very much larger than the amount of the loan that it would become obvious that the clause is really inserted as a means of bringing pressure upon the pledgor to repay the loan within the contracted time. 1939 Rang. 413. As to the commencement of the operation of the amended section, 25 M. 343; 26 M. 445; 25 A. 169 (Conflict of rulings). S. 74 is as much applicable to contracts in consent decrees as to contracts in decrees passed by the Court after hearing the parties. The executing Court can go into the question whether the term or condition in a consent decree is penal or not and can grant relief. Such relief, being an equitable relief, will not be granted by a Court when there is laches or delay on the part of the party seeking its assistance. 222 I.C. 628. S. 74 applies also to a consent decree just as it applies to any other contract. There is nothing in the section to limit its application to any particular form of contract, and a consent decree does not become less a contract between the parties because it is impressed with the seal of the Court. A decree embodying a compromise does not make the compromise any the less the contract of the parties. I. L.R. (1943) Kar. 245=A.I.R. 1943 Sind 247. A consent decree is more or less a sort of contract incorporated in the form of a decree and the Courts have power under S. 74, to relieve the judgment-debtor of the effect of a penal clause in the decree if it is considered equitable to do so. Then the question of concession does not arise. S. 74, allows the Court to come to the help of the person against whom a penal clause operates on the happening of a particular event. 206 I.C. 625=A.I.R. 1943 Pesh. 35. The doctrine of penalties is not applicable to stipulations contained in a decree. 1925 P. H.C.C. 353. The section does apply to a compromise decree and it is open to a Court executing such decree to go behind it so as to interfere with a stipulation by way of penalty contained in the compromise. 1933 A.L.J. 132=1933 A. 252 (F.B.); 1925 M. 264. The test to decide whether a default clause in a compromise decree is a penalty is to see whether it is a liability imposed on the defendant to pay the decree-holder something more than he would be entitled to under the decree. 44 L.W. 832=1937 M. 234. See also 1937 Nag. 413; 1941 O.A. 865=1941 O.W.N. 1138. Payment of larger amount in default of conditions provided in a compromise decree depends on determination of the question whether the larger amount was actually due or whether an amount not actually due is sought to be recovered. 103 I.C. 805=1927 L. 659; 1927 M. 965=53 M. L.J. 562; B occupied some premises owned by M at the rate of Rs. 55 per mensem under a lease terminable by a month's notice. Subsequently B obtained some additional premises at an additional rent of Rs. 25 per mensem. There was a rise in rentals in the neighbourhood in which the premises stood. On 24th August, 1931, M sent a notice to B giving him the alternative of quitting the premises by 27th September, 1931, or, if he failed to give up possession, of continuing his occupation at a rental of Rs. 125 per mensem for both premises, "as rents had risen very high." B sent a reply on 20th October, 1931, to the effect that he would leave the premises on 1st November, 1931, but he made no reference to the proposal to increase the rent. B actually vacated the place on 25th December, 1931. B sued in January, 1932, for arrears of rent for three months at Rs. 125. Held, that S. 74, Contract Act, was not applicable as B did not break a contract, and his liability therefore was not one for damages for breach of contract. As B refused to vacate and remained in possession he must be held to have agreed by implication to hold over and to have accepted the proposal to pay rent at the enhanced rate proposed by the landlord in his notice and therefore M could claim the rent at Rs. 125. 1934 A.L.J. 421=1934 A. 715. Where the promise of marriage is broken a suit is maintainable for the return of the bridal gifts made to the woman and her parents. But the provisions of the Dharmashastras as to payment of double value by way of compensation are archaic and obsolete and should not be enforced. Even if in such a case the parent had promised to return double the value, the Court should apply S. 74 of the Contract Act and grant reasonable compensation and not the penalty stipulated for. 11 R. 143=146 I.C. 724=1933 R. 198 (1). When a party to a contract commits an anticipatory breach, the injured party has an option of rescinding it or of electing to treat it as continuing and then suing on the due date for such damages as then accrue. An election once made cannot be avoided. Damages for the breach are to be assessed not from the date of breach but from the date on which the other side elects to rescind. There can be no claim for damages with respect to a contract which is still in being, and it is clear the contract cannot be determined by one side alone except by performance. Unless and until the other side chooses to rescind, the contract remains alive for all purposes. It is difficult to see why the wrongdoer should be entitled to take advantage of his own wrong. 171 I.C. 553=1937 Nag. 289.

PENALTY.—Where a condition in a contract carries with it an element of punishment, it is in the nature of a penalty. 144 I.C. 756=10 O.W.N. 759=1933 O. 291. See also I.L.R. (1937) 1 C. 300=41 O.W.N. 751=1937 Cal. 654. When a contract contains a term which, not being an integral part of the contract, is introduced only for the purpose of securing the performance of the contract, that term is penal and equity interferes to relieve a party to the contract against it. A penalty is a term which is extraneous and collateral to the actual contract. The reservation of a right to have full payment of money actually due on an existing contract, should there be a failure to pay a smaller sum on a day certain, cannot be treated as a penalty. 1937 Nag. 413. Where the parties themselves contemplate at the time of the transaction that there might be delays in payment and provide for the payment of compound interest from the date of default at the same rate at which simple interest was payable before, it is not a penalty. The word "penalty" is used in S. 74 in the sense of a secondary stipulation which provides for the payment of an additional burden on default. 1934 M. 31 (2)=148 I.C. 467 (F.B.). A penalty under the section will only follow a breach of a contract or an obligation. Where there is no obligation at all there is no question of penalty. 1925 P. 122=7 P.L.T. 299. Where the contract is for the payment of a larger sum with a concession enabling a smaller sum to be paid in a particular way in full satisfaction, the law relating to penalties and S. 74 of the Contract Act have no application, and terms must be carried out according to intention of the parties. 58 B. 610=152 I.C. 575=36 Bom.L.R. 798=1934 B. 370. The amount which was found due under a decree was Rs. 5,600. This included a sum of Rs. 850 compound and penal interest provided for in the original document as penalty. The decree provided that if the amount less the penalty was paid in certain instalments the debtor would be allowed a rebate of this amount of penalty imposed in the original document between the parties. In default of the payment of instalments the defendant would be liable to pay the whole sum of Rs. 5,600. Held, that there was clearly a penal clause. Held, further, that the executing Court as a Court of equity had the power to relieve against the penalty, even if the decree was one on award. 177 I.C. 926 = 1938 Sind 185. A stipulation in a maintenance deed for possession of land in case of default of payment would amount to penalty. 27 N.L.R. 24 = 1931 N. 60. Rules of a benefit fund providing for loans at a low rate of interest to shareholders—The whole loan becoming repayable at an enhanced rate of interest on the death of a shareholder and the failure of his legal representative to apply to continue as shareholder—The provision does not amount to a penalty. 95 I.C. 610 = 1926 M. 735 = 50 M.L.J. 595. Under a compromise decree plaintiff agreed to accept a smaller sum than what he claimed and it was to be paid in two instalments on dates fixed. J. 210 = 1926 A. 278. See also 1935 R. 341; 132 I.C. 580 = 1931 L. 696. Even in the case of consent decrees, the Court can relieve a party from provisions which are of a penal character. But the provisions in a compromise of a mortgage suit allowing the decree-holders the right to sell the mortgaged property in case of default in payment of any instalment is not a provision of such character. 9 Luck. 387 = 147 I.C. 559 = 148 I.C. 251 = 1934 O. 44; 1935 R. 341. See also 44 L.W. 838 = 1937 Mad. 234; 1938 Sind 185; 1943 Sind 247 = I.L.R. (1943) Kur. 245. The question whether a default has or has not taken place is one of fact to be decided on the facts of each case. Similarly it depends on the facts, if time was of the essence of the contract, if as a result of the default, the judgment-debtor has to pay a larger amount, but where the decree-holder is merely withdrawing a concession and the amount claimed by him does not exceed what was due to him, there is no equitable ground for treating the sum as a penalty and refusing to enforce its payment. 132 I.C. 580 = 1931 L. 696; 1933 L. 523. See also 8 Mys.L.J. 433; 1938 Sind 185. The undertaking by a mortgagor to pay a larger sum than the principal at the time of redemption is enforceable. 3 O.W.N. 610 = 96 I.C. 538 = 1926 O 502. The fact that the parties have termed the amount paid as earnest is not conclusive and it is necessary for the Court to consider whether or not the payment although so termed is in reality earnest money. Where Rs. 530 out of Rs. 720 fixed as price have been paid the stipulation that the sum of Rs. 530 should be forfeited on default is of the nature of the penalty and the vendor is entitled to only reasonable compensation. 143 I.C. 192 = 1933 N. 23. It is a well-understood principle of English law that where under a contract of sale of land a sum of money is paid as deposit the vendor is entitled to retain the same if the contract goes off by default of the purchaser, the basis of the rule being that the sum paid as deposit is a guarantee for the performance of the contract. This principle also applies to India. 46 L.W. 839 = 1937 Mad. 681. The provisions of S. 74 of the Contract Act do not apply to a deposit of money made to secure or guarantee the performance of contract. Such a deposit can therefore be forfeited upon the failure of the depositor to perform the contract within time if the amount is not unreasonable although no damage is proved. The fact that a party has not paid the security deposit required by the contract does not affect the question of his liability to forfeit the amount required to be deposited as he cannot be in a better position by reason of his own default than if he had fulfilled his obligation. 46 C.W.N. 522 = A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 382.

If an agreement provides for a certain rate of interest in case of single default and an enhanced rate of interest in the event of consecutive defaults, the provision for enhanced interest in the event of consecutive defaults is a stipulation by way of penalty in view of the explanation to S. 74. 1934 P. 16. See also 56 L.W. 661. Where the bond stipulates that the loan will carry no interest for a period but in default of payment during that period interest is to be charged then (1) if the interest is to be charged from the date of the bond, whatever the rate may be the stipulation is in the nature of the penalty; (2) if interest is to be charged from the date of default at the usual ordinary contract rate, the stipulation is not in the nature of penalty; (3) if the loan includes the sum advanced and further compensation or past interest due, the stipulation for payment of interest at any rate from the date of default is penal; (4) if the rate of interest is exorbitant the stipulation is penal. 35 C.W.N. 1224. Where interest on a mortgage is payable at 12 per cent. merely because compound interest is payable on default to pay interest regularly, rate of interest should not be held to be excessive or exorbitant, unless it is proved that the rate is unconscionable or extortionate. 56 A. 496=1934 A.L.J. 371=1934 A. 152. See also 56 L.W. 661. When a mortgage deed provides for interest on interest, it is part of the contract itself; and the mere fact that under S. 74, Contract Act, the Court is given power to reduce the rate does not make the reduced rate any the less a claim under the Contract Act. No doubt, the word "penalty" is used in S. 74 when speaking of "enhanced" interest, but it is not in the sense of a claim de hors the contract. DAMAGE.—ASSESSMENT OF.—In the case of a breach of warranty as to the petrol consumption of a motorcar, the mode of assessing damage at the extra running costs on the supposed life of the car as 200,000 miles is quite unreasonable (damages were reduced from Rs. 3,000 to Rs. 2,000). 1934 All. 392. Where the contract is made at O for ready delivery and the plaintiff produces no evidence to show what was the market rate on or about the date of the breach of contract at O, the plaintiff has failed to show that he was entitled to any damages. 149 I.C. 1119=1934 L. 59. Where defendant agreed that it plaintiff was required to pay certain money with 6 per cent. interest which defendant was being to pay, defendant would pay it along with damages for any contingency. Held, that plaintiff could not recover interest at 24 per cent. simply because he had to borrow at 24 per cent. 1954 A.L.J. 682=1934 A. 525. See also 1937 Nag. 205. DAMAGES—BURDEN OF PROOF.—Under S. 74, Contract Act, where liquidated damages are entered in a contract itself as payable in the event of breach, then damages payable when a breach occurs are to be assessed in the ordinary way subject to that fixed amount as a maximum; and it is for the plaintiff to prove the exact amount of damages which he suffered and that amount only could be awarded. The gain derived by defendant by breach should be taken to be loss suffered by plaintiff. 1935 Pesh. 57=156 I.C. 146. See also 149 I.C. 1119=1934 L. 59. Under S. 74, the plaintiff must prove his damage in a general sense. The contract made by the parties estimating their damages is in itself evidence and if there is no other evidence of damage, this evidence alone will be considered sufficient. The sum named, however, is not conclusive evidence; and if there is other evidence or circumstances showing that it was excessive or unreasonable, the Court will not consider itself bound by it. The plaintiff will have to prove his damages irrespective of the figure. (1929 P.C. 179 and 11 C. 545, Cons.), 60 C. 1379=1934 C. 285. See also 56 L.W. 302=1943 Mad. 589=(1943) 1 M. L.J. 297.

SECOND APPEAL.—S. 74 empowers the Court to award reasonable compensation and what is reasonable must depend on the circumstances of each case. It is a question of fact and not of law; and the decision of the Courts of fact with regard to the amount of compensation is not open to be challenged in second appeal. 1934 P. 16.

defendant: none of the first defendant. The negotiations were conducted by the plaintiff on behalf of his son and by the 1st defendant, on behalf of his niece. After the negotiations were concluded with the usual pan rusum ceremony for which the plaintiff spent some amounts, the plaintiff discovered that the prospective bride suffered from epileptic fits during her childhood and so broke off the engagement. He then sued for the money, spent by him for pan rusum ceremony, alleging that he would not have consented to the engagement if he had known of the girl's disease and that the first defendant, who was under a duty to disclose it, having failed to disclose it, was liable for the plaintiff's claim. Held, (1) that the contract of marriage came under the category of contracts uberrimae fidei, and that the first defendant who was in possession of the facts had the duty to disclose the fact of his niece having had epileptic fits; but that the 1st defendant was guilty only of a mere passive disclosure and not of any false representation; (2) that the plaintiff though justified in rescinding the contract of marriage was not entitled to obtain the damages claimed as the same did not arise through non-fulfilment of the contract; (3) that when any contract is avoided for breach, it remained operative as to the past and so claims for restitution in respect of acts of performance prior to the rescission are precluded. I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 299=1937 Nag. 270.

INDEMNITY-HOLDER—RIGHT OF ACTION—SUIT BEFORE ACTUAL LOSS IS SUFFERED.—S. 124 only deals with one particular kind of indemnity which arises from a promise made by the indemnifier to save the indemnified from the loss caused to him by the conduct of the indemnifier himself or by the conduct of any other person, but does not deal with those classes of cases where the indemnity arises from loss caused by events or accidents which do not or may not depend upon the conduct of the indemnifier or any other person, or by reason of liability incurred by something done by the indemnified at the request of the indemnifier. S. 125 only deals with the indemnity-holder in the event of his being sued and is by no means exhaustive of the rights of the indemnity-holder. There is no justification or authority for holding that in no case can an indemnity-holder maintain an action against an indemnifier unless he has suffered actual loss. If the indemnified has incurred a liability and that liability is absolute, he is entitled to call upon the indemnifier to save him from that liability and to pay it off. I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 670=44 Bom.L.R. 703=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 302. See also 1944 Pat. 185=22 Pat. 655; 1926 Mad. 537. It is a general principle of law when an act is done by one person at the request of another which act is not in itself manifestly tortious to the knowledge of the person doing it, and such act turns out to be injurious to the rights of a third party, the person doing it is entitled to an indemnity from him who requested that it should be done. The liability is said to be based on a contract implied by law, the request importing a promise to indemnify the other party against the consequences to him of acting upon the request. 65 I.A. 286=I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 502=42 C.W.N. 957=1938 P.C. 191=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 169 (P.C.). Unlike the case of a contract of guarantee, there is no direct right of action on the original contract to the person who indemnifies, against the person whose conduct has caused loss—He can sue only in the name of the promisee. 49 M. 156=95 I.C. 154=1926 M. 544. See also 43 Bom.L.R. 550=1940 Bom. 315=I. An undertaking by a second mortgagee to pay off a prior mortgage cannot be held to be a contract of indemnity in the absence of an express provision in the deed of mortgage to the second mortgagee to indemnify the mortgagor; a suit for damages based on the breach of the undertaking to pay off the first mortgage is governed by Art. 116 of the Limitation Act, when the contract is registered. Limitation commences to run from the time the contract is broken and not from the time at which any damage arising therefrom is sustained by the plaintiff. 17 Pat. 338=19 Pat.L.T. 198=1938 Pat. 275. See also 1938 A.L.J. 455.

IMPLIED CONTRACT OF INDEMNITY—SALE OF PROPERTY SUBJECT TO CHARGE.—Where property is sold subject to encumbrances, the purchaser impliedly agrees to indemnify the vendor against the encumbrances. SECS. 124, 125 AND 126.—Reading Ss. 124 and 125, Contract Act and Art. 83 of the Limitation Act, it is clear that under a contract of indemnity the cause of action arises when the damage which the indemnity is intended to cover is suffered; and a suit brought before the actual loss had accrued must be thrown out as premature. 42 Bom. L.R. 175=1940 Bom. 161. See also 1935 Lah. 974.

CONTRACT OF GUARANTEE AND CONTRACT OF INDEMNITY—DISTINCTION—BROKER AND SUB-BROKER.—A contract of guarantee as defined by S. 126 involves three parties, the creditor, the surety and the principal debtor; and it involves a contract to which those parties are privy. The contract need not be embodied in a single document, but there must be a contract or contracts to which the three parties are privy. There must be a contract, first of all, between the principal debtor and the creditor. Then there must be a contract between the surety and the creditor, by which the surety guarantees the debt, and the consideration for that contract may move either from the creditor or from the principal debtor or both. But if those are the only contracts, the case is one of indemnity. In order to constitute a contract of guarantee there must be a third contract, by which the principal debtor expressly or impliedly requests the surety to act as surety. Unless that element is present, it is impossible to work out the rights and liabilities of the surety under the Contract Act. It is impossible to imply a promise by the principal debtor to indemnify the surety, unless the principal debtor is privy to the contract of suretyship. An agreement between a broker and a sub-broker by which the latter agrees to save the former from any loss which he would suffer by reason of his effecting transactions at the request of the sub-broker for the constituents introduced by the sub-broker, the constituents being unascertained at the time and knowing nothing of the guarantee, is a contract of indemnity under S. 124 and is not a contract of guarantee falling under S. 126. Suit for damages lies for breach of contract of indemnity for loss of possession when the title is impaired and not necessarily when possession is actually lost. 31 M.L.J. 556=35 I.C. 789. Suit by surety

(2) all costs which he may be compelled to pay in any such suit if, in bringing or defending it, he did not contravene the orders of the promisor, and acted as it would have been prudent for him to act in the absence of any contract of indemnity, or if the promisor authorised him to bring or defend the suit ;

(3) all sums which he may have paid under the terms of any compromise of any such suit, if the compromise was not contrary to the orders of the promisor, and was one which it would have been prudent for the promisee to make in the absence of any contract of indemnity, or if the promisor authorised him to compromise the suit.

126. A "contract of guarantee" is a contract to perform the promise, or discharge the liability, of a third person in case of his default. The person who gives the guarantee is called the "surety"; the person in respect of whose default the guarantee is given is called the "principal debtor,"

"Contract or guarantee,"
and "creditor."
